This Book

is dedicated to

PROFESSOR CLARENCE A. HIDLEY,

Whose sincere devotion to truth, unremitting and open-minded, has given us a glimpse of true scholarship and the spirit of learning. For that we shall continue to be grateful, as we are appreciative today of his sympathetic teaching and of his great service to our undergraduate community.

FOREWORD

Down the steps, away from the bright and guiding light of our Alma Mater, into the dark uncertainty of life. We have our memories of the past, our present joys and sorrows, and our dreams for the future. As we plan for this future, may we realize with Carlyle, "It is great, and there is no other greatness—to make one nook of God's creation more fruitful, better, more worthy of God; to make some human heart a little wiser, manlier, happier—more blessed, less accursed."

DUANE F. BAKER, '32

*"He has moved a little nearer
To the Master of all music!"*

VERA B. BURNS
Editor-in-Chief

MICHAEL FROHLICH
Business Manager

SENIOR HISTORY

Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, Senior: the years follow one another in orderly succession, and bring with them the same events that every year has brought to every class.

Tradition is strong, and the class of '32 has followed it. We were traditional Freshmen, traditional not in following where other classes led, but in accepting the challenge offered by the Sophomores and by our own sense of smallness, and in bending all our efforts to meet the challenge. We met it. We were the first Freshman class in several years to hold a debate as part of rivalry; we were so vehement in inter-class fights that Myskania saw fit to abolish the pole rush; needless to say, we won rivalry.

Traditional Freshmen became traditional Sophomores. We knew, as only Sophs can know, the futility of rivalry. So we abolished the Get-Wise party, held another inter-class debate, and lost inter-class contests with magnificent disdain. It wasn't that the grapes were sour, but that we no longer cared for grapes, sweet or sour.

And in the regular course of events we became Juniors. Who wouldn't after being Sophs for a year? As Juniors we held prom week-end, to the accompaniment of new rushing rules; we took methods courses and psychology; Moving-Up day came, and the twigs that were bent in our Freshman year became trees, as eleven of our number were made members of Myskania.

We are Seniors. We have come up through the years doing what all classes have done. We will not say that we have done our best, for no one who has any humility or any hope for the future will ever say that he has done his best. We can say, however, that we have come through these years with thoughtfulness, with busy-ness, and with joy, and that these three culminate in the best we can have: growth. And in this culmination we cease to be traditional, for behind the class history, behind our composite actions, we stand, individual, and to each of us the class history is a different one. There are as many histories in the class of 1932 as there are people. Yet as we leave State College the history of the individuals merges into the history of the class. We are not sorry, because we know, with William Blake, that "He who would do good to another, must do it in minute particulars.

General good is the plea of the scoundrel, hypocrite and flatterer;
For art and science cannot exist but in minutely organized particulars,
And not in generalizing demonstrations of the rational power:
The infinite alone resides in definite and determinate identity."

MINERVA

As shepherds lead their flocks to warmth and home,
As raindrops call gray seeds to life in spring,
So wisdom called to us that we should come,
And opened gates to us for entering.
Still dazed and blinded by her lavish store,
We, childlike, drop her guiding hand, and yearn
To search alone for what she offers more,
To pry among dead thoughts and those that burn.
For we would learn to call the stars by name,
And we would know the force which planned the earth,
Why men have toiled for things that never came,
And know the why of grief, and love, and mirth.
Minerva, far-famed friend of age and youth,
Be with us in our search for life and truth!

GREAT FIRES

Arrangement by Dr. T. F. Candlyn

Great fires kindled for thy children
 Warm us with thy flame,
 Pilgrims we have sought thee ever,
 We sang as we came.

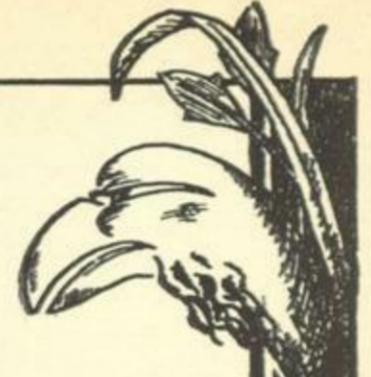

Upward leapt the fire and brighter
 With a steady light,
 Wonder open wide and beauty
 We forgot the night.

Now while the embers here before us
 Hold a tiny gleam,
 To the darkness turn our faces,
 Cherishing a dream.

PEDAGOGUE

JUNIORS

1932

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

VanDyke has written: "Be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars." During our freshman and sophomore years we loved and worked and played together; we stumbled upon new discoveries with wondering eyes, and were content with our wonderings. It is in this, our junior year, that we have begun to look up at the stars, and to see in them our chances for living. For two years we have danced merrily onward, viewing the future, graduation, teaching, reminiscences, and life in a rosy haze of unreality. Now the shadows have deepened; profiles have become sharper; and we have learned to look up clearly until our eyes meet the star-lit challenge.

As freshmen we worked and played together for a glorious year, and no one knew whither we were going, and no one tried to see, for it mattered to no one then. We arrived at State a vague collection of individuals, but we soon grouped our separate selves into a great whole. Campus day stunt, inter-class debate, banner rush, basketball games, mascot hunt, Moving-Up day stunt and sing, our first class banquet, our victory in inter-class rivalry—these were the high lights of that year, and we raised our heads in the air and looked upward. But we did not see the stars, for our eyes were not yet ready.

Events came quickly in our second year. Registration, freshman welcome party, sophomore rules, enforcement committees, campus day, sorority and fraternity life,—and in between we found time to make new friends, to discover new people, and to realize new possibilities. Some of us found time to stop and wonder; others kept blithely on, secure in the knowledge that there was much we did not know.

We danced at soiree and kept our brilliant red and white emblem safe; we lost inter-class debate, pole-rush, and Moving-Up day stunt, but we found other things which brought us to a tie in rivalry. We had to bid farewell to inter-class contests, but it did not seem to matter, for we were all learning to look further and were realizing that we had not begun to use our proffered chances.

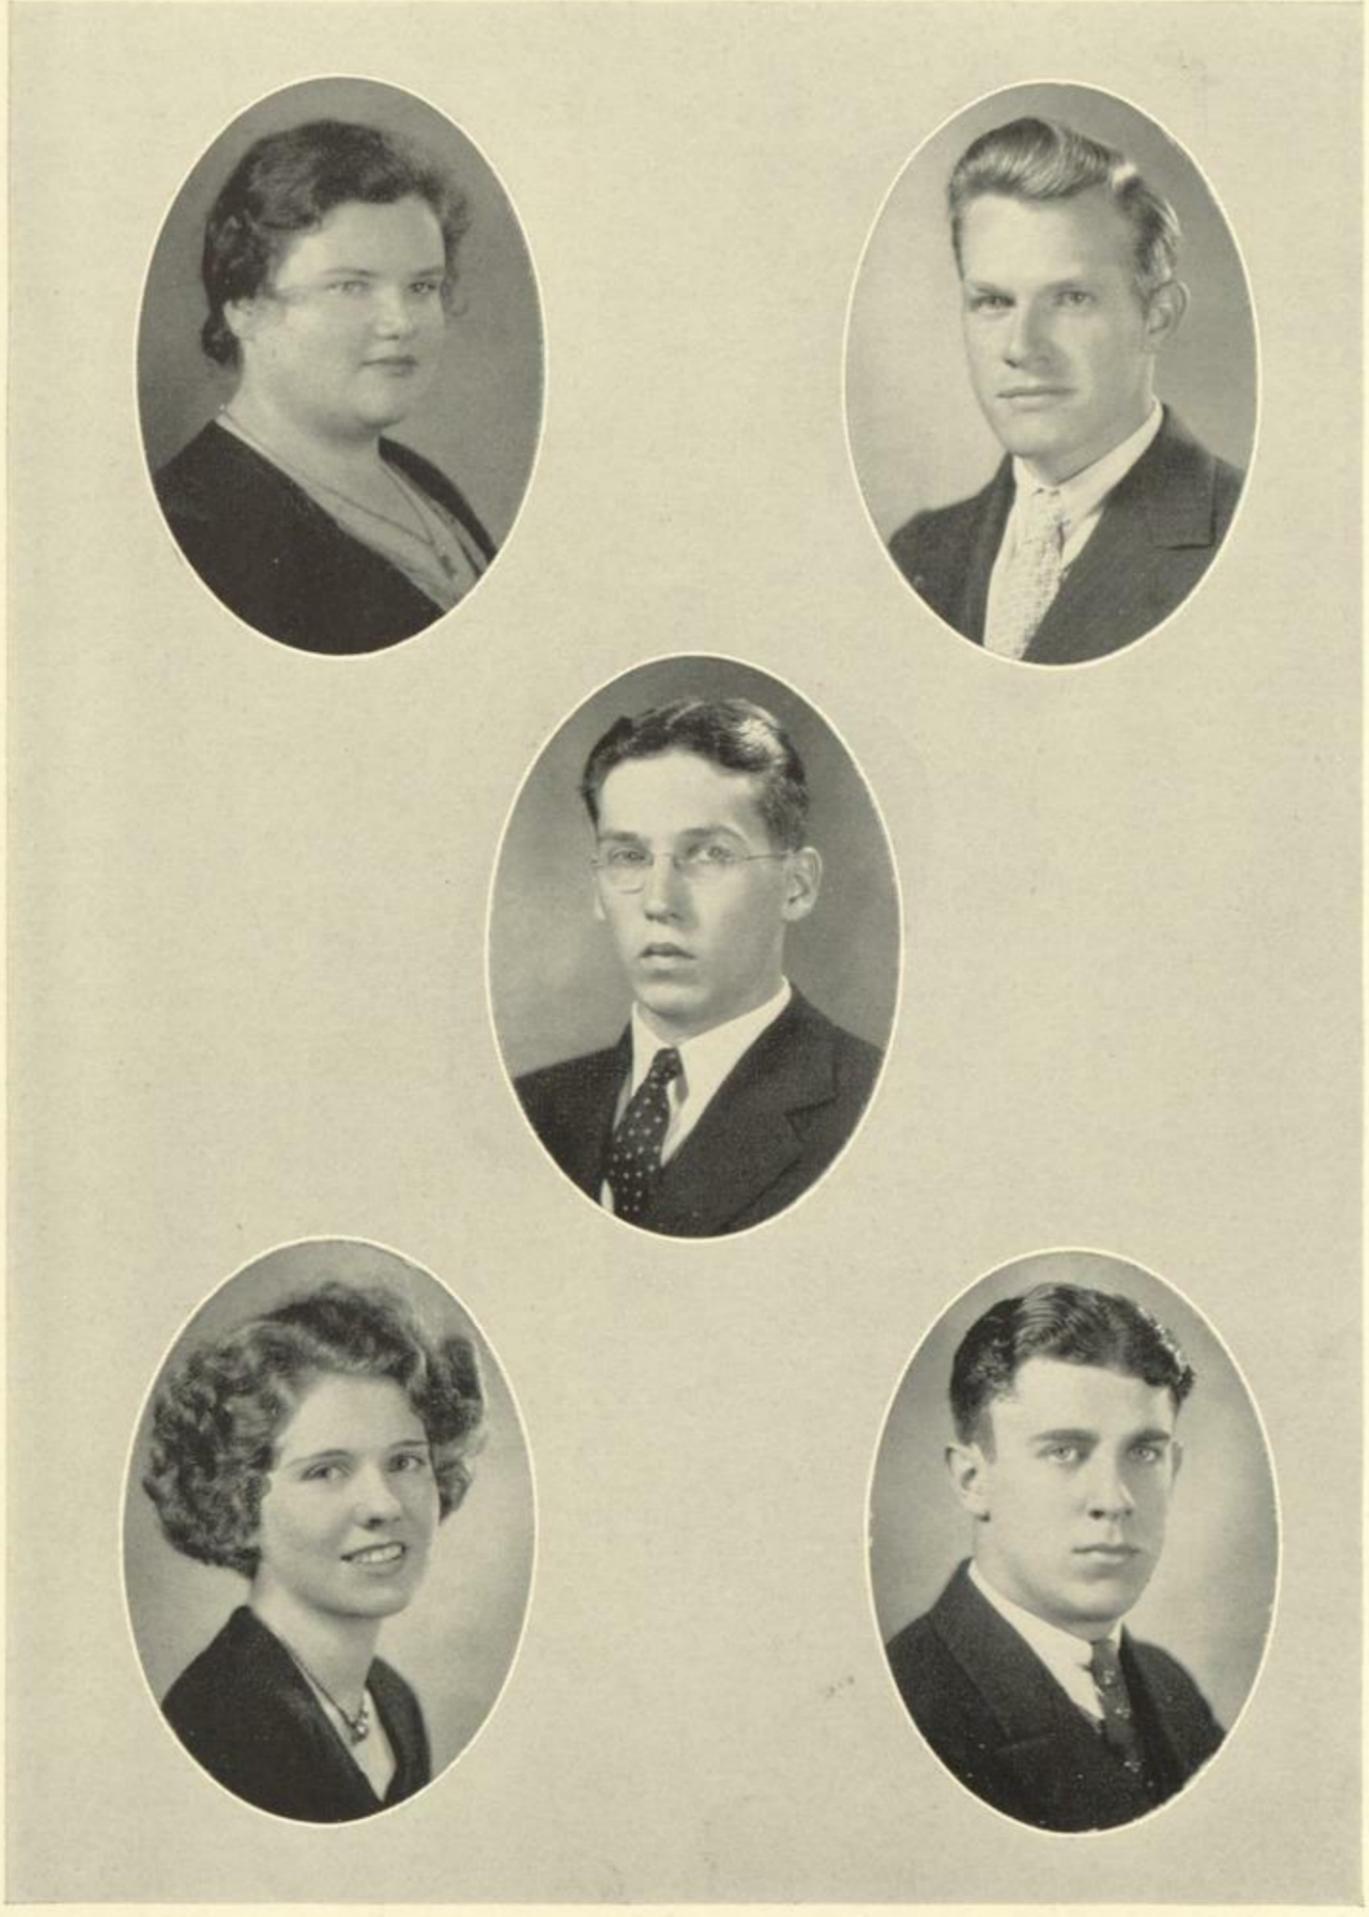

This year has been one of discovery and exploration, of thought and decision. We have been puzzled and bewildered but we have learned to see more clearly the paths in our maze. More than half of college is gone,—we look onward to the future, but we also find ourselves snatching backward glimpses at what we have done. Prom, luncheon, and tea-dance—these events of junior week-end brought us close together and we discovered that we were all snatching glimpses and we wondered what had happened.

We have always been bound together in '33; we have fought for her, danced with her, argued for her, and sung her praises. Nothing has happened—we are still together in '33, but we are learning to stay together also as students at State, to realize our part in her living.

And so for three years we have loved and worked and played and now we have begun to look up at the stars and to see and to live. We go forward in the knowledge of our past experiences, our defeats, our victories, and our friendships. We seek that greater light of the future, and find it we shall.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

When we sophomores came to State for the first semester of our freshman year, we were confronted with the grinning, leering faces of the members of the class of 1933. Evil designs and mischievous pranks lurked about the corners of their mouths and hid behind the demure droop of their eyelashes.

Soon after we had established ourselves as freshmen, we noticed that the facial expressions of '33 were changing. Their faces were being drawn out, stretched, as though some external force had pushed in the cheeks and pulled out the chin. Their countenances were hideous with apprehension. That was due to our utter disregard of their rules. Their well-laid plans for driving us into submission were upset by our refusal to don outrageous costumes during freshman week. We continued in this strongly independent manner for several months, during which time the sophomores acquired hard, stoical looks.

Our failure to find the sophomore mascot revived their hopes and their faith in themselves, softening their facial expressions. Our countenances were gradually undergoing a change. As the two classes fought incessantly and unflinchingly for superiority, we became hard, sharp.

The sophomores lost heart when we won the pole rush. The emotions we had dammed up within ourselves, thus playing havoc with our looks, were released in that fight. It was fierce—for the onlookers as well as the actual participants. The sophomore girls retaliated a few minutes later by winning the tug-of-war.

By this time, since the year was so nearly ended, every member of each class was in a fever of excitement and suspense. We pulled through by capturing the Moving-Up Day stunt, but the sophomores outsang us lustily the same night.

So there we were—tied. Neither of us had gained real satisfaction, but, strangely enough, we were all satisfied. Perhaps the bitterness of the struggle burned out all the source of rancor or even friendly enmity we had had. At any rate, we turned immediately from enemies into friends. And therein lay our approval of inter-class rivalry.

We are a bit more serious this year, though not too much so, for which we thank Providence. We are just beginning to realize that perhaps there are better things than play, but are still unwilling to give it up entirely. We know now that life will always have dizzy heights of unconfined joy and the equally strong bogs of distress, but that their intensity is dimmed by the indifferent, discouraging distance between.

We feel the attractive disorder of our life here, perhaps the best four years, collectively, that we shall know. Just as there is a fascination in the grim grotesqueness of gargoyles, so there is that in our weirdly-patterned existence here which binds us to State forever.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

Individuals—strangers—lost in a maelstrom of wonder, eagerness, and expectancy. In this way we came to the portals that were to become so familiar in a short time. Now we have emerged from this crazy-quilt pattern of personalities to a tapestry of perfectly blended design. Bonds of friendship, happiness, and loyalty have cemented us into one laughing, hard working, hard playing band.

For one year we have come and gone to and from classes, social gatherings, and athletic contests—labors and joys. We have had our defeats; we have had our triumphs. All of which has added to our knowledge and poise and has prepared us for our future life in State. We look forward with hope and joyful expectancy to the time when we shall pass from our lowly position into the realm of a Sophomore class.

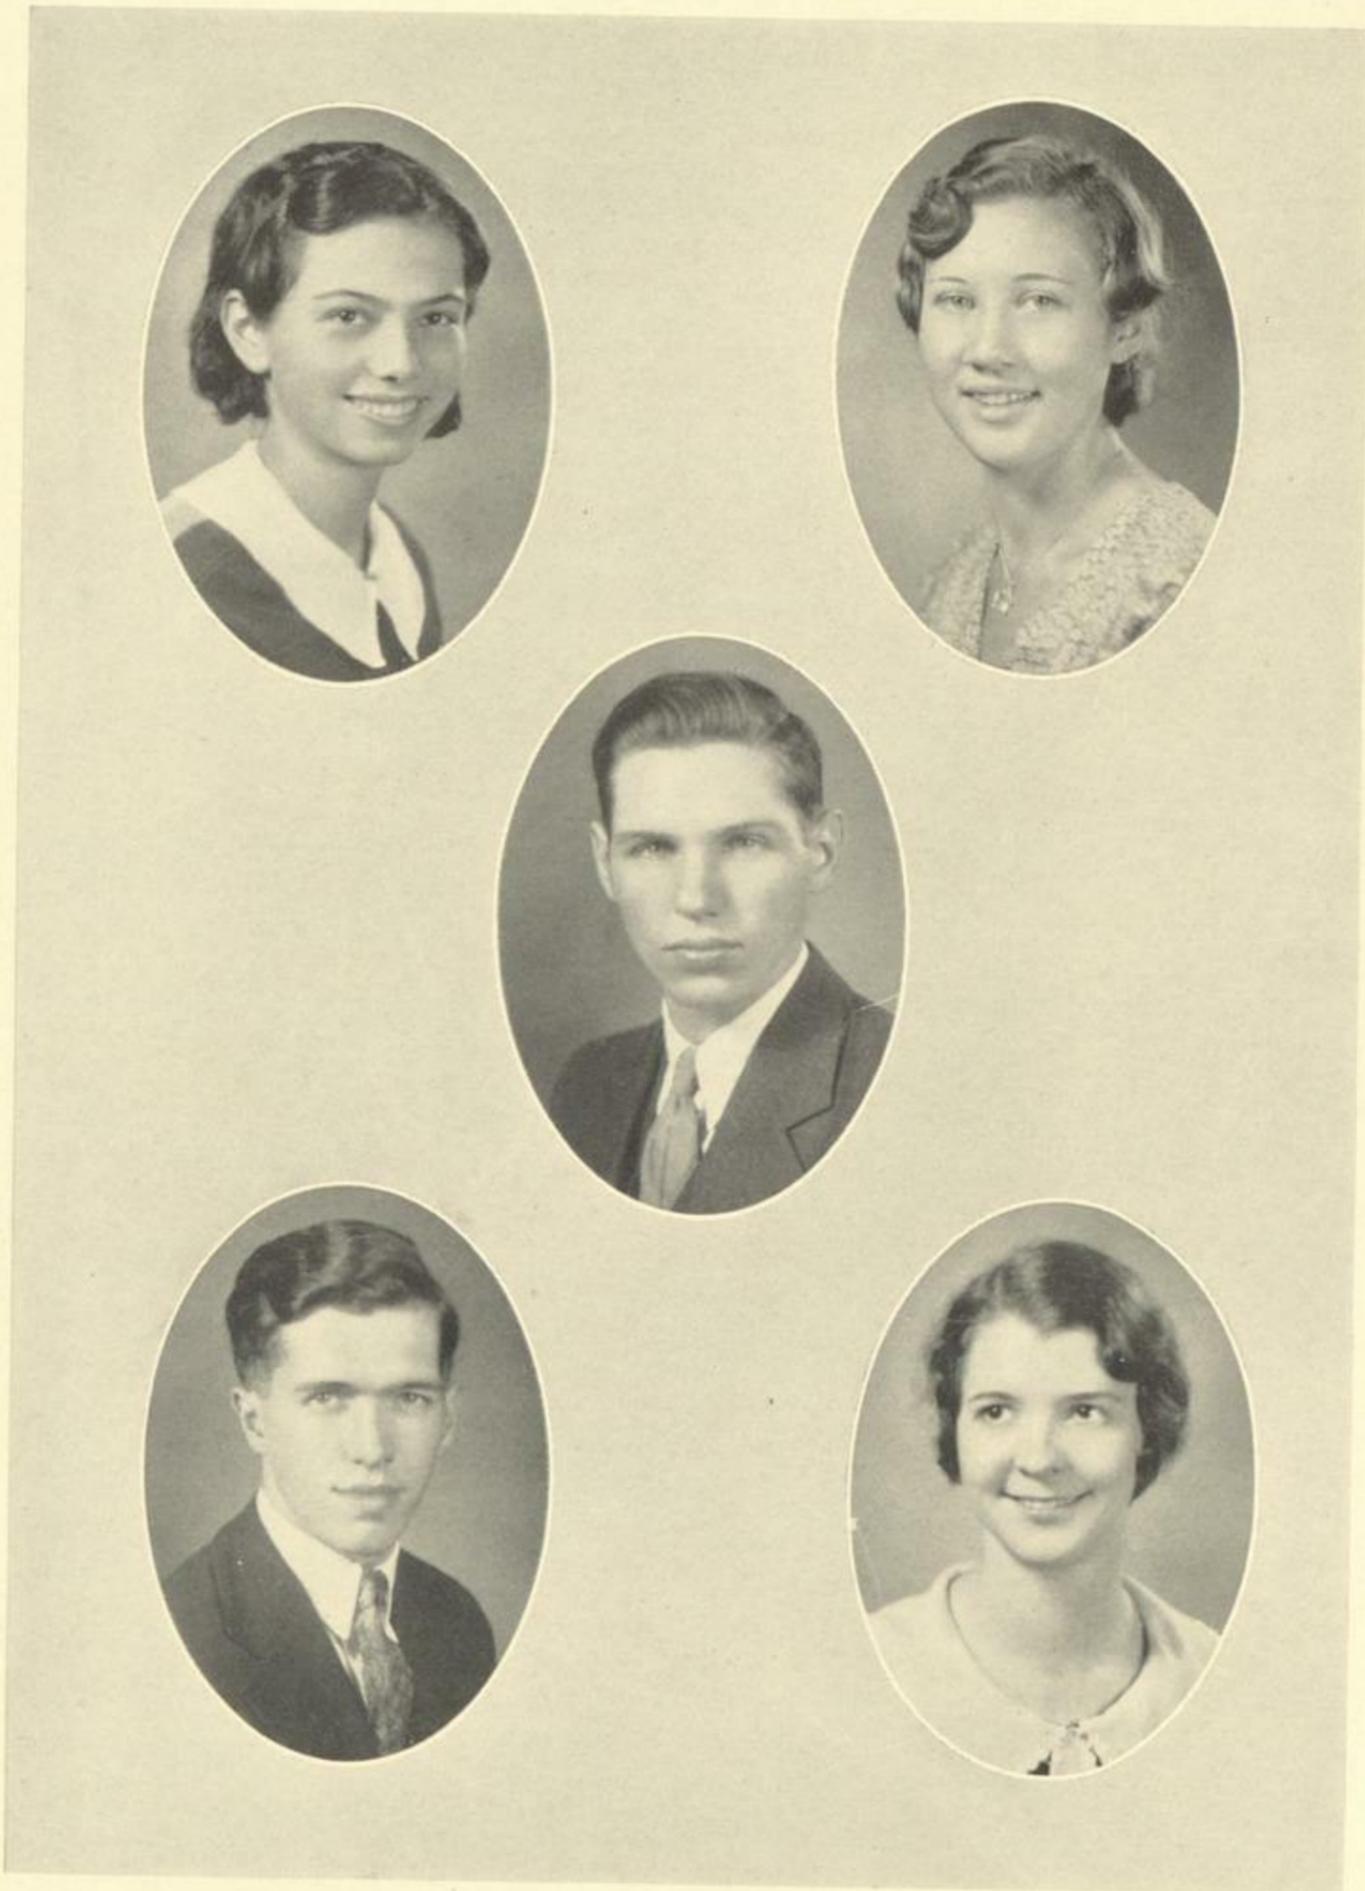

When we first consider, it seems ages since we entered last September, and donned our oil cloth bibs, but on further thought, the time has passed all too quickly, and we are sad that we have missed many opportunities which have been offered to us. Nevertheless, our short stay here has been filled with wonderful experiences. We have been greatly aided along our way by the helping hands of our older brethren and of our instructors. Freshman camps, Freshman hand books, Junior brothers and sisters, and a tolerant faculty have all helped to make our path a little easier.

Our social life has been truly a wonderful one. Our sister class furnished a most enjoyable informal party for us in the Fall. G. A. A. Play day at Camp Cogswell saw many freshmen frolicking in the open. Campus day brought a class of small boys and girls in rompers and socks to perform for the approval of the Queen. Our basketball team turned in an enviable record of victories. It has been rumored that it wasn't as good as the previous Freshman team, but, if this is true, we can't have all the brains and brawn too. Election of officers almost became a political war, but in the end order came, and a well organized class rolled through the rest of the year.

We entered with one of the highest scholastic ratings of any other class, and we have tried to work hard to become worthy of our standard. We only hope that we may be able to pass through our remaining three years both scholastically and socially great; to graduate and bring praise and glory to our dearly loved and deeply respected Alma Mater.

MYSKANIA

Myskania, organized in 1917, is an honorary body composed of seniors who have led in scholarship, literary effort, debate, dramatics, and in undergraduate affairs generally.

This organization leads in formulating student sentiment in matters relating to student activities. These activities include: induction of freshmen into college customs, organization of the freshman class, guardianship of college traditions, preservation of student morale, direction of Campus Day program, and Moving-Up Day.

The members are elected in the spring of their Junior year, and they are made known Moving-Up Day, when the outgoing Myskania taps the new Myskania. The members are chosen as follows: the Student Association elects three qualified juniors by a popularity vote, besides the Student Association president, who becomes an ex-officio member. The other eight, nine, or ten members are chosen by the outgoing Myskania at its discretion.

Y. W. C. A.

"To realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God, and to have a part in making this life possible for others" is the purpose which unites the members of State College's Young Women's Christian Association, which welcomes into its fellowship all students in sympathy with this purpose. Activities through which the Association strives to carry out this purpose include: a candle-lighting service; Sunday afternoon Vespers; Morning Watch Meetings at Christmas and Easter; discussion forums for student problems, and social service enterprises ranging from the providing of Thanksgiving baskets for needy families to the management of second-hand book sales for busy college students. Through delegates to the various state and national conferences and, in co-operation with the Y. M. C. A., it brings outside speakers to the College. By means of a Christmas bazaar or masquerade, breakfast hikes, teas, etc., Y. W. also helps to supply some of the social needs of college life.

TENNIS

A veteran tennis team is assuming the offensive against its old rivals this year, having the entire personnel of last year's squad and re-enforced by some newcomers. Carl Tarbox, backed by four years of experience on the varsity team, will captain the netmen.

Last year, five out of six matches were played, the last match of the season with Dana College of Newark, N. J., being rained out. State launched its offensive against the Albany College of Pharmacy, whitewashing them to the tune of 6 to 0. The match with Hamilton College ended in a 3 to 3 tie. The team then traveled to Vermont, where it split even; beating the University of Vermont and bowing to Middlebury College. In its fifth and last match, State lost to the R. P. I. netmen.

Tarbox and Sanford Levinstein shared honors last year by winning seven out of ten match games. These men again are playing together in the doubles this year, besides playing numbers one and two in the singles.

Jack Saroff, who is managing this year's squad, Vince Melesky, Tony Sroka, and Gordon Hughes comprise the rest of the men who saw action in last year's matches and are again playing this year.

In 1929 tennis suffered greatly because of unfortunate weather conditions. Two matches were called off because of rain, two more were cut short with State in the lead, for the same reason, and the fifth match was lost. The team then playing was composed Joe Herney, captain; Leo Allen, Carl Tarbox, and Randolph Sprague, according to playing order. Herney, Allen, Sprague, and Stanhope, reserve man, were seniors.

In 1930, the manager left college in the middle of the season, and later negotiations for matches were unsuccessful in completing the schedule. Although the team held regular practice, only one match was played. Curtiss Rutenber was appointed manager for the next season, and his efforts resulted in a fine schedule. With favorable weather conditions, the 1931 squad, although comprised mostly of new men, ended the season much better than expected.

THE 1932 SQUAD IS:

Carl Tarbox, Captain	Jack Saroff, Manager
Dr. H. W. Hastings, Coach
Sanford Levinstein	Vincent Melesky
Anthony Sroka	Gordon Hughes

The schedule for the season is:

May 4—Saint Stephens College—home
6—Ithaca College of Physical Education—home
13—University of Vermont—away
14—Saint Michael—away
21—Pending

BASKETBALL

The Purple and Gold quintet rolled up seven victories to but two defeats in the 1931-32 season. The victories were captured from Lowell Textile, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, Montclair Teachers College, Cooper Union, Hartwick College, the Alumni, and Jersey City Teachers. The two losses were dropped by small margins to John Marshall Law School, and Oswego Normal School.

The State players amassed a total of 326 points while their opponents were registering 246. Roger "Sparkie" Bancroft, fleet forward of the team, gathered a total of 69 points in six games to lead in the race for scoring honors. Bancroft also established a record for the year when he gained twenty-four points in the Jersey City contest.

Ben Ingraham, lanky center of the five, was second in the struggle for the individual record with forty-six points. "Ossie" Brooks, Cliff Rall, and Gil DeLaura were also high in the point contest.

"Bill" Allard, freshman forward, made a total of twenty-one points in the two games that he participated in.

Gil DeLaura, co-captain and veteran guard of the State aggregation, and Cliff Rall, frosh defense man, constituted one of the finest guard combinations seen on a State court in many years.

The entire team will return next season, and the 1932-33 quintet will undoubtedly have a fine season.

The team was strengthened in the second semester by the addition of Bancroft and Charlie Kissam, who grabbed a game for State by shooting a basket in the final second of play of the Lowell Textile contest.

Every man on the team showed persistence and a fighting spirit throughout the season.

BASEBALL

The return of all the regulars of the 1931 nine will insure a strong baseball team this season. "Ossy" Brooks, iron man hurler, who pitched both games of a doubleheader against Hartwick last year, will share the pitching burden with Don Benedict, sophomore portsider, who was the "Lou Gehrig" of the "Purple and Gold" last season with a batting average of .565. Robert Goodrich, a three-year baseball letterman, and Fay Blum and Lloyd Moreland, two-year lettermen, will play their last game for State this Spring, as all three will graduate in June.

Other veteran players who will return include "Johnnie" Detlefson, center-fielder; Gil DeLaura, third sacker; Jack Saunders, shortstop; and "Hack" Young outfielder. Several freshmen will also try out for places on the diamond outfit.

The 1932 team is coached by R. R. Baker and managed by George Ketcham, '34.

IS
THE FIRST BLOKE WHAT GETS A JOB
SALARY RANGE $500 TO $700

dear editor

i was thinking maybe youd like to know how a returned alumna feels you know its exactly thirty years now since i graduated from good old state college in the class of thirty two

those were the days

why I remember the things we did and the way we did them even now and i bet there are a lot of other people who do too

we were the first freshman class to win rivalry in a long time but we did it we showed them we did some other good work too most of it was very revolutionary we didnt like to do things unless they were different the class of thirty two hated standardization

but you must be interested or i hope you are in my impressions of the college nowadays i always think the old settlers are right when they look at the younger generation and shake their heads and say o tempora o mores thats the way i feel i was shocked unquestionably shocked when i saw the freshman gym class practicing natural dancing in those wisps of garments i suppose next they will be doing the dance of the seven veils

of course where i come from we dont see any of that sort of thing you see when i graduated from state in thirty two i went to teach in a little town up in the adirondack mountains up there we get a newspaper every three months and none at all in the winter

we re lucky if we get to town once a year usually the men go down after the spring thaw to get their hair cut

Two Hundred Ninety-four

1932

this is the first time that ive been outside of polk center since nineteen forty its been so long since i could talk to a person who could read or write that ive forgotten what conversation really intellectual conversation is like.

i havent read a book since nineteen forty one you see we had an awful cold winter that year and we used up all the books and old papers when the firewood needed replenishing because we couldnt get out to the woodpile so ive forgotten how to write i can remember the spelling pretty well because miss peltz made me practice that when i was a freshman but this capitalization and punctuation gets me so i thought id just leave it out entirely and let you take your choice things have changed since my day there are a few things im rather surprised about one of them is why is the college out in the country now i suppose that they thought the modern youth needed the exercise of walking nearly to colonie in the morning to get their brains clear another thing how did carl tarboxs art school happen to be within half a mile of the school is he trying to get state college trade

i notice he isnt charging any tuition by the way the average intelligence of the school is not what it used to be in my day we had to have marks above eighty five even to be considered for state college

now they seem to be letting them in with an average of sixty but of course i havent been out of the woods in a long time and things change that was certainly a fine extra that the news published the other day about starting the dormitory i always said id like to be around when the first spadeful of earth was spaded and it seems they are going to do it next sunday

i think that's a good idea having only one sorority in the college now of course when we get the dormitory fund together and the dorm built there will be no need for sororities

one of the girls was telling me that she dates in the hawley library its the quietest place shes been able to find and cosy too because theres never anyone there it seems too bad when i think of the propaganda about night work when i was in school

i saw mr nelson at the reunion and i heard him say in an undertone to mr sayles
that girl has a bad case why didnt you know she has roving foot the new curriculum is the nuts honest i always thought that we should do away with a lot of those courses but to think of anyones having the genius to do away with all of them that took brains

i was glad to see all my old pals again though i hardly recognized some of them

it seems funny to have them all old and gray but i suppose thats what school teaching does to a person i have avoided that pretty well because we stopped having school up in polk center shortly after hoovers administration

dottie hall certainly came in great style in that airplane

well freds an engineer he ought to have an airplane but those kiddy cars they have for the children are swell

well i guess id better go along home now hirms having to milk the cows all by himself while im on this jaunt it certainly has been downright pleasure being back again and im sure im going to have plenty to talk about for the next few years its hirms turn to get out into the world next yours till the cows come home heh heh

LOVE IN THE CHORINE STAGE

Place—Boulevard Cafeteria.

Time—3:15.

Characters—Five State College seniors: Joseph College; George P. Randolph; Charles Hatbox; Andrew Hrollins; Samuel Dormouse.

ACT I—SCENE I

(J. C.; G. P. R.; C. H.)

G.P.R.: Well, as I was saying, about that budget, Charles, I think you're all wrong about it.

C.H.: Well, where there's smoke, there's always fire, George, and I smoke.

J.C. (sotto voce): So does Vesuvius.

G.P.R.: We're getting off the topic. As I was saying, Charles, you're all wrong.

C.H.: What do you think about the subway?

J.C.: It's going under, fast.

G.P.R.: Grrrrrr. As I was saying, you're all wrong.

SCENE II

(J. C.; G. P. R.; C. H.; S. D.)

S.D. (bustling in): Say, have you boys seen the copy for the next Echo? It's hot. We've got some darned good love poetry in it.

J.C.: What do you guys think about love, anyhow?

G.P.R.: As I was saying—

S.D.: Well, if you've got to have love, let's have it—and the best possible.

SCENE III

(J. C.; G. P. R.; S. D.; A. H. coming in)

A.H.: The best is none too good—What are you boys having?

C.H.: Make mine coffee.

Two Hundred Ninety-nine

S.D.: I was reading a mighty good book yesterday: "A Son of the Sahara," written by the same woman who wrote "The Sheik," and the Bedouin said caressingly: Ah, coffee, it should be like our love—black as sin; hot as hell, and sweet—sweet as a woman's lips just kissed.

G.P.R.: Gosh, that's hot stuff, but to get back—

C.H.: Have you read "Milly" or "Bad Girl"? That Vina Delmar can write, I'm telling you.

C.H.: They keep it to themselves, though—

A.H.: Not always, they don't. Have you heard the latest about that Chi Rho girl? You know, the tall blonde they call Cherry? It seems (all get their heads together about this) sssssssss. Honest to gosh, boys, that's the dope.

G.P.R.: I always said that she was working her way through college. By the way, now that we're talking about money, what do you think—

A. H.: Not only that, but one of the K.D.R.'s was there and he told me everything about it; he said it was scandalous—

J.C. (who has been listening intently): What's the Chi Rho telephone number?

A.H.: 2-XYZ4.

(Exit J.C.)

SCENE IV

(G. P. R.; S. D.; C. H.; A. H.)

G.P.R.: That was quite a party they had up at the Chi Rho house Saturday night. I was up there with one of the girls and the party didn't break up until 7 in the morning. A couple of Freshmen made waffles for us in the morning. They were good!

S.D.: Who, the Freshmen?

G.P.R.: Well, the Chi Rho's got some good girls this year.

A.H.: "If you converse with me," said Voltaire, "you must define your terms."

C.H.: Good? They've got to be good! Not only that, but they are good.

S.D.: What did you say the Chi Rho number was, Andrew?

A.H: 2-XYZ4.

(Exit S.D.)

SCENE V

(G. P. R.; A. H.; C. H.)

G.P.R.: Now that we're quite cozy and chummy again, Charles, let's talk about the budget again.

C.H.: Budget's unnecessary, George. Let's change the subject.

A.H.: No, Terrill, in Commerce 10, said something quite apropos about that the other day: "It was the best butter."

G.P.R.: That reminds me of those waffles.

C.H.: What was that number again, Andy?

A.H.: 2-XYZ4.

C.H.: Excuse me, please.

SCENE VI

(G. P. R.; A. H.)

A.H.: Gee, there's going to be another party up there, I guess. Those Chi Rho's are darned popular.

G.P.R.: Well, I guess State College men can pick 'em.

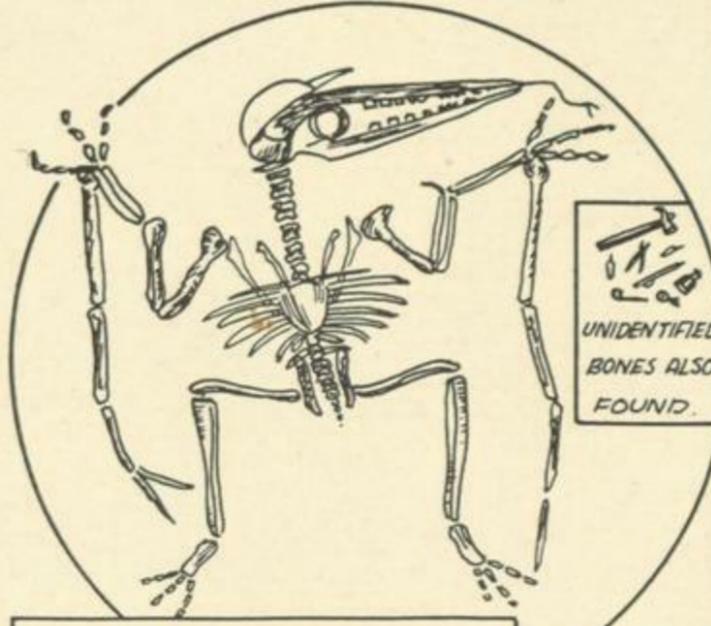

G.P.R.: I'm thinking we're going to be missing something, George. Whom were you over at the party with Saturday, old kid?

G.P.R.: Well, I started out with Rose, but then Lena came along and after her I was cut in on by Rose. I ended up with that blonde freshman. She's just what I want, about 5'6", blonde, blue eyes, winning personality—you remember my article in the Albany Evening News? She wrote me a note after that and suggested meeting me, so we got acquainted.

A.H.: There's a girl up there I'd like to see tonight; but I've never met her. You know the one I mean: little brunette with glasses.

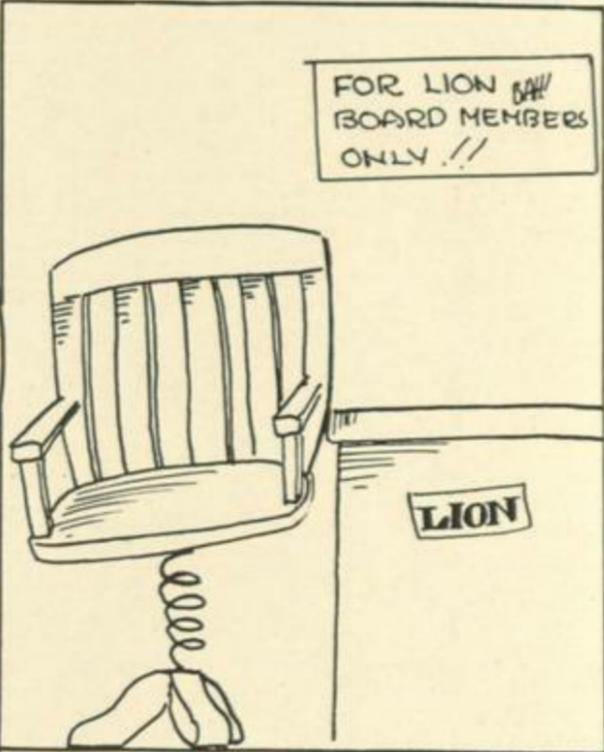

G.P.R.: What was that number, Andrew? What do you say we go make fun tonight with the Chi Rho girls, if there's going to be a party. We don't want to miss anything.

(Exit G.P.R. and A.H.)

Time—4:10.

Characters—Five State College girls: Josephine College; Helen B. Bobbitt; Florence Findlay; I. Jane Pierce; Katie Bran.

H.B.B.: What did you think of the discussion of philosophy in Kirtland's class today?

F.F.: I always said there was something in humanism.

K.B.: What do you mean by humanism? If you converse with me——

I.J.P.: Humanism, as a system of philosophy, started in the late twentieth century——

J.C.: Retournons a nos moutons! Don't you think Mr. Cooper of the Commerce Department is good looking?

H.B.B.: Well, I like Mr. Bryant! He has a future——

K.B.: Sometime there'll be a college with no instructors over 33 in it.

J.C.: He has curly hair, anyway——

I.J.P.: Humanism is a wonderful method of living——

H.B.B.: Let's do some really serious thinking now. What do you girls think of Walter Lippman's "Preface to Morals"?

J.C.: Well, I was talking to Joe the other day, and he said . . .

H.B.B.: You should do your own thinking, my dear.

J.C.: Joe says that girls can't understand philosophy, anyway.

H.B.B.: Well, I think they can. . . . I read "Mansions of Philosophy" by Will Durant and I knew what he was talking about——

I.J.P.: What do you think about this definition of education: "Education is what is left after you've forgotten what you never learned."

K.B.: I think that's culture.

F.F.: What is culture?

J.C.: Culture is education.

K.B.: Well, that makes culture fit that definition.

J.C.: Definitions are dumb, anyway; who ever got anywhere by defining?

I.J.P.: If you converse with me——

K.B.: If you converse with——

H.B.B.: If you converse——

F.F.: If you——

J.C.: If——

HANDSHAKING

That peculiar and intimate practice of handshaking has somehow evolved from a physical to a mental idea. We call it "Handshaking" when we grip our pals in a chummy linking and pressing of fingers. This may have several secret meanings, such as "Hello, old bean. How goes it?" Or "Hello, you old fool, and good-bye, get your cold, clammy hand off. If I never see you again, it'll be too soon." Each with a broad grin on the face. How can we tell if a pal is sincere? We can't—so what the —! The more overpowering and nerve-shattering the clasp the better pal we are supposed to be. But somehow that doesn't seem fair. How about the weak, limp, damp paw that falls timidly into your merciless clasp? Maybe this poor brother is a pal. Why isn't he more enthusiastic? Is he bashful or is it just too much of an effort? Don't judge others by yourselves. You see—YOU have that certain knack, that indescribable something, personality, S. A. or "It"—that the poor weak brother lacks. He may have something you lack—B. O., for instance. This business of handshaking, mental and physical, is a matter of social accomplishment.

Do you know the art of mental handshaking? Have you conquered that subtle talent? The answer is either "yes" or "no," not "perhaps." You have only to regard your academic record of the past four years to discover the truth. If you have conscientiously cut classes, ignored your lessons until the night before exams, and as a result received miraculously four "A's" and two "B's," then you are a successful handshaker, whether you know it or not. Probably you know it. Now you didn't get those four "A's" and two "B's" without effort. You wore yourself out laughing at ye olde prof's jokes—you contracted athlete's foot from hanging around her (or his) desk, joshing about the price of prunes (i.e.  $x + y = z$ )—you got your face paralyzed in a swell attempt to look feverishly interested and mournfully sympathetic. To cut a long tale short, you soon got "in kahoots with" the prof. You're pals. This means you are excused from all assignments, recitations and other curricular activities. Your time is practically your own, except for a bi-weekly visit to said prof or a rendezvous for tea at your loss AND gain. C'est tout! You lucky devil. How in the heck do you get that way? I'm the harmless, unsuccessful, weak brother. I may be weak, but I'm damned deserving. Let me clasp your hand just once. I may catch on.

Hopefully and admiringly—

"STUDE"

To the gallows with all punsters and those who indulge in the language atrocities current on the State campus! Then no longer need we hear in corridor, locker room, and activities room such conversations as the following:

"Owhay arehay ouyay"?

"Erm fern. Her er yer"?

"Inefay ootay. Ankthay ouyay."

or

"I can't tell one of these rocks from another."

"You must be stone blind."
