The Albany Coalition for Peace and Justice sponsored discussions to hopefully increase SUNYA's awareness of the ever-escalating war in S.E. Asia. The Coalition hopes to hold another mass rally in April like the one held in Washington last May.

NOW Founder Supports:

Rally to Save Abortion

by Aralynn Abare

Betsy Friedan, author of The Feminine Mystique, founder of NOW (National Organization for Women), and prominent spokes-woman for the women's liberation movement in America, voiced support Wednesday for tomorrow's Women's Strike Coalition march on the Capitol.

Friedan and other Women's Lib representatives spoke at a press conference held before the Capitol District Women's Press Club debate with Barnett Fowler, Times Union columnist.

About the march, she emphasized that "the prominence there will be of young women, especially those students who cannot get out during the week, who will make their members felt."

Friedan vowed, "We will not tolerate any messing with this law that, for the first time in a hundred years, gives women the right of control over their own bodies." She called "obscene and immoral" the idea that "any politician, or and legislator would treat women, who are 55% of the voting population of the State of New York, with such contempt at the request of any political or religious pressure group, which would dare try to take back our right to control our own bodies, and our own reproductive processes."

The demonstration is to protest the 42 bills currently before the legislature to restrict abortion. These bills range from reducing the time period for justifiable abortions to twelve weeks from commencement of pregnancy, to barring women from abortion whose husbands, if they are living together, do not consent.

Cathy Walsh, of SUNYA Women's Lib, explained that Saturday's march, called for by the Women's Strike Coalition of New York City, will start from Draper Hall at 12:30 p.m., and proceed along Washington Avenue to the Capitol for a 1 p.m. rally.

The Women's Strike Coalition is composed of about 100 NYC groups who support three basic demands: free abortion on demand with no forced sterilization; free 24-hour community controlled child care; and equal job and educational opportunities.

"This coalition," Friedan explained, "is one of the many new efforts of unity among women who have coalesced as a result of the August 26 Women's Strike, when more women that ever before joined to act in their own interest in any time or place."

"That was only the beginning," she affirmed, "and now we are translating that energy into political power."

Along this line, Mrs. Friedan announced the formation of a Women's Political Caucus, in which "Republican and Democratic women, as well as men who no longer support any party" will join to demand that 50% of all candidates for all political offices be women.

Another women's effort endorsed by Friedan was the mass lobby planned for next Wednesday at the Capitol. Hundreds of members and representatives of 45 medical, civic, religious, political and women's organizations which form the Coalition of Organizations for Abortion Rights (COFAR), plus the Watcher Committee for Legal Abortion, are expected to converge on the legislature to petition lawmakers to oppose any NYS abortion law restriction.

"These women, also in an unprecedented organization, are coming," explained Friedan, "to express a political determination to protect the hard-won right of women, and to confront those who should tamper with it."

Jane Trichter, representing COFAR, defined the general purpose of the group, which is to "oppose all efforts to add any restrictions to the present abortion law, and to support all efforts to enhance the right of individuals to limit their own reproduction."

Friedan threatened revenge upon any "man who tolerates any tampering with this law, from Governor Rockefeller on down, (as) enemies of women" and she promised "excommunication" from office for any legislator who supports restricting abortion legislation.

Albany Coalition Sets Spring Plans

by Harry Weiner

During the month of December, 1970, student groups from the United States, South Vietnam and North Vietnam met to discuss a treaty which would contain the essentials for a just and immediate peace in Indochina. The results of these meetings, better known as the "People's Peace Treaty," and the initial plans for May's actions were discussed on each of the quads Wednesday and Thursday nights. A documentary on today's North Vietnamese society, "People's War," was also included in each of the discussions.

The Albany Coalition for Peace and Justice sponsored these discussions, in the hopes of increasing SUNYA's awareness to the ever-escalating war in Southeast Asia. Although a great deal of time was spent viewing the film at each campus gathering, the major emphasis was placed upon the students' signing of petitions endorsing the Joint Peace Treaty which was enacted last Christmas by the members of the American Students Delegation, the North Vietnam National Union of Students, and the South Vietnam Liberation Students Union. The petitioning is hoped to show solidarity behind the treaty, the essence of which boils down to three major demands which will be made on Congress: (1) the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. support in Southeast Asia, (2) a minimum income of $6500 for a family of four in Vietnam, and (3) the freeing of all political prisoners. The treaty also demanded specific dates when each of the above demands were to take effect.

A spokesman for the "Albany Coalition," said that the organization had high expectations for the 1971 spring offensive. Among the most ambitious of these plans were: (1) Mass rallies to be held on April 24th in Washington and San Francisco centering on the three demands, (2) a march from the SUNYA downtown campus to the First Trust Bank of Albany on April 30th demanding an end to their investment in war related industries, and (3) various events in Washington during the first few days in May culminating in a national moratorium on May 9th, when "schools, colleges, and businesses" should close.

More definite plans for the spring actions are expected to be announced after the spring recess. In the meantime, the Albany Coalition for Peace and Justice is trying to "wake-up" the "emotions and consciousness" of the community, both on and off campus. The film, peace treaty, and plans for spring action; are expected to be the first step in thawing out a movement which has become more and less frozen during the long, cold winter.

Stony Brook Workers Protest Mass Lay-off

by Vicki Gottlich

Campus cafeteria workers at SUNY at Stony Brook have been striking the Prophet Food Company, a subsidiary of Greyhound Food Service Company. Since March 5, when the company fired 318 full-time, part-time, and student workers.

The strikers are protesting the lay-off of workers. The day after the strike was called, student supporters occupied the president’s office for several hours and held the vice-president hostage. On Monday, union president Leon Davis spoke at a rally at the university and promised to do what the workers demand. Ever since the strike began, there have been between thirty and forty pickets in front of the administration building each day.

The Stony Brook food service workers were unionized last year. Anyone working for twelve hours or more is eligible for membership in local 1199 of the Hospital and Drug Workers Union.

When the workers first struck, the dispute was brought to arbitration. Monday, a decision was made in favor of the food company. The food company has two contracts with the university, one involving with feeding the students and the other involved with the union. The arbitrator declared that the food company could change its contract and could legally make mass lay-offs.

The strike has been indirectly linked with SUNY Central’s decision to allow optional meal plans. Last fall, a little known provision in the Stony Brook meal contract gave the students the right to go off the meal plan, before the contract was signed. Before intervention, the housing office surveyed students and discovered that the majority of them wanted to break their contracts. Therefore, three cafeterias were opened as cash cafeterias while only two were kept on board. Now, only slightly more than 1000 students remain on the meal plan. This may have caused the Prophet Food Company to fire some of its workers.

Other universities are also having food service problems. Dishesroom workers at the Men’s Dining Center at the University of Rochester are striking over poor working conditions. Strike leaders there are charging that any worker attempting to organize while on duty or any student talking to permanent workers could legally be fired.

The possibility of unionization was threatened with suspension.

To the Editor:

Professors sometimes have asked to be heard on a topic of general interest through the ASP. My concern is a teacher education program which affects as much as one-fourth of the undergraduate student body. I know we all have the ASP about real and imagined deficiencies, others comply with the demands of the program functionaries, and many have second thoughts about the sequence and meaninglessness of courses. Graduating students report that the real world of the beginning teacher is far different from the idealized conception of the educational theorist. I share some of these concerns. Condemnation, though, serves little purpose. New prospective, the product of creative interchange of student, faculty, and practitioner opinion can generate creative innovation. I would like to ask the leadership to start here.

1. In simplest form, does not teaching presuppose an intent to match knowledge, personality and skills of pupils with those of the teacher? What is the problem of bringing youth into an understanding of possible alternative for elevating, need, avoiding injustice, and generating a prosperous community?

2. If so, then it is why we spend hours in talking about the task of the school, the nature of the pupil, and the organization of a teaching procedure before we meet a flesh-and-blood high school youth? Would it not be better to learn about something of the problems of high school youth, of institutional management, of the relevance of subject matter, and of one's personality match for teaching before we make a commitment to a teaching education program? Is it possible, you know.

3. Why is it that we generate illusion plans, write tests, and grade students in reading that are courses before we learn how to get feedback in five minute formative, video-recorded small group instruction, remedial teaching, laboratory and reading visit management? It could be different. Think about it. Maybe it is the AY policy that exists before the reflection which improves one's performance.

4. Does the student teaching performance qualify a student for the junior high school's (rural or urban) class? Maybe actual work experience will. It can be arranged too.

5. Can you experience one of earning marks in classes while the real world of teaching demands performance of competencies in translating ideas, relating to and managing groups of young people, teaching learning and teaching possibilities realistically, and establishing rapport with colleagues and community. Are the university's priorities in right order.

We are thinking about changes in the teacher education program. Help us with your insights, aspirations and urgency, and let us know. Some conversations can be had in ED 112 (call 457-3833), suggestions can be written collectively and individually. Make be us be innovative and as successful as you can.

To the Editor:

I enjoyed the good humor of Ward Gregory in his letter to the ASP on the problems of the commuter-pink dogs digging in at the university (Wed., March 17). It's the sort of thing we need in the discussion of a serious problem. If I may add my tuned sense to your discussion, I must say that I am sorry to see so many dogs on campus because I don't seem to see so many loving masters on campus.

It seems to be become the fashion for students to possess dogs. Aside from those who let their dogs run to dry the ponds or are, as they say, the ASP about real and imagined deficiencies, others comply with the demands of the program functionaries, and many have second thoughts about the sequence and meaninglessness of courses. Graduating students report that the real world of the beginning teacher is far different from the idealized conception of the educational theorist. I share some of these concerns. Why Not ‘No Fault’?

The proposed nationwide “no-fault” insurance is a subject of interest to every American with a car. Despite the anguished cries of lawyers (who stand to lose a fortune if the law is passed), the idea is workable, and indeed has worked in Puerto Rico for several years now.

The main complaint issued by opponents of the measure is that the “no fault” concept, which pays off immediately and circumvents legal procedures to fix the blame, would encourage reckless driving. Their argument, the lack of the legal concept of “blame” encourages accident victims to seek compensation is that this is the fact that all would pay the same rate. Thus, the more accident-prone new driver (who now pays about $500 annually) pays only as much as the 40-plus gentleman with a clean record (perhaps $250). To many older voters, this would seem unfair, except that insurance under the “no fault” law would hopefully only cost about $250-$350. Especially of interest to the older is the basic fact that claim could be settled almost immediately, instead of three to five years after the accident. People with many responsibilities can offer ill-foot to high hospital costs while they are earning profits of whom. In many cases, it’s another person’s fault. What is more important, anyway, determining who’s to blame, or securing immediate settlement and cutting costs almost in half?

It’s way past time New York, and the entire nation passed legislation to rid the driving public of the faulty fault system.
CHRISTMAS & THE BEADS OF SWEAT, Laura Nyro (Columbbia KC 30016), printed lyrics. Included is the old Delfter's, "Up on the Roof," which is the only song Nyro has ever recorded that she didn't write. It turns out to be as perfect for her as "Me and Bobby McGee" is for Janis. This is a beautifully con-cieved album that worked as a unit to take one to the private world of Laura Nyro. Her piano work is a series of sharp, clear notes. Her voice is an instrument communicating non-verbally even more than by its presentation of the lyrics which, by the way, are quite excellent. This is a consistent, intense and wonderful trip.
PEARL, Janis Joplin (Columbia KC 30022).
Joplin's last album, finished shortly before her death, is so far above before, all the problems that she'd compliment to Janis' musical infrailties, of course, Janis controls is much better than it's ever been. She project-ally, all the emotion that's inside her. The material is entirely Janis. It seems that she wrote every word, but modestly she didn't.

We can only wonder what the never-to-be next album would've been like.
CHICAGO III (Columbia C2 30110), color posters, printed lyr-sics, double LP.
If Chicago hadn't stuck to their double LP format, but had condensed the best of this material into one LP, they would've had a damn good record. As is, much of the material doesn't live up to the Chicago's talent. The problem, mainly, is that they're trying to cling to their stereotyped sound to move in a number of directions. There's a lot of jazz, some acoustic guitar and even some country sound. Sometimes it works, sometimes it doesn't.
Fridays Two is beautiful throughout;
it is a progression without being pretentious, some of the other material, though, is rather initiative and not as good ("Ring-A Mean Tune Kid"), for example, comes off as an imitation of Sly's.
CHICAGO III is all enjoyable, if not wholly as excellent or original as it could be.
ABRAXAS, Santana (Columbia KC 30109), poster.
This is an even better LP than Santana's first effort. It is characterized by the perfect blending of Jazz/blues and Latin music. For some reason, Latin music has never made it with the pop audience. Now, hopefully, Santana will popularize it for everyone.
It's about time, and Santana's just the group to do it. Carlos is just one of the finest guitarists around.
And the group ranges with any other for the ability of each man's instrument to flow and work with the others. You won't find any ego battles here, rather there is only one man with six bodies.
Notice how the drums provide structure for the organ which is a unique instrument.
EMPYREAN BLUES, Bessie
Smith (Columbia G 30450)
This is the third of five two record sets that together will include every song that Bessie Smith recorded (except for twenty tunes which appear to be lost for good).
Wisty, such gimmicks as rechanneling for stereo have been avoided; the producers seek to present the original sound as clearly as possible. On this set, the first record was made before the microphone was invented—Bessie used a megaphone! The second record is vastly improved by a stereo and a much improved backup band. Bessie's vocal range and expressiveness is simply incred-able. You've got to hear it to believe it, and even then you may not. But you should own this record.

UP if the name of this exciting
new movie is by a wonderfully nutty English professor who

of New York.
As a work, UP strikes me as one of the huge comic successes of late, and can leave you as it left me: with a desire to go running about reading excerpts from it to anything moving. It is a collage of assorted bits and pieces of the ultra-urban, middle class existence. Author Ronald Sukenick has a fine sense of reality and a great, wry humor about the
"sly-ness" in double doses
throughout the book.
"Just what we need," one cynial observer might moan, "another bourbon with the moralistic materpieces designed to shake us out of our trances and enlighten us to our vast plague of hypocrisy." UP is not to be written off so easily. Mr. Sukenick's "to call him "DR.

State 9 Open Against RPI

by Robert Mirett

The near-record snowfall this past winter makes it appear that spring will be later than ever this baseball season and this presents a rather serious problem for State Baseball Coach Bob Burlingame. In battling the cold weather, Coach Burlingame has been preparing his ball club for the upcoming season by working indoors.

In viewing the team, Burlingame said the Danes' defense is "adequate." "The hitters will be doing most of the playing as there is not much difference in defensive abilities based on Fall results. It also looks as if the Danes will have good speed with Al Reid and Rod Dunbar leading the pack of speedsters." Individually, Al Reid was the Team's top hitter last year with a mark of .390 and is set in center field while over in right field there's Mike Agoglia. Tony Tedesco, a transfer from HC/CC, Gary Adinamishi, a junior varsity ball player last year, and John Zimmerman, a returning letter man, are all fighting for the left field spot. Both contrato Tun Brooks, who hit .304 in the Fall, at shortstop, and Rod Dunbar at second base, are secure.

While there are head-on struggles for first and third positions, Al Fosdick and Alex Doolittle, who had three and four wins respectively last year. Added mound support will come from Vic Nunnale, who was the most impressive JV hurler last season, and also from freshman Kevin Quinn.

On April 6 State will be meeting RPI in the opening game of the season, with RPI coming off a Southern trip the day before. Albany will make such a trip this year because of the shift in spring recess dates which produced relatively short time off—too short a time to go South.

This spring's squad is definitely the best in many years depth-wise and will be looking to improve on last year's record of 5 wins and 11 losses.

Action On Environment Urged

by Mat Heyman and Rick Morse

Environment has been labeled the issue of the 70's. In response, many people have organized to bring more environmental issues to the State Legislature. This summary of some of the environmental problems suggests a course of action.

The Future of the Adirondacks

The present Adirondack region is a vital conservation area. A New York State Temporary Commission has finished a comprehensive study of the area and made suggestions concerning control and development of the Adirondacks. Most important in its eyes was the quick establishment of an Adirondack Park Agency to exert control over this valuable area. There are opposing interests: timber industries, group camps, and land "developers" in general. Public support for an Adirondack Agency to exert control over this valuable area is vital. Contact your Assemblyman or Senator as well as the Governor's office at the Capitol.

Department of Environmental Conservation Budget Cut

This department, which was established last year at the height of "environmental" concern, is the only state agency available for action on environmental problems.

The above bills are presently in the Committee on Conservation, and will need a great amount of public support to move out onto the floor. Time is of the essence.

Bill No. 2846—Introduced by Mr. Harris

This bill prohibits the sale or distribution of household detergent products in New York State with a phosphorous content in excess of three per cent of the total weight of the product.

Bill No. 2817—Introduced by Mr. Harris

This bill prohibits the discharge of mercury or mercurial compounds from industrial and commercial operations.

Bill No. 4231—Introduced by Mr. Berle

This bill amends the civil practice law and rules in order that a citizen or group of citizens may bring legal action against anyone who pollutes, impairs or destroys the air, water, or other natural resources or the public trust of the state or which invades or is reasonably likely to invade the rights of the citizens of the state. This bill provides for no court settlements, forcing court decision rather than "under the table pay-offs." It also provides for a cost ceiling on legal fees for the plaintiff. This would be very important as to environmental interests in the state.

The Co-op Coop To Open

by Tony Haui

An ASP Feature

Have you ever wondered why record albums are so expensive? It seems many students have and some are getting together to try and get a non-profit record co-op going on campus. Think it's impossible? Well it might be, but arrangements have been made and the "People's Record Store" has emerged in the basement of Anthony Hall on State Quad.

Although the co-op faces many problems involved, the Anthony Hall "Conspicacy for The People" is selling many albums for a mere $1.55. All "D" Albums that would normally sell for $3.50 in the bookstores will go for $3.00 and "Ev" for $3.50.

Stores similar to this one have been set up on the Stony Brook campus and are thriving. It seems there might be some problems here at SUNYA because the S.A. has contract with FSA that stipulates that the Student Association cannot license anybody to sell items on campus that are also sold in the bookstore. The organizers of the co-op who, for the time wish to remain anonymous, replied that, "if the FSA was truly serving the students here in terms of their abilities, they would either permit the running of our alternate, cheaper co-op or lower their prices to sound a lot more like ours."

It may be noted here that the Bookstore makes slightly more profit on each record they sell. (Because of the absurd pricing in the store, it is probable that more records are stolen than bought there anyway.)

The Co-op people stressed that although they still had to deal with Capitalist companies and distributors they were starting at the lowest level to cut out profits and serve the people.

"If students would get together and organize their resources and potential they would realize that without that much effort they could cut prices on all items they blindly buy from stores making huge profit."

The Food Co-op downtown was sighted as a definite example of this.

The students also implied that they felt FSA had entirely too much power in deciding what students do on this campus and that if "We're going to accept that kind of shit now without establishing our own self-controlled institutions to combat our own exploitation we were doomed to complete domination from big organizations."

So support the record co-op and get yourself some good music. The Co-op has a stock and can get the album of your choice within two weeks by order. The store is open in the basement of Anthony Hall, starting Monday by the following schedule: Monday, 7-10 p.m.; Wednesday, 1-5 & 7-10 p.m.; and Friday, 1-5 p.m.
