SA election results invalidated
ASUBA takes action to defend Gould’s candidacy

After repeated protests by the Albany State University Black Alliance, the Student Association elections, scheduled for April 14 and 15, have been invalidated due to “irregularity in election procedures.” The elections will “hopefully” be rescheduled for some time next week, said SA Vice President and Acting Elections Commissioner, Mike Williams. The election controversy began with the discarding of Vice- Presidential candidate, Walton Gould, from the ballots 1:00 p.m. Wed. When Gould was taken off the ballots, people began a write-in for him but those who had voted already were not able to vote again.

Williams said Gould was taken off the ballot when he received his third written violation, the maximum allowed before removal according to SA 700 (election policy). The first two violations were against poster policy and the third was “electioneering within polling areas.,” Williams said.

“According to policy, [a candidate] is allowed three election violations... today was the third,” Williams said. ASUBA held an emergency mass meeting Wed. night and submitted several letters of protest to Williams requesting the election be invalidated.

The letters described inadequacies displayed by SA in assuring that the proper procedures were being followed at polling areas, including being open at the scheduled voting times.

SA President Diego Munoz said, “Gould had at least five written violations, two of which were ‘dismissed.’”

Gould alleges that the action taken against him was racial discrimination. Gould said, “From the beginning... I was getting discriminated against from SA executives and friends.”

“SA is like a cult... If you don’t follow by their rules and regulations they don’t want you involved in their student association,” Gould said.

During the meeting, Williams announced that the votes already registered for Gould would count as “no-votes.”

Rosa Clemente, candide of ASUBA, said, “We are being disfavored of union... our votes don’t mean anything.”

Williams said declaring the votes as no-votes “doesn’t help Walton that much but it doesn’t hurt him.”

Munoz said, “The discussions that we have had with Walton have been amicable and understanding... [but] we have certain constraints that we have to work with.”

“We have to put together the fairest election possible,” Munoz said.

A member of ASUBA present at the meeting, said, “Most minorities went out and voted [Wed.] and now you are saying, ‘You guys don’t count.’”

Munoz said because there is “no way to know who voted for Walton,” SA must stay within its policy.

The third violation against Gould was the presence of “table tents” on the tables in the State Quad cafeteria. Gould said, “I was sabotaged on State Quad... there is no proof towards my violation.”

“They have been trying to get me out any way they can,” Gould said, “Nobody saw me put those table tops down down there this morning.”

Clemente said, “Most people did not want Walton in there... mostly white people, because he stated the first

Effort to diversify campus not appealing
Special Interest Housing leaves some Greeks disenchanted

Special Interest Housing for Greek letter organizations has been given a new twist this year, but many groups have opted to decline the change.

Instead of Greeks selecting special interest housing for themselves, the Department of Residential Life/Special Interest Housing has instituted a new policy to better diversify the five quads.

Of the 45 recognized social fraternities and sororities, 16 organizations applied for S.I.H. understanding the new plan, said Tom Gebhardt, director of Res. Life and director of Special Interest Housing. Twelve of these groups were offered S.I.H. but only eight organizations accepted their housing on the quad they were given, he said.

Phi Kappa Sigma, Alpha Chi Rho, Delta Zeta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon were all offered Colonial Quad and accepted the areas, Gebhardt said, and the three groups offered State Quad, Alpha Kane said AIEI had done projects throughout the past year such as cleaning up the campus, recycling and helping with Don’t Walk Alone. “We do more than the average student,” he said.

AIEI resettled their application upon denial and met with Gebhardt, according to Kane.

They were still denied housing and now need to enter the housing lottery, Kane said.

“It is just a hassle and we’re not happy about it,” he said.

Alpha Epsilon Phi President Tara Tarazi said her sorority has a tradition for three years of living on the third floor of Eastman Tower on State Quad.

“We understand what Res. Life was trying to do... but State Quad has been known as the Greek Quad,” Tarazi said.

Alpha Xi Delta President Marguerite

Mullamphy said the women in her sorority want to live where they are more comfortable and surrounded by more Greeks since they are a new group.

“Special Interest Housing is good for the organization, and for the quad it lives on,” Mullamphy said.

Rich Harris, President of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, said the change is a move in the right direction. Harris said it will eliminate some of the labels and informal designations of the quads.

“It is going to help out,” he said. “By splitting [the Greeks] up it will add diversity to the campus.”

Two years ago, a plan was made to spread out the special interest housing throughout the University, Gebhardt said.

The new plan, which was approved February, 1992, should provide more staff allowed with the Greeks to educate non-Greeks about what the Greek system has to offer, provide more lounge space and lockable rooms and better advisement for Greeks living in the areas, he said.

Bazin lays conditions

(AP) Haiti’s military-backed prime minister says he will quit to make way for democracy, but has also laid out conditions that would further delay President Jean-Bertrand Aristide’s return. Prime Minister Marc Bazin’s comments, in a half-hour address would include a blanket amnesty for coup leaders if they make way for an Aristide-approved government and the eventual return of the firebrand Roman Catholic priest.

But the crucial amnesty seemed threatened, with Aristide appearing to retreat on the issue.

Dante Caputo, the Argentine diplomat leading the U.N. mediation effort, arrived Tuesday carrying the plan, which is strongly supported by the Clinton administration.

Caputo called this the “decisive phase” of an intensive-four-month diplomatic effort.

Bazin said he would quit as soon as Aristide designates a new Cabinet leader. But he warned that if the U.N. envoy does not return on the issue.

Rancher executed

Florence, Arizona

(AP) A ranch hand who killed four people in a robbery at the dude ranch where he worked, and kept a brain-splattered bullet as a souvenir, was executed by injection today.

James Dean Clark, 35, went to his death after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected two late-hour appeals, in 7-2 votes.

Among other things, his lawyers challenged the use of an informant who was allowed to testify anonymously in a ski mask at some hearings.

Prison spokesman Michael Arra said Clark’s final wish, that his wife “be the first person to touch me,” would not be granted.

Clark was convicted in a 1997 rampage at the Cochise Lodge near the southeastern Arizona hamlet of Eloy. He stabbed to death a fellow ranch hand and shot and killed another ranch hand, the ranch owner and his wife.

He slashed the tires of all the cars on the ranch and took the owner’s station wagon, a saddle, the wife’s engagement ring and credit cards.

This is the only rent he’ll get before finals.

Pressure to rearm

Zagreb, Croatia

(AP) The United States will press for the rearming of Bosnia’s Muslim-led government forces if its Serb enemies do not accept a U.N. peace plan, President Clinton’s special envoy for Yugoslavia said today.

The U.N. Security Council has given Bosnian Serbs until April 26 to agree to the plan, already accepted by Bosnian Muslims and Croats.

If they refuse, the council plans to drastically tighten trade sanctions on Serbia, accused of arming and resupplying Serbian Serbs.

“If they persist in their actions, the international community will make of Serbia a parish state for as far ahead as we can see,” U.S. envoy Reginald Bartholomew told reporters in the Croatian capital.

He also said the United States and its allies will push for Bosnian government forces to be exempted from an international arms embargo on the war-torn Serbs and Croats.

The Serbs, who have seized 70 percent of Bosnia, say they would not be given enough territory under the plan.

World pressure is growing on the Serbs to accept peace. On Tuesday, U.N. officials denounced the Serb fighters in exceptionally harsh terms a day after more than 50 civilians were killed in the relentless pounding of Srebrenica, a besieged enclave in eastern Bosnia.

Charges cleared

Wilmington, North Carolina

(AP) Three Marines were cleared of charges they attacked three people at a gay bar in a beating one of the accusers, had linked to President Clinton’s move to lift the ban on homosexuals in the military.

The Marines had claimed they fought in self-defense.

Judge Jacqueline Morris-Goodson, hearing the case without a jury, said Tuesday that prosecutors failed to meet the burden of proof.

Lance Cpls. Walter Watkins III, 26, Patrick Cardone, 23, and Colin Hunt, 20, were charged with simple assault and faced up to 30 days in jail or a $50 fine.

The Marine Corps plans no action against them, one of their lawyers said.

The most severely beaten man, Crae Pridgen, had testified that his attackers yelled, “Clinton must pay!” during the Jan. 30 melee, apparently referring to the president’s move to lift the Pentagon ban on homosexuals.

The Marines denied saying anything about Clinton. And defense attorneys said Pridgen had picked a fight and had met his match.

The Marines said they stopped at the bar to visit a friend could use the bathroom, and were taunted by bar patrons as the waited.

But Hunt and Cardone testified they hit one bar patron, John Laughton, after he swung a telephone receiver at them. Watkins said he didn’t hit anyone, and only kicked one man when he was grabbed around the waist during the brawl.

Ban on smoking?

Albany, New York

(AP) Citing the dangers of second-hand smoke, Gov. Mario Cuomo today proposed a wide-ranging measure that would severely limit smoking in public areas and ban many types of cigarette advertising.

The bill would ban smoking at schools, day-care centers, group homes, restaurants where liquor licenses and other institutions, and tobacco advertising on billboards, posters and other “fixed” advertising sources would be prohibited under the measure.

“My legislation will prevent more youngsters from getting hooked on cigarettes and protect them from the dangerous effects of second-hand smoke, which increases the risk of asthma and respiratory illnesses,” Cuomo said.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency recently listed second-hand smoke as a Class A carcinogen, in the same class as asbestos and arsenic.

Cuomo’s bill would also tighten rules where smoking is allowed. For instance, offices, bingo halls, bowling alleys and rides would have to limit their smoking areas. Also the sale of individual cigarettes, a common practice in poor neighborhoods, would be banned.

Charred body found

Syracuse

(AP) Police scheduled, an autopsy, Thursday for a woman whose body was found smoldering next to a cemetery tombstone.

The woman’s body was found lying on its back Wednesday afternoon next to a five-foot-high, massive tombstone in St. Agnes Cemetery in Syracuse, by the cemetery’s caretaker, city police said.

Police said the autopsy, be conducted by the Onondaga County Medical Examiner’s office, should determine whether the death was a homicide, a suicide or accidental.

Authorities have been unable to determine the age and identity of the woman because her body was charred.

But they believe she was white with brown hair, about 5’5” tall, and weighed between 110 and 130 pounds, said police spokesman Sgt. Michael Kerwin.

No items were found near the body that could have been used to ignite the fire.

Kerwin said.

The tombstone, scorching in the blaze, belonged to a man and woman who died in 1906 and 1930, respectively.

Campus lighting changes should improve safety

By Lorrie Roth Staff Writer

Over the course of the last four years the lighting around the SUNY Albany Campus has been upgraded extensively for the safety of the students.

Both the physical plant and the Task Force on Women's Safety have done many lighting improvements.

"There are intensive lighting inspections every other week on campus (done by students and O'Connell) and inspections about broken light fixtures are also made by the University Police Department, the electricians, and SUNY bus drivers in their daily travels. Each broken light fixture number is reported and then fixed," said Dennis Stevens, the assistant vice president and director of the physical plant.

Recently there have been many projects done to improve lighting. "All of the exterior lighting fixtures were changed from mercury to high pressure sodium," because this a better light, Stevens said.

Stevens mentioned several lighting additions on campus, including all the quads as well as in parking lots.

Stevens said, "On the actual light fixtures the wattage and the fixtures are upgraded and the angle of the fixtures is also adjusted for lighting to cover space more effectively."

"Referring to the annual survey done by the task force on women's safety, Lisa Donahue, E-board Representative from the task force said, "Correcting broken lighting fixtures is also important. Three hundred man hours were spent cutting, black top and down adding to the quads." Kristen Eaton-Pollard, S.A.F.W. chairperson.

"We color their support for children with cancer."

The Sigma Chi Epsilon fraternity sponsored a Crayonathon to benefit the Teddy Project Special Wish program of Camp Good Days and Special Times, Inc.

The Crayonathon was held in front of the Campus Center on Wednesday, April 14 and Thursday, April 15.

Campus organizations were asked in advance to purchase space on a giant banner for $15 and then color it in on Wednesday or Thursday.

The fraternity also welcomed students passing by to color on the banner and encouraged them to contribute to the fund, said Eytyn Calderon, Sig Ep's event chairperson.

This is the third year for the fundraiser, and Calderon said it was once again a success.

The majority of funds, $800, raised by the fraternity were raised through collections conducted before the event, Calderon said. First Albany, a local business, was the largest contributor with a $300 donation, he said.

Calderon said he expects to raise about $200 in addition to the $800 collected prior to the event, throughout the two day event.

The proceeds from the event will be applied to a trip planned for May to Disney World for 15 local children who have cancer, stated a release from the fraternity.

Calderon said it was a rewarding experience. "If we help one kid, then we did more than if we had done nothing," Calderon said.

The event did not cost Sig Ep anything to run, said Calderon. Brooegers Bagel Bakery and Price Chopper donated bagels and soda for the two days.

The completed banner was judged first and the place was awarded to Theta Phi Alpha's contribution by Lisa Scuderi.

Camp Good Days and Special Times is a not-for-profit organization which helps to improve the quality of life for children with cancer and their families, stated a press release.

It is located on Keuka Lake in Western New York. Last year, 2,200 children benefited from the program.

Jeffries to fight dismissal in court

By Patrick Cullen Managing Editor

Controversial City College of New York professor Leonard Jeffries likened his struggle to Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, Adam Clayton Powell and other famous black leaders and proclaimed "today is an historical event," in a speech at Saint John's Church of God in Christ in downtown Albany March 31.

Jeffries, 56, is currently engaged in a legal battle with City College, which ousted him from his position of chairman of the school's Black Studies Department in the wake of an alleged anti-semitic and anti-white comments in July, 1991.

Jeffries is fighting his dismissal from his post, citing his first amendment rights, right of due process, and the right of academic freedom.

Hours before he arrived in Albany to speak, Jeffries learned that his case would be going to trial April 20th.

"These are very historical legal proceedings," Jeffries said. "It may lead to the Supreme Court."

"Wouldn't it be ironic if this case winds up in the Supreme Court with Martin Luther King and Malcolm X,' I don't know, 'as defendants," Jeffries said, inviting laughter from the audience.

On July 1, 1991 speech at the Empire State Black Arts and Cultural Festival in Albany, Jeffries gained national attention when he went public with allegations of a conspiracy between Jews and the mafia to control Hollywood in order to make movies presenting blacks in a negative light.

He also alleged the catholic church and "rich" Jews were the organizers and financiers of the slave trade in the Middle Ages.

"Doctor Jeffries has been made the leading demon since Hitler, Himmler, and Gerbels," Jeffries said. "The people controlling the media have the ability to create demons... even those who are victims become demons."

"Jeffries has been slandered, persecuted," said Rosa Clemente, candace of the Albany State University Black Alliance (ASUBA), which organized the event.

"He will not lie down."

Jeffries said the press is the "centerpiece of white supremacy."

"The press, which is supposed to be fair and just, the press is that fair and objective look at words in terms of white supremacy," he said.

Jeffries cited numerous articles from newspapers such as the New York Times and New York Post which he alleged disfigured and misquoted him.

"In the eyes of white supremacy anything goes," Jeffries said. "It is the conspiracy of the press to create a demon ideology."

Jeffries refused accusations that he is an anti-semitic and anti-white. "I have always been about the truth," he said. "It is not anti-semitism, it is anti-kemetism... it has never been about anti-semitism, never been about anti-white."

"Our strength stands out and speaks the truth," Jeffries said. "We need an affirmation of who we are as African people."

"Dig deeper than the civil rights movement... there is an African origin of humanity," Jeffries said, urging blacks to study their history from ancient times to enslavement times. "Let this knowledge change you and transform you."

In a speech at SUNYA's Page Hall on April 13, 1992, Jeffries said the current truth." He will not lie down.

On the same note in his latest speech, he blasted the European mindset of the origin of mankind.

"Europeans are upset because they have no evidence of the European origin of human kind," he said.

"There was an African evolution of society... an African origin of society... African civilization was created in the Nile Valley," Jeffries said while holding aloft numerous pictures of the pyramids in Egypt and the ruins in Greece, which he said were created by Africans.

"You have to redo the map of the world if you are to understand the real truth," he said.

"I ask you, what principle stands did you take while you lived?" Jeffries asked the audience. "This is your challenge."

"It is looking at rich, white men with power and what they have done to the human family... what they have done to white women... even white women don't have the courage to tell what white men have done."

Wilson disappearance still a mystery

Director of UPD remains one of few remaining participants in eight year investigation

By Allison Krampf
News Editor

The disappearance of a 22 year old female SUNYA student eight years ago remains a mystery since the woman has still not been found.

Jim Williams, director of Public Safety, remains the only UPD member still searching for Karen Wilson, a 22 year old student who disappeared March 27, 1985. "It remains an active investigation. I make up leads now, instead of waiting for the phone to ring," Williams said.

"I have personally searched every wooded area and field in all of Albany and half of Rensselaer County," Williams said, adding he concentrates on areas where people don't go, because "hunters would report a body."

If the body was found now, it would be skeletal remains, Williams said.

Every time a body is found, Wilson's dental records are checked against the body's. Williams said, and if close enough, UPD is phoned and X-Rays are sent if necessary.

Williams has kept in contact with Wilson's parents, and currently speak to them every 2-3 weeks.

UPD is continuing work with the NYS police on the case, Williams said.

Wilson was definitely last known to be at Sears in Colonie Center around 4:30 p.m. on March 27, where she charged clothing on her Visa, he said.

Wilson left the Tanning Hut at 7:15 p.m. on March 27, where she had an appointment, Williams said. "Maybe Karen walked back to campus. Central Ave. is very busy around 7:30 p.m. People feel safe...I'd tell women that if they're in a position where it's dark at night and they're a few miles from campus, take a cab, bus or get a ride. If you think somebody's following you, go to the nearest public place and call for help," Williams said.

Friends of Wilson's called the police at 3:30 a.m. on Thurs., March 28. Her name was put on a list of missing persons later that day.

UPD started searching for her that Fri., and called state police Sat., Williams said.

Wilson's friends and acquaintances were in Florida, but they had no information, he said.

The next few weeks brought media attention to the case. SUNYA administration sent out a letter to each student about Wilson, and about 300 students participated in a search April 11, 1985, turning up no new evidence.

The case is rare – not one shred of evidence has been found nor one witness coming forward saying they saw someone being forced into a car, Williams said.

"This is the first case of this sort...Hopefully it will be the last," he said.

UPD and State Police make efforts to track down every lead, Williams said.

"We have gotten some interesting ones over the years. A waitress once called and said a man was giving her a hard time. As he was leaving, he said "Thanks, Karen Wilson." We found the guy, but he had nothing to do with the case."

"Also, a few years ago, an area woman got an anonymous telephone call from a man who said he had Karen. He said if this woman did certain things, he would release her."

"The woman called Colonia Police. They contacted me, and we went to speak to her." Williams said she received a few calls, and they were traced to a pay phone on the State Office Campus.

The calls stopped, Williams said, but he has always been curious about the calls and the fact that this woman bore an almost identical resemblance to Wilson.

Changes in Pell do not bode well for students

By Deborah Kane Mitchell

(CPS) Major changes in the federal Pell Grant program may cost hundreds of thousands of students their grants, forcing them to leave college or shoulder more debt.

"This is going to affect students already in the worst situations," said Laurent Ross, a research associate with the American Council on Education. "Many of these students will have to borrow more money or drop out of school."

Some of the nation's neediest students, already hurt by a Pell Grant cut earlier this year, now face further reductions as a result of revisions to federal student financial aid programs.

About 26 percent, or 1.2 million students, who receive Pell Grant awards will lose them entirely or have the grants cut by more than $100, according to Ross.

Although last year's changes in the Higher Education Act affect all financial assistance programs, the new laws, which are in effect for the 1993-94 academic year, come down hardest on certain groups of undergraduate students who receive Pell Grants.

"It's a disaster," Ross said. "Students who used to get the Pell Grants are finding the grants reduced drastically or cut out entirely or have the grants cut by more than $100, according to Ross."

The Pell Grant program was designed to help financially needy undergraduate students meet the costs of their education by providing them with direct financial assistance. The awards are calculated using a formula that determines how much income students and their families can afford to contribute to education.

"Those students are hurt by the new formula," said Lenthon Clark, director of the Financial Aid Office at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville. "Anytime you have changes in methodologies, you're going to have winners and losers. Those students are the losers in this go-round."

Of the 14,500 students attending the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, about 19 percent — or 2,800 students — have received Pell Grant awards.

Clark said he hasn't seen a significant change yet in the number of students receiving the awards or the amount of the awards, but added "it's still too early in the processing system to tell." Most students are in the process now of applying for Pell Grants for the 1993-94 academic year.

"It's very troubling," said Dallas Martin, president of the National Association of Financial Aid Administrators. "Although their circumstances haven't changed at all, many of these students will find themselves with no grants next year. These students are taking a big hit and it's very unfair."

The grant cuts are rooted in a bill that was signed into law by President Bush in July 1992. About every five years, the Higher Education Act of 1965 is reviewed and amendments are made to it. In 1992, the amendments targeted, among other things, the definition of dependency and the old needs-analysis system.

The new law makes it more difficult for a student to be classified as an independent. A report released by the Congressional Budget Office estimates that 300,000 students who were once considered independent will now be reclassified as dependents. Many of those students will lose their Pell awards or have their grants reduced.

The law also changed the needs-analysis system. In the past, two different needs-analysis formulas were used to figure out how much money students

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates that the United States produces about 195 million tons of garbage a year. That number is projected to increase to 200 million tons of garbage by the year 2000. There is no breakdown of the amount of garbage produced on college campuses.

Nationally, about 17 percent of the garbage is currently recycled, which is short of the EPA’s goal of 25 percent. “We’re making progress, but we are still a society that does not fully realize why it’s important to reduce waste,” said John Kazzi, manager of publications for Keep America Beautiful, a non-profit public awareness organization in Stanford, Conn.

“A college is nothing more than a small community. It’s its own self-contained city. Certainly college students can take heed to recycle.”

Until the 1970s, consumers were more interested in convenience and would rather buy disposable items. “The trend has shifted. People are willing to spend more time and money if they do,” said Dale. “Now, they’re used to doing it. People are using more recycled items. Students are even buying used clothes.”

Most colleges and universities nationwide have recycling bins in dormitories, classroom buildings and administrative areas. Items are broken down by type, including varieties of paper (computer, newspaper, bonded or magazine), cans and bottles. In many instances, the schools get money from the recycled items.

But horse manure? That’s given away. St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y., has a riding program and has 24 horses on campus. University grounds workers pick up the manure, mix it with sawdust and leave it in an open area.

“Anyone in the community can take as much as they want. It’s good for use in gardens,” said university spokeswoman Lisa Cania. “It’s free. We don’t weigh it or count it. St. Lawrence has a strong interest in environmental responsibility.”

The liberal arts school also has recycling bins throughout the campus and has a policy that bans disposable foam or plastic cups and plates. Administrators estimate the school has reduced garbage output by 25 percent in the past two years, Dale said.

Bob Dale, supervisor of grounds at the University of Evansville in Evansville, Ind., said he got the school actively recycling two years ago after his children started asking him questions about the environment.

He is now the chairman of a committee that oversees all recycling programs at the campus.

“I volunteered for the assignment. I think my kids played a big part in it,” Dale said. “They made me environmentally aware and I started asking myself: How would I feel down the road if a grandson looked at the environment and said, ‘Grandpa, why didn’t you do something to fix it?’”

From June 1, 1992, the school recycled 5,500 pounds of mixed paper, 4,100 pounds of greenbar computer paper, 3,180 pounds of scrap metal, 9,000 pounds of cardboard, 30,000 pounds of yard waste. He said the poundage was up 8 percent from the same period in 1991.

“For a number of years we were like much of the rest of the population. We looked at recycling as something we would like to do but saw no profit,” Dale said. “But I saw that profit was not a priority. Recycling is going to become an important part of students’ lives from now on. Each new class is more environmentally aware than the previous class.”

The money raised from the recycling effort is plowed back into the program for more bins and promotion. There is a committee that oversees the project, and it includes 12 students, Dale said.

Kazzi, with Keep America Beautiful, praised college recycling efforts but warned that recycling itself will not solve the tremendous problems facing waste management.

The United States, despite its recycling efforts, is still a throw-away society, and the amount of trash and garbage will continue to grow.

“Unfortunately, most people believe that if we recycle we won’t have to worry about our garbage,” Kazzi said. “Recycling is not the answer to a lot of problems. It is. Yet, it plays an important role on campus, but people have to realize even if we recycle as much as we can, there is still going to be significant tonnage that has to be dealt with in another way.”

Some schools, such as the Carthage Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minnesota, are looking at ways to recycle up to 100 percent of all its paper waste. Stan Sherick, who teaches art and art history, received a patent two years ago on a system that would be used in libraries and other environments.

One of the most interesting aspects of college life at SUNY Albany is the diversity of the student population. Just glance around in the classroom or the Campus Center at mealtime and one is witness to the assorted cultural, racial, and/or religious individuals whom are our peers. There is another minority, however, that sometimes goes unnoticed: older undergraduates. As a member of this community, I’ve often wondered if and how others like me perceive their college experience to be different from our traditionally-aged counterparts. I hope that by posing questions to some older students about the unique issues with which they deal, their responses will raise the consciousness of the college population at-large to appreciate the similarities and accept the differences we all share.

Q: What is your age, name, marital status, number and ages of children (if applicable), college status, year, do you live on campus or commute, are you employed?

Linda: 32, married, no children, senior, part-time student, commuter, work part-time.

Diane: 34, divorced, no children, senior, full-time student, commuter, not employed (I live on my savings).

Robyn: 34, married, no children, senior, part-time student, commuter, not employed.

Diane: 44, single, no children, senior, part-time student, commuter, not employed.

Gail: 32, married, no children, senior, full-time student, commuter, employed.

Q: Are you self-conscious about the age difference between yourself and your younger peers? Does this affect your college participation? Do you ever feel left out of the “traditional” college experience because of your age?

Linda: My husband is one hundred percent supportive. He likes to look over my papers and never objects to the time I need to spend on my academics.

Diane: I feel more self-conscious now. I’m starting to feel a generational difference. Younger students expect I know more since I’m older, but that’s not necessarily a bad thing. This doesn’t affect my college participation, though, institutionally, I feel left out; when it comes to meeting with my advisor, going to the Writing Center, registration and professors’ office hours, the times are restrictive to the working student. They cater more to the traditional college student.

Gail: I’ve never felt self-conscious. I enjoy interacting with all age groups, but I tend to make buddies with other older students, probably because we share common problems.

Robyn: I’ve not felt self-conscious... until this semester, that is. I’m taking a Women’s Studies class that is run by a collective of student-facilitators— all very young women who discuss age-relevant concerns. I feel somewhat out of touch from their experiences. Perhaps this is a kind of “ageism.” One student in this class looks to see my reactions to situations we discuss because I’m the oldest. I think society at-large is youth-oriented and I need to fit my place in it. With respect to class participation, I’d rather listen than talk. I like to hear what others have to say and to watch young women’s awakening to feminism. But I don’t feel left out at all. I participate fully—I attend at least one extracurricular activity each week.

Diane: My partner is not supportive at all. This doesn’t change my focus, but it makes me QUESTION the relationship.

Gail: I chose what I wanted to take. And I’m here because I want to be—not because it was the next developmental task.

Linda: I’m immune from the politics of being young, like parties, boyfriends and so on. There’s big freedom in that.

Gail: I know I appreciate my education much more than I would have in my late teens and early twenties. The social aspect of college isn’t nearly as important as my studies. My personal life revolves around people with whom I’m not competing for academic or social status. That takes a lot of pressure off the whole experience and as such I am able to really enjoy what I’m accomplishing here.

Q: What’s the worst thing about being older?

Diane: Worrying about being too old when I get my degree.

Gail: Having to contribute work and school and not being able to take advantage of clubs and trips, etc.

Linda: Having to witness professors discipline the younger students. I’m more serious, more mature. I want to be here. I don’t like being prior to the high school-type lectures some teachers give when students aren’t prepared for class.

Robyn: Sometimes I wish I had the responsibilities I have at home didn’t keep me from participating in extracurricular activities. I also wonder how much of the college experience I’ve missed by not living on campus. I realize I probably could have any lifelong, besom-buddy-type friendships that my younger peers are forming now. And I’d probably feel out of place in a sorority. The whole social realm of college is something I’ve missed and that makes me a little sad.

Q: Recall an anecdote that made you feel either a part or apart from the undergraduate whole.

Diane: My landlord couldn’t understand why I signed my salary to pursue college. Returning to school for me isn’t for finding a higher salaried job. There’s more to it... I wanted the experience, the mental stimulation and the chance to study things I enjoy.

Linda: Going back to the story about my class, the egotism that I sense makes me feel apart to some extent.

Robyn: When I told a younger male classmate how old I was, he started calling me “Mom.” It wasn’t done maliciously, but that really drove home the fact that I am apart from the “real” college experience. Obviously, four women’s views don’t constitute an accurate picture of every adult student’s experience at SUNYA. But as a whole, the issues characteristic to older students often aren’t considered by our younger counterparts. We’re looking to fit in and find our niche—just like you.
Having rooted for the Mizzou Tigers for several years, it was rather disheartening to see switching loyalties when I discovered SUNYA's mascot was the Great Dane. I was so disappointed that Marmaduke was seen running across a football field in uniform. Marmaduke is surely grasped that key and twisted it. It was colder than a witch's bosom in brassiere, so I resolvedly pushed during any athletic conversations regarding SUNYA. As far as the mandatory athletic fee, well, if not passing it meant a decline in the surplus population! It's not my problem that some dog lover passed it without even looking. I glanced at the cereal ° was still gone. The whole room looked different. The sink and the walls were white. The German Shepherds showed off their collar. I glanced at the bright dawn and the numerous trees, feeling a memory pang for the missing ones. What I lost in vision, however, I more than made up for with my other senses. I was inundated by sounds and odors, and could easily make out what each individual sound and odor was. I could almost hear a spider spinning its web. I could smell fresh water in a puddle nearby. I don't remember ever feeling so vibrant and alive. I couldn't sit still, so I began to run. I ran around and around the park, nipping each other's ears. My last thought before I went to sleep was "I never happened..."

The next morning I woke feeling incredibly rested. I glanced at the digital and saw it was only six o'clock in the morning. The radio was turned off for another hour. I squinted at it, trying to bring the colors into focus. Usually, the glowing numbers red, but this time they looked gray. I gave up and rolled over, and it felt so good that I stretched and rolled back on my back with my hands and feet in the air.

Sleepily, I jumped out of bed and walked into the bathroom. That's when I noticed something was wrong. There was no toilet. I turned around and knocked on the door. The sink and the shower head, then looked again. Still no door. In fact, the whole bathroom looked different. The sink and the tub were set into the floor, and there were no cabinets. I looked for the light switch. It was only a button. I sat under a stream of cold water in a strange bath tub in a strange bathroom repeating to myself, "I am a basin hound. I am a basin hound."

A Cockeren Spaniel walked in. "Hey, don't use all the cold water, okay?" I stared at her, and somehow I knew that this was one of my roommates, the one who'd been on more laps than a napkin. "I'm a basin hound," was all I could think to reply of her big brown eyes looked at me with pity. "Depressing, isn't it? Maybe if you cured your fur you'd look a little more like me. I don't know how you can take it. If I was born a basin, I'd opt for plastic surgery. Cheer up and enjoy your bowl of coffee. Don't forget to check for lumps!" she barked at my shoulder as she left.

Lumps! Not only was I a dog, and an ugly dog at that, but I was sitting under cold water, there was no toilet, and I had just tripled my chances of getting breast cancer. So far, it had not been a good day. I left early, through the doggie door of course.

The German Shepherds showed up with a Dalmatian and a stretcher. The Dalmatian gave me something for the pain, and I slipped gratefully into a deep sleep.

Of course I woke up a human being again. I didn't have a cocker spaniel and a Pekinese for roommates, or, we were no longer like it. Was it a dream? Hell, I don't know. I'm sure glad it's only a dream though. Further more I have developed a greater appreciation for nice, clean porcelain fixtures.

A dog like our mascot, though, makes a fine role model. Why shouldn't an avuncular, energetic, enthusiastic, most creative creature of an imborn sense of fair play be our school mascot? The mandatory athletic fee has got my vote, now.

Besides, we all have a little dog inside all of us. My professor still looks like an Afghan, and I've cured the hiccups with the mornings with all my limbs up in the air (Hey-don't laugh! What dog-like traits do you have?).
Munoz and Williams requested last fall is necessary. Court. This would demonstrate the problems with the election system and put the issue in the forefront of the elections are fair. It's crucial, now more then ever, for invalidation to bring the issue before the SA Supreme students to show up in force.

committee should thoroughly investigate the unfair to openly voice their support to make sure the vote one way, then more voters will just man of excellent character. campaigned fairly to have victory (or defeat) taken be bullied by individuals who feel they have been brings into question whether SA is allowing itself to because "SA is a cult." Many like to joke about student organizations at SUNYA and the apparent inefficiencies in some of their policies. The group cited most often in NYSA's Student Association, in particular its election process.

The events of the past few days bring this situation to light. Over the last year the Student Athletic Fee referendum's numerous reschedulings, invalidations, and postponements have often been the target for derision. Now the whole spring election is a target for humor, maybe a joke in and of itself.

The heart of the problem lies with the SA's constitution, specifically Article 700, Section 9, Election Invalidation. This section is in such vague legal terms that it would confuse a professional lawyer.

Without specifying irregularities, the section gives the SA elections commissioner almost unlimited power to rule an election invalid.

The only recourse for a candidate to overturn an election is to appeal to the SA Supreme Court. To do this, his case must first, as set forth in the rules, "be brought" to the elections commissioner. Thus, the elections commissioner has absolute power over elections and appeals. This, in and of itself, is a farce.

Ironically, last semester both Diego Munoz, President of SA and Mike Williams, Vice President and Acting Elections Commissioner, asked SA Central Council, the body with the most power, to re-write the election policy and fundamentally improve upon it. According to Munoz, they made this request after experiencing similar problems in their campaigns last fall.

Their request was unheard. Clearly now, perhaps because of the failure to change the election policy, the situation has a dubious nature. One organization, ASUBA, has openly lobbied SA for the invalidation of the election citing that several polls opened late. Strangely enough, shortly before this request was heard, Gourley, a candidate who was openly supported by ASUBA, was thrown off the ballot for electioneering and other infractions.

Gourley, in a recent statement, said he was thrown off the ballot because he was "discriminated against" and because "SA is a cult."

Though the campus may look like the compound in Wayne's World, in all the LEP's dealings with Mike Williams we've learned he is no David Koresh and is actually a just man of excellent character.

Williams decided to invalidate the election though bringing charges for electioneering, whether SA is allowing itself to be bullied by individuals who feel they have been dealt an unfair hand by the system. Some could say that poor election law, some errors in procedure and a small group of outspoken students have made the system unfair to several dozen other candidates who campaigned fairly to have victory (or defeat) taken from their group.

SUNYA would be fools to let this situation happen again. As the least, the Central Council Internal Affairs committee should thoroughly investigate the irregularities of these events when the committee next convenes.

The apparent confusion, perhaps caused deliberately by the interference in SA's elections, makes it even more important for students to vote when the referendum is rescheduled.

If one group of individuals may be attempting to unfairly turn the vote one way, then more voters will have to openly voice their support to make sure the elections are fair. It's crucial, now more than ever, for students to show up in force. This won't solve all the problems though. Perhaps one of the current candidates should appeal the invalidation to bring the issue before the SA Supreme Court. This would demonstrate the problems with the election system and put the issue in the forefront of the subjects the Central Council would discuss next semester.

In any case a fundamental re-writing of the policy as Munoz and Williams requested last fall is necessary.

ELECTION INVALIDATION

The Residential Home Security Law

The "Residential Home Security Law" in the City of Albany took effect on March 1st, 1993. Knowing what this law entails provides each and every off-campus student with the power to improve the safety of his/her apartment. This law requires that landowners provide specific security measures in all rental property units within the City of Albany as part of the inspections conducted for the issuance of certificates of occupancy. A certificate of occupancy must be obtained from the City's Building Department each time a unit is rented to new tenants or initially rented.

Thomas L. Gebhardt

An inspection shall also be conducted upon the request of the owner or the tenant.

This law was initially proposed by Elderwoman Sharon Ward last June. There were opponents then who argued that tenants, particularly student tenants, would not use the safety-devices distributed as part of this law. It was maintained that students had a reputation for not utilizing the window and door locks in their apartments and thus the law would not be effective. University students and professional staff advocated intensely for this law. It was finally passed unanimously by the Common Council of the City of Albany on December 7th after a hard-fought battle.

We have undertaken an intensive campaign to empower each and every student with the knowledge about this law and his/her individual right to a safe and secure apartment-off-campus. Among these efforts have been the mailing of approximately two thousand letters to off-campus students from President H. Patrick Swygert and the door-to-door distribution of five thousand fliers about this new law. In addition letters have been sent to the five hundred land owners who utilize the free services of the Off-Campus Housing Office concerning this law and encouraging them to comply before their next certificate of occupancy inspection. It should be noted that all of these particular landowners who own property within the City of Albany are required to have a certificate on file with the City's Building Department.

However, it is the obligation of every off-campus student to educate themselves about this law and use this knowledge to make their apartment safer and more secure. The basic components of this law are:

- Each entry door must have a single cylinder deadbolt lock with a minimum one-inch throw and its strike plate must be firmly attached with at least two screws.
- Hollow core doors are prohibited from use as any door which provides egress to the exterior of the building, including front, side and rear entrance doors.
- Windows located in such doors within two feet of the door lock shall be covered by or replaced with a clear, shatter-resistant material.
- In addition, each door entering into an individual dwelling unit shall be equipped with an optical viewer with a 180 degree field of vision. However, if the door contains transparent glass within one foot of the door, then no optical viewer is required.
- Doors shall be hinged so that the hinges are not accessible from the exterior or equipped with a security pin or hinge pin.
- Sliding glass doors which open onto patios or balconies at the ground level or first-floor level or which open onto an escape shall be equipped with a lock, but Charley bar which prevent the inside movable section from being lifted from the track when such doors are closed and locked.
- Every window at the first floor or basement levels or opening onto a fire escape or accessible from another building or ground shall be equipped with an operating lock, and in the case of double-hung, wooden windows shall also be equipped with window pins. Window pins shall be installed to secure the window in a closed position and open no more than six inches.
- All basement windows shall be equipped with a working lock.
- Main entrance doors and any other door which constitutes an entrance into a dwelling unit shall be fitted with an operating light fixture accessible to operation by the tenant with no less than one forty watt bulb or the equivalent. This fixture must be located no more than four feet from said entrance.
- The proper house number must be affixed in a visible and well-lighted location. The number must be of a suitably durable material, such as metal, at least three inches in height and either raised, not flush with the surface of the building or painted or stenciled on a glass transom window.

* Rental unit shall be affixed with an operating doorbell or similar device.
* These security devices will only add to students' personal safety if they are used. The challenge NOW before all students is to use this law to make their environment off campus safer and more secure.

Many Asian Americans feel insulted at receiving such a tiny notice on China Night in the ASP. It must be brought to everyone's attention that there are 900 ASIANS on campus. We are not an insignificant number. We are increasingly becoming a visible force in the Asian Community. These actions taken against Asian Americans have to be challenged.

Drunk Students Puke And Abuse

To the Editor:

As a Student Assistant at the Vehicle Operation center on campus I get to see the rude behavior of some students when they puke on the buses. It happens all the time. On my shift, I have witnessed a drunk student puke on the bus and then throw the vomit on the bus's seat. The smell is unbearable, and it makes it difficult to continue working.

Drunk students are known to rock buses if they cannot get on, bust windows, and vomit everywhere. Some students even hit the drivers in the ribs when they close the door. These drunk students are known to cause significant discomfort for the drivers and other passengers. The University at Albany has chosen to run a second referendum in the hopes of obtaining a more favorable result. It is appalling that State University policy can be formulated based on the results of a referendum.

SUNYA Sports Make Us Proud

To the Editor:

Given the content and tenor of recent Letters to the Editor, I'd like to inject an alternative perspective. When I pick up an ASP, I turn immediately to the sports pages. I've been following our very successful SUNYA teams with great interest. When our teams compete off-campus, they carry with them an image of SUNYA that makes me proud to be a part of this University. They are our goodwill messengers and the epitome of the egalitarianism for which academic communities and, indeed, all communities should stand.

Second Athletic Fee Vote Is Unethical

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my outrage over the deceitful tactics the University at Albany has employed during its attempt to impose a mandatory intercollegiate athletic fee on undergraduate students over the past year. The SUNY Board of Trustees established a democratic process to ensure that students and faculty of SUNY schools would be consulted and exhibit "widespread support" for the new fee before it could be implemented on a particular campus. The University at Albany has blatantly circumvented the democratic process and exhibited a disregard for the results of a University mandated student referendum through which students clearly, by a 2 to 1 margin, said "no" to the concept of a new fee. Instead, they chose to continue funding the athletic program via the student activity fee, which is budgeted by the elected representatives of the student body.

The University has chosen to conduct a second referendum in the hopes of obtaining a more favorable result. It is appalling that State University policy can be formulated based on the results of a referendum. Students Affairs, which oversees the athletic program, should be ashamed of the example it has set for the "leaders of tomorrow." Without the University's top officials maintaining strong standards of ethical behavior, how can the University truly be "a just community?"

Know the score...

This spring you can take the only national practice graduate examinations administered under actual test conditions. Students have been taking the PSAT to prepare for the SAT for years. Now people preparing for graduate school have the opportunity to take The Princeton Review’s Pre-LSAT, Pre-GMAT, Pre-GRE or Pre-MCAT. The top 10% of scores will be eligible for ten $2,000 national scholarships available through the American Community Service Awards.

Call to register TODAY!

The Princeton Review knows that small classes, personal attention and proven techniques are essential to scoring high on your grad school entrance exam.

That’s why our classes never exceed 15 students and are grouped by shared strengths and weaknesses. Our innovative techniques let you master the test.

And our results are guaranteed. Perhaps that’s why we’re the nation’s fastest-growing test-prep service.

years on a process that breaks paper down to a pulp that can be shaped into most any form.

He has made bricks out of the material, creates sculpture out of it, and even has a casket company interested in making coffins with the product.

Shetka has built a life-sized house, toys and in the process of building library shelves with the material, which looks like a pine or mahogany and is very strong, he said. He has applied for a grant to research the possibility of opening a full-scale production facility on campus.

“But by the end of the summer we could be recycling all campus paper back into the school,” he said. Even the water used in the process is fully recycled, and any type of paper can be used.

A majority of colleges and universities have organized recycling programs, but there is no breakdown on exact numbers. One school that is studying ways to start a formal recycling program is Iowa State University in Ames.

While there are recycling bins scattered across the campus, there is no central office or person to coordinate recycling.

A committee made up of 12 undergraduate and graduate students and administrators want to begin a pilot program by next fall. There are no definitive plans yet as to what kind of recycling will be sponsored, and the committee is applying for a grant from the state to fund its study.

“We are now finding out what would work best on this campus,” said Paul Panetta, a physics graduate student who co-chairs the committee. “There are recycling bins, but they are scattered and there’s no cohesive plan. We want to oversee these things, bring them together, and then have it incorporated into the university administration.”

Teachers Are Better Than Tapes

Some test prep services seem to have an almost fanatical fondness for audio tapes. If you miss a class, they hand you a tape. Need extra help? More tapes! Heck, they even train their teachers with the darn things.

At The Princeton Review, we believe that teachers are better than tapes. A well-trained teacher will answer your questions, focus on your problem areas, and even smile on occasion. That’s why our students receive FREE extra help. With their teachers...not tapes. And that’s why our students get the highest score improvements.

Just Hanging Around This Summer?

Make this summer vacation productive by studying and earning graduation credits during Summer Session ’93.

Why Summer Study?

- smaller, more personal classes
- access to courses which “close out” during the year
- opportunity to take courses normally restricted to majors
- better access to computer, library, and other campus facilities
- opportunity to accelerate or make up graduation credits
- chance to explore new subject areas
- more relaxed, informal environment

Summer Session Starts June 1

The University at Albany’s Summer Session program includes six independent sessions which run over a period of twelve weeks between June 1 and August 20. Four and six-week courses are available at all levels of study during the summer.

Register Now!

You may advance register for the summer session. Or, if you prefer, you may register at the start of any of the sessions or modules by following the steps outlined in the Summer Sessions ’93 Bulletin.

Elections
Gould said, “New rules will make us more diverse and pluralistic.”

SA Presidential candidate Larry Covitt said, “I am a little bit upset, but I think Mike made a good decision.”

“IT upsets me that some people were disenfranchised, but I don’t think the election should have been made into a racial issue,” said Chris Hahn, also a presidential candidate.

A third presidential candidate, Peter Hamm said, “We do have to follow the rules of the election but I don’t think it should have been made into a racial issue.”

Hamm did mention he believes Gould should have been taken for his word about the State Quad incident.

Adam Gelles, presidential candidate, said, “I support the invalidation effort... I think there was a lack of adherence to 700 policy.”

“There really wasn’t enough of a grip of what was going on... I think he really needs more people to run an election,” Gelles said. “I wish this stuff wouldn’t happen.”

Gelles said, “but I’m not going to say it’s racist.”

Presidential candidate Louis Tobacco said, “I think the whole election process is a force and I am disgusted with the system but am not in the least surprised at today’s events.”

“It is not a racial issue and it is sad and pathetic if individuals use this issue...” Tobacco said, “but unfortunately there will be some on this campus who will brand me a racist for even saying this.”

The elections are tentatively rescheduled for Mon. and Tues., April 19 and 20, Munoz said.

The Vice Presidential candidates were unavailable for comment.

Housing
Res. Life’s Department of S.I.H. appointed Brian Moody to serve as advisor to Greeks in Residence and since January he has been meeting with representatives from each organization who has S.I.H.

“If the University and Greeks want to improve their image, more people have to be exposed to Greeks,” said Josh Brodsky, past president of Alpha Chi Rho. He also said this was the way to improve attitudes and opinions about Greeks.

However, Brodsky said, the Greeks need to decide as a group if this is the way the housing should be set up. They should not allow the administration to make the decisions for them.

The application for S.I.H. states all groups applying for residence in the area must address the personal development of the students, the department’s goals, the general goals of S.I.H. and the Principles for a Just Community, as well as the Wellness model, which should include ethical, multicultural, political, educational, intellectual, emotional, spiritual, sexual, social and physical aspects.

Leonard Jeffries
Dr. Jeffries will speak on April 20th at Queens College, the site of violent protests by Jewish groups when Jeffries visited last year.

The April 8th issue of the Bayside Times, cited Lee Nigen, attorney for the Queens Coalition Against Anti-Semitism, said he expects there to be protests again.

“Some things he says are obviously offensive, inaccurate, and in racist language,” Nigen said in the article, entitled ‘Jeffries’ Visit Stirrs Flap at Queens College.”

“But that doesn’t mean he doesn’t have the right to free speech,” Nigen said.

Melissa Blakemore, vice president of the Queens College Black Student Union, the group that is sponsoring Jeffries’ visit, said in the same article “there is no opposition that we know of.”

Jeffries’ speech at Page Hall last year saw over 50 protestors stand silently outside the hall holding candles as Jeffries spoke inside.

Security was tight at Jeffries’ latest speech as all who entered were subjected to a full body search before they were admitted. No protests were evident.

Pell Grants

needed for education. One formula was used to calculate Pell Grant awards and the other to calculate all other forms of federal financial aid. The two systems were criticized by confused parents applying for financial aid for their children’s education, so Congress attempted to revise the system. Under the new law, there is only one needs-analysis formula.

The education group cited as an example the problem of the case of a 27-year-old community college student in Southern California, referred to only as “Douglas,” when it presented its arguments to Congress recently. Douglas represents single independent students whose Pell Grant awards will be cut significantly under the new policy, the council said.

Women's lax sticks it to Wells College, 10–3

BY KAREN STEIN
Associate News Editor

The Albany women's lacrosse team came into the game on a win in the season as they defeated Wells College, 10-3, last Tuesday.

The Express were quick to score, but Albany's tight defense and strong offense allowed the Lady Danes to overcome the early losses, leaving their season record at two wins, three losses.

The game was dominated by Albany, leaving few moments for the Wells team to possess the ball.

Wells jumped out to an early lead in the opening minutes of the first half producing two goals by sophomore attacker Krista Hoehfeld (six goals) and junior midfielder Alicia Liu (seven goals).

But, the next fifteen minutes heated up as both Wells and Albany scored. Hoehfeld ran out the Express defense as she circled the goal and shot it in for a goal (13:49).

Sophomore midfielder Elizabeth Rogers (two goals) scored the final goal of the half with 1:23 remaining, leaving the score, 5-2.

Junior goalstartner Monica Harlow met the offensive challenge of Wells in the second half by allowing only one goal to be scored against her.

In the first minute of the second half, senior captain Nettisa Mescallado, an attacker, (four goals) received a free shot after a goal against her. But she missed the opportunity for the goal.

Action continued at both ends of the field until 24:02, when junior defender Elizabeth Struinksi (two goals, one assist) cut inside the Wells defense and made it 6-2.

The Wells goalie deflected a flurry of shots by Rogers before junior defender Celina Mosier (one goal) picked her way through the defense and scooped the ball low into the net to extend Albany's lead to 7-2.

Mescallado scored at 21:29, bringing the Lady Danes' lead to 8-2.

Senior attacker Maureen Flores raced down the field with the ball and shot only to be fouled. However she was unable to convert on her free shot.

Later, Struinski captured the ball at the Wells' side and brought it all the way back for the Lady Danes but she was also fouled in her attempt on net.

Sophomore midfielder Kim Silinsky's (one goal) finesse shot sailed in to the midpoint of the second half as she picked up the loose ball and shot it high into the net, extending the lead to seven, 9-2.

Mescallado scored the last goal for Albany at 12:46 bringing Albany's lead to a sizeable 10-2.

In the last minute of play, the Wells team finally was able to score another goal despite deflections by Harlow.

The Lady Danes traveled to Skidmore College yesterday and will play at Nazareth College this coming Sunday.

Kiehl, the other co-captain, won two consecutive games against top notched teams, Cortland and Hartwick.

"Right-handed junior Leon Feingold at 6'5" throws an overpowering fastball. Feingold is a "raw talent" that works hard at pitching with great discipline. In addition, he throws off-speed pitches with excellent control and a tough sidearm," Zaloom said.

Sophomore Roger Walters is an extremely competitive lefthy that compiled a 1-1 record last season.

"The four man starting staff should be Wieting, Kiehl, Feingold, and Walters," Zaloom said.

Many of the pitchers this year are new.

Junior Peter Bruhan at 6'3" is "hard to hit with off-speed or off-speed-like pitches.," Zaloom said.

Zaloom said, "Freshman Rich Gordon has shown good control. Freshman Phil Kuchack has good control of his pitches. Freshman Dave Schutman has improved his control after diligently working with the pitching coach."

On Thursday the 8th, Albany split their home doubleheader against Cortland State. In the first game, Albany came back from a 2-0 deficit to score all three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning (doubleheaders are only seven innings). They dropped the second game, 6-5.

Wieting pitched the complete game, yielding five hits and no earned runs without giving up any walks. He also struck out four batters. Wieting was nominated for Upstate NY pitcher of the week for his performance.

In the bottom of the seventh, Geagan led off with a single. Zayas followed with a double. Gagan was thrown out at home on Carley's fielder's choice.

Kiehl came up with one out and runners on first and third. Apiscopa's RBI double closed the deficit to 2-1 with runners on second and third. Theleman ripped a line drive left to drive in the winning runs.

Zayas and Apiscopa both had two hits, each with a double.

Zaloom said, "Theleman played excellent defense." He had seven assists at shortstop.

In game two, Kiehl started off shaky. He yielded two runs in the first inning.

Kiehl walked the first batter, then gave up a double and walked the next batter. A wild pitch scored Cortland's first run. An RBI groundout scored their second run.

Kiehl struck out the side in the second inning.

In the bottom of the second, Albany scored a run to make it a 2-1 game. Howie Rosenkrantz led off with a walk. After Geagan's one-out single, runners were on the corners. Zayas fielders choice knocked in Rosenkrantz for Albany's first run.

Cortland rallied in the third for two more runs. Steven Strife led off with a basehit. Mike Urtz's one-out double put runners on second and third. Brian Lalone grounded out to second to score a run. Felix Collado's basehit drove in a run to give Cortland a 4-1 lead.

Kiehl struck out two batters in the scoreless fourth inning. Collado's one-out single with runners on first and second scored Urtz to give Cortland a 5-1 lead after five.

In the sixth inning, Cortland started a two-out rally. Strife and Brian Tardugno singled to set up Urtz's clutch RBI basehit to give Cortland a 6-1 lead. Tardugno was caught in a run down after the run scored to end the inning.

Cortland would end up needing the insurance run in the sixth inning as Albany rallied in the bottom of the sixth.

After Apiscopa led off with a walk, Rosenkrantz hit a two-out single. Leo Garcia hit a single scoring Theleman. Gagan followed with a two-run double, to close the lead to 6-5.

Feingold, working in relief, escaped a seventh inning jam. With runners on first and second, Feingold struck out Mark Duncan and Rich Demo. The next batter flied out. Albany put up an excellent comeback but fell short, 6-5.

therefore leaving no winner. Buffalo State, the number one team in the northeast, came out undefeated so they were the unanimous winners.

Against the host, Cortland State, Albany put up a team effort to limit Cortland to three runs on eight hits. Albany scored in the second when sophomore Jennifer Robisky came through with a two-run single with runners on first and second. Feingold struck out Mark Duncan and Rich Demo. The next batter flied out. Albany put up an excellent comeback but fell short, 6-5.

In the first game of the year, part of a doubleheader, junior Laura Robisky came through with two runs on a RBI groundout to give Albany the win. In the eighth Robisky hit a homerun to vault Albany to a 2-1 victory. Gay went the distance for her first win, recording 13 strikeouts.

In the second game, the Saints proved to be RPI's downfall. Three runs resulted in the first inning off of these walks. Marina held on for the victory, giving up two runs in the 3-2 win.

On April 7, Albany split a doubleheader with cross-town rival Siena. Robisky had a fantastic day going a combined five for eight. In the first game of the series, she drove in two runs on a double and a single.

Albany blew the game open in the second with three runs. The offense gave Gay the day when she needed to pitch a three hit, one run game. The other Albany runs came in the fourth and sixth innings, as the Lady Danes blasted the Saints, 6-1.

However Siena came right back to beat Albany 4-2 in the second game. Marino had eight strikeouts in the losing cause.

Albany's next game is a doubleheader against Binghamton on Saturday starting at 2:00 p.m.
Great Danes undefeated after four games
Albany lacrosse uses depth to exploit Montclair State, 19-7

The Great Danes (4-0), last year's Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference playoffs runner-up, have kicked off the 1993 season with four straight wins, including a most notable 18-15 triumph over Division III 19th-ranked Williams College on April 8th.

A national ranking for the Danes was a possibility after their win over Williams, but Albany found itself out in the cold when the next poll came out that weekend.

Before the Williams game, Albany had beaten Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, 14-8, and R.P.I. on campus in Troy on April 6th. Last Saturday, Oswego State gave the Danes a run for their money, outscoring Albany 6-3 in the second half only to lose by one, 8-7.

Montclair State held Albany close in the early going, holding the Danes to only two goals over 18 minutes of play.

Randall scored two unassisted goals, one in the opening minute and another three minutes later to put his team up, 2-0, at 10:05 of the first quarter.

The Red Hawks' Keith Vanness got Montclair on the board when he slipped one past Albany sophomore goaltender Dave Krone, at 4:30 of the first quarter. Off a centering pass from Randall, sophomore Dave Preston rocketed the ball in from 10 feet out past Montclair goaltender Ken Kane to make it 3-1.

The Red Hawks answered by tying the game at three with goals by John Belota and Mark Alter.

Albany baseball season finally started on Thursday, April 8th, due to the horrendous field conditions, the season started two weeks late.

"The team is going to keep focused, motivated and play up to potential," Albany head coach Ed Zaloom said.

Last season the team was 13-9 in Upstate games, ending up 14-14 overall.

They were ranked seventh in the Upstate poll of 21 teams and were only one game away from being in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference post season tournament.

Zaloom had many thoughts concerning this year's team.

"The outfield has many new faces this year," Zaloom said. Three solid outfielers will not be back (two graduated, one transferred). Junior Leo Athenee and freshmen Danny Heslin, Todd Wagner and Juan Zayas will be joining the outfield.

"Overall, the outfield is a hard-working, exciting group with decent range," Zaloom said.

"The infield has good solid experience. Juniors Matt Curley and Dave Sottile are two returning players who had their ups and downs last season, and now are competing for the third base job," Zaloom continued.

Senior shortstop Duane Theleman is starting his fourth straight season. Theleman has been named co-captain this year. He was named Most Improved Player last year after hitting .318.

Sophomore Josh Bittin, who saw limited action playing behind a senior last year, is competing with solid-hitting returning junior Howie Rosenkrantz for second base.

Rosenkrantz can play second base or shortstop. Sophomore Scott DeGeorge is entering his third season at first base.

"The goal of this season for the Albany baseball team was to start off fast and keep riding that wave into the playoffs. The Lady Danes seemed to be on their Way in the first few weeks of the season. We are still ranked fifth in the northeast," Albany coach Carole Selner said.

"We have the talent but we're just not using it, yet," she added.

The major reason for the losses was the offense. In the first seven games Albany's combined team batting average has been a tinny .198.

"We've obviously struggled at the plate," Selner said. "We could easily have a 5-2 record if our bats were going."

The senior starters that were hoping to lead the team haven't been living up to expectations. Linda Carioto and Paige VanCampen are each hitting a paltry .157.

"They [Gay and Marino] know that the hitters aren't producing and the pressure's definitely on them," Selner remarked.

One solution that was proposed was to challenge the opposition more.

"We'll try some bunting and running to challenge the defense," Selner said.

The Lady Danes don't have a fast squad, they have stolen eight bases so far.

"We'll be aggressive on the base paths," Selner noted. "But only when we can afford to be," she quickly added.

On Wednesday the Lady Danes lost to Hamilton 3-2. Gay was cruising into the sixth inning clinging to a 1-0 lead. At that point the only run that had scored was on VanCampen's single that drove in Gay. However Gay's strong pitching performance came unraveled.

Hamilton scored three times to take the lead for good, 3-1. Three walks and three errors led to the downfall. Junior Holly Whipple drove in the other Albany run in the last inning.

"It was a game we should have won," Selner said. "They were a weaker team and we handed them the win."
