GRAINGER TO PLAY TONIGHT AT 8:30

Music Council to Present Noted Pianist Composer in Recital at Chancellor's Hall

Percy Grainger, pianist and composer, will be presented at Chancellor's hall in a recital program, tonight at 8:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the State college music council, Helen Cronie, '33, president, announced.

The recital program includes: "Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor" by Bach and Liszt; "Intermezzo" by Brahms; "Rhapsody" and "Ballade" by Brahms; "Ballade" by Grieg; "The Arkansas Traveller" by Gnan; "Colonial Song" by Grainger; and "Paraphrase on 'Flower Waltz'" by Teichowky.

It is not only recently that Mr. Grainger has been recognized as a great pianist. In 1907 Grou heard Mr. Grainger play, and wrote as follows in the Scandinavian press: "What is nationality? I write Norwegian peasant dances that none of my countrymen could play, and here comes this young Australian and interprets them as they should be interpreted. He is a genius such as we should have had. He is a genius such as we should have had." Mr. Grainger is to play the first concert of the series of English Festival in 1907.

As a composer, Mr. Grainger is no less than a genius. His music is a blend of folk songs and modernism. He is a genius such as we should have had. He is a genius such as we should have had.

The program will include: "Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor" by Bach and Liszt; "Intermezzo" by Brahms; "Rhapsody" and "Ballade" by Brahms; "Ballade" by Grieg; "The Arkansas Traveller" by Gnan; "Colonial Song" by Grainger; and "Paraphrase on 'Flower Waltz'" by Teichowky.

"12 Ems" Makes Page One, Covering Her News' Beat

A mighty tussle broke out in the vicinity of the activities office Monday night when the newly adopted mascot of the STATE COLLEGE NEWS attempted to exercise her body and to sharpen her teeth by chasing and devouring mice.

With feline alacrity, the kitten, which was christened "12 Ems", was able to "spot" the rodentous creatures as a reporter would "spot" news. Instead of interviewing the mouse, the cat crouched silently, storing up energy for a mighty, death-dealing spring. Not unlike the "cul" reporter after he has been successful in getting his name on the front page, so the cat stalked around with raised head and inflated carriage, and pronounced her self-satisfaction with subdued "mews."

Thoroughly convinced of her ability as a huntress, the cat soon after was to be found curled asleep in a News tub where a bed was provided for her. She was tired, well fed and satisfied.

JUNIOR TO ASSIST QUARTERLY BOARD FOR COMING YEAR

Helen Goldford, '34, has been appointed the under-graduate editor for the Alumni Quarterly, to be published in November. She will be assisted by Mrs. Emma Rice Messersmith, '22, editor-in-chief of the Quarterly for this year.

The appointment of Miss Goldford is announced as a result of a competitive trial in which candidates submitted articles on a subject of their own choice. The articles submitted by Miss Goldford were judged to be the best.

COLLEGE EXTENDS AID TO TEACHERS

All Classes to Be Dismissed Today at 1:30 o'Clock For Convention

State college has opened its facilities for meetings of the Eastern District of the New York State Teachers association yesterday afternoon and this afternoon when the delegates convened in Albany for their eighty-seventh annual meeting. College classes will be dismissed this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock for the convenience of the various discussion sections.

General headquarters for the convention are at the Ten Eyck hotel. Sessions on various topics of educational importance such as administration, art, classics, home economics, English, junior high school, history, primary education, rural schools, are scheduled for various parts of the day.

The drama section met yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of Page hall. This afternoon at 2:00 o'clock an address entitled "The Criticism of Plays" will be given in the auditorium. This afternoon also, Dr. Carlston F. Powers, assistant professor of physics, will give an address on "Practical X-ray Education in Science in the College."

Yesterday afternoon the twelfth annual meeting of the Association of Colleges and Universities met at Chancellor's hall. Dr. Brubacher led the afternoon session.

The first eighth annual convention of the University of the State of New York opened yesterday at the education building on Washington square. The convention meets this year to inaugurate the fourth biennial anniversary of the University of the State of New York.

DAIS AWAITS NEW QUEEN TOMORROW

Veil of Secrecy Covers Identity of Democratically Elected Royalty For 1932-33

The eleventh campus queen of State college will be crowned tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock in the auditorium of Page hall as the climax of the Campus Day activities. Which of the four candidates will have this honor will not be revealed until the queen and her attendants appear in the procession down the aisles of the auditorium, to insure complete secrecy all the candidates, Helen Cronie, Dorothy Cronk, Frances McMahon, and Laura Styn, seniors, will practice together, and none of them will appear in the auditorium before 8:00 o'clock.

The queen will be attended by a blonde and a brunette from each class. The senior attendants will be the runners-up in the election of the queen. The identity of the attendants will also be kept secret until tomorrow night. Last year's queen, Florence Friedman, '32, will crown the new queen. Her court will be made up of three women from each class, who will wear evening dress and act as ushers. Pages and a train bearer will make up the rest of the royal party.

After the coronation, each class will present a stunt for the queen's approval. Members of the faculty will act as judges for the stunts and will announce the winning one after the presentations are complete.

The senior class stunt under the direction of Charlotte Lohman will have the following cast: Bernard S. Kerbel, Abbie Dunne, Mary Kent, William Collins, Carolyn Christensen, Alma Lewis, Naomi Albrecht, John Grosvenor, Raymond Harris, William Bazaar, Miller Boldt, Abigail Lindt, Doris Kiltz, Margaret Dunsen, Charlotte Henry, Frances Root, Graceland Guyer, Ethel Zote, Frank McFarland, Dorothy King, Margaret Rausch, Helen Vrooman, Stuart Gay, and Virginia Crowley. ## STUDENT CO-OPERATION

The passing of a motion by each of the three upper classes in regard to the payment of class dues and its relationship to attendance at the three major class dances of the college year has inaugurated a new system in an attempt to bring about a more efficient and complete payment of class dues and to do away with all previous methods of questionable nature in regard to the procurement of funds for these dances. At recent meetings of each of the senior, junior, and sophomore classes, a motion was introduced and passed which provides that bids for the class dances, senior, junior, and sophomore, will be sold only to students who have paid their own individual class dues.

This means that no longer will students be able to attend the dances of other classes and then omit attendance at the dance of their own class, because of the necessity of buying their own class dues to attend that particular dance. Before any student can purchase a bid for any of the dances, he must have paid his own dues. The enforcement of this measure is left in the hands of the dance committee of each class when the time comes to sell bids for their own dance. Co-operation among the chairman and committees for the dances must exist if the plan is to be successful as a means to further payment of dues and to eliminate those who would take all and give nothing in return.

Students at State College are too eager at times to find ways in which they may evade the existing restrictions; they spend valuable time concocting schemes and evasive plans by which they may secure the bids which rightfully are the property of only the active participants. By active participants we mean those who realize that they are individuals and as individuals are an important part of their class and of State. The payment of the student tax and of the class dues is not enough to ask of a member of the student association and a member of the class.

ALUMNI INTEREST

The appointment of an underwriter editor to assist the editorial staff of the Alumni Quarterly in preparation of material for each year marks another step in the interest shown by members of the alumni association in the activities of the undergraduate body and in the problems which are of interest to the college as a whole.

It will be the duty of the underwriter editor to select all material for the Alumni Quarterly and to see that it will be of special interest to the alumni. The underwriter editor will be a special member of the editorial staff and will be responsible for the selection of material for the Alumni Quarterly and for the preparation of the Alumni Quarterly for publication. ## INTERCOLLEGIATE PRESTIGE

The victory of the State college team over the representatives of Union college in the radio debate conducted Tuesday night over station WGY of Schenectady, and the announcement of the international debate with Oxford university on November 9 are a fitting inauguration to the College debating program for this year. Any accusations of mediocrity or narrowness in regard to the place of State college in the collegiate world are strongly answered by the activities of the College in debate each year.

This year for the fourth consecutive time State college will debate with a team from a foreign country which has been brought to the United States by the National Federation of America for the purpose of furthering international collegiate relationships by means of these debates. It is fitting that State should be an important representative on the schedule for the Oxford university team this year.

The merit of the student body in debate, and the evidence of its realization of the status of the College in relation with other large colleges may be shown accurately in one manner—the attendance of the students at the debates which are conducted at the College. These and its may then point with pride to the debate team and the schedule planned for its yearly activities when any discussion arises in regard to the comparison of State with other colleges or schools and with the general accepted status for inter-collegiate participation of all colleges.

Each year the activities of the College are broadened in its relationships with other colleges and each year State college becomes more firmly situated as an important representative in the inter-collegiate world of debate.

BOOKS: POWERFUL ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE WRITTEN BY PHYLLIS BENTLEY.

For Sale in the City

Inheritance, By Phyllis Bentley, Macmillan company, New York city, 592 pages, $2.15.

In the introduction to her novel which has been a landmark in the careers and a distinguished success in England, Phyllis Bentley writes: "Certain real incidents, persons, and places of Yorkshire history, but in no sense to warp this book, but as I have included some details for the sake of unity, the whole must be regarded as fiction and not as a record of what happened in my imaginary valley of the fire, and not in the real West Riding valleys of Calder or Colne. I hope, however, that my fiction is symbolic and my valley, typical. Miss Bentley has spent most of her life in Yorkshire, and her family is intimately connected with the woollen textile industry, of which Inheritance gives such a vivid picture.

Inheritance is the story of the Oldbays, from Old Will, who built his cloth mill by the River Aire, down to his present-day descendant. The Oldbays were men of courage, fierce ambition and strong determination in affairs of business and of the heart.

It is a fine and memorable novel, a detailed family chronicle covering several generations but incidentally a carefully dramatic story. It has been termed by the London Times, "a brilliant piece of work, one of the best books of the year."

Knave of Hearts, By James Grant, The Macmillan company, New York, 84.

All of the biographies of Eliza F. Williams which have been written have had in common, lack of completeness, or pre-occupied bias. Mr. Grant presents a "third full length biography of the 'New England Firebrand', but in no way inferior, without a blemish, the definite work. The final and definitive biography of the founder of Prover's will have greater amplification of contemporary background both in regard to Old and New England, will contain the numerous, authentic and available illustrations which we miss here, and will possess a bibliography.

In the present work the author has continued his primary interest in the political beliefs and influence of Williams, leaving emphases upon these while presenting a detailed and academic exposition of the "firebrand's" life and his social and religious beliefs. But the letter of his precepts has not yet been attained is but part of the story, the real story is the comprehensive and scholarly study of modern society, just as they were beyond full attainment by his own words, the "Lively experiments" of Providence. Like Emerson he saw his disciples, warning his principles, finally to fit their own legends, and like Emerson was revealed as a traitor when he sold out to the world. The only following should be in the name of Mr. Grant, his study to do is full chapters to a discussion of principles he has already introduced, examining and interpreting Williams' influence on education of the United States, his abolitionism of the right and responsibility of man and citizen, and his religious belief as a teacher.

The chief virtues of the biography are that it is scholarly, readable, and detailed in regard to Williams' childhood, schooling, and marriage, education, associations, and social life, the manner the Indians, and a later life with the founder of Emerson and a full time, alone, and a full time, alone, and a full time, alone. Williams' own words, as well as those of his contemporaries, are used to give a full and complete picture of his life and work. The book is a valuable addition to the literature of the United States, and is a must for all who are interested in the life and work of this great American.

Daniel Frohman Gives Reminiscences Of Golden Age of Theatre in Talk

"When God made the earth—that was prose; when He made the rocks, mountains and valleys—that was sculpture; when He covered it with green trees and flowers—that was painting; and when He made man and woman—that was the making of drama," thus concluded Daniel Frohman in his lecture entitled "Reminiscences of the Stage and Its Stars," last Friday night in the auditorium of Page hall. The lecture was under the auspices of the dramatic and art council.

Mr. Frohman considered acting first as a business and then as an art, by examples he showed that actor and actresses act the emotions required, on the surface and remain placid within.

He pointed out that Shakespeare, whose works have always been popular in the theatre, and stood the desires of the people. He knew "the man like character, the woman wants emotion, while the mob demands action." His plays were constructed to satisfy all.

In his connection with the theatre world Mr. Frohman knew the playwright, James Barrie, who was a close friend of his brother, Charles. James Barrie had produced on the stage with Charles Frohman a play written by a stenographer. For the premiere, they sent tickets to the stenographer whose play was to be acted. She sent back the ticket with regret, for she hadn't a dress to wear for such an occasion. Charles Frohman immediately set out to find the expense of a dress. But James Barrie's search came to the end when he exclaimed, "Send her two million stouts."

One of Frohman's anecdotes about the great actresses was the occasion when he presented Sarah Bernhardt a laurel as a tribute to her dramatic art. The next day Mr. Frohman received a thank-you telegram written in flowery French. Mr. Frohman answered with an elegant French telegram. Soon after, Sarah Bernhardt had lunch with him and asked how it happened that his telegram had such a charming French style. Mr. Frohman had only one reply, "Oh, the headwaiter at the Astor helped me."

Thus as Daniel Frohman recounted the many anecdotes about the great actors and actresses he presented amusingly the drama that constituted those lives of the stage.

Y.M.C.A. Group Plans Association Program

Plans for the 1932-33 program were formulated at the state student conference of the Young Men's Christian association, conducted at the State Normal school, at Cortland, last Friday and Saturday. William Nelson, '34, council delegate of the College association, announced today.

Discussion of the Y. M. C. A. conference to be Friday and Saturday, October 28 and 29, at Rome formed the major part of the business. Nelson stated.

Frank McFarland, '33, also attended the convention as a representative of the College Y. M. C. A.

STATE DEBATERS DEFEAT UNION 2-1 IN RADIO CONTEST

A team representing State college defeated Union college in a radio debate Tuesday night over station WGY in Schenectady. This was the first of a series of inter-collegiate debates planned by the debate council. Marion C. '33, presided, said.

The State college team was made up of Milton Gaddler, '32, and Donald Reed, '34. They upheld the affirmative side of the question resolved: That the public war debt should be cancelled. Robert C. Clarke and Thomas Wade were the debaters from Union college. John K. Lynch, manager of WGY at Union, was chairman of the debate and introduced the speakers.

The decision of the judges was two to one. This was the first of the series of radio debates which will be broadcast over station WGY this year.

COURT PRACTICES TO BEGIN MONDAY

Manager Schedules Eleven Games For Season's Conquests; Three Are Away

By THOMAS RYAN, '34
Sports Editor, News

Coach Rutherford Baker will call out the varsity basketball candidates for the first practice of the season Monday night. Last year's varsity team will return intact with two exceptions, Ben Ingraham, '33, center, and Jack Saunders, '33, Gilbert DeLaura and Ray Harris, seniors; Roger Bancroft, Charles Kisman, Osmer Brooks, Robert Meyers, and William Nelson, juniors; and Clifford Rall and Wilfred Allard, sophomores, will be fighting for the varsity berths this season.

DeLaura, who was cocaptain with Ingraham last year, will probably team with Rall in the guard positions. DeLaura and Rall made one of the finest guard combinations on the State court in years, and were main cogs in State's victories last year.

Bancroft, who will play forward, was high scorer last year. Kisman, Brooks, and Nelson will be fighting for the other forward position. Allard left the squad last year on account of illness after being a regular forward for the seniors.

Ray Harris, senior, will be expected to play center. He is the best player on the team, and is expected to play center. Harris played last year's season and will be expected to play center. Harris played last year's season and will be expected to play center.

William Nelson and Clifford Rall are expected to play guard. Nelson played last year's season and will be expected to play guard. Rall played last year's season and will be expected to play guard.

ALPHA PHI GAMMA TO PLEDGE EIGHT AS NEW MEMBERS

C. C. N. Y. Students Publish Rival Paper As Protest Against Alumni Supervision

New York—(IP)—Alleging that The Campus, undergraduate publication at the City College of New York, was too much under the control of the college's alumni, the staff of the paper resigned this fall and began the publication of a rival sheet, The City College Student.

The first issue of the rival paper, it was estimated, sold off campus about 400 more papers than The Campus.

An editorial in the new paper was in the form of an obituary for The Campus, declaring the older paper was dead because it was no longer a student newspaper.

The Campus, on the other hand, asserted editorially that the action of the former editors in resigning was "in reality calculated as a blow against the existence of an independent student organ," and went on to say that the rebel editors imagined themselves "bigger than The Campus."

However, the first issue of the New York University Daily News supported the City College Student editorially, defending their refusal to publish a paper under the jurisdiction of the Alumni Association.

92 MAKE REQUEST FOR TRACK TEAM

Coach Baker Opposes Petition; Names Points of Objection at Council Discussion

A petition signed by ninety-two men of the College, requesting that track be instituted as a minor sport, was presented at a meeting of the Men's Athletic council, conducted last Friday. Dr. Donnal V. Smith, assistant professor of history, presided at the meeting.

Rutherford Baker, athletic coach, lists five points in opposition to State's participation in inter-collegiate track competition this year. They are:

"1. Men are out of condition. Candidates should state their best track marks, and then see how their average compares with other teaching institutions.

"2. A well-equipped training field would have to be acquired.

"3. Advisors for all inter-class events should be appointed.

"4. The council should study reports from other colleges on future meets.

"5. A report should be submitted to the assembly on the cost of equipment."

A motion was passed at the council meeting to charge an admission of not more than forty cents for any athletic event. This charge is free from federal tax.

At the next meeting, the discussion on track will be continued, a manager of intra-mural sports will be named, and the question of varsity awards will be brought up.

BOARD COLLECTS $13 STUDENT TAX BEGINNING TUESDAY

Collections of student taxes were begun this week by the members of the finance board, as a result of the adoption by the student assembly last Friday of the 1932-1933 budget, which provides for a per capita assessment of $13. Members of the freshman class were scheduled to pay on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in the government office in room 205 on the second floor of Draper hall.

The schedule of payments is: Tuesday and Wednesday, sophomores; juniors, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 1 and 2; and seniors, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 8 and 9. Any student may pay his tax on a day not scheduled for his class, however. All collections will be made in the government office.

The members of the finance board include: Professor George M. York, head of the commerce department; Clarence A. Hilley, assistant professor of history, and treasurer of the student association; Ellen Murphy and Edward Coyne, seniors; Robert Meyers and Elizabeth Zuel, juniors; and Evelyn Stahle, 35. Coyne has been appointed a temporary senior member of the board, as a substitute for John Coe, senior, the regular treasurer.

Fall All-State Dance To Be On November 4

The fall All-State dance will be conducted Friday night, November 4, in the Lounge of Richardson hall, William Collins, 33, general chairman, announced today. Attendance will be limited to State college students, Collins stated.

The "Playboys" orchestra, featuring William Nelson, 31, as soloist will furnish the music for dancing. Proceeds of admission assessments of one dollar per couple will be applied on the standing debt of thirty dollars still due in payment of the electricity used for the assembly dance in the Pace hall gymnasium.

CLASSES TO ASK PAYMENT OF DUES

Sophomores Juniors and Seniors to Require Dues Payments for Class Dances

A motion in regard to the payment of class dues and attendance at class dances has been passed by each of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes and will go into effect with the sale of bids for the annual senior hop on Friday night of next week. The introduction of the motion was made in each class meeting by the vice-president of the class who is general chairman for the class dance. These are: Raymond Harris, senior hop; Roger Bancroft, junior promenade; and David Kromman, sophomore soiree.

The motions which were passed by the individual classes provide that no student may attend any class dance who has not already paid the dues of his own class. This plan will secure a more prompt paying of class dues, and will eliminate the possibility of students attending dances of the other classes, but foregoing attendance at their own class dance, because of the regulation in regard to the payment of dues, Bancroft, who was the originator of the plan, explained.

It will be the duty of each class to enforce this plan at the time that bids are sold for each of the three major dances, he added. Harris, chairman for the senior hop, has announced that bids for the hop will be sold all day Friday of next week, and only to those students who have paid their respective class dues.
