For Charity's Sake . .

The annual Campus Chest drive is slated to begin at State next Friday, when we'll once again be asked to shell out for sweet charity.

It should not be necessary to point out the value of this effort, which corresponds to the Community Chest fund conducted for the city at large. The organizations which receive the financial support are nationally recognized groups dedicated to char-

The big problem here is whether we can afford to donate any of our usually inadequate funds. Stu-dents are known the world over as a povertystricken group anyway, and this condition seems especially acute at State.

Before deciding definitely that charity will get the go-by this year, however, get out your slide rule and calculate the amount you spend at the Boul each day. Add to this the sum that rolls into the cash register at Ockies, the 119, etc. each week- most everyone will read this all end. Then examine the total carefully.

If you still feel that Campus Chest won't fit into your budget, you are probably justified in not contributing. Otherwise, make a sincere effort to the ranks of latest college fads.

We see by the papers that Indiana the example of the veteralis taking over the state office building is an example of Mead, reelection to the House of Repretibuting. Otherwise, make a sincere effort to the ranks of latest college fads.

The revival of rivalry spirit and growing interest in school affairs has occasioned no parallel increase in attention to the forthcoming gubernatorial and Congressional elections. According to reports, many students, including those of voting age, know peting candidates, outside of a few personal and sometimes fallacious facts.

Can we, as future teachers and supposedly intelligent members of society, afford to put our heads in the sand, like the ostrich, hoping for the best, but really caring very little until after the issues have been decided? Once the election is over, the gripes begin. Why don't we air our grievances now, and put the experience gained to good use when we have our chance to vote.
