The convention will have as its purpose the consideration of American drama. Two plays by American dramatists will be presented during the meeting of the convention. The assembly will be addressed by Mrs. Ruth A. Damon, Professor Emory Holloway, and Montross J. Moses.

PROPOSED BOARD TO BE DISCUSSED

Motion to Appoint Committee To Be Introduced Today in Student Meeting

The first active step towards the organization of a College Board of Publication will be taken in assembly this morning when a motion will be introduced calling for the appointment of a committee to investigate its desirability.

The plan has the support of Alpha Phi Gamma, honorary journalism fraternity, and the approval of President A. R. Brubacher. The project, if successfully carried through, will unite all college publications under a single advisory board. Its membership will probably include the editors and business managers of the four chief college publications. The function of the board will be purely advisory and will not be dictatorial in any way, according to George P. Rice, '32, who is sponsoring it. He will introduce the motion in assembly this morning.

The duties of the proposed organization will be outlined briefly when the motion is introduced. It must be clearly understood that the passage of this motion will mean only an investigation, Rice concluded.

GYMNASIUM TO BE SCENE OF ANNUAL SOIREE APRIL 8

The sophomore soiree on Friday night, April 8, will be conducted in the gymnasium of Page hall, Robert Robinson, chairman of the dance, said today. The price of bids will be $3.50 with favors, he added.

One firm, Whitney's, of Albany, has submitted a bid to supply decorations, according to Thelma Smith, chairman of decorations. Several orchestras have entered their bids to furnish music for the dance, Philip Ricciardi, chairman of the music committee, said.

Attendance will be limited to one hundred fifty couples, Robinson further stated. Students will be able to sign up on the poster which will be placed on the main bulletin board in the rotunda of Draper hall, he said.

Assembly Today To Be Business Meeting Only

The regular meeting of the student association this morning at 11:00 o'clock in the auditorium of Page hall will be open for student business, Isabel Peard, '32, president of the student association, announced.

All students who have any business to bring up are requested to do so at this meeting, Miss Peard said.

Malignant Gleam In Eyes Of Captive Outdoor Totem Stirs State Students

"The big Chief of the Great Outdoors" sits disconsolately in a darkly sheltered corner of Richardson hall. The sad, unhappy countenance of Telemebucus, a totem pole belonging to Troop 43 of the Boy Scouts of America in Albany, has worried and alarmed many students passing through the first floor of Richardson hall.

The totem pole was made out of a tree trunk at Camp Kolaneka, the summer resort of the troop in the summer of 1929. The symbolic carvings on the pole include the four patrols of the troop, Swallow, Wolf, Woodpigeon, and Owl; a scout badge with scout accessories; and the symbol of the summer camp, Kolaneka, which means "hospitality." Dated tepees indi-

Women Alarmed When Drunk Forces Entrance Into House

Again was the quiet and solemnity of a sorority house disturbed when one night this week an unknown man burst in upon a group of the girls, only to be ejected violently and for a good reason.

The mishap occurred at the Beta Zeta house. A man, obviously drunk, knocked upon the door and upon being admitted opened up a disconnected sales talk using for illustrative material some displays which he carried in a reed basket. The suddenness of the attack and anger incurred by it motivated the ejection which followed.

All during the rest of the night the shades of the house were kept lowered and all visitors were viewed before admittance through a tiny space in the door, "speakeasy style", until their spirits gradually revived.

ADVANCE OUR STANDING

The motion asking for a committee to investigate the possibilities of a College Board of Publications is one deserving the support of the student association. Favorable opinion has been expressed by the administration and by the leading journalists of the College.

The reasons why such a board should be organized were outlined in a previous editorial. Chief among them were the avoidance of duplication, particularly from the advertising standpoint; the opportunity to confer on problems of common business interest; the greater prestige of appointments approved by the College's best journalists as a group.

It should be particularly understood that the board will be primarily for advisory and conference purposes. It will not mean a dictatorship over College publications. It will not dictate policies nor force appointments and resignations. It is with this understanding that approval by the president was obtained.

When the time comes for the writing of its constitution, special care will be exercised to prevent conflict of articles. This is your opportunity to advance the College publications to a more collegiate standard. Are you going to accept it?

ABSENT-MINDEDNESS?

Lost! Lost! Lost! These words are printed in liberal letters on the blackboard of the student activities room. Books which have disappeared from desks include the variety included in "Mental Testing and Measurements", "American Literature, Volume I", "Commercial Arithmetic", and "General Zoology."

One or more kleptomaniacs must be abroad, or else an epidemic of carelessness has struck the student association, sparing no one from freshman to graduate student.

It would seem that books are no longer safe on the desks of their possessors and that some people have turned back on the motto: "Knowledge, not for itself, but for others."

FACULTY ARTISTS

State college is fortunate in numbering among its faculty many people who combine unusual ability in their respective fields with a sincere desire to serve the student association.

A notable example of this was the reading given in assembly last week by Miss Agnes E. Futterer. Miss Futterer is an artist of ability. Her reading was received with delight by the students who would certainly welcome another opportunity to hear her.

Programs such as that of last week bring home with clearness the leadership of the faculty. They are more than instructors who have merely subject matter to offer.

WEATHER DEPRESSION!

The economic unrest begins to show itself in State college with the announcement that a budget cut of 20% will probably be made. It will mean a greater reduction in individual appropriations than has taken place for a number of years.

These figures indicate that slightly over 800 have paid the student tax. So large a number unpaid will mean a serious curtailment of programs planned in advance. Publications, already hit by decreased advertising volume, will find this cut hard to bear.

It may mean that issues will be cut or that size of issues will be reduced. In any event, the student association rests secure in the information that every possible cut is being made by business managers. It will be a difficult storm to weather, but the association must present a united front in making the best of a difficult situation.

BOOKS: THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

"The Challenge of Love." By Warwick Deeping. McBride and Company, New York City. 384 pages. $2.00.

"The Challenge of Love" is a gripping story of a dynamic young man who was forced to choose between temporary success in the medical profession and his love for a girl.

It is primarily an epic of social reform with John Wolfe, young country doctor, playing the leading role. He comes to the little town of Navestock as assistant to the lethargic town medical officer. In this capacity he is looked upon as a young visionary, full of new notions, whose demands for the introduction of new and sanitary methods of living are scoffed at. One morning while making his rounds among the rural patients he visits Mrs. Mascall and there he meets Jess, her young daughter. From her he draws the strength and inspiration necessary to continue his long fight against prejudice and disease. Upon her too, he lavishes his love.

Temporarily discharged by his superior, Dr. Threadgold, Wolfe gains the support of influential townsmen for a final fight. Rapid progress is now made, but the innovations come too late, for an epidemic strikes the village. People die from typhoid on every hand, but Wolfe is indefatigable, efficient, and everywhere. He faces his great crisis when Jess, who has been nursing in the village, is stricken with the disease. Wolfe faces a dilemma—he must work tirelessly to save the girl he loves or continue in Navestock. He follows the dictates of love, for the townsmen are recovering from the ravages of epidemic, and spends four terrible nights with her until the disease is conquered.

When he returns to the village, it is to learn that he has been voted out of office and that his influential friends have deserted him. Slightly cynical, he leaves the village and in other fields attains the success which his talents insure.

Extreme realism lies in the pages of this clash of love and duty. Mr. Deeping has portrayed another character of the same magnitude of Sorrell.

Joffre, by Raymond Reoonly. (D. Appleton and Company.)

M. Reoonly, who first came into world notice through his Foch, My Conversations with the Marshal, is now the author of this informative little volume on the first French generalissimo in the last German war.

The book is a series of snapshots of the pertinent incidents in the life of Joffre with time exposures focused on the first battle of the Marne and its preceding and following events.

The author has graced this book with the same attractive style which characterized the previous volume. As a bit of character study it leaves little to be desired. It is only when M. Reoonly attempted to class his subject as a great military genius that the effort becomes a bit forced.

We have always regarded Joffre as a good humored, stolid leader whose mental processes were somewhat ponderous. He appears a general of the old school who fell heir to the French high command on the threshold of a war whose vastness and intricacies were rather beyond that amiable gentleman's training, experience or qualities of imagination.

This work has its value because it reflects what probably will be the final French verdict of Joffre's leadership. It is also the product of an author who has no slight military reputation on his own account and, from that angle, his analysis of Joffre and his problems merit careful consideration.

Mexico: A Study of Two Americas. By Stuart Chase in collaboration with Marian Taylor. MacMillan Company. New York. 338 pages. $3.00.

This is a penetrating comparison of two economic systems, the handicraft and the machine. The one represents Mexico through countless centuries and has resulted in an inertia which Western civilization and Spanish cruelty have failed to move.

Mr. Chase writes of Mexico prior to the Spanish conquest, telling of the advanced culture of the Mayas, the Toltecs, and the Aztecs, then engineering, military craft, government, and architecture are discussed with historical accuracy and literary interest. The Spanish conquest and the decline of Mexican civilization which followed constitute the dark pages of the history.

A comparison of a populous Mexican town, symbolic of Mexico today, shows how such a community of machineless men carries on. The work should be beneficial to Mexicans particularly, for with the impartial freedom of an outside historian, he suggests contributions of the machine age as well as inherited values in the handicraft system which should be adopted or maintained.

English Should Be Core Of Curriculum, Administrators Decide At Washington

That the core of the curriculum should function through English was the dominant thesis of the conference of the National Association of Academic Principals conducted February 22-24 at Wardman Park hotel in Washington, D. C., according to Professor John M. Sayles, principal of the Milne High school. With this subject as basis, a comprehensive system would be employed whereby the child determines his own conclusions derived from a survey of collected materials. Social science also would be an essential factor in this program.

The conference was characterized by a series of discussion groups, where a number of major educational ideas were propounded. Among the topics discussed were the following: "Extra Curricular Activities", "What the High Schools Are Doing for the Individual", "Guidance Progress in Secondary Schools", "Aims and Activities of Supervisors", and "Mental Hygiene".

ALUMNI RESIDENCE HALL COMMITTEE CONDUCTS MEETING

The second report meeting of the alumni residence hall fund committee was conducted in the women's faculty room of Draper hall yesterday afternoon from 4:00 to 5:00 o'clock. This meeting was in the form of a tea. Mrs. Bertha Brimmer, executive secretary of the alumni association, presided. The senior committee of the residence hall fund consists of twenty-eight members. The chairman for the campaign are: Frances Keller, Marjorie Longmuir, and Kenneth Miller. Audrey Flowers and Marie Steivator have been appointed to replace Eleanor Gage and Helen Burghier on the committee.

So far, five pledge cards have been handed in, subscribing $100 each. The seniors who have pledged are: Kathryn Belknap, Miss Keller, Asenath Van Buren, Miss Longmuir, and Selma Schlaechter.

SPORT SHOTS

By K. A. M.

Gil De Laura displayed a brilliant performance at guard last week holding his opponent to three points on Friday and a single field goal in the alumni game.

The intramural tournament is going along smoothly thanks to the efficient and capable work of Manager Moreland.

It is rumored that the men's soph-frosh interclass basketball battle will be staged in the near future. The frosh have a team which has lost but one game this season and the sophomores have many players of intercollegiate experience. A sharp contest will probably ensue.

Registrar Posts Chart For Assembly Seating

Attendance at the weekly assemblies will be checked by members of the faculty at each meeting beginning with the one this morning. Miss Vandenberg explained.

ALUMNAE ATTEND ANNUAL WEEK-END

Twenty-five Women Graduates Return to Visit Campus For G.A.A. Events

Twenty-five alumnae of the Girls' Athletic association, including several past presidents of the association, attended the annual G. A. A. alumnae week-end last week. Events of the week-end included a women's State-Alumnae basketball game, a dinner in the cafeteria of Husted hall, a stunt presented under the direction of Elizabeth Gordon, '33, and a basketball game between the G. A. A. and a team captained by Frances Virginia Peck, '31, former vice-president of the association.

The representatives of the alumnae were victorious in the alumnae game Saturday afternoon by a 26-21 score. Beatrice Van Steenburgh, '31, former G. A. A. president, captained the alumnae team, Mary Trella, '33, class manager of athletics on the G. A. A. council, was general chairman for the week-end.

Faculty chaperones at the dinner on Saturday night were: Dr. Caroline Crosslake, College physician and head of the hygiene department; Dr. Marie E. Green, assistant physician and instructor in hygiene; Miss Isabelle Johnston, instructor in physical education, and Dr. Elizabeth H. Morris, professor of education.

The stunt presented Saturday afternoon following the alumnae game was a dramatization of the "Faculty Song" written by Eunice Rice Messert, '22. Mildred Crowley, '32, and Katherine Moore and Alvina Lewis, juniors, assisted Miss Gordon in preparing for the stunt. The cast included: Alice Giblin, Vera Burns, and Esther Mead, seniors; Carolyn Kramers and Miss Moore, juniors; Mary Moore, Katherine Haug, Maybelle Matthews, Louise Wells, Celia Bishop, Jean Craigmile, and Elizabeth Sadler, sophomores; and Ruth Brooks, Harriet Ten Eyck, and Kathleen Kenney, freshmen.

The alumnae who attended the week-end included: Ethel Grundhofer, '30; Beatrice Van Steenburgh, '31; Frances Virginia Peck, '31; Ardlith Down, '31; Dorothy Hoyt, '25; Elizabeth Milne, '26; Margaret Crossler, '31; Margaret Donahy, '26; Florence Craddock, '25; Georganna Maat, '27; Catherine Norris, '31; Rose Koenig, '31; Elsie Zurell, '27; Mildred Appleton, '30; Winifred Humlant, '31; and Jean Minkin, '31.

Dr. Linton Addresses Meeting Of Fraternity

Dr. Henry J. Linton, former principal of Milne High school and deputy superintendent of schools in Schenectady, addressed the members of Kappa Phi Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity Tuesday night at 8:00 o'clock in the Lounge of Richardson hall, according to Andrew Hritz, '32, president.

Dr. Linton spoke on "Some Problems of Secondary School Administration." He stressed the fact that remedial work is necessary if one is to progress in the administrative world. He cited some examples where the principle was applicable. He discussed, among other things, the problem of the elimination of pupils in schools. "In 1907," he said, "a pupil graduating from high school could get a good position in commerce and business administration, but due to the economic conditions at present, this would be impossible." He said that almost four hundred students returned to take post graduate work in the Schenectady high schools. This is a desirable thing.

George Rice, '32, introduced the speaker.

QUINTET ENGAGES IN TWO CONTESTS

State Loses to Oswego Team; Alumni Beaten by Score of 44-28, Saturday

By KENNETH MILLER, '32
Sports Editor, The News

The State quintet divided its week-end contest losing to the Oswego Normal five on Friday night by a score of 49 to 42 and defeating the State college alumni on Saturday night 44 to 28. Both games were played in the Page hall gymnasium.

The Oswego Normal squad was very fast and displayed a clever passing attack which the State five were unable to overcome during the first half. The score at the half time was Oswego 26, State 10. During the second half the State team broke up the trick pivot plays and the speedy passing of their opponents. In the third quarter the home five scored fifteen points to the visitors' six. Both teams fought evenly in the fourth quarter. Each squad scored seven or eight points in the last ten minutes of the game.

The game was extremely fast during the second half and rather rough. Ten fouls were called on the visitors during the half. Both sides tried many long shots of which several were successful. Brooks caged two pretty distance shots in the last quarter of the game.

Fanning, left forward of the visiting squad, was the scoring star of the game with fifteen points. Roger Bancroft of the State team followed closely with 11 points which were gained through four field baskets and six successful foul shots.

Gil De Laura started on the defensive holding Renozo to a single foul point in the first half and effectively checking Captain Snyder of the Oswego five in the second half of the game. Snyder amassed 12 points in the first part of the game, but did not score a single point in the final half.

Alumni Lose

The alumni put up a surprisingly hard fight in the first part of the game Saturday night. They led at the half by the close score of 18 to 17. Captain Charles Lyons of the 1930-31 State quintet displayed his old time technique and gained eight points in the first half.

The State five led by Captain De Laura smashed through the alumni defense during the third quarter and continued their onrush to lead at the final whistle by a score of 44 to 28.

De Laura held his opponent to two points while he caged six field baskets to capture the scoring honors for the night.

Roger Bancroft of the State five was tied with Lyons of the alumni with eight points. Ossy Brooks and Ray Harris followed with seven points each to their credit.

Joe Herney, captain of the extremely successful 1928-29 State five showed his old time flash and fight during the game and also demonstrated that he still knew several clever tricks of the basket ball trade.
