McKay's Proposed Resignation Promises Oregon Senate Battle

This week more tension was added to a hot political situation when United States Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay announced that he would resign his cabinet post and seek the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator from Oregon. McKay's opponent if he gets the Republican nomination, as is expected, would be Democratic Senator Wayne Morse, an old foe of the Eisenhower Administration and many of its domestic policies. McKay will be in the unenviable position of justifying Mr. Eisenhower's power policies to the voters of a state which virtually repudiated them in 1954. Incumbent Senator Morse will make his stand on his vociferous opposition to what he regards as a Republican giveaway to a few selfish interests.

However another factor complicates the interpretation of the Oregon Senate race. This is the controversial career and personality of Senator Morse himself. Morse was first elected as a Republican in 1944, but since that time his relations with the party that elected him have been somewhat tenuous. He was elected to the Oregon Senate in 1948. Morse has been endorsed by Democrats, Republicans and Independents for President and traveled across his home state of the Truman Election Specter.

In 1950 Morse ran for reelection as a Republican, but left the party in 1952 to campaign independently for Democrats. Arthur H. Stevenson from 1952 until that time preferred to refer to himself as an independent but finally declared himself as a Democrat in the latter year and worked tirelessly for the election of other Democrats in the Oregon Congressional races of 1954. Senator Morse is given much of the credit for the victory of Democratic Senator Richard Neuberger who defeated several Republican opponents in one of the closest Senate races in Oregon history. Elected with Richard Neuberger and also with Wayne Morse's help was Democratic Congresswoman Ruth Green of Portland, who has joined Senator Morse and Neuberger in their attacks on the Eisenhower Administration's power policies. Pring Over The Exchange

By ANN RIDLEY

At the University of Illinois, one student's curiosity got the better of him. An employee of the student union, he became fascinated by the new-fangled dishwasher recently installed in the library. A conveyor belt affair that sends dishes through twenty-four feet of soaping and rinsing. He figured quite astutely that if dishes could be washed in it, why not humans? Since the water was turned off, he began a dry test run, climbing up and stretching out on one end of the conveyor belt. He poked along through the various compartments, and as he sailed on the other end, he was "served" by a supervisor who happened to be passing by.

The guess from here is that the voters in Oregon will cast a solid vote for Democrats Morse and Green regardless of how they vote in the presidential race. If President Eisenhower manages to carry the state, as he almost surely will be favored to do, the result may be written off as a sort of political schizophrenia of the type which leads voters to repudiate policies, but not the hand of the popular hero who advocates them. Until November, 1956, we can only wait and see.

Liberty Implies Limits . . .

We all want liberty. This is a basic principle of our democratic society. It is stated in the constitution. But even in this document, limits are set on the freedom which individuals can exercise. Last week we heard a speaker illustrate this point. He told a tale about pirates who attacked an island, whose main city was set on a high plateau. The city officials had built a wall around it to keep the people from falling onto the rocks below. The pirates wanted absolute liberty and so they tore down the wall. Hence, children who used to play in safety now feared to play, lest they be careless and fall to their death below. The people who used to carry on their business, restricted within the limits of the wall, were now free, but also very unhappy with this excess of freedom because their safety was gone.

This tale can apply to our student government situation today. The majority of people who are opposed to the new Myskania amendments are opposed because the plan provides for compulsory assembly which is hindering their freedom. But, given this freedom will we be happy? Assembly is a means for providing for school unity and the school spirit we hear spoken of so often. It is a means of keeping the student body informed on the business and issues before Student Association. Last fall, with representative government, few people knew what was happening in the school and few people cared. Ten thousand dollars of Student Association money was spent when only one-third of the Association voted on the motion.

Every group must set limits on itself so that it can function for the good of the whole. We must restrict our freedom slightly. Give up one coffee hour a week. We must give up all this time so that we can have a good government, a well-informed student body and a lively school spirit.

Go to Assembly today. Hear the Statesmen sing. They will give you an idea of the type of program which would be presented by the Convocations Committee next year. Remember the limits within which you can exercise your rights. Is this total freedom, to go or not to go to assembly worth giving up our town hall type of government, our right to discuss and vote on laws which will ultimately affect us. Go to assembly and set this limit on yourself because liberty implies limits!

For A Better State . . .

During this period every year, fraternities and sororities are assigning many duties to their pledges. These duties range from making speeches to counting the number of windows in the State Office Building. To us this seems an extreme and foolish waste of manpower (or womanpower). Pledges could be used to perform various services that would prove beneficial to the college and, at the same time, reflect favorably on the groups to which these pledges belong.

A great service could be performed by asking your pledges to work on Pedagogue. Due to a lack of workers the yearbook will be late this year. Last week after an appeal was made in Assembly for workers, one person answered this request. Fraternities alone have roughly ninety pledges who, we are sure, could be assigned specific times to work. Why not do something worthwhile?

Another group which can always use workers is the SMILES organization. Each year the members of SMILES volunteer their services to administer recreation programs for the Clinton Square Neighborhood House and the Albany Home for Children. The duties consist of reading stories or refereeing a game. SMILES provides an extreme personal satisfaction and valuable experience for the teaching profession.

These two projects are such that they could be undertaken with relatively little effort. Think it over, pick one and then put your pledges to work.

Place of Interest

We dropped in at the Mayflower, delicatessen, general store and what have you, on Central Avenue, a few days ago, for lunch. We found the place as brightly lighted and as scrupulously clean as a hospital operating room. Those crowds of students, which are your reason for not eating in the cafeteria in the first place, all seem to lunch there, and anything you say is for the public ear. The food, is good, and cheap, and there's a nice variety.

Slaughter in Cinemascope

The Conqueror, at the Palace, is the extravagant success story of some oriental soldier or other. His name is John Wayne and Susan Hayward makes eyes at him while armies pillage.

Double Treat At Madison

It should have been called "forever boring" but someone, inappropriately, has named it Forever Darling, and Mr. and Mrs. Lucille Ball are in it. A word to the wise. . . With it you can see Shelley Whiters and Robert Mitchell in Night of the Hunter. This will stand your hair on end; bring your Wildroot Creme oil.

Again?

You can have too much of a good thing. Marty (you know, the butcher's Cinderella story) is playing at the Delaware this weekend. I wish someone would take a cleaver to old Mart.

Communications

To the Editor:

The term "apathy" has been used to such an extent when describing the students of this college I feel that it is about time I thought out the reasons for its omission. First of all I must define the word. I do not mean a dictionary definition but a qualitative one. Assuming apathy is bad, shall I say it is the presence of disinterest or the absence of interest? The difference between the two is entirely a semantic problem, but in terms of usefulness I prefer the second. The first implies a negative state of mind, one quite hopeless in outlook and quite beyond the power of any group or individual in our college community to repair. In other words, it says there is a real negative force which works against all efforts to counteract it. The second definition, however, indicates a void which must be filled to solve the problem. The situation can be described as similar to a sound, but deflated balloon.

Assuming the second definition, its being the only one on which we might attempt a solution, the problem before us resolves itself to finding something to fill the balloon. Attempts to do this have been sporadic and often at cross-purposes. Evidence for this are all the new organizations which spring up and then, after a hot period, descend into oblivion. Witness also the conflict between culture and athletics, entirely unnecessary and injurious to both. In my mind, both must play their part if the void is to be filled.

To rid the school of apathy we must obtain student pride in the school, public recognition of the school, and opportunity for individual self-realization within an organized extra-curricular program. As I see it, an organized attack must be made on three main fronts; cultural, athletic, and social, in addition to a sweeping reorganization of student government philosophy and practice.

The main point of my own program are these:

- 1. A coordinated publicity board which would handle all publicity and public relations, in school and outside.
- 2. Widely extended student-largely cooperation in all areas and activities, including student government.
- 3. A practical, democratic govern-

ATHLETES RUN BEFORE POLITICIANS

The thundering herd in Lower Draper late in the afternoon is our new track team. To us, the team is good on two counts. In the first place, it provides "interested" and "capable" students with an outlet for a talent. And, even better, an intelligent, well-rounded sports program can be as vital as a good D&A for publicity.

NIGHT OF JOYS FOR THE OLDER BOYS

Among their other athletic activities, the Vets are holding their second Buck Social of the year. It is indeed refreshing to see an organization expanding at the rate that the Vets are. So few groups seem to improve with age. . . .

DOLLS DOLL UP

This weekend sees the first of the sorority formals. From this point on, all of the Greek Girls will have a chance to put on their finery and try to act like ladies—a far cry from their most recent collective efforts.

SONG OF THE TIMES

Where, oh where, is practically everybody?

TATTERED ENSIGN

Now that we have a new flagpole, it would look good to see a new, respectable flag in front of Draper.

A LIFE OF EASE

There appear to be two honorary groups on campus this year. Myskie and the Ped Staff differ in only one respect, the former think they ought to work. Our Ped worker is doing a commendable job; it's too bad we'll have to wait until September before seeing his fine photography.

YOUNG AMERICA CHEWS

In the Commons a girl was observed chewing gum. It was good gum. You could tell. She leaped through Student Mail notes. The cracking of the gum was the doleful throb of a tom-tom. No mail. A young man approached. The snapping became synopated, insistent. More than her face was involved, she knew him. But he walked on. Why hadn't her friends told her? Girls gnawing gum grow grotesque.

HORRIBLE SOUNDS

Week after week we sit in the Snack Bar; anyone who sits in the Snack Bar must be subjected to the sounds that emerge from the garish machine in the corner. Music may soothe the savage beast, true. But why not try using music? All we hear now is savagery.

OP BEFORE THE BIRDS

The dance of the bunnies will be in the dim dawn Saturday. Instead of pink ears there will more likely be pink eyes (from not enough sleep, we hope). When you think of all the late risers and nearly empty eight o'clock classes around State, it's a wonder this dance was ever considered. But it has been, and it will be, and what's more, you'd better. . .

MAY WE SUGGEST

In keeping with the wish of Student Association, to provide its younger members with experience on important student government agencies, we have a suggestion. Starting this spring, SA should elect to Student Board of Finance two Seniors and one Junior from the Milne School.

EXIT SPRING (?)

Has everyone considered the implications of the recent blizzard? Further this winter is making a slow finish or next winter is off to a fast start. We place our money on the latter. . . . knowing Albany.

You Can Be In The Limelight; State Exchanges All You Have To Do Is Try In Third Event

By ART PALAZZOLO

Just about everyone wants to be popular—don't you? There are, of course, various ways of gaining popularity. You could go around being nice to people, but then, nice people are often lost in the shuffle of college life. And anyway, one doesn't have to be nice to be popular. (Being nice can be an asset, though.) There are other ways. Girls have various gimmicks that are rather effective which can be observed almost any night of the week in the Union. A rather common practice among our fairer sex is that of wearing sweat shirts emblazoned with the names of universities other than that of State. It matters not what college, be it Lower Podunk U. or Gopher Hill Tech, so long as it is different. When a girl walks into the Union wearing a Gopher Hill Tech sweater, one immediately assumes (naturally enough) that she had from "Old G.H.T." gave it to her as a token of his esteem—and everyone knows what a G.H.T. grad earns on the outside!

Men are no more immune from the "Limelight Fever" than are the girls. Proof of this is visible from the array of multicolored jackets, sweaters, T-shirts, beanies, ribbons, s.c.r.a.g.g.l.y. sideburns, struggling effective which can be observed almost any night of the week in the Union. A tentative schedule has been drawn up for three University of Connecticut students who will visit State under the Student Exchange Program, announces Jean Hagney '56, Chairman. The three students, two men and one woman, will arrive at State Wednesday, April 11, and remain on campus until Sunday, April 15. They will be lodged at Sayles Hall, Beta Zeta, and Potter Club.

The Connecticut students will attend approximately three classes a day to familiarize themselves with State's scholastic life. They will acquaint themselves with our extra-curricular life by attending meetings of both Student Council and Myskania. Friday morning they will attend a Student Association Assembly. Other plans call for a tour of Albany and a meeting with the college administration.

Three State College exchange students, Sue Barnhart '56, Betty Van Vleck and James Lockhart, Juniors, will be on the University of Connecticut campus at the same time. They will visit classes and attend student government meetings and social activities.

The main purpose of the Student Exchange Program is to exchange ideas, both scholastic and extra-curricular, between the two schools. Following last year's exchange with the University of Buffalo, State's four participating students reported on their trip at a special open meeting held at Brubacher Hall. Exchange students last year were Theresa Barber, Jean Hagney, Seniors; Frank McEvoy and Michael Maxton, Juniors.

Student Council: Council Plans Special Assembly Tuesday To Vote On Amendments

By AILEEN COCHRANE

Student Council in their meeting Wednesday evening moved to schedule a special assembly for Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. in Page Hall, in order to finish discussion on the Myskania amendments to the constitution. Robert Betscha '56, presided over a meeting which included committee reports, a motion from Forum requesting more money, election of Chairman for Moving-Up Day and the Moving-Up Day skit, consideration of the Campus Commission Budget, and election of a Chairman for Vacation Trains.

Today's Assembly agenda reads as follows: Singing by the Statesmen; a financial motion from Forum, to be discussed, not tabbed; discussion of the Myskania amendments and announcements. In order to dispose of the Myskania amendments before vacation begins, a special assembly will take place Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. in Page Hall, for final consideration of the amendments and voting upon them.

Richard Vanslette '56, Chairman of Student-Faculty Committee, reported that at their last meeting, discussion was held on housing accommodations for next year. There will be a greater shortage of housing next year since Van Derzee has been sold and there will be an increase in the number of off-campus teachers. There will be two new off-campus teaching centers: Valley Stream, Long Island, and Glens Falls. There will be further explanation of housing accommodations appearing in the News after vacation.

The Camp Board has decided that a conference concerning the future plans of the camp will take place April 28 and 29, John Stefano '58, Chairman, reported that a person from Cortland State Teachers College, two people from the Conservation Department and the District Forester will view the camp, discuss it among themselves and then hold a meeting open to all of Student Association where they will give suggestions for development of the camp.

Forum, under the direction of Charles McHarg '56, requested an appropriation from surplus amounting to $36.45 for transportation to a mock General Assembly to be held in Indiana, Pennsylvania, next week. Student Board of Finance has waived the rules so that the motion may be discussed today in Assembly. Council approved it.

The chairman of Moving-Up Day will be Jane Whitehurst '56, while the Skit Chairman for MUD will be Richard Feldman '57. Patricia Hall '57, was elected Chairman of Trains for Vacation, by Council.

One On The Aisle

By HELENE GOLDA

The Oral Interpretation Class, Carbone reading "The Little Black Aided by the Dramatics and Arts Boys" by Clara Laidlow. Miss Carbone established and maintained a very poignant mood throughout this past Tuesday evening, March 20. Frieda Cohen welcomed the audience and introduced the readers for the evening.

Edgar Allen Poe's, "The Cask of Amontillado," as interpreted by Norman Strite, was the opening selection. This reading began on an expressive and suspenseful note, which was enhanced by appropriate gestures, but unfortunately decreased in effectiveness. As Strite continued, his gestures tended to become mechanical, and the transitions and general narrative skill weakened, thus making any attempt at a climax unsuccessful. However, the earlier excellent characterization of Fortunato did serve to redeem the reading somewhat.

Barbara Baum followed with a selection from Hamlet by Felix Salten. The presentation of this reading was as fresh and bright as the subject matter itself. Her characterizations, particularly those of the grasshopper and the butterfly, were delightful. At a few points, the differentiation between the fawn and his mother became a little obscure, but the reading as a whole was very good.

In the next presentation, a selection from Emily Bronte's Wuthering Heights as interpreted by Lili Ferrara, the reader's study and awareness of the implications of the scene were evident from her competent portrayal of the various reactions of the young girl and the servant. However, at times the transitions were slow, and more could have been done throughout with gesture and facial expression.

Donald Murdoch next delighted the audience with a very competent interpretation of Stephen Leacock's "The Great Detective." He gave this hilarious bit of exposition just the right light touch that it needed, making best use of the art of hesitation and the off-hand manner in the relation of the narrative.

Prong Over The Exchange

By ANN RIDLEY

The Senior Class of Paterson State Teachers College held a contest to give the student body an opportunity to choose the "most absent-minded professor" on the campus. Participation in this contest required the voter to drop a coin in the slot nearest the picture or name of his choice. Each person had the opportunity to vote as many times as he wished. All proceeds will be put toward building up the Senior Class treasury.

A quip from the Central Michigan Life: Many of the girls at the University of Texas take a short cut to the campus via a rock wall that runs in front of a men's dorm. The men have been very accommodating. They cleared away branches and attempted to set up a date bureau by posting information about their eligible bachelors on a nearby tree. Their most recent project has been a beauty contest. The winner is to be known as Miss Wall Walker.

A Woman's Fancy I was desperately gone on them both, And I couldn't think which one to choose. It was rather perplexing, no doubt. For one I was bound to refuse. I gazed at them both in despair. Quite puzzled to know what to do; As soon as I thought about one, I cared for the other one too. They still remained fixed in my gaze.

Not realizing the trouble they brought, It really was hard to decide. They both were so charming, I thought.

I couldn't say which one I'd have. My efforts fell hopelessly flat. It's really exceedingly hard. Selecting a fashionable hat! "from the Tempo"

Sports Mailbox

To the Sports Editor: Recently I have had to retire from participating in an athletic sport after having completed most of the training. Those hectic two days of calisthenics took it out of me. Since then I have been confronted with snide remarks from other sportsmen. I quit because:

- 1. I'm a physical wreck. 2. I have little will-power. 3. I can't give up smoking. 4. I can't give up drinking. 5. How could I have coffee in the Union at 4:00 if I had practice. 6. After all, Bridge games are rough on one's physical make-up. 7. I only have a 3.9 index and have to study 30 hours a week and 6 hours of practice a week would certainly lower my mark to at least 3.8. 8. Some of these formal fall the night before a couple of events. 9. I'm now a big "fat man". 10. Somebody else is better than me.

Now I hope that you feel as satisfied. I'm so nervous since then and am mad at you all for being meanies. I'm no quitter.

Tired Bothered by Baseball, Basketball Due to the snow, sleet, rain, and overall ailing Albany weather, the men out for track have had to limit activities to indoors. Once indoors, they have to share the gym with baseball candidates, and on occasion, they have to eat houses completely to make room for the Milne basketball team.

Even so the runners have not given up, and a living missile going through the peristyles is not an unfamiliar sight to students. Extra late classes, present practice sessions have also been hindered by mid-season and fraternal activities.

After Easter vacation, Coach Hathaway's charges will commence practice outdoors in Washington Park and Bleeker Stadium. The outlook is very promising, for the tentative schedule which includes meets with RPI and Union. The first meet will be with RPI on May 5.

Cagers To Elect Diamond Squad Prepares For 16 Game Schedule

The selection of the first Albany State All-Star basketball team is undergoing completion; games will be played this Saturday among the selected All-Stars.

This practice is going to be followed in all intramural sports in coming years. The Intramural Council hopes that an incentive such as this will increase participation in all sports. The procedure for electing the All-Star team is by preferential vote of the men playing in each league. They are to select six men in their own league and submit said list to the captain of their team.

The purpose of this team is not primarily to give individual achievement praise, but to enable Albany to try and establish an intercollegiate Intramural Association with other schools. An attempt is being made to schedule games with Union, Siena, and RPI.

1. Sandy Bernstein

With the appearance of the first robin the State College baseball squad will already have begun operations over a month. Every day for the past two or three weeks varsity baseball mentor, Dick Sauers, has had the candidates for the squad loosening up at the Pace gym. The squad already has had its share of sprains, pulls, and other ailments not new to the spring training sessions.

Returning to the Ped Squad this year will be Sandy Bernstein, who is an infielder. Other infielders who are returning to the Purple and Gold are: Al Lederman, Luke Sanders, and Howie Caldwell. Howie has not been working out with the team since he is in the hospital suffering from a shoulder ailment. Returning to the outfield is Wayne Overton. The only returning pitcher is Bob Pfeiffer.

New hurlers out for the team are: Bob Devlin, Dave Oakleaf, Mario Scalzi, Harry Hershfield, and Conrad Schmidt. Devlin, is an ex-Albany High athlete who enjoyed some very successful seasons before entering the service. Coach Sauers feels that this fellow may be able to help the team quite a bit.

Grapplers Participate In Invitation Tourney

State was well represented in the West Point Freshmen Invitational Wrestling Tourney held recently. Al Tuttle, who wrestles in the 177 pound class, placed fourth in his division.

Bill Mackie, the other Ped grappler, found the going a little rougher as he suffered a pin and decision against him. The other schools represented in the double elimination event were Lehigh, Farley Dickinson, Rectors and West Point—the latter of which failed to gain one first place.

Democratic Party Faces Crisis Over Southern Integration Issue

By FRANK SWISKEY

The Democratic Party of the United States is facing a crisis that will either make the party stronger or destroy it. The decision it faces is whether to accept the manifesto of the Southern Democrats or to assert itself once and for all against the Calhoun element of the party which is living in a century that has been gone with the wind for more than a hundred years.

Supreme Court Decision

The Democratic Party, if it is to challenge its opposite number spearheaded by the most personally popular President since Theodore Roosevelt, must unify itself. The Supreme Court decision for the desegregation and integration of schools clearly brought out the insecure unity of the Democratic Party. The introduction of this political manifesto just before a presidential election shows how fanatical Roosevelt is in the South despite the fact that a war disproved this theory. This misnomer is stressed despite the acknowledgment of most Southerners that the economic upward movement of the Negro will continue and that, in the course of decades a changed and improved status is almost inevitable.

Democrats Chance Split

This manifesto has also shown that the Southern Democrats will chance a split to press home their views. The Southern congressmen have everything to lose and little to gain by a third party split. The 1948 campaign of J. Starn Thurmond should have driven home that point to them. Harry Truman, by moving his platform to the left, has destroyed the foundation of the Dixiecrat Party thereby rendering it harmless.

The Northern Democrats have made it clear that they will stand firm against this outdated, time-worn dogma of hate. They realize, along with a few Southern liberals, Senator Estes Kefauver (D) of Tennessee and Representative Thurmond Chatham of North Carolina (D), that this is a nation, and not a confederation.

Presidential Proposal

The present administration is prepared not to let this matter slide; nor could it even if it wished to do so. The President will shortly propose to Congress the following: (1) Funds to set up a new assistant Attorney General in the Department of Justice in charge of civil rights cases and (2) a bi-partisan commission to study Negro charges of discrimination.

The Democratic Party may still have a chance to compromise its differences, but this is unlikely. Both sides know the one which gives in will be finished as far as party politics go on a national level. The Solid South is in control of Congress and they do not intend to release it. The important committees are also in control of this phase of national government. A committee chairman can pigeon-hole or just forget to present a bill to Congress for action, or else they can push it vigorously. A good example of this is the Natural Gas Act that the Democrats wanted passed to be us-

State Legislature Gives Money For Construction

As a result of the 1956 State Budget, the State College for Teachers at Albany has received an appropriation of $1,550,000 for the construction of a new library, specialties Evan R. Collins, President of the College. Since this is a state supported college, our building program is subject to appropriations from the State Legislature.

State building programs are conducted in three stages, the planning, construction, and equipment stages. An appropriation is necessary before each stage can be undertaken. Planning money is used to hire an architect to plan the project. This is followed by the construction stage which is the present state of the library.

At the present time the plans for the library have not been completed because the site for the building is still being negotiated for by the State. The building will hold 150,000 volumes as compared with the present 55,000 volumes in the college and Milne libraries. There will be desk study space for approximately 1,000 students which is an increase of 700 seats from the present building. The building will be broken up into several small reading and reference rooms. There will also be four office rooms for the Department of Librarianship, and seven student workrooms for the library department.

Plans have also been proposed for the use of the present library building. It has been considered for a student social building which would include a cafeteria, snack bar, game room, and lounges.

Construction of a new dorm will begin this season. Architectural plans have been approved. Construction will not begin for at least another month as bids for construction have not yet been advertised. The dorm will house 200 students and will have no dining room facilities. This will provide for an L-shaped building parallel to Brubacher and then extending perpendicular to Brubacher out to Western Avenue. Future plans include a similar dorm on Partridge Street, and a separate dining hall.

Money has also been appropriated for the planning stage of a health and physical education building. The college also has money for the grading and draining of St. Mary's Park which will include 12 tennis courts on Washington Avenue and a single level area for recreation. Consequently, College Heights will be torn down this summer.
