Biographical / Historical

Donald Liedel joined the State College for Teachers faculty in 1955 as Assistant Professor for Social Studies. He received a BA from Wayne State University and an MA from the University of Michigan where he had a research fellowship prior to his appointment. In 1969 he was appointed to the university's Advisory Committee for the Department of Afro-American Studies. Liedel collected information about the University at Albany's campus unrest as well as information about the University's Ph.D program.
