STATE CONFERENCE ON ASIAN STUDIES AT ALBANY UNIVERSITY

An estimated 200 people are expected to attend the annual meeting of the New York State conference on Asian Studies here, beginning Friday afternoon, Oct. 8, at The University at Albany. DeWitt Ellinwood, professor of history at the university, is chairperson of the program committee.

The comprehensive program of lectures, panel discussions, films, and concerts will continue through Sunday, Oct. 10. Also serving on the program committee is Theodore Wright, professor of political science.

Subjects will encompass many facets of the Asian experience. An indication is revealed in a sampling of program titles: "Effects of Recent Hindu Movements on American Life," "Perspectives on Asian Art History," "United States Policy toward the Philippines," "The Uses of Asian Literature in Other Disciplines," "The Impact of Government on New York's World Trade," "The Himalayan Region's Future," "Women in Asia," and "Varieties of Chinese Military Experience."

Bruce Long, Cornell University, is chairperson of the conference's executive committee. Other members are Romesh Diwan, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; Tau Kang, SUNY - Buffalo; Savak Katrak, SUNY - Oneonta; Richard Rosen, Utica College; and Professor Ellinwood.

SCULPTURE AND PHOTOGRAPHY AT ALBANY UNIVERSITY ART GALLERY

Two exhibitions, one of sculpture and the other of unusual photography, will open Sunday, Oct. 3, at The University at Albany Art Gallery, continuing through Sunday, Nov. 7.

John Ferro, of Stone Ridge, will show a large selection of his steel sculptures together with some recent small bronzes and a portfolio of drawings. The current exhibition of work by the State University College at New Paltz assistant professor of sculpture is his largest to date.

The large steel works come out of constructivism and are described as being "full of energy, exciting visually, and impecably made." The small bronzes are a recent development, made by joining sheets of wax with a soldering iron and casting them by the lost-wax process. The drawings give glimpses of the artist's mind at work.

Melanie Walker, who teaches photography at The University at Albany, has organized the invitational exhibition of eight artists from across the country which she calls "Light Manipulation." It contains 40 examples of "new" kinds of photographs which will be of particular interest to area camera artists, both amateur and professional.

The artists are John Divola, John Wood, Judith Golden, James Henkel, John Craig, Tricia Sample, Jo Ann Callis, and Melanie Walker. They come from all sections of the United States, providing a fair sample of progressive work today.

Gentlemen:

I'm enclosing for your use as a possible feature article information about a three-day symposium on Edna St. Vincent Millay which is scheduled to open here on Friday, Oct. 8. On Sunday, the closing day, the group of scholars will visit the Millay home, "Steepletop" located in Austerlitz in Columbia County, it is now the site of the Millay Coliseum for the Arts.

It is my understanding that the subject matter of the conference is unique and, as indicated in the enclosed press release, it will be attended by outstanding scholars.

If you are interested in more details, I can be reached at 518-457-4902.

Cordially,

C-U DAY, ALUMNI HOMECOMING, PARENTS' WEEKEND COINCIDE AT THE UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY

The fifth annual Community-University Day will take place (October 16) Saturday/at The University at Albany simultaneously with Alumni Homecoming activities and Parents' Weekend. Crowds in excess of 12,000 persons have been on campus for the tri-faceted celebration in recent years.

Homecoming begins Friday evening with "The Way We Were" nostalgia night at the Alumni House, beginning at 7:30. An old-fashioned jukebox will play golden oldies for dancing and there will be refreshments, old movies, and cartoons.

Saturday will be the busiest day of the fall on campus, with most of the events centering around the C-U Day open house. Visitors and returning alumni will have a myriad of activities from which to choose, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing--for most events--until 5 p.m.

Several activities will center around the football game between Albany and Cortland, which will begin at 1:30 p.m. The Homecoming parade will start an hour before kick-off, while at halftime there will be a special ceremony on the field in honor of Merlin Hathaway, who retired from the Physical Education Department this fall after 34 years of service as professor, chairman of the department, and director of athletics. Alumni of both Albany and Cortland, his alma mater, and the State University of New York Athletic Conference, which he helped found, will join in the tribute to Mr. Hathaway.

Other alumni activities on Saturday include special reunions for members of the Edward Potter Club, the old Kappa Beta fraternity (classes of 1936-48), and Sigma Alpha sorority. Members of the special giving clubs for the 1976 Annual Fund--the President's, Anniversary, and Carillon clubs--will be recognized at Saturday functions.

On the academic podium, the Alumni Bicentennial Cafe, featuring refreshments and Sadie's Scratch Band, will be open between 11 and 3 at the reflecting pool and the Alumni Information Booth again will be set up outside the Administration Building.

A number of schools and departments have planned activities for C-U Day. A complete program of events will be available Saturday, but a few of the highlights follow:

Music--Student chamber groups, University Chorale, Wind Ensemble, and selections from "Don Giovanni."

Physical Education--demonstrations of volleyball, scuba, and synchronized swimming.

German Department--Oktoberfest, with German brass band and folkdancers.

Slavic Languages--lecture on "Witches, Worts, and Leeches: Love, Fertility and Sex."

Sociology Department--lectures on "Sex Education in the 1970's" and "Murder, Inequality, and the Law."

Admissions Office--panel discussion on "Admission and Financial Aid for the Prospective Freshman."

School of Business--"Being a Better Consumer" lecture.

Psychology Department--demonstrations of electrical stimulation of the brain, animal learning, and animal hypnosis.

Educational Communications Center--Wally Balloon, the popular, mechanical puppet which talks with children.

There also will be tours of the Computing Center, Atmospheric Sciences Research Center weather station, Nuclear Accelerator Laboratory, ECC, and Five Quad Volunteer Service, among others.

The Parents' Weekend party will begin at 9 p.m. in the Campus Center cafeteria.

TWO TRAVELING BOOK EXHIBITS AT UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY LIBRARY

Two traveling book exhibits are on public display in the main lobby on the first floor at the library of The University at Albany, continuing during the next two weeks.

They have been arranged by Harriet Adams, rare book librarian in Special Collections, in cooperation with the State University of New York Press and the Mohawk Paper Mills of Cohoes and Waterford.

Thirty-five books illustrating a creative approach to book-making are featured in the American University Press Book Show. Selected from a group of 258 books submitted by 60 university presses, the books "incorporated the highest standards from the point of view both of design and production, as they demonstrate new solutions to problems and new techniques in composition, printing, and binding", according to the judges of the show. SUNY Press's publication, "Meaning in Comedy" by John Weld of the SUNY-Binghamton English Department, designed by Freeman Crow, is one of the honored books.

The "Fifty Best Books of the Year" show of the American Institute of Graphic Arts honors excellence in book design, editorial, and production areas. Of the 600 books submitted both by commercial and university publishers from the United States and Canada, the 50 best books bring prestige to the printers, typographers, and suppliers as well as to the publishers.

NATURAL HISTORY LECTURE SERIES OPENS OCT. 26 AT THE UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY

Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, Fla., will be the speaker at the opening lecture of the natural history series at The University at Albany on Tuesday, Oct. 26. He will address his remarks to the question, "Are We Building Toward a Hurricane Disaster in the United States?" The free public lectures, sponsored by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation and the university's Atmospheric Sciences Research Center, are held every other Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 18 on the university's main campus.

Mr. Frank, who will discuss the possibility of increased hurricane activity in the nation, points out that there are nearly 37 million people who live in the coastal zone from Texas to Maine who are susceptible to hurricane damage. Of that number 28 million never have experienced a true hurricane other than possibly the fringe effects of one.

Other lectures scheduled in the fall series are "Studying Wildlife and Endangered Species by Radio and Satellite", Frank Craighead, senior research associate with the ASRC, Nov. 4; "Solar Energy--Promise and Pitfalls", Dan Lufkin, solar energy consultant, Nov. 9; "Alaska--Wild Lands for Tomorrow", Richard C. Rhindress, Northeastern Representative of the National Audubon Society, Nov. 23; and "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea", Paul J. Fox, assistant professor, department of geology, The University at Albany, Dec. 7.

KODAK GRANT TO UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY NOTES FIVE-YEAR EMPLOYEE

The University at Albany has received $1,000 in a direct grant through Eastman Kodak Company's 1976 Educational Aid Program.

Responding to the contributions made by college and university graduates to the company's business success, direct grants of $750 to privately-supported schools and $250 to publicly-supported institutions, are awarded for each undergraduate or graduate year completed by those who graduate and join Kodak within five years of their graduation. The grants are made during the graduate's fifth year of employment.

Kodak's grant to The University at Albany is on behalf of James G. Vande Velde who received a Bachelor of Science in mathematics from the university in 1969. He is employed by the Kodak Park division.

Recipient schools are requested to distribute grant dollars to the departments indicated by a person's degree. Individual departments are asked to use the money for innovative programs or for undergraduate scholarships rather than operating expenses.

ARONOWITZ COLLECTION OF SCRIPTURAL STUDIES ON DISPLAY IN ALBANY

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

The University Foundation at Albany has announced the premier exhibition of the Samuel E. Aronowitz Collection for Scriptural Studies now in the main lobby of the University Library and continuing through Friday, Nov. 12. Representative works from the collection are on display.

The acquisitions have been made possible by the generosity of family, friends, and associates of the late Mr. Aronowitz, a loyal advocate of The University at Albany for more than four decades.

To date there have been 72 contributors to the fund which is viewed as a continuing memorial providing for future acquisitions of distinguished works.

Among the titles received for the University Library are "Archaeologischer Anzeiger", first published as part of the yearbook of the German Archaeological Institute with articles and pictures describing archaeological discoveries in Europe and the Near East; "Concordance to the Septuagint" (Greek translation of the Old Testament); "Sacred Books of the East", 35 volumes translated by various scholars and edited by Max Miller; and "Woman's Bible", comments on women in the Bible by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, noted 19th Century feminist.

DIRECTOR OF OFFICE FOR AGING TO ADDRESS SENIOR VOLUNTEERS AT LUNCHEON PROGRAM

More than 400 people are expected to attend the fourth annual luncheon honoring members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) Wednesday, Oct. 27, in the ballroom of the Campus Center at The University at Albany where the keynote speaker will be Lou Glasse, director of the New York State Office for the Aging. The RSVP program with 544 enrolled members of whom more than 400 are active, is sponsored by the university's College of General Studies.

Other participants in the luncheon program beginning at noon, will be Albany Mayor Erastus Corning; the Albany Area Senior Symphony Orchestra, and the East Greenbush Swingers. Cecelia Lee is director of RSVP activities. Chandler Bliss, director of volunteers for the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene and a member of the RSVP advisory committee, is chairman of the luncheon program and Herbert Brown, a former member of the RSVP advisory committee and instrumental in getting the program funded in Albany County, will be the master of ceremonies.

RSVP members serve at more than 25 volunteer sites throughout Albany County.

State of New York

Executive Chamber

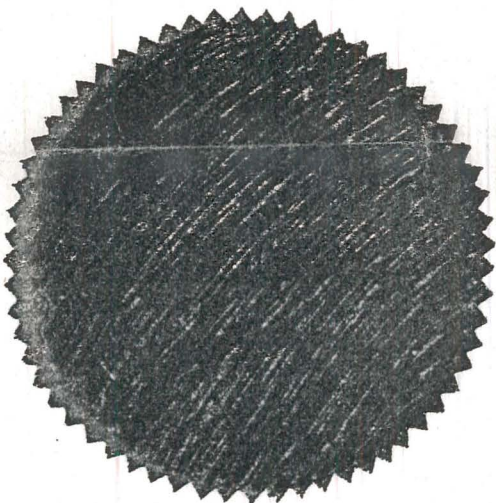

The dedicated men and women who make up the Volunteer Ambulance Squads in New York State save hundreds, perhaps thousands, of lives every year. Doing their work without recompense, these skilled volunteers effectively provide split-second support that often means the difference between life and death.

The 28,000 men and women volunteers serving in approximately 900 volunteer ambulance and first aid units are a vital benefit to the lives of all New Yorkers. Each year, these volunteers make over 400,000 ambulance runs and perform countless acts of heroism. It is fitting we honor them and give due recognition to the life-saving role they play in our communities.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Hugh L. Carey, Governor of the State of New York, do hereby proclaim October 24-30, 1976, as

VOLUNTEER AMBULANCE WEEK

UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY'S VOLUNTEER AMBULANCE SERVICE TO NOTE WEEK

PROCLAIMED BY GOVERNOR CAREY

Five Quad Volunteer Ambulance Service, Inc., a student organization at The University at Albany, will conduct a series of informational displays daily next week at noontime in the lobby of the university's Campus Center in conjunction with the statewide observance of Volunteer Ambulance Week, Sunday, Oct. 24, through Saturday, Oct. 30, as proclaimed by Governor Hugh L. Carey. It is one of only five student-operated volunteer ambulance services in New York State.

Governor Carey, in his proclamation, praised the 28,000 men and women volunteers serving in approximately 900 volunteer ambulance and first aid units as "a vital benefit to the lives of all New Yorkers." He stated that they save "hundreds, perhaps thousands, of lives every year," adding, "It is fitting we honor them and give due recognition to the life-saving role they play in our communities."

The Five Quad Volunteer Ambulance Service was established at the university three years ago by Barry Bashkoff, then a

Albany city area or within a five-mile radius of its base and who are not served by other volunteer ambulance services.

All the student volunteers are trained extensively. Most are certified New York State Emergency Medical Technicians. Besides providing for outside training by the American Red Cross, the Five Quad weekly gives in-service training for each of the positions its members hold on the team.

Although the Quad's major responsibility is to provide ambulance services to the university community, it does render other services such as on-the-spot coverage for concerts and athletic events. Realizing that ambulance service personnel rarely are first at the scene of an accident or emergency, Five Quad provides opportunities for anyone wishing to attend classes in first aid, emergency medical techniques, and cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). Consequently, the possibility of immediate and appropriate assistance rendered until the ambulance service volunteers arrive is increased. As a result of the educational effort, more than 600 persons have been trained in first aid. Looking to the future, Five Quad hopes to extend its classes to groups in the Albany area.

As with all volunteer services, the Five Quad provides its

Officers of the Five Quad Volunteer Ambulance Service are Mary Corrigan, president; Robert Connors, vice president; Robert Elling, director of operations; Nancy Sweetland, treasurer; Linda Rudolph, ^{secretary}~~treasurer~~; Charles Engelbrecht, supply officer; Clifford Ehrlich, safety officer; Jeremy Boss, training officer; Timothy Coon and Deborah Ackley, scheduling officers; and John Tobison, captain of officers of the day.

Corrigan and Connors will be featured in a nine-minute taped dialogue about the ambulance service on WMHT (Ch. 17) Saturday, Nov. 6, at 6 p.m. on the program, "Access", hosted by Joseph Bouman.

HURRICANE CENTER DIRECTOR TO SPEAK AT ALBANY UNIVERSITY

Neil L. Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center at Coral Gables, Fla., will speak about hurricane disasters, at the opening lecture of the natural history series at The University at Albany on Tuesday, Oct. 26, beginning at 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 18. The series is co-sponsored by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation and the university's Atmospheric Sciences Research Center.

Dr. Frank began his career in meteorology while serving as a Weather Officer in the Air Weather Service during the mid-1950's. Leaving the Air Force in 1957, he returned to graduate school at Florida State University and, in 1961, he joined the National Weather Service as a district forecaster in Miami. He was appointed assistant director of the Tropical Analysis Center in 1966, designated a hurricane specialist in 1968, and served as deputy director of the National Hurricane Center in 1973. He holds degrees in chemistry and meteorology.

CAMPUS AWARENESS DAY SET FOR UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY

The third annual Campus Awareness Day, sponsored by Students for the Improvement of Programs for the Handicapped (SIPH), is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 27, at The University at Albany.

Organizers of the day are asking as many nondisabled persons as are interested to participate in the program by going through their normal workday either in a wheelchair or blindfolded. The purpose of the program is to demonstrate to nondisabled persons what it is like to be disabled, as well as to point out needed improvements on the university campus to make it completely accessible to disabled individuals.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE PROFESSOR AT UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY NAMED NATIONAL COMMISSION DIRECTOR

Lawrence W. Sherman, assistant professor at the School of Criminal Justice, The University at Albany, has been appointed executive director of a commission formed by the Police Foundation to examine the purpose and future of higher education for police officers. The foundation is a private, non-profit independent institution dedicated to supporting innovation and improvement in policing.

Dr. Sherman said, "The most pressing concern of the Commission is one that applies to all of higher education today: How do we open the University to more kinds of people and still maintain a high level of quality in both instruction and scholarship?". He added that those interested in expressing their views on higher education for police may write to him at the School of Criminal Justice.

Warren Bennis, president of the University of Cincinnati, is chairman of the National Advisory Commission on Higher Education for Police Officers. He indicated that a major objective of the commission is to consider the quality and content of current programs for the police, what police officers should be learning, and the relationship between higher education and improving police organizations.

A distinguished group of educators, citizens, and public officials has agreed to service on the commission. They include Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles; Lee P. Brown, director of justice services of Multnomah County, Ore.; Chief of Police Hugo J. Masini of Hartford, Conn.; Dean Norval Morris, University of Chicago Law School; Robert M. O'Neil, vice president, Indiana University for the Bloomington Campus; and Charles B. Saunders, director of governmental relations, American Council on Education.

The commission at its first meeting in Washington, D.C. decided to seek as wide a participation as possible from all those concerned with the education of the police. Chairman Bennis said the commission planned to sponsor a series of reports on aspects of education for the police and eventually would issue a body of recommendations.

Dr. Sherman served as associate-in-research, Department of Sociology, Yale University, and co-project director of "Controlling Police Corruption" before joining the faculty of The University at Albany. Earlier he was program research analyst for the New York City Police Department in planning, inspections, and internal affairs, and projects director for the Office of the Police Commission in New York. He holds an undergraduate degree from Denison University and graduate degrees from the University of Chicago and from Yale University where he received his doctorate. He also has a Diploma in Criminology from Cambridge University.

The Police Foundation was established in 1970 with a $30-million commitment from the Ford Foundation.

COLOR FILM ON TRACKING WILDLIFE TO BE SHOWN AT UNIVERSITY NOV. 4

"Tracking Wildlife by Satellite", a 70-minute color movie, produced by Frank Craighead, senior research associate with the Atmospheric Sciences Research Center, The University at Albany, and his brother, John Craighead, associated with the Montana Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the University of Montana, will be shown at a special program for the public without charge in the current natural history lecture series at the university. It is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 4, at 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 18 on the main campus and sponsored by ASRC and the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

The film was shown recently in Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C., as one of the National Geographic Society's Bicentennial Lectures. After covering earlier tracking work with the black bear and elk, the motion picture features the use of satellites for tracking large animals. Radio-tracking of birds also is shown.

The habitat mapping of grizzly bear range in the Scapegoat Wilderness Area, using the Earth Resources Satellite multi-spectral imagery, is another highlight of the program. Also included are sequences of rafting the Snake River in winter and footage of polar bears in James Bay.

An illustrated weather briefing by Raymond Falconer, ASRC research associate, will precede showing of the film.

NOTED POET TO READ SELECTIONS, CONDUCT WORKSHOP AT UNIVERSITY

National Book Award winning poet Adrienne Rich will be at The University at Albany Wednesday, Nov. 3, to read selections from her new non-fictional book, "Of Woman Born" and selections from her poetry at a public program. On Thursday, Nov. 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., she will conduct a poetry workshop. Her appearance at the university is co-sponsored by the Women's Studies Program and the Department of English.

Ms. Rich is the author of "Poems: Selected and New, 1950-1974", "The Will to Change", "Leaflets", "Necessities of Life", and "Snapshots of a Daughter-in-Law", and "Diving into the Wreck." In 1974 she was co-winner of the National Book Award for the latter work. She has taught at various colleges in the East and currently she is on the faculty at Douglass College.

The reading will be held in the Humanities Building lounge (HU 354) and the poetry workshop, in Humanities 290. There is no charge for either event to which the public is invited.

POLITICAL SCIENCE SPECIAL SPRING SEMINAR SLATED AT UNIVERSITY

The Graduate School of Public Affairs at The University at Albany will offer a special seminar in political science, "The Public Intelligence: Political Theory at the Nexus of Knowledge and Power," during the spring session. Instructors will be Professors John G. Gunnell and Charles D. Tarlton.

The course (POS 603), to be held Thursdays from 7:45 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. in Humanities 20, will offer a comprehensive inquiry into the historical and contemporary dialogue regarding the relationship between thought and action in the realm of public affairs. Particular attention will be devoted to a critical examination of current assumptions and arguments about the role and responsibility of social and natural scientists as well as other scholars in the formulation and implementation of public policy.

An invitation is extended to interested participants from all disciplines. Weekly seminar discussions will be based on an extensive, but selective, bibliography. Those taking the course for credit will be required to submit a written project.
