

CRIMSON AND WHITE

VOL. XXXV, ELECTION ISSUE

THE MILNE SCHOOL, ALBANY, N. Y.

FEBRUARY 16, 1962

PRESIDENT

DEAN RUNDALL

by Paul Fiegenbaum

This statement should not be taken lightly. Deane Rundell is running for the most important office in our school, that of President of the Senior Student Council.

Deane has the two most important qualities needed for this office: experience and ability. Deane has obtained this experience and proven this ability by being repeatedly elected to serve as head of various organizations both in his school and in his community. Let's look at his record.

1. Deane has ably represented his homeroom on the Senior Student Council and is capable of running it.
2. Deane was president of his Freshman Class.
3. Deane has been twice elected president of homeroom 224.
4. Deane is president and has been treasurer of his church youth group.
5. Deane has twice been president, and once treasurer of his Explorer post.
6. Deane was the elected president of the Northern District of the Hudson River Valley Association of Churches.

These facts show that Deane is the man for the job of President. He has assumed leadership before and will do it again.

Deane has many good ideas for Milne. He fully realizes the work involved in being president, and he is willing and able to give of himself and spend as much time as is needed to serve you. He recognizes the need for a strong leader to serve in this capacity and is sincerely willing to do his best to carry out the obligations of being President of the Senior Student Council.

JIM VAUGHN

by Jack Baldes

The average Milne student may ask us, "What are Jim Vaughn's qualifications for President?" To this we answer, "What are you, some kind of nut?" We give this answer partly to show that Jim has the basic qualifications for the job, experience and an active interest in Milne, and partly because it's a logical answer.

Jim started his rapid climb when he entered high school proper. In the ninth grade he was elected vice-president of his class. The next year, he was elected president of the sophomore class. Then, at the beginning of this year, he was elected treasurer of the class. Obviously, he has the experience so vital to a president of Student Council.

Rather than dilute his efforts by joining billions of clubs advocating everything from aardvark-raising to zebra riding, Jim decided to concentrate his efforts in just a few clubs. An active member of the Chess Club, he is in there more than the vice-president. He is tremendously active in Milne FTA of which he is vice-president, and also a charter member. Jim is on the Program and Social Committee of the Capital District FTA, too. (As a matter of fact, Jim's able efforts in the Milne FTA proved to be very advantageous, for the Milne FTA is the most active in the Capital District.) That little tid-bit shows Jim's active interest in Milne.

As has been stated many times, the President of the Student Council needs, above all, experience and interest in Milne. Jim has both qualifications, and is no slouch in his schoolwork, either. The choice of President belongs to the voter, and we know they will elect the right person for the job.

VICE-PRESIDENT

LORRAINE MAYNARD

by K. Wirshing

Lorraine Maynard is our choice for Vice-President of the Student Council. She has held many responsible offices and is a very sincere and trustworthy person. She has honor-roll marks and is a member of the advanced math class.

There can be no doubt concerning Lorraine's honesty and integrity, and when Lorraine does a job she does it thoroughly and well!

Lorraine has gone to Milne since the seventh grade, and has had much experience with campaigning and the Student Council offices and the jobs they entail. When Lorraine's sister was a Student Council candidate a few years ago, Lorraine ran practically the whole campaign herself as her sister was ill and unable to be at school.

Lorraine is a cheerful girl and is always willing to help anyone who might need it. She is a girl who pitches in and does some of the less glamorous jobs, with no complaint about wanting to be noticed or appreciated more. Her disposition is always sunny, and Lorraine is one girl you can always depend on!

Don't you think that she's the logical choice for Vice-President? We do!

So remember, Good Buddies,

JAMES HENGERER

by Robert Huff

"Who is this guy Mort?" This is the first question that people ask when observing the posters and the campaign buttons illustrated with the name Mort. My candidate's name is James Russell Hengerer and he's running against opponent for the office of Vice-President of the Senior Student Council. Mort's a common nickname for him.

Having entered Milne in the eighth grade Mort immediately set to work showing his worth as a hard worker.

Just one short year later he was nominated for the office of President of the Junior Student Council to which he was elected. This effort stemmed from his work on the council as the eighth grade representative. Since his honorable retirement OUT OF OFFICE, Mort has not limited his interest in effective organizations. He has been a member of the student-faculty committee for the past two years. Mort has accepted positions on the teen reporter committee for two years, and the Junior Red Cross for one year. He has shown leadership qualities within his class by holding homeroom officer positions for the past three years.

The next question that is asked is what does he intend to do if elected? Of course no organization is perfect, so Mort intends to improve conditions where most work needs to be done. Closer participation and contact between the student and the council is one of Mort's ideas. He will strive to contribute to make the best of the career series for the student body an important phase of a student's education.

All in all, I have attempted to show you first, that Mort is well experienced in the type of work needed for the job of Vice-President of the Council and second, that if elected he will do his best to maintain Milne's tradition of helping to operate an effective Student Council.

SECRETARY

KAREN THORSEN

by Ann Miller

I am sure you have run into my candidate in some phase of extra-curricular activity. She is a member of the M.G.A.A. Council, she was secretary of her homeroom in ninth grade, secretary of her class in tenth, secretary of Quin this year, and a cheerleader in both the ninth and eleventh grades, to name a few.

My candidate has held other responsible jobs, such as co-chairman of the donations committee of the card party, gym captain and she has also written articles for the C&W.

One of the most important factors of becoming a secretary is being able to pick out the essential facts of a discussion and set them down legibly. My candidate has all of these qualities: just look at her English compositions. Well, gang, I should like to tell all of you to think very seriously about a secretary who you know will do a good job.

SECRETARY

CAROL HUFF

by Jill Kapner

In case you haven't noticed, my candidate's name is Carole Huff. During the previous years, you have seen her bouncing around school running to or from her many activities, and I mean many. Ever since she entered our hallowed halls, she has participated to her fullest in all activities. She is a faithful attender of all Zeta Sigma Literary Society meetings and just two weeks ago the Sigma members witnessed her hysterical presentation of a book report. Contributing to the huge success of the Alumni Ball of 1961, she was Chairman of the Decorations Committee. In the 9th grade, Carole was a representative to the Student Council and this year she shares the position of Vice-President of M.G.A.A. Council.

One place you've seen her for the past four years is out on the basketball court, cheerleading. She has been an enthusiastic cheerleader since the 8th grade, starting on J.V. and working up to Varsity. Last year she was appointed by her homeroom to the Student Faculty Association. To be a capable secretary typing is a necessity. Carole took personal typing last year and finished the year with an A average. Included in the typing course she learned the mechanics of the mimeograph machine, a quality needed in aiding the distribution of the minutes to the homerooms.

Outside of school, Carole has worked very diligently in church affairs. She has been president, secretary, and Secretary-Treasurer of her fellowship, and also secretary of the Albany Fellowship Guild.

Her ability as a secretary has been recognized by her many past experiences. These experiences will be a natural asset for the office of Secretary in the Student Council. Now its up to you to promote this ability to your use!

TREASURER

SUE WEINSTOCK

by Karen Giventer

Wondering who to vote for? I would like to suggest my candidate, Susan Weinstock.

There are many important qualifications for the person who would like to hold the office of treasurer, and my candidate has all of them.

Susan takes advanced math and has maintained high marks in math and, in fact, all her subjects. She is noted for her accuracy and for her very legible handwriting. She is a person who can be depended upon to do a good job, as her many friends already know.

But this is not enough! A person who wants to hold an office must have initiative, and be willing to work hard for the most important person in school, YOU! Certainly, Sue has shown much initiative. As an active member of the Prospective Teachers' Club she has been one of the first members to earn the necessary 50 points for a Prospective Teachers' Club pin. You may ask, "How is this earned?" It's obtained by working on many projects and committees and by keeping perfect attendance. This is just one example of Sue's initiative and willingness to work.

Sue is going to give the office of treasurer an injection of new ideas. She hopes to serve you and carry out any suggestions you have and will incorporate some of her own ideas.

Sue last year, was treasurer of Milne's Chess Club. While in office she kept very neat and accurate records, and she will do the same for the treasury records of Senior Student Council.

As a summary, Sue is honest, capable, intelligent, sincere and determined to work hard with other members of the Council and for you.
