CAMERA TALK

Professor Kirtland Demonstrates

Professor Kirtland continued his series of talks on photography Monday afternoon at 4:45 by introducing novices in the art of developing and printing to the mysteries of "Azo," "Hypo," and "E. Q."

After explaining the purpose of all the materials used, Professor Kirtland darkened the room and made a practical demonstration by developing an exposed film. His apparatus consisted of two large trays, which might have been made by lining two ordinary dripping pans with asbestos; one small white enameled tray; Kodak Acid Fixing Powder, which is the hypo, or fixer; and a developer, sold under the name of Eastman's E. Q. First the film was wet, and then drawn in and out of the developer, concave side up, until the image appeared sharply. From there it went into the hypo, and then—but you should have been there to see for yourself.

CLASS MEETINGS OCCUPY ASSEMBLY HOUR

Student Assembly last Friday morning was in charge of Myskania. After the "Alma Mater" was sung, Mr. Sutherland made several important announcements. The rest of the period was then given over to class meetings. The classes went to their assigned rooms and held their nominations.

CANTERBURY CLUB

Father Birdsall Gives Address

Father Birdsall, rector of Grace Church in this city, addressed the members of the Canterbury Club in St. Andrew's Guild Room on Monday, March 17.

The meeting which was the last one of the year, was well attended. At a short business session the club members decided to omit the April meeting, since it conflicts with Easter vacation and to close the year's activities with a party some time in May. Election of officers will take place before the close of the school year.

Father Birdsall spoke most interestingly of his experiences abroad. He served as a Y. M. C. A. secretary, and thus had the opportunity to come into close contact with the American soldier.

INITIATION OF MATHEMATICS CLUB MEMBERS

At a social meeting of the Mathematics Club held Saturday evening, March 22, the new members were initiated. Dancing and games followed the initiation. Faculty members present were Miss Cushing, Professor and Mrs. (Continued on page 4)

Eastern Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association Meets

Coach Maroney Represents State

New York State College was represented by Coach Arthur C. Maroney at the first annual meeting of the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, which was held Saturday, April 22, at Nysett Club, Springfield, Mass. Representatives were present from many of the eastern colleges and were entertained at a luncheon by the Springfield Board of Trade. The members voted to approve the constitution as read. Under this constitution there will be no hammer throwing event. For years many colleges have tried to do away with this event, because it is so dangerous to both the competitors and the onlookers. We are pleased to see this event discarded. Another change will be the awarding of prizes for first, second, third and fourth, instead of just first, second and third. All other events and rules governing the events will be the same as the New England Collegiate meet and the annual meet will take place at Springfield the second Friday and Saturday of May, which is one week before the New England meet and two weeks before the big inter-collegiate which is held at the University of Pennsylvania each year. A meeting of the representatives of all the colleges members of the Association will take place once a year, (Continued on page 4)

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Recital April 3

There will be a Lenten recital of music in the Auditorium on the evening of April 3, under the direction of the faculty.

The performers are persons of rare ability and promise a musical treat. Miss Helen Thompson of New York City, sister of Dr. Harold Thompson of the faculty, will give selections upon the piano. Mrs. Marie Bernardi Taafe, of this city, will sing. Mrs. Taafe was formerly contralto soloist at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, and is now soloist at the First Presbyterian Church.

The chance to listen to a program such as will be presented by these artists, is one that cannot be passed by. Every student should plan to be present. There will be a limited number of tickets available to outsiders. The detailed program will follow in a later issue.

Y. W. C. A. ELECTIONS

Voting for Y. W. C. A. president took place on Monday, March 24. Marion Moore, '20, was elected. The rest of the voting will take place Monday, March 31.

Miss Ethel McKenna, '19, and Miss Myfanwy Williams, '21, whose talents are well known at College, will take part on the program. This being a benefit concert a small admission will be charged.

FITZ'S FACULTY FIVE TO PLAY MILNE HIGH

On Friday afternoon at 3:30 in the College Gym, Captain Fitz will lead his faculty team against Milne High's five. Milne has a very good team this season, in fact, the best in several years. Fitz will have on his team: Curten, varsity guard; Baker, the most promising scrub on this year's squad, and "Red" Sutherland, who starred for the (Continued on page 4)

STATE INDEPENDENTS WIN SPECTACULAR GAME FROM MILNE HIGH

When Milne High School's strong basketball team met W. Miller's Independent Five last Friday, the fans witnessed one of the most exciting and interesting games ever staged on the College court. It was anybody's game until the final whistle blew, when the Independents were led by one point. There was never a difference of more than four points during the entire forty minutes, and the lead changed hands several times. During the last five minutes the fans could not tell which team was leading, and the game (Continued on page 4)

"JOE" SPROULE, '17, HONORED

Former Graduate to Attend University of Edinburgh

Professor Douglass recently received a letter from Joseph T. Sproule, State College '17, telling of an unusual honor and opportunity which has come to him. He is one of the twelve men picked from his organization of 5,000 soldiers to attend an European university for special training. Mr. Sproule has chosen to go to the University of Edinburgh, to take advanced courses in methods and administration in industrial education. Mr. Sproule was an active social leader during his college course, (Continued on page 3)

A NEW ALMA MATER

Before discussing the contest for a new alma mater, some mention of the old should be made. In the first place, "Alma Mater, Beloved Dear College" is not to be forgotten. It was written by the late Dean Leonard A. Blue of State College, and was set to music arranged by Professor Belding. For this reason it will always have its place in any collection of State College songs. Doubtless it will be one of the few most sung.

The call for a new alma mater comes because of several reasons. The one we now use, and the one mentioned above, is written too high, or has too great a range for the average college student. For proof of this, listen to the distinct falling-off of voices at the "high spots" during unison singing. Again, it is too difficult, or else otherwise faulty, else why does not everyone know his alma mater? We need an alma mater which everyone can, and will learn.

Moreover, it is not in every detail a true alma mater. It is not distinctly a State College song, for its musical setting is adapted from another source. Our alma mater should have words and music belonging strictly to State College.

For some time students have been suggesting a change. Many wish to have "College of the Empire State" adopted. Perhaps this would be wise. Yet it has seemed advisable to open a contest for new and original songs.

Because of the deep-felt need for a distinctly State College song, and because of frequent student petition for a new alma mater, Myskania has inaugurated a contest. This contest is open to all students and faculty. Words and music are most desired, but contributions of words, with suggestions for adopted settings, will be considered. No pecuniary prize is offered, but the distinct honor of being the composer of one's alma mater should be a sufficient impetus for many contributions.

The contest closes April 25th, the Friday after Easter vacation. Considering the number of musicians and poets among faculty and students, it is to be hoped that a splendid new State College alma mater will be written and christened moving-up day.

OUR MUSICAL OPPORTUNITIES

A recent editorial in the "News" spoke of the lack of musical attractions at State College. This condition must be admitted and lamented. Some day, perhaps, conditions will change. Music Club is a fair start.

But, while we lament, why do we not grasp the musical opportunities we have? There are frequent recitals, open to everyone. Just now there are two rare opportunities awaiting our seizure. Wednesday afternoons during the Lenten season, Dr. Thompson, of our own faculty, is giving a series of organ recitals at the First Presbyterian church. The hour is five o'clock, and the church is at the corner of State and Willett streets. Dr. Thompson is an organist of unusual ability, and of growing repute. He presents some splendid programs—giving numbers well worth hearing. Yet, last week only one faculty member and three students heard his splendid recital.

Again, Harry Russell, ex-'18, is also presenting a series of Lenten recitals at the Cathedral of All Saints on Thursday evenings. State College students who are spending the evening at the library will find it profitable to step into this "little church around the corner" for an hour's inspiration. Who will say work will not go better afterward?

On April third Miss Helen Thompson, sister to Dr. Thompson, and Mrs. Taate, will give a recital in our own auditorium. Both ladies are accomplished artists, and should be greeted by a packed auditorium.

Here are three splendid opportunities. Will we grasp them, or will we forget or neglect to do so?

ARE YOU PUSHING?

How much are they going to mean to you? Will you look back upon these four years as the happiest four years of your life? Will State College be in truth your "alma mater—kind mother?" No? Well, don't you think college ought to mean all that, and if it doesn't, that something is wrong somewhere? It may be the institution, or it may be you. Let's assume for the sake of argument that it is you. You know an institution is what you make it. You are the college. Without you the college is nothing. (H'm, that sort of sounds like the generalities we indulge in in psych, doesn't it?) But if the trouble lies with you as an individual it can be remedied. To begin with, are you working for your college? It's the thing we work hardest for that we prize most in the end. I don't mean the work you do in scholarship alone, although we must keep up the standard there, but something outside and beyond that. Perhaps Red Cross work interests you a little. All right, then, don't let your interest lag. Work! Let people see what your college can do. Maybe it's Musical Club, Chemistry Club, or the "News" that attracts you. Help push, then. Make that activity which attracts you most the better because you are back of it, helping to push. If you have no interest in college activities—and that is only another way of saying you have no interest in college—cultivate one. Stop everything, if need be, and make yourself be interested. Identify yourself with some particular phase of college life, stick there, and help push.

Again, are you in step? Are you helping to keep up the rhythm and harmony of college life, or are you side-stepping and helping to throw the whole into confusion? It seems that if college is to teach us anything it should teach us how to live harmoniously with ourselves and with others, for until we learn how to do that we shall be dissatisfied—troubled.

CONCERNING STUDENT ASSEMBLY

A few weeks ago a member of '22 wrote an article exhorting the freshmen to improve their conduct in student assembly. We are glad that the freshmen realize the need of such an improvement and are trying to bring it about, but—upper classmen, are we at the point where the freshmen have to set an example for us? Are we entirely oblivious to our faults until the freshmen point them out? Indeed, I believe we are; otherwise they would have been remedied. Such discourtesy as is shown our speakers at Friday morning assemblies is a disgrace to State College. One would think, from the amount of whispering and restlessness, that we were a group of high school children, instead of intelligent college students. And those bits of white lace—are the soldiers using them on their uniforms, now the war's over? If such things are necessary, why can't the weavers, theme-correctors and grinds (?) seat themselves on the outskirts of the audience where they're not quite so obvious? Of course with the seniors, who surely are interested in the talks, directly before the speaker we should feel safe about our appearance. However, it seems that some of the seniors haven't grown up yet. Speaking of the freshmen as an example, do we really need it, sophomores? We can beat them every time at making a noise; let's see if we can't beat them at keeping quiet.

JUST SENIORS

How many saw our seniors don their caps and gowns for the first time a few weeks ago? How many know that there are seniors in college—honest to goodness grand old seniors? How many have thought that even though four years of State College have meant growth, enrichment and joy to the seniors—the seniors also have left their imprint here?

Has it ever occurred to you how many more smiling seniors we see this year? Yes, they have practice teaching to bear, even as seniors in the past; but this year their conversation is not confined to it alone. If they are not entirely happy under the strain of Ed. 13, they keep the unpleasant features well under cover. All the BEST things are told to fellow-classes across the table or in the hall. Are you of '20, '21, '22 going to follow in their footsteps?

We must not forget another imprint which '19 has made. Folks of '21 will recollect that they were the very first in State College to adopt junior sisters.

After three months the seniors will take their places in Life's school. How many of them do YOU know?

A LETTER OF PROTEST

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest the article, "Who's to Blame?" in last week's issue, and I must say that I agree with Mr. Barry in all but one point, which I shall discuss later. Yes, what is the matter with college athletics here lately? After our brilliant basketball season, one would think that our men would be eager to push athletics still further. Enough! Now, in regard to the point I disagree with, to quote it directly from the article, that: "Fellows who come from small towns do not play much baseball."

I am very much afraid that Mr. Barry is too much imbued with the city boy's false idea of his country cousin to take it upon himself to make such a broad statement. Not play much baseball? Indeed! One of the greatest interests of little towns in the summer time is baseball. The townspeople are, as a rule, enthusiastic fans and supporters of the game.

Take, for instance, the little town I came from. It's one of the smallest towns along the U. & D. railroad—yet it has its team, and a splendid one. And who play on the team? Just the older fellows? No, indeed, there are a good many school boys—and yet Mr. Barry says what he does about baseball and small towns. One thing that makes our high school proud is that one of our recent graduates made the varsity baseball team in one of the biggest universities in the country his first year. All the training he ever received was from playing on and against small town teams. And another of our boys was captain of Yale "nine" for two years.

Suffice it to say, that little town isn't the only one that has a corking good baseball team. Almost every little town has its team, and leagues are formed to stimulate interest. They stimulate it all right, as is readily seen by the crowds at the games. People who own automobiles are always ready to give them over for the use of the team when out-of-town games are played.

And, finally, according to statistics compiled by the "Scientific American," sixty-one per cent. of the famous baseball players come from the country. Now, how about it, you fellows from small towns? Don't you think it's your duty to come out for baseball, and to show Mr. Barry that you know how to play? If you can't play baseball, try out for some other athletic stunts. Show that you have college spirit, and help make a name for State College. A Junior.

STATE COLLEGE WAR WORK DESCRIBED IN "STATE SERVICE"

The March issue of "State Service" contains an interesting article, entitled, "What State College Did for the War." This article was written by President Brubacher, and is an accurate summary of our war work during the past three years. A comparison is made with the work done by the college during the Civil War. This comparison speaks very well for the present day college.

Tributes to the men who died in service, together with their pictures, appear in the article.

The closing paragraph makes significant statements concerning teacher's salaries. This paragraph ought to aid in the passage of the bill, now before the legislature, to raise the salaries throughout the State.

Y. W. C. A. SWIMMING

Watch the C. A. bulletin board, girls, for the changes in schedule. Notice this temporary arrangement:

Friday, March 28th, 5-6 p. m. Freshmen.

Tuesday, April 1st, 4:45-6 p. m. Sophomores.

Saturday, March 29th, 9:30-11 a. m. Juniors.

Seniors who taught first semester come any day.

No song writers were nominated at the meeting last Friday, but as some good songs are needed, anyone who can contribute a "peppy" one can consider himself elected.

1919

The seniors have made another important decision, and it is hoped that their action will establish a delightful and lasting tradition for State College. They will hold, on June sixteenth, the senior class breakfast at the cafeteria.

Class nominations for the dignitaries of Class Day indicate that the contests will be close. The nominees are:

Historian—Donald Tower, Hazel Hengge.

Poet—Aileen Russell, Louise Stewart.

Prophet—Lois Knox, Beatrice Sullivan.

Testator—Fannie Plusch, Harriet Churchill.

MR. AND MRS. A. L. GILLETTE VISIT COLLEGE

Mr. and Mrs. Allen L. Gillette, of Maryland, N. Y., spent Saturday at college. Mr. Gillette, sophomore president of '19, has just been discharged from Camp McClellan, Alabama. He has accepted a position in Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Gillette, formerly Katherine Cole, '18, is finishing her year's teaching at Maryland.

KAPPA DELTA RHO

Arthur Woodward, of Silver Bay, spent the week-end in Albany.

John R. Cairns, who is now stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, visited Kappa Delta Rho several days last week.

"Eli" Whitney, ex-'19, who is now a student at Cornell, is spending a week with his parents at 360 Quail street.

Bob Elliott and Paul Manville spent the week-end in New York. Walter Hurst, '20, has returned to college, having been recently discharged from service.

GIRLS, ATTENTION!

Did you think, now that basketball was over, that interclass games had ceased? Nothing of the kind. We are going to start a series of interclass games of "VOLLEY BALL."

Don't know how to play? Well, come out to practice. Watch the bulletin board for hours of practice. It's a new game, so here's a chance for everybody. Everybody out!

They tell how fast the arrow sped,
When William shot the apple;
But who can calculate the speed
Of him who's late for chapel?

HOME ECONOMICS NOTES

The date for the H. E. party has been set for April 25, from 7:30 to 11. The only guests will be Miss Pierce, Miss Perine, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Burke, Mrs. Caughlin and the H. E. Freshmen, Mabel Kelly, '19, and Esther Ford, '19, are to be the general managers. Any questions concerning the party will be attended to by them. The committees appointed are: Refreshment, Madeline Sackett, '19, Louise Perry, '21, Alice Richmond, '20. The chairman of the class groups are: Jeanette Keller, '19 Bertha West, '20, and Florence Fitch, '21.

At the faculty dinner, Monday, March 17, Miss Steele's class in table service prepared and served.

The junior class in lunch room management are making trips to various cafeterias in manufacturing plants, in order to make practical observations. They are also obtaining a brief experience working there.

Omleron Xu had their initiation Thursday evening, March 20, at Mrs. Frear's home.

Miss Steele is cooperating with Miss Pierce in her work with the freshmen. A recent subject for discussion in Miss Pierce's lectures has been table etiquette, which will be practically carried out by dinners prepared and served by Miss Steele's class in table service. In this way both the freshmen and juniors will gain in experience. The first dinner will be held Wednesday, March 26.

Please read the menus when you patronize the cafeteria. Also please observe that the lunch room opens at 11:30.

A breakfast was served to about 60 members of the Newman club in the cafeteria Sunday morning, March 23.

On Friday the cafeteria catered to a mock banquet held by the Practice Teaching English class.

The cafeteria catered to the H. E. faculty party held Wednesday, March 19.

Miss Edith Sullivan, '18, is assisting Helen Endries, '17, in her lunchroom work at Bolton Landing, Lake George.

Mildred Haswell will teach for the coming year in the vocational department of the Hudson High School, Hudson, N. Y., at a salary of $800.

CHEMISTRY CLUB HEARS DISCUSSION OF TANNING

At the regular Chemistry club meeting on Friday, March 21, Maurice Hathorn, '21, gave a talk on the history and process of tanning. The history of this process dates back to the earliest Egyptian civilization. At that time, however, the skins were often merely dried, although later oils began to be used in order to preserve and soften them. The Greeks and Romans also tanned leather, as did the American Indians, who made a great portion of their clothing from animal skins. They smoked the skins they used, and treated them with fish oils to preserve them, and the oil from bark to color them.

In the modern process of tanning there are three distinct processes. The skins as they are brought to the tannery are hard, and the first thing necessary is to soak them in order to soften them. They are then cleaned, and all the dirt and hair removed, in order to prepare them for the actual tanning. This consists of treating the skins so that air and water will not affect them. Oils extracted from barks and vegetables, which are called tannin, are used in this process, as are the salts of chromine. After the skins have been softened, cleaned and treated in this way, they are then finished. This process differs, according to the kind of leather that is desired, as some kinds need to be soft and pliable, others hard. Soap and fat are worked into the skins, and they are then colored. After a skin has gone through these processes it is the ordinary leather of commerce.

SPANISH CLUB

The meeting of the Spanish Club last Wednesday afternoon again took the form of an informal musicale. Marjorie Bryant's banjo helps a lot in making us feel the spirit of these Spanish melodies. As an accompaniment to the little song that Kathryn Chamberlayne sang for us it was very effective. We are looking to both these girls as leaders in the "Music Movement" that we are trying to launch. The literary side of our program consisted of Spanish hero-tales read by Miss Buchanan and Mr. Castellano. We hope to frequently dip into the wealth of "song and story" that the literature of Spain possesses, and so to deepen our appreciation of the language in which this is written. If you are interested come out to our meetings. We'll be glad to see you!

LECTURE ON THE LAND ARMY MOVEMENT

On Friday afternoon, March 21, Helen Stewart of Barnard College spoke before the women students of State College in the interests of the Women's Land Army Movement. Miss Stewart made many friends last year here, and proved as charming a speaker as ever.

ORAL ENGLISH IN MILNE HIGH

Oral English in Milne High is not a bugbear!!!! This was proved last Friday morning when Miss Baldwin's second year English class entertained Miss McConnell's class and Miss Jones at a Sophomore Banquet. Miss Loretta Weldon presided as toast-mistress. The following responded with toasts:

Mr. Barrett, The Class History. Miss Buckmaster, Class Prophecy.

Miss Medwin, Class Will. Mr. Elliott, Class Athletics. Miss Emerick, Class Spirit. Miss Smith, Class Ambitions. Mr. Miller then gave an exceedingly appropriate poem entitled "Jane Jones." Miss Jones gave a delightful toast which brought all members of the class into a closer bond of friendship with "the critic." After refreshments were served Miss Whitten brought the event to a very pleasing close by singing two delightful solos. Let us further this interest in Oral English! Instead of the monotonous humdrum assignments let us give interesting ones to bring out each pupils' individuality and spontaneity.

land advised the use of Azo printing paper, not the Velox which works too quickly for practical purposes. By actual demonstration again, Professor Kirtland showed just how printing is done, and how to bring out cloud effects in our pictures by using a "dodger."

At the end of the hour an enthusiastic audience voted for the next lecture on "Indoor and Outdoor Exposures," which will be given April 7 in the Chemistry Room at 4:45. Even to those people, who hitherto have had little interest in photography these lectures are absorbingly interesting, so contagious is Professor Kirtland's enthusiasm, and so clear are his explanations.

AN ERROR

The information in last week's issue that Dorothy Bacheller had secured the position at Chevy Chase Seminary, Washington, D. C., is incorrect. The item was put in without the knowledge of the Department. The "News" regrets the error.

FITZ'S FACULTY FIVE

Juniors last year, Larry McMahon will take care of the other guard position. Milne High has two very clever forwards this year and faculty guards will have plenty to do to prevent them from scoring. Milne's center is the best man on the team and is a consistent scorer, but "Red" is in good condition and should cover him effectively. Metzker and Captain Sexton are very capable guards who will make Fitz and Baker extend themselves to the limit.

"Emmet" Dowling, who refereed the Frosh-Milne game last Friday, will handle this game in the same efficient manner. Both teams will practice hard this week and expect to be in the best possible shape when the whistle blows to start the game.

Second Vice-President, T. J. Faherty, Holy Cross.

Secretary, C. L. Stevenson, University of Maine.

Treasurer, J. A. Davis, Stevens. Acting Treasurer, Dr. J. A. Forber, Rochester.

Members of Executive Committee—W. H. Cowell, New Hampshire State; J. Meager, Boston College.

Dr. Forber is acting in place of Mr. Davis who is abroad doing war work.

The following colleges are members of the league:

New York State, Boston College, Holy Cross, Massachusetts, Agricultural College.

New Hampshire State, New York University, Stevens Institute of Technology, Y. M. C. A. College, Springfield.

Other colleges who are considering favorably of entering are: Amherst, Columbia, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Tufts, Williams, Pratt, Union, Rochester.

In order to remain a member of the league every college must send at least three men to the annual meet at Springfield. "Let's go!"
