Biographical Sketch

Clare Hogenuer is a retired New York City attorney who has been a death penalty opponent for decades. She has attended death penalty trials, lobbied government, spoken to school groups about capital punishment, and testified before legislative bodies during state death penalty hearings, including ones in Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey.

Scope and Contents

The Clare Hogenuer Papers document her activism and efforts to try to abolish capital punishment. The majority of the collection consists of VHS tapes recording death penalty abolitionist events and speakers, especially those from Journey of Hope. There also are videos recording news of executions and a small number of paper records, including Hogenuer's testimony in New Jersey against the death penalty.
