Historical Note

Established in 2002, Women Against War was formed by a group Capital District New York women who mobilized against the United States government's plan to go to war with Iraq. Since then, Women Against War has become a vital participant in the larger national and international peace and justice movement through its various projects and affiliations. Women Against War advocates for changed U.S. foreign policies through lobbying, leafleting, vigils, media outreach, and educational events.

Content Description

Currently the collection includes digital files of the Waging Peace blog created by Women Against War. The blog appeared on the Albany Times-Union web site from 2009-2021 and a core group of Women Against War authors regularly contributed to the blog. Additional files, including physical materials, are expected to be added.
