on children's theatre are expected to participate in the program.

The International Association, known as ASSITEJ, the initials of its French name, is devoted to the development of theatre for young people throughout the world. The global organization attempts to unite professional and non-professional drama groups in promoting a free exchange of ideas and experiences, and encourages national and international societies to further work in children's theatre. Founded in May 1964, ASSITEJ presently sponsors programs in 19 countries and will soon expand to a total membership of 32 nations.

United States Executive Committee members of ASSITEJ include Patricia B. Snyder, director of SUNYA Children's Theatre, and Paul Bruce Pettit, of Empire State College, both of whom will be organizing the week of activities at Albany. Mrs. Snyder and Dr. Pettit have extended invitations to four European and five American theatre groups. Those companies will help conduct sessions involving creative dramatics, theatre craft, creative research, professional theatre in the secondary schools, and films.

Delegates and participants will be housed on State Quad and will have full use of the five theatres in the Performing Arts Center and the facilities of the University Art Gallery. Social events during the week will include receptions hosted by Nelson A. Rockefeller and Erastus Corning. Excursions to Saratoga and New York City also are planned.

Joint FSA Meeting Names New Manager for Bookstore

Partial election of officers, approval of a new bookstore manager's appointment, action to reduce food service losses, and sale of Faculty-Student Association real estate highlighted a joint meeting of the Board of Directors and the Membership Board of FSA held last Monday in AD 253. A move to postpone the meeting because sufficient notice had not been given to the university community was defeated.

President Benezet was elected chairman of the board and John Hartley elected president of FSA, according to by-law provisions. Election of the remaining officers on the slate was postponed pending the report of a nominating committee representing constituent groups of the association. The board approved the appointment of Arnold Colon as bookstore manager. Mr. Colon is currently manager of the bookstores at Allegheny Community College, a three-campus complex near Pittsburgh with a bookstore at each location. He was the unanimous choice of the Bookstore Advisory Committee and is expected to begin duties here early in January.

Following long, heated discussion, the board voted to accept three of six proposals from food service management designed to reduce the losses being experienced in that operation. Approved were proposals to close the Colonial Quad cash lunch line since it was reported to have lost $622 in October; close the Brubacher Snack Bar, which experienced an $11,000 deficit in fiscal 1971, and replace it with a vending operation; and continue with the special functions operation which earned $830 in October.

A special ad hoc committee, consisting of graduate student Carol Hughes, Professor Walter Balk, and Vice President Hartley, was appointed to review the financial report provided, as well as the remaining proposals. They included recommendations to close the Patroon Room dinner service and expand its lunch capacity, continue the Campus Center Cafeteria and Snack Bar, and continue Brubacher and Husted cafeterias, pending review at the end of the fiscal year. The committee is to report at the next meeting.

It was also announced that contract food prices would not be increased next semester.

In other action, the board approved sale of four houses to members of the faculty or staff. The homes, located at 52 and 56 Fuller Road, 4 Loughlin Street, and 36 Parkwood Street were sold for $111,250. Intended purchasers are Martin Deitsch, James Doellefeld, Lloyd Hebert, and Alberto Carlos.

Another joint meeting of the Board of Directors and Membership Board will be held on Dec. 15 at 3 p.m. in CC 375. A special information meeting for constituent members will be held this Friday at 3 p.m. in the CC Assembly Hall. No action will be taken during that meeting.

Interdepartmental Program In Peace Studies Offered

Sixteen courses which may be applied toward an interdepartmental second field program in peace studies, will be offered in the spring semester. The interdepartmental program studies problems of war and peace, social change, and conflict resolution. Its aim is to explore practical solutions to such problems on the international, national, and local levels. It is based on the premise that a meaningful analysis of the issues of war and conflict can best be achieved through a synthesis of insights and data from various fields of knowledge.

In addition to relevant courses in various departments, the new peace studies program includes some inter-

Subcommittee Studies Tenure

Recommendations and answers to questions affecting the awarding of tenure and promotions to faculty are being sought by a joint subcommittee of the Council on Promotions and Continuing Appointments and the Educational Policies Council. The subcommittee has been formed to recommend the criteria to be used in considering promotions and continuing appointments.

Among questions to be answered are: Should the ratio of those in the pertinent program that are tenured to those that are non-tenured be considered? Should the ratio of professors to lower ranks be considered? Should the priorities of the departmental and university programs be considered? If such matters are to be considered, at what level and by whom should they be considered?

Members of the university community wishing to make suggestions on these questions are asked to contact any member of the subcommittee. They are Winifred Bell, James Corbett, Helen Horowitz, Jon Jacklet, Louis Jordan, J. Richard McNally, Charles Petitjean, and Gordon Thompson.

disciplinary offerings such as the Conflict Resolution Forum offered last semester and the Non-Violence Workshop now being held. Students may also pursue project work and independent study with the cooperation of faculty advisors.

Students interested in peace studies as a second field should consult their academic advisors. A student's major department determines whether a program will satisfy the second field requirement. Further information is available from the program's coordinator, Donald Birn, SS 385.

Students using peace studies as a second field may select an area of concentration in either international relations or conflict resolution. Courses offered in the spring under international relations are ECO 183, Economics of War and Peace; ECO 330, Economics of Development; GOG 102, Cultural Geography; GOG 330, Geography of Population and Settlement; HIS 344B, Europe Since 1939: World War to Cold War; HIS 411B, History of American Foreign Policy; HIS 481, Colloquium in European History: Imperialism; HIS 485, Colloquium: Modern War and Culture; and POS 375, International Organization.

as host to Plattsburgh at 8:30. Binghamton is the Saturday visitor at the same time. JV preliminary games are scheduled with Plattsburgh and RPI, both at 6:30. Last season, Albany defeated Plattsburgh, 84-65, and Binghamton, 82-54.

This week's action is the last before exams. The hoop team resumes competition Dec. 29-30 in the Capital District Tournament, but the other squads are idle until mid-January.

Final football statistics point up the 4-4 Danes' reliance on their rushing attack. Nearly 75% of the team's total offense came on the ground. Carvin Payne led in yards gained, 434, followed by Bernie Boggs, 418, and Lonnie Davis, 338. Boggs' 6.0 yards per carry was best.

Quarterback Bill Flanagan ran the triple-option Wishbone T offense well, but completed just 26 of 79 passes (32.9%) for 367 yards and three touchdowns. Eddie Williams was the leading receiver with 358 yards and four TD's on 12 receptions.

Boggs led the scoring with 42 points on six TD's and six PAT's.

The defense was Albany's forte at the season's end, permitting just 10 points the last three games and posting its first shutout, 28-0, in the finale. On the year, the Danes averaged 20.5 points a game, while holding the opposition to 15.6. The team will lose just one defensive starter through graduation and four on offense.
