

English and Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Kentucky State University, where he taught for twenty-two years. Currently, he is Chairperson of the Department of African and Afro-American Studies at the State University of New York at Albany, where he has been since 1988.

He is married to the former Roberta Hall, a doctoral student in Musicology at the University of Chicago, and is the father of one child, Minitria Elisabeth.

May 1, 1989

89-22

A, C, wires

Administration 233
Albany, New York 12222

news

518 442-3073

Contact: Vince Sweeney (518) 442-3075
COMMENCEMENT CEREMONIES SET FOR UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY
STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

An honorary degree to Eugene Ionesco, one of the world's leading playwrights, will highlight the 145th Commencement at the University at Albany on Sunday, May 21. Six other honorary degrees will also be awarded at the ceremonies which will feature as student speaker, graduating senior Sheri Denkensohn, scholar and campus leader from Accord, New York, whose physical disability requires her to use a wheelchair.

The other honorary degree recipients are Thomas Krens, director of the Guggenheim Museum; Bernard Harleston, president of City College of the City University of New York; Puerto Rican/ American novelist Nicholasa Mohr; Ruth Sonntag Nussenzweig, whose research has dramatically advanced science's search for a effective vaccine for malaria; Lloyd Ohlin, the 'dean' of American criminology; and Gerhard Weinberg, America's preeminent historian of the diplomatic history of Germany prior to and during World War II.

The graduation ceremonies are divided into two segments. The Undergraduate Ceremony begins at 12:30 at the University stadium. It will include the conferring of bachelor degrees on 2,625 graduates, the student address by Ms. Denkensohn and the presentation of honorary degrees to Krens, Weinberg, and Mohr.

Ionesco, Harleston, Sonntag Nussenzweig, and Ohlin will receive their honorary degrees at the Graduate Ceremonies which will begin at 3:45 p.m. on the north steps of the academic podium. Master's degrees will be awarded to 1,151 students, and 153 scholars will receive their doctoral degrees.

The principal commencement address will be given by Dr. Harleston at the

May 17, 1989

For additional information contact:
K. Anne Teitsworth
442-3077
After 5:00 p.m.: 346-9012

Administration 233
Albany, New York
12222

FOR RELEASE MAY 19 OR THEREAFTER

"Follow your mind where it leads you," is the advice Distinguished Service Professor M.E. Grenander, retiring after 41 years of scholarship and teaching at the State University at Albany, has for young people contemplating careers in higher education.

"I am a libertarian," she explained. "And I feel very strongly that even Gorbachev and the Soviet Union have now recognized the virtues of the libertarian, as opposed to the collectivist, approach. So I would say don't be overwhelmed by temporary fads; don't be overwhelmed by peer pressures; don't be overwhelmed by what you think you ought to be thinking instead of what you do think."

Grenander, an English scholar whose specialty is critical theory and who may be best known popularly for the research she did to authenticate two string quartets almost certainly composed by Benjamin Franklin in the late 18th century, was honored by her colleagues Thursday at a luncheon at the Rockefeller Institute of Public Affairs and Policy.

(MORE)

✓

Grenander retirement 2-2-2-2

"Not only is Professor Grenander a great and distinguished teacher and scholar, but she has brought style, energy and organizing ability to the campus," Warren F. Ilchman, executive vice president for Academic Affairs, said. "Replacing her is a major task for the whole campus."

Grenander, who was Midwestern Women's Fencing Champion while a student at the University of Chicago during the 1940s and spent 4 years in the U.S. Navy during World War II, sees her work in critical theory and in the interdisciplinary analysis of ideas as her most significant contributions to scholarship. And she believes the value of the university lies in its being a forum for the impassionate discussion of important social issues.

"If it operates as it should," she said, "I would say the greatest thing the university as an institution can contribute to American life is being the one institution in which the professor and students are free to explore highly controversial and highly sensitive issues on their merits on both intellectual and ethical grounds."

Her work in critical theory began at the University of Chicago with her doctoral study of the literary criticism of Ambrose Bierce. It will come full circle when she completes the article the editors of the Dictionary of Literary Biography have asked her to write for the series on 19th century literary critics.

(MORE)

Grenander retirement 3-3-3-3

Grenander has published five books and more than 60 articles, monographs and reviews. She has served on nearly three dozen councils, committees, and policy groups. She has held leadership roles in the local chapters of the American Association of University Professors and Phi Beta Kappa. She founded and directed the Institute for Humanistic Studies which sponsored three major international interdisciplinary conferences at the University at Albany between 1978 and 1980.

She joined the faculty at Albany in 1948, has held visiting faculty appointments in France and Egypt, and has lectured extensively in the United States, Europe, China, and the Soviet Union. She was educated at the University of Chicago in English, receiving her A.B. in 1940, her A.M. in 1941, and her Ph.D. in 1948.

AEC

Administration 233
Albany, New York 12222

news

518 442-3073

Contact: Vinny Reda or Mary Fiess

UNIVERSITY PSYCHOLOGIST NAMED DISTINGUISHED SUNY PROFESSOR

David Barlow, professor of Psychology at the University at Albany and co-director of its Clinic for Stress and Anxiety Disorders, has been named a Distinguished Professor by SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone.

Barlow becomes the eighth Albany faculty member to receive SUNY's highest academic designation. A Distinguished Professor, having been judged by committee made up of nationally prominent scholars, is judged to have achieved national or international prominence in his or her field of study, made a significant contribution to the research literature of that subject, and, by outstanding scholarship, elevated the standards of his or her colleagues.

Through lectures and seminars, the Distinguished Professor is also deemed to make a significant contributions to the faculty members from campuses throughout the SUNY system.

Barlow is internationally renowned for his research into anxiety disorders, particularly in the treatment of agoraphobia, an affliction which leaves people -- usually women -- in fear of leaving their own homes. The National Institute of Mental Health, which awarded him a $200,000 grant to conduct his study, named him the winner of its MERIT Award in 1987 for having "demonstrated superior competence and outstanding productivity during previous research endeavors."

Along with co-director and fellow University psychologist Dr. Edward Blanchard, Barlow in 1982 founded the Center for Stress and Anxiety Disorders, which is now the top-funded research center for the study of anxiety in the nation.

May 25, 1989

89-25

✓

English and Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Kentucky State University, where he taught for twenty-two years. Currently, he is Chairperson of the Department of African and Afro-American Studies at the State University of New York at Albany, where he has been since 1988.

He is married to the former Roberta Hall, a doctoral student in Musicology at the University of Chicago, and is the father of one child, Minitria Elisabeth.

May 1, 1989

89-22

Contact: Vince Sweeney (518) 442-3075

COMMENCEMENT CEREMONIES SET FOR UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY
STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

An honorary degree to Eugene Ionesco, one of the world's leading playwrights, will highlight the 145th Commencement at the University at Albany on Sunday, May 21. Six other honorary degrees will also be awarded at the ceremonies which will feature as student speaker, graduating senior Sheri Denkensohn, scholar and campus leader from Accord, New York, whose physical disability requires her to use a wheelchair.

The other honorary degree recipients are Thomas Krens, director of the Guggenheim Museum; Bernard Harleston, president of City College of the City University of New York; Puerto Rican/ American novelist Nicholasa Mohr; Ruth Sonntag Nussenzweig, whose research has dramatically advanced science's search for a effective vaccine for malaria; Lloyd Ohlin, the 'dean' of American criminology; and Gerhard Weinberg, America's preeminent historian of the diplomatic history of Germany prior to and during World War II.

The graduation ceremonies are divided into two segments. The Undergraduate Ceremony begins at 12:30 at the University stadium. It will include the conferring of bachelor degrees on 2,625 graduates, the student address by Ms. Denkensohn and the presentation of honorary degrees to Krens, Weinberg, and Mohr.

Ionesco, Harleston, Sonntag Nussenzweig, and Ohlin will receive their honorary degrees at the Graduate Ceremonies which will begin at 3:45 p.m. on the north steps of the academic podium. Master's degrees will be awarded to 1,151 students, and 153 scholars will receive their doctoral degrees.

The principal commencement address will be given by Dr. Harleston at the

Syracuse Her - Journal
Clinton Sq.
Sy 13221

Syracuse Post-Standard
Clinton Sq.
Syracuse 13221

Watertown Daily Times
260 Wash. St.
Watertown 13601

TO: _____

FROM: Sheila Mahan
SUNYA, University Relations
442-3094

89-26

To _____

Date _____ Time _____

WHILE YOU WERE OUT

M _____

of _____

Phone _____

Area Code

Number

Extension

TELEPHONED		PLEASE CALL
CALLED TO SEE YOU		WILL CALL AGAIN
WANTS TO SEE YOU		URGENT

RETURNED YOUR CALL

Message _____

89-26

Operator _____

AMPAD
EFFICIENCY®

23-000 50 SHT. PAD

23-001 250 SHT. DISPENSER BOX.

Bea,

Please send to:

Local A, F

Prof. John Mackiewicz,
U.P. Jeanne Gullahorn,
Lee Harper,
Dept. of Biology
St. Lawrence University
Canton, N.Y. 13617

&

to the city editors at the 2 daily Syracuse papers & the Watertown newspaper.

Many thanks

P.S. Please put on bulletin board. May

Page 2. University at Albany Commencement

Graduate Ceremony.

Two senior faculty members, Richard Clark, professor of educational psychology, and Harold Story, professor of physics, will be designated University at Albany Collins Fellows at the Undergraduate Ceremony, a special honor for long and fruitful service to the University. Faculty speakers will be Richard Hall, distinguished service professor of sociology, at the Undergraduate Ceremony, and Eugene K. Garber, distinguished teaching professor of English, at the Graduate Ceremony.

May 12, 1989

89-23

University Relations
518 442-3071

May 17, 1989

For additional information contact:
K. Anne Teitsworth
442-3077
After 5:00 p.m.: 346-9012

Administration 233
Albany, New York
12222

FOR RELEASE MAY 19 OR THEREAFTER

"Follow your mind where it leads you," is the advice Distinguished Service Professor M.E. Grenander, retiring after 41 years of scholarship and teaching at the State University at Albany, has for young people contemplating careers in higher education.

"I am a libertarian," she explained. "And I feel very strongly that even Gorbachev and the Soviet Union have now recognized the virtues of the libertarian, as opposed to the collectivist, approach. So I would say don't be overwhelmed by temporary fads; don't be overwhelmed by peer pressures; don't be overwhelmed by what you think you ought to be thinking instead of what you do think."

Grenander, an English scholar whose specialty is critical theory and who may be best known popularly for the research she did to authenticate two string quartets almost certainly composed by Benjamin Franklin in the late 18th century, was honored by her colleagues Thursday at a luncheon at the Rockefeller Institute of Public Affairs and Policy.

(MORE)

Grenander retirement 2-2-2-2

"Not only is Professor Grenander a great and distinguished teacher and scholar, but she has brought style, energy and organizing ability to the campus," Warren F. Ilchman, executive vice president for Academic Affairs, said. "Replacing her is a major task for the whole campus."

Grenander, who was Midwestern Women's Fencing Champion while a student at the University of Chicago during the 1940s and spent 4 years in the U.S. Navy during World War II, sees her work in critical theory and in the interdisciplinary analysis of ideas as her most significant contributions to scholarship. And she believes the value of the university lies in its being a forum for the impassionate discussion of important social issues.

"If it operates as it should," she said, "I would say the greatest thing the university as an institution can contribute to American life is being the one institution in which the professor and students are free to explore highly controversial and highly sensitive issues on their merits on both intellectual and ethical grounds."

Her work in critical theory began at the University of Chicago with her doctoral study of the literary criticism of Ambrose Bierce. It will come full circle when she completes the article the editors of the Dictionary of Literary Biography have asked her to write for the series on 19th century literary critics.

(MORE)

Grenander retirement 3-3-3-3

Grenander has published five books and more than 60 articles, monographs and reviews. She has served on nearly three dozen councils, committees, and policy groups. She has held leadership roles in the local chapters of the American Association of University Professors and Phi Beta Kappa. She founded and directed the Institute for Humanistic Studies which sponsored three major international interdisciplinary conferences at the University at Albany between 1978 and 1980.

She joined the faculty at Albany in 1948, has held visiting faculty appointments in France and Egypt, and has lectured extensively in the United States, Europe, China, and the Soviet Union. She was educated at the University of Chicago in English, receiving her A.B. in 1940, her A.M. in 1941, and her Ph.D. in 1948.

UNIVERSITY PSYCHOLOGIST NAMED DISTINGUISHED SUNY PROFESSOR

David Barlow, professor of Psychology at the University at Albany and co-director of its Clinic for Stress and Anxiety Disorders, has been named a Distinguished Professor by SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone.

Barlow becomes the eighth Albany faculty member to receive SUNY's highest academic designation. A Distinguished Professor, having been judged by committee made up of nationally prominent scholars, is judged to have achieved national or international prominence in his or her field of study, made a significant contribution to the research literature of that subject, and, by outstanding scholarship, elevated the standards of his or her colleagues.

Through lectures and seminars, the Distinguished Professor is also deemed to make a significant contributions to the faculty members from campuses throughout the SUNY system.

Barlow is internationally renowned for his research into anxiety disorders, particularly in the treatment of agoraphobia, an affliction which leaves people -- usually women -- in fear of leaving their own homes. The National Institute of Mental Health, which awarded him a $200,000 grant to conduct his study, named him the winner of its MERIT Award in 1987 for having "demonstrated superior competence and outstanding productivity during previous research endeavors."

Along with co-director and fellow University psychologist Dr. Edward Blanchard, Barlow in 1982 founded the Center for Stress and Anxiety Disorders, which is now the top-funded research center for the study of anxiety in the nation.