SHOWING THE WAY

Always a pioneer and leader among the teacher training colleges of the United States, State college again sets a record by achieving the first official recognition of membership in the American Association of University Women ever given to a teacher training college.

The announcement, made this week by Dean Catherine Adams of Mills college, Oakland, California, means that State college has maintained or surpassed the scholastic, social, and cultural standards of the liberal arts colleges which have previously made up the entire membership of the association. Membership was extended only after a painstaking investigation of student life here.

There were obstacles to be surmounted, other than the fact that this is a professional college. There was the barrier of credit given for practice teaching. It was found that liberal arts colleges averaged 120 hours for graduation requirements, whereas State had a standard of 124. So that difficulty was removed.

Acknowledgement must be made that the student body could not have achieved membership without the interest and cooperation of the faculty. The friendly contacts of students and faculty were among the factors which ultimately decided the committee in its investigation.

The faculty and student body are proud of the honor bestowed upon State college, but they accept it as a just recognition which has been fairly earned.

EXERCISE YOUR RIGHTS

One of the pre-rogatives for which our fore-fathers fought may be exercised today by members of the student body. It is to be hoped that they will take advantage of the opportunity. Nominations for officers of student association is always an important event, and this year is no exception.

It is the duty of every loyal student of State to be present in assembly today to nominate the students who he believes are best suited for some of the most important positions in extra-curricular activities.

Consideration of the qualities which make up a leader should be weighed. If the student has them, nominate him, but use discretion. Don't name someone just because he did a research paper for you once.

AN EYE FOR THE FUTURE

The last lap for most of the seniors is beginning today with the realization that there are only eight more weeks before Class Night. Six weeks from Monday the final examinations begin—the last that the class of '31 will take within these walls.

However, before sentimentality sets in, it behooves all the seniors to take advantage of the few remaining days to make sure that the June, 1931 examinations ARE the last ones which they take here as students. It also behooves all the members of the other classes to bestir themselves so that these above-mentioned examinations ARE the last ones which they take here.

PLANS MATERIALIZE

The much-planned-for dormitory or residence hall is at last beginning to take actual shape. With the passage of the bill in the state legislature making an exchange of sites possible, matters have progressed to such a stage that no one can say a residence hall is a wild dream.

If ground is broken this year, as seems highly probable, State college students may look forward to the day, not so far off, when they may proudly say that they have a physical home as well as an intellectual one.

BOARD EXPLAINS

The News board feels that an apology and an explanation is due the members of the student association for the unusual delay which occurred in the publication and distribution of the last issue.

The presses of the Mills Art Press, publishers of the News, broke and necessitated the transportation of the type and headlines to another firm. The delay was unavoidable, the printer explained.

The board takes this opportunity to announce that the delay was in no way caused by the staff.

BOOKS: DR. THOMPSON'S NEW BOOK ON MACKENZIE IS SCHOLARLY

(For Sale in the Co-op)

A Scottish Man of Feeling. By Dr. Harold W. Thompson. Oxford University Press. New York and London. 463 pages. $5.

This volume is the second of two scholarly works written by Dr. Thompson on the life and times of Henry Mackenzie and attempts to account for the literature of the Golden Age of Scotland which produced such men as David Hume, Robert Burns, and Sir Walter Scott. In his preface the author states: "I think that no previous author has attempted to explain how within the lifetime of one man the sentiment, intellect, and faith of Scotland found expression in the works of such consistent and enduring beauty."

To the student of British literature its pages fill in the rather sketchy outline received in English three. Although the book is devoted primarily to the life and writings of Mackenzie, it relates equally interesting accounts of little known actions of Burns, Scott and Cowper and many of the historic events that took place in Scotland between 1745 and 1831. The crown rule in Scotland under Pitt's lieutenant, Henry Dundas is narrated. The patronage of Scottish men of politics for men of letters is interesting and typical of the period. Mackenzie himself a dramatist and poet and long the literary dictator of Scotland and helped many a struggling young aspirant to the literati of his day. His contacts with the great Sarah Siddons and her son were highly interesting.

The present volume quotes sparingly from Mackenzie's own Anecdotes and Egotisms, recently edited by Dr. Thompson. Throughout the pages the scholarly content is made sparkling with well chosen anecdotes and jests of the times. Dr. Thompson's own sense of humor, so well known to students here, is very apparent throughout the volume.

Dr. Thompson has tried to make the volume of interest to both the general reader and the scholar. On this point he says: "One of the reasons why it has taken fifteen years to complete this book is because I was not sure whether I should write for the general reader or for the student—I have not the confidence to say the scholar. If for the general reader, traditionally there should be numerous anecdotes and easy generalizations; if for the student, there should be thorough documentation." The attempt to write for both classes of readers has been entirely successful. The interest of the reader is sustained throughout the nearly five hundred pages of contents and enlivened with sparkling wit and timely anecdote.

A prologue and an epilogue have been presented. The first gives a preliminary view of the nation at the height of Jacobinism; the last presents the author's opinions of some modern literature, although he remarks on greater familiarity with eighteenth century writings than on twentieth century.

Much of the material for this book was collected by Dr. Thompson while in the University of Edinburgh on a Guggenheim fellowship. It was his work on the first volume which earned him the 13th D. Litt given an American by that university.

Politics And Education Of 80 Years Recalled By Oldest School Principal

An Albanian who had witnessed the funeral cortege of Henry Clay passing through the streets of the city in 1852 and whose experience as an active principal and educator have extended over a period of sixty-five years addressed the members of Kappa Phi Kappa, national honorary educational fraternity, in the Red room Tuesday night. He was Patrick H. McQuade, principal of School 21 and oldest active principal in the United States.

Mr. McQuade first sketched the political and industrial history of Albany as he had witnessed it during his lifetime. As a boy he had witnessed shipping extending along the river front, vessels three deep. He recalled that the boundaries of Albany were marked across the river by a "primeval forest" and that Canadian Indians often camped there.

Was Born In 1844

In 1844, the year Mr. McQuade was born, Albany obtained the second normal school in the United States. The old building known as Van Vechten hall, still standing on State street, was the first passenger railroad station in the United States, Mr. McQuade said. In it were conducted the classes of the first State Normal school.

Several of Mr. McQuade's instructors at the Albany Boys Academy were intimately connected with the forerunners of State college. His teacher in English and rhetoric, Edward P. Waterbury, was later president of the State Normal school. Mr. Levi Cass, an early graduate of the Normal school, was another of his teachers. "Mr. Waterbury was one of the finest men and best teachers I ever knew," Mr. McQuade declared.

In 1838 Albany built ten public district schools. All of them consisted of a two story building and basement and a single teacher composed the entire faculty. The upper story was used for older students. There were no desks or supplies and all students sat on long benches. They had for equipment merely a card on which was printed the alphabet, he said.

In the old days the principal or teacher did not hesitate to apply the ferule to the back and hands of unruly pupils, Mr. McQuade said. He recalled having once been disciplined by his teacher.

Emphasis Was on Grammar

More emphasis was placed on grammar, mathematics, and the fundamentals of correct English pronunciation in the past century, he believes. Study of the history and meanings of words he strongly advocated as a method of instilling subject matter into the minds of the students.

The excitement which prevailed in Albany during the Civil War is well remembered by the venerable principal. He saw Abraham Lincoln twice; once on his way to inauguration in Washington and again when he lay in state in the capitol after his assassination. He saw Stephen A. Douglas, General Grant, and General Sheridan. He also saw Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, while the latter was here for funds with which to carry on his revolution.

He recalled with humorous interest the campaign of the Whigs to elect Harrison on a platform of log cabins and hard cider. He also told of the celebration which prevailed in Albany at the laying of the Atlantic cable. He heard Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale, sing in the old Clinton Theater when she was touring the United States.

Presentation of Mr. McQuade was made by George P. Rice, '32, who was chairman of the meeting. Rice is a graduate of Mr. McQuade's school.

THE STATESMAN

By RAY COLLINS, '31

With the Inter-sorority but two weeks away, the coeds are still busy endeavoring to complete the process of elimination. The lucky boy whom they finally select will have to measure up to the high standards set up by the council. Unlike other functions, the successful candidate must have an unusual amount of stamina and be willing to cooperate for the good of the sorority. No State man will be allowed to accept more than one bid, nor will he be permitted to split the twin bill. This, of course, is merely a safeguarding policy in order to avoid complications. Heretofore situations have arisen which have necessitated legal advice before a satisfactory result could be obtained. However, if one adheres to the principals set up by Bobbitt in his lines of authority, no difficulty should accrue from such operations.

The crowning of the Spanish queen was undoubtedly one of the most spectacular events of the season. The queen, in her royal splendor, appeared irresistible as she took her place among the charming attendants, whose dazzling brilliance reflected a spirit of satisfaction throughout the vast throng which pervaded the auditorium. According to some of the old-timers, the faculty stunt was the most successful event of this nature since the inception of the idea. It certainly was entertaining to observe the idols of the classroom exercising their talent in such different capacities and in such unusual situations. In the operetta, our dancing daughters and our dancing sons demonstrated very conclusively their ability to weave and interweave without any embarrassment and with exceptional grace. At this point, it is probably very appropriate to explain why the carnival was such a big success, and in order to simplify the answer, let us merely need to remember that Edith Hunt was the general chairman.

Tonight and tomorrow night the G. A. A. is offering us a real big treat, and I am not sure whether they mean the performance itself or the beer and pretzels which are to be served subsequently. However, judging from the recent rehearsals and the salesmanship of the ticket sellers, a banner production is inevitable.

Further, it is rumored that Marion Mleczek, Schenectady stage star and novelty dancer will be a surprise in store for us and we trust that we will be delighted rather than alarmed. The directors, Carol Kelley and Betty Jackson, are anticipating a capacity crowd and hence they are training their entertainers accordingly.

Billy Hall will be working behind the screen and as a result no complications should accrue from this direction. The advertising apparently has been very effective because it is rumored that Smooth Collins has already purchased a ticket for the performance. In fact, I have purchased one myself, in spite of the economic depression. I expect to see every person in the capital district working a block play on the campus in order to gain entrance.

SPORT SHOTS

Plans are being formulated for an interclass, outdoor track meet and a poster has been placed on the bulletin board in the mens locker room to solicit participants. Several men have decided to take part in the meet thus giving the sport an impetus. Manager Miller has a definite program of events lined up. The meet promises to be an interesting one, for there is a lot of experienced material, also arrangements are being made to give awards to the winners of events and of the meet.

Coach Baker had his baseball aggregation on the campus as a preliminary practice before the regular daily practices at Ridgefield park. Before last week the gymnasium was used by the candidates to throw the horseshoe ball back and forth.

Tennis candidates have elected Levinstein as their captain and he is swinging practices into regular form. Manager Rutenber has a speedy program of matches. Thus far the candidates have been practicing in the Page hall gymnasium. Weather conditions promise them some outdoor practices before very long.

Real baseball practice began this week when the candidates went up to Ridgefield park. Some very promising material has been noticed among these who have reported, although the veterans that were here last year are missed. It is still likely that Coach Baker will turn out as good a team.

SPEAKING CONTEST TRY-OUTS TO BE

MONDAY AT 4:10

Preliminary try-outs for the annual freshman prize-speaking contest will be conducted Monday afternoon at 4:10 o'clock in the auditorium of Page hall, according to Miss Agnes F. Futtterer, assistant professor of English, who is in charge of the contest.

Six will be chosen from this group of try-outs and these will compete for the prize of $25 offered each year by President A. R. Brulscher. The date for the contest has not yet been decided. The prize is presented to the student on commencement day in June.

Those who will compete in the preliminaries are: Elizabeth Arnold, Agnes Crouch, Ruth Doyle, Mary Halladay, Frances Higgins, Marion Lloyd, Kathleen Lubking, Helen Mahar, Maybelle Matthews, Mary J. Moore, Emily Pettigrew, Elizabeth Rasmussen, Catherine Summery, Laura Vroman, Ida Weiner, and Louise Wells.

G.A.A. WILL ELECT 1931-32 OFFICERS DURING NEXT WEEK

Three juniors have been nominated to the offices of president and vice-president of the G.A.A. Athletic Association for next year, according to a list of nominations announced by the G.A.A. council. They are Alice Gabb, Virginia Hawkins, and Elizabeth Jackson.

Elections will be conducted next week on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, from 10:00 to 2:00 o'clock at the G. A. A. table in the lower corridor of Draper hall. Active members of the association who have fulfilled the necessary requirements in any one sport for one season, may vote for the officers.

The other nominations include: for treasurer, Naomi Albrecht, Bertha Bull, Katharine Moore, and Mary Trela, sophomores; for secretary, Doris Bell, Elizabeth Kammerer, Mary J. Moore, and Hannah Parker, freshmen; and for song and cheer leader, Gertrude Sawyer, '31, and Jean Craig, and Ethnor Andre, freshmen.

INSTRUCTOR PLANS INDIANS' PROGRAM

Grammar School Classes to Visit Exhibits at State College, Miss Perine Says

A complete program for the week from May 5 to 9, when the Navajo Indians will be brought to State college by the dramatics and art council, has been worked out, and a period assigned for the different grammar school classes to visit the exhibits, Miss Eunice A. Perine, head of the art department, has made the arrangements.

Invitations to the clubs in the city have also been sent out, and it is expected that many will attend the exhibition, Miss Perine said.

The Rotary club of Albany is aiding the dramatics and art council financially in bringing the Navajo Indians to Albany again, Ruth P. Hughes, '31, president of the council, announced today.

The half-tone posters which will be distributed about the city are being made from the original made by Margaret Schroeder, '31, Miss Perine said.

BIOLOGISTS PLAN HIKE ON SATURDAY TO STUDY NATURE

Biology club will conduct a hike to the woods in back of Rensselaer Saturday, April 25, at 2 o'clock, according to Theresa Maurice, '31, president. Those planning to attend will meet at the Plaza, and will be accompanied by Miss Minnie B. Scotland and Victor Baden, instructors in biology. The purpose of the hike will be to study bird and animal life, Miss Maurice said. Members will bring field glasses.

Saturday, May 9, the club will conduct a hike to Camp Cogswell to study spring wild flowers, Miss Maurice announced.

Faculty Member And Students Visit Colgate

The committee will be entertained by the local chapter of Kappa Delta Rho fraternity. Transportation will be afforded by Dr. Smith who plans to drive with the committee to the university. The group will be unable to attend the morning meeting tomorrow, because it will not start for Hamilton until about 1:00 o'clock due to the fact that Dr. Smith must teach an extension course.

COMBINATION TEA AND BRIDGE PARTY GIVEN BY NEWMAN

A combination bridge and tea was conducted by Newman club Saturday afternoon from two to five o'clock at the Newman House for members of the club and other State college students.

Two prizes were offered for bridge. They were won by Margaret Nutting first prize, and Francis Mazar, '32 second prize.

The committee in charge of the affair included Winifred Apel, '31, chairman, Mildred Crowley, '32, Margaret Hickey, '31, and Margaret Hart, '34, Miss Fitzpatrick and Miss Maxwell, house mothers, poured for the tea.

Two Delegates Attend Pennsylvania Meetings

Continued from page 1, column 4. Plans for today registration of delegates, an opening session under the supervision of the convention chairman, James Stoner, roll call, chapter reports, and the appointment of committees. The first model initiation in the history of the fraternity will be a feature of the program this afternoon. Sigma chapter will conduct this, and the Toledo delegates will be the candidates.

Tomorrow morning there will be a series of round table discussions of chapter activities including groups of how the chapter may serve the fraternity, the college, the journalistic world, and itself. Committee report and routine business work will take place in the afternoon. The delegate will be taken on a tour of the campus and will be entertained at tea by the Sigma chapter as hosts.

ANNOUNCES MARRIAGE

Eta chapter of Alpha Epsilon Phi announces the marriage of Sarah Yaffee, '30, to Philip Ruby, assistant director of the Hebrew Sheltering and Guardian Society Orphanage, at Pleasantville, New York. Mrs. Ruby is a student at the Jewish Training School for social service in New York city.

HERE AND THERE

Harvard students run a daily pool on the number of authors mentioned by a certain professor.

For the first time in the history of the University of Minnesota the athletic recognition banquet was attended by co-eds.

At the University of Colorado, 33 of 42 prominent campus men examined, admitted drinking.

Dr. Walter James, geologist, tells us that women of today are no different than those of ten thousand years ago. Of six hundred ancient skeletons dug up in Alabama, all the women had their mouths open; those of the men were shut.

Foreign talking pictures are a regular feature of the modern language course at the University of North Carolina.

Women play football at the Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas. To be eligible, the co-eds must have ten practices to their credit, and every morning would-be grid stars can be seen hard at it in front of the gym.

At Cornell University, the management of the local theatre permits the students to act "collegiate" during the second show on Saturday evening, but demands good behavior the rest of the week.

University of Toronto students, who attempted to carry an Austin car into the physics building, were stopped under professorial protest.

A co-ed at University of Minnesota, refused to sign a petition against compulsory military training, saying, "No, I like the pretty uniform."

As a solution for the present economic situation, co-eds at the University of Colorado voted to wear cotton dresses only.

Helen Henderson, '31, Coronated Ninth Spanish Carnival Queen Friday Night

Garbed in a white evening gown and a white lace mantilla, the ninth annual Spanish queen, Helen Henderson, '31, slowly walked down the aisles of the auditorium accompanied by her eight attendants, a blonde and a brunette from each class, Friday night at the annual Spanish carnival. The attendants wore period evening gowns and Spanish shawls. They were: Mary Morganstern and Dorothy Kline, seniors; Isabel Peard and Marie Green, juniors; Rosalind Kapps and Dorothy Cronk, sophomores; and Dorothy Griffin and Letitia Connelly, freshmen.

A Spanish tango by Marion Melanson, '34, and Daniel Carr, '31, marked the opening of the carnival after the entrance of the procession. Carolyn Kelley and Elaine Barber, seniors, followed with another interpretation of the tango. The next feature of the program was the faculty stunt, directed by Miss Marion Kilpatrick, instructor in English. It was entitled, "The Shooting of Pete Ledore." The scene was a Mexican cabaret, of which Dr. Harold W. Thompson, professor of English, was bartender. Miss Margaret Hitchcock, instructor in physical education, and Dr. Donnal V. Smith, assistant professor of history, had the leading roles. The villain was portrayed by Dr. Harry Hastings, chairman of the English department. Chorus dancers were Victor Baden, instructor in biology, John Sturm, instructor in chemistry, Paul Sheats, professor of government, and Harlan Raymond, instructor of industrial arts in Milne high school.

The next number on the program was entitled "Cascionas Espanolas" in which Royal Knox, '31, and Kathryn Belknap, '32, were the participants. Other features were dances by Norma Butler, '31, and Marion Mleczek, '34. These were followed by an operetta, entitled "An Old Spanish Custom," directed by Florence Friedman, '32. Emma Pantalone, Charles Dunham and Thomas Garrett had the leading parts. The chorus included Rena Solomon, Ruth Tinkleman, and Helen Vrooman, sophomores; Stella Bienich, Maybelle Matthews, Alice Owens, Marion Melanson, William Nelson, Gus Asikis and Philip Ricciardi, freshmen.

Newman Club To Have Communion Breakfast

Newman club will conduct its third Communion breakfast Sunday morning at the Academy of the Holy Name immediately following the mass at nine o'clock, according to Margaret Mulligan, '31, resident of the club. The mass will be celebrated at the Greater Gratio of St. Vincent de Paul on Madison avenue.

ANNUAL PAGEANT TO BE PRESENTED TUESDAY, MAY 22

Two members of the class in English methods will coach the annual Milne High school pageant to be presented Tuesday, May 22, Miss Katharine E. Wheeling, supervisor of English in Milne High school, said today. They are Helen Mead and Samuel Dransky, juniors.

The pageant will be given in front of Draper hall at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon. It is being written by the members of the high school senior English classes under the supervision of Carolyn Kelley and Alfred Basch, seniors.

Dr. T. Frederick H. Candlyn, head of the music department, is training a chorus as a part of the pageant, Miss Wheeling announced.

DR. ELDRÉD TELLS FUTURE TEACHERS TO BE UP-TO-DATE

Dr. Arvie Eldred, executive secretary of the New York State Teachers' association, was the speaker in the assembly Friday morning. Dr. Eldred warned future teachers not to think they know it all when they get out teaching, but to keep up-to-date and keep growing. He also said that in our first contacts with the community to which we go, and especially with our fellow teachers, we should not go into everything the first week, but look the situation over first.

Teaching is a profession, a very professional one, even though it is not talked of as such as much as the doctors and lawyers, Dr. Eldred said. "The teaching profession is the basis of life, the very foundation of the state," he added.

Dr. Eldred said that New York state stands at the top educationally, being probably, the only state which guarantees its teachers a living wage wherever they may go. As an organization, the New York State Teachers' association strives to keep up the educational ideals of the profession, and is one to which every teacher should belong, Dr. Eldred added.

Eleven More Seniors Get Teaching Positions

Eleven seniors have secured teaching positions for next year, according to Professor John M. Sayles, secretary of the placement bureau. Wilfred Nadeau will teach commerce at Bath; Lucia Stevens, English and library work at Keene Valley.

Marion Dillenback, mathematics at Scholastic; and Doris Markham, mathematics at Pratt-bury. George Graff will be principal of the junior high school at Painted Post. Ruth Steele is to teach mathematics at Castleton; Catherine Biederick, Latin at West Coles.

Susan Cole, physics at Middlebury; and Pauline Bader, history at Middlebury. Elizabeth Hill will teach science at Westport; and Gertrude Hall will go to Andover to teach chemistry.
