Sandra J. Bush, a senior at the State University of New York at Albany, has received the Daughters of the American Revolution American History Award, presented recently at a luncheon in her honor in the Campus Center.

Miss Bush, valedictorian of her 1963 class at Columbia High School, East Greenbush, is in the teacher education program at SUNYA, majoring in social studies. An honor student, she has received several other awards for her outstanding academic achievements.

The DAR award is presented annually by the New York State Organization of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution and carries a $400 scholarship. Mrs. Edward J. Reilly, state regent, made the presentation on behalf of the American History Award Committee of the New York Organization.

Among those members of the DAR present were Mrs. Lyle J. Howland, Miss Ruth E. Howe, Mrs. Milton J. Newbauer and Miss Caroline Lester. Also attending were the following faculty and staff members of the university: Dr. Webb S. Fiser, vice-president for academic affairs; Dean Jack M. Deeringer, Dr. Harry S. Price, professor of history; Mrs. Helen Horowitz, assistant professor of economics; Alice T. Hastings, director of libraries, and Royann S. Blodgett, associate professor of education.

Miss Claudia Noble, winner of the award last year and currently a graduate student at the university, also was present at the luncheon.

Dr. Sverre Petterssen, a meteorologist from London, has been appointed to the newly-created post of International Professor of Earth and Atmospheric Sciences at the State University of New York at Albany, President Evan P. Collins announced.

Dr. Eugene McLaren, chairman of the Division of Science and Mathematics at the university, revealed Dr. Petterssen's duties will be international in scope. "Meteorology is truly a world-wide program," stated Dr. McLaren, "and Dr. Petterssen will be traveling extensively in Europe, helping tie together the knowledge in this field. In addition, of course, he will teach courses here as a member of the faculty."

Dr. Petterssen, who lectured at SUNYA Jan. 27, is a former chairman and professor of meteorology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the University of Chicago. Recently, he served as science attaché at the United States Embassy in Stockholm. He is former president of the American Meteorological Society and former chairman of the committee on international programs in atmospheric sciences of the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Petterssen was a member of the prominent group of meteorologists who advised postponement of the Allies "Operation Overload" liberation of Europe from June 5 to June 6, 1944, a decision which was vital to the success of the strategy. General Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, later wrote to Dr. Petterssen, "This service on your part merits very special commendation as an outstanding contribution to the success of the Allied invasion."

The King of Norway subsequently presented Dr. Petterssen with the Liberation Cross, a rare honor for a civilian scientist, and the King of England gave him the honorary appointment of Commander of the British Empire.

A native of Norway, Dr. Petterssen was naturalized as a United States citizen March 8, 1955. He holds degrees of Bachelor of Science, Master of Science, and Ph.D., all from Oslo University. His honors, public services, memberships and employment run into the scores.

He is the author of a number of books on meteorology, the latest, "Weather Observations, Analysis and Forecasting" in 1957. In addition, he has written several articles for encyclopedias and more than 100 papers on meteorological subjects.

His appointment at SUNYA is effective Sept. 1, 1967.

A forum on college board services will be held for non-member colleges, Wednesday, May 10, at the State University of New York at Albany Campus Center.

The forum is sponsored by the College Entrance Examination board and hosted by the SUNYA admissions office. Some 200 admissions personnel, deans of schools and deans of colleges throughout the Northeast are expected to attend. Those colleges which belong to the board are not included in the forum.

The College Entrance Examination Board, with offices in New York City, is a national group, formed in the early 19th century by the Middle States Association.

Following registration and coffee at 9 a.m., Dr. Evan R. Collins, President of the State University at Albany, will welcome the guests at the beginning of the general session in the assembly hall at 9:45. The program continues with addresses on particular subjects by Carol L. Byerly, Acting Director of the Northeast Regional Office; Ronald M. Betz, Assistant Director, Northeast Regional Office, and Edward S. Noyes, Consultant to the President of the College Board.

Following a luncheon at 12:15, the meeting will break up into three discussion groups, which will explore "Admission Testing Program and Validity Study Service," "College Scholarship Service" and "Placement Testing."

Adjournment 3:45.

Signum Laudis, the State University of New York at Albany honor society, has inducted seventy-one new members, including 18 members of the class of '67 and 53 of the class of '68.

Signum Laudis membership constitutes the top 10 percent of each graduating class with a minimum index of 3.0. Each class is inducted in three stages. In the spring of its junior year, the top 4% of the class is admitted; the next 4% enters the following fall and the remaining 2% in the spring of its senior year.

Transfer students become eligible for admittance, assuming they meet the grade qualifications, when they have accumulated 50 credit hours at the university.

The purpose of the society is to promote recognition of students who have achieved an exceptionally high degree of scholastic prominence.

A list of the recent inductees follows.

The College of General Studies, State University of New York at Albany, will sponsor a "Workshop on Open Spaces," Friday, May 12, at Brubacher Hall, 750 State Street, downtown campus, from 2:30 to 9:30 p. m.

The emphasis of the workshop, according to its organizers, will be on practical aspects of planning, financing and acquiring open space for public advantage. A number of community leaders and public officials, in a position to take effective action on the problem of planning for open space, have been invited to participate in the workshop.

The principal speaker will be Richard H. Pough, an international authority in the field of land preservation. He currently is chairman of the Open Space Action Committee, Inc. and president of Natural Area Council, Inc. Panel members include Charles W. Mattison, director of conservation planning for Wollmer Ostrower Associates and, for 30 years, active with the United States Forest Reserve; and Dr. Robert Rienow, professor of political science at SUNYA and president of the Eastern New York Chapter of Nature Conservatory.

Dean Irving Verschoor of SUNYA has appointed S. Gilbert Prentiss, retired State Librarian, as project director for the workshop. Advising him in formulating plans are Mrs. David H. Beetle of Castleton, Dr. Victor H. Cahalane, retired assistant director of the New York State Museum; and Dr. Rienow, chairman of the advisory committee.

Miss Peggy Wood and Miss Ethel Barrymore Colt will combine their talents Tuesday evening, May 9, to present "A Madrigal of Shakespeare," a program of scenes and songs by Shakespeare and based on 13 of his works. The show will be presented in Page Hall at 8:30 and is sponsored by the Theatre Alumni Association with the co-operation of the department of speech and dramatic art, State University of New York at Albany.

The theme of the madrigal, as devised by Miss Wood, is Women in Shakespeare and is divided into three parts: Women in Jeopardy, Women in Authority and Women in Love. Accompanying the ladies, who work without benefit of props or sets, will be concert pianist John Ranck.

Among the scenes Miss Wood and Miss Colt will bring to life are the letter and sleepwalking scenes from "Macbeth," the English lesson scene from "Henry V," Portia's 'pound of flesh' scene in "Merchant of Venice," and scenes from "Othello," "Romeo and Juliet," "Merry Wives of Windsor" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Also on the program are songs based on Shakespeare plays. The madrigal is open to the public at no admission charge, but tickets must be obtained to insure against exceeding Page Hall capacity. The State University Theatre box office is open weekdays 11:15 to 3:30 and may be reached by calling 457-8592.

The Collegiate Singers, The Statesmen, and three chamber ensembles will perform in a music department concert Tuesday evening, May 16, at Page Hall, State University of New York at Albany. The program, open to the public with no admission fee, will begin at 8:15.

With Karl A. B. Peterson, conducting, the Collegiate Singers will be heard in selections by Beethoven, Lotti, Gabrieli, Christiansen, and Raffman. Mary Gallage, flute, Jo Ann Krause, violin, and Dennis Buck, piano, will play Quantz's Trio Sonata in C Minor. With Dr. James Morris, conducting, the Brass Choir will perform Johann Pezel's Six Pieces. In the choir are Neil Linden, Mel Karp, and William Lawrence, trumpets; Marlene Strong and Milton Architzel, French Horns; Harvey Westcott and Susan Allen, trombones; Lee Lovallo, bass trombone; Lenora Tyler, baritone; and Stanley Axelrod, tuba.

In the second portion of the program The Statesmen will sing compositions of Bartholomew, Sateren, Greene, and Dvorak. Victor Ewald's Quintet for Brass, Op. 5 will be performed by Barbara Elliot and Richard Zipper, trumpets; Duane Saetveit, French Horn; Mr. Westcott, and Mr. Lovallo, trombones; and Karen Miller, tuba. Dr. Morris will conduct.

The Statesmen will conclude the program with a group of old American songs arranged by Copland. They include The Boatmen's Dance, At the River, The Little Horses, and Ching-A-Ring Chaw.

Accompanists for the Collegiate Singers are Dorothy Kaufmann, Louise Kracke, Ellen Kumpf, and John Spross. Accompanying The Statesmen will be Richard Rassmussen and Mr. Buck.

The first master's thesis production to be presented by the department of speech and dramatic art at State University of New York at Albany will be Samuel Beckett's WAITING FOR GODOT. Directed by Bonnee Scott, the play will run Wednesday through Saturday, May 17-20, in the Richardson Studio Theatre on the downtown campus at 8:30 p.m. The production will be open to the public.

One of the best-known examples of the Theatre of the Absurd, WAITING FOR GODOT had its premiere at the Theatre de Babylone in Paris during the 1952-1953 season. Following the premiere came productions in London, Dublin, Frankfurt, Rome and Helsinki, and its first American production was in New York in April, 1956. Now considered as a theatre classic, GODOT was presented as an example of new theatre in the 1956 Arena Theatre. Since its initial production, GODOT has been called "grotesquely beautiful and utterly absorbing" as well as "one of the most noble and moving plays."

Miss Scott, director of GODOT, is a 1962 graduate of SUNYA. After teaching for three years at North Syracuse High School, she returned to the university in 1966 to study theatre as a graduate assistant in technical theatre. Her previous directing experience includes an undergraduate production of Albee's THE SANDBOX and a production each year she taught high school. Aside from directing she has gained theatrical experience both as an actress and technician in productions which include LYSISTRATA, THE ICEMAN COMETH, and KISS ME KATE.

- More -

Miss Scott chose GODOT as her thesis production because she feels the play is a true test of both actor and director. She expressed the opinion that the play, since it is virtually plotless, demands the total interaction of all theatrical elements if the play is going to communicate. Since neither words, story, scenery, nor lights can carry the show alone, all must be more carefully developed and coordinated than in a play outside the Absurd tradition.

Tickets will be unnecessary for the production, with seating to be on a space available basis each evening. There will be no reserved seats for any performance. Inquiries regarding the performances should be directed to State University Theatre.

With the aid of a $25,000 federal grant, the Instructional Resources Center at State University of New York at Albany will conduct a Faculty Development Workshop in Educational Media during the next academic year.

Divided into two sections, the program will include lectures, discussions, seminars, demonstrations, field trips, and laboratory sessions. Purpose of the fall workshop will be the development of competency in college and university faculty members in applying the principles and procedures of programming large groups multi-media presentations to their own disciplines, and of validating their procedures through student response systems.

The spring workshop will be concerned with applying educational media to the individualization of instruction. Scheduled is a study of computer-assisted instruction, dial access information retrieval systems, programmed instruction, and other mediated approaches to individualized instruction.

Dr. Robert C. Rowe, director of the Instructional Resources Center, heads the workshop staff. Associate director is Dr. Robert M. Brown, associate professor of education. Others on the staff are Dr. Murray G. Phillips, associate professor of education; John Gunn, producer-lecturer; Harry Sombor, associate director, engineering research and development; James Rice, associate director, George Wiesner, art director; and Carl Howard, film production supervisor.

Closing date for receipt of completed applications is June 1.

FROM: Arena Theatre
Jarka M. Burian
457-8472

The sixteenth consecutive Arena Theatre season at State University of New York at Albany will expand its schedule to include four productions this year instead of the usual three. Jarka M. Burian, producer-director of Arena, in addition to announcing the expanded schedule for the only summer theatre within the city of Albany, also announced the plays to be produced and the Arena directors.

THE SEAGULL by Anton Chekhov will open the season July 19-22, and will be directed by Burian who previously directed two other Chekhov plays in Arena, UNCLE VANYA and THREE SISTERS. For Burian this year will mark his fifth season as head of the Arena operation.

Following SEAGULL will be the work of an author new to arena. Ann Jellicoe's THE KNACK, the original drama on which the recent film was based, will be presented July 26-29. Directing THE KNACK will be John Velie who has assisted in previous Arena productions but will make his debut this year as an Arena director. Velie, a graduate of the State University in Albany, has done graduate work at Cornell and is currently head of drama at Albany High. He has directed there and for the Albany Civic Theatre.

The third Arena production will be George Bernard Shaw's first play, WIDOWERS' HOUSES. In previous Arena seasons Shaw's ARMS AND THE MAN and TOO TRUE TO BE GOOD have been produced. James M. Leonard, in his fifth season of Arena, will direct the Shaw play which will run August 2-5. Last season Leonard directed Arena's opening presentation, a series of three original one-act plays billed as APHRODITE'66.

The final Arena production will be a double bill of plays by Eugene O'Neill and Harold Pinter, August 9-12. Directed by Jarka Burian will be O'Neill's HUGHIE and Pinter's THE DUMBWAITER. In past Arena seasons Burian has directed O'Neill's EMPEROR JONES and Pinter's THE BIRTHDAY PARTY, both outstanding Arena successes.

Technical operations in Arena will be supervised by Robert J. Donnelly and Jerome R. Hanley, both of whom are on the State University Theatre staff. Mr. Hanley will be technical director, and Mr. Donnelly will serve as designer. Rounding out the staff of the 1967 Arena will be Bonnee Scott, stage manager; William Frankonis, business; Theodor Lloyd Glazer, graphic design; James Lobdell, James Hoyle, David Golden, and Jeffrey Sultan, technical assistants.

Auditions for Arena will be held May 22, 23, 24 at 7:30 p.m. in The Richardson Studio Theatre (R-251) on the downtown campus. Casting is completely open to all residents of the Capital Area. Opportunities for working backstage are also available, and those interested are urged to sign up during the auditions. Inquiries about Arena should be addressed to Jarka M. The successful "Food for India" fast, sponsored at State University of New York by Albany's Sigma Tau Beta fraternity, resulted in over $1,313 being raised for the UNICEF fund for applied nutrition projects in India. The sum was collected in lieu of dinner last (Tuesday) evening when 1,764 students participated in support of the project, part of the national Student Food for India Drive. An undetermined amount was raised through direct contributions.

Barry Weinstein, of Ellenville, and James Winslow, of Kingston, both freshmen and co-chairmen of the project, were elated at the response of the students. "We, and our fraternity brothers, are both pleased and gratified that our efforts to lend a hand to those less fortunate in India have been so successful. Over half of our student body housed in the University dormitories elected to support this undertaking which we hope to conduct again at another time, possibly annually."

The check for the U. S. Committee for UNICEF will be made available from the University Food Service which has cooperated with the fraternity in its arrangements for the cost-equivalency of the fast. For each student who had given written notice of intent to omit dinner in behalf of the fund, 75 cents was made available. The drive was conducted with the support of the university's Central Council.

A broad record of the change in America's way of life has been received by the library of State University of New York at Albany.

Miss Alice Hastings, University librarian, recently accepted a complete set of microfilmed Sears catalogs from 1892 through 1967 from James R. Allison, general manager of Sears in Colonie.

Earliest catalog included in the collection is a watch catalog published in 1888, two years after Sears was founded. In addition, the microfilm set includes every general catalog published from 1892 through 1967. More than one mile of microfilm was required to photograph the catalog pages included in the collection.

In accepting the catalogs Miss Hastings said, "It will be a welcome addition to our collection of Americana. There will be many ways in which the material contained here can be used by students in several departments."

To keep the microfilm sets up to date, Sears has each new general catalog photographed on microfilm as it is published, and furnishes copies to the libraries and institutions which have complete sets. These are used by students, researchers and historians -- as well as Broadway and Hollywood producers -- as a guide to styles, furnishings and events of bygone years.

Two members of the art faculty at State University of New York at Albany have received purchase prizes for their works exhibited at the recent Convocation on the Arts held at Buffalo by State University of New York. They are Jack Bosson and Thomas O'Connor.

Mr. Bosson received $500 for his oil painting, "Untitled", and Mr. O'Connor, $85 for his lithograph, "Bierce in Mexico." The SUNYA faculty members are two of the sixteen State University artists so honored.

The purchased works are among the 36/^{art}works selected to form the nucleus of a State University art collection for the university's first traveling art exhibit. The exhibit, now at State University of New York at Binghamton, will be shown next at State University College of New York at New Paltz.

Chancellor Samuel B. Gould announced the winners of purchase awards totaling $10,000 from the Buffalo group in which were sculptures, graphics, photographs, and ceramics. The major exhibition of 78 works, from which the prize-winners were chosen, was selected by jurors from 415 entries through the various units of the university. During the convocation the entries were on view to the public at the Albright-Knox Art Gallery in Buffalo.

At the first meeting of the newly-formed Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociology society at State University of New York at Albany, Professor Everett V. Stonequist of Skidmore College, featured speaker, said that "the great problem of American sociologists is to learn to communicate with one another and with the public they serve."

Professor Stonequist illustrated his talk with accounts of his relationship with the prominent sociologists, Frank Hankins and Harry Elmer Barnes at Clark University, and with Robert E. Park, Ernest Burgess, William F. Ogburn and George Herbert Mead at the University of Chicago.

Honored with the first charter membership was Professor Theodore G. Standing. Others initiated as charter members of the chapter are Mrs. Jane I. DeSomma, Kayed Ibrahim Abdul Haq, Marcia S. Lembcke, Louise M. Morrisey, Vivian F. Palozzolo, Stephanie Panken, George E. Rusnak, Jr., Mrs. Margaret S. Shelton, Vincent S. Tremontana and Miss L. Wolfson. Members of other chapters who have affiliated with Kappa of New York are Professors Raymond Forer, Arnold Foster, Alicja Iwanska and Paul F. Wheeler, faculty members.

The meeting was held last week at the university's Campus Center.

Dr. Eugene Rabinowitch, noted biophysicist and editor of "Bulletin of the Atomic Scientist", will be presented in a lecture Thursday evening, June 1, by the division of science and mathematics of State University of New York at Albany. His address on "Peace and Development: The Two Challenges of the Scientific Revolution" is set for 8:30 in the ballroom of Campus Center.

In pointing out the importance of the lecture subject, Dr. Eugene H. McLaren, chairman of the science and mathematics division at SUNYA, said: "The contemporary explosion of science and technology has placed two challenges before mankind. One is to establish permanent peace on earth, because war with nuclear and other scientific weapons would be too destructive to use to settle disputes between nations. The other challenge is to close the gap between the 'rich' and the 'poor' nations. Introduction of elementary hygiene into the underdeveloped world has led to a population explosion, causing the gap to widen instead of closing. At the same time, new means of communication have made impossible further acceptance by the 'poor' nations of their stagnant existence. Unless the two challenges of peace and development are met, mankind will face within the next two decades the greatest dangers of its history."

Dr. Rabinowitch, whose lecture will be open to the public, has had a long-time interest in the importance of science in public affairs, paying particular attention to the impact of science on the future of man and society. He was awarded UNESCO's annual Kalinga Prize last year for popularization of science.

Two students at State University of New York at Albany, both sophomores, have won $500 grants for the summer to serve in an advisory capacity for the planning of the new State University College at Nassau. They are Barbara Weinstein, of Island Park, Long Island, and Michael J. Rosenberg, of Belle Harbor, Queens.

Each student applied for the grant, awarded by The Research Foundation of State University of New York, by writing an essay giving views, from a student's viewpoint, of how the new college at Old Westbury, L. I., should be conducted. Both were awarded the grants on the merits of their ideas which were expressed on a wide range of subjects.

The planning session will run for six weeks during which time traveling and board expenses related to the session will be provided. Tentative plans call for the new college to open in September 1968 when a beginning enrollment of 150 is expected.

Dr. Bernard K. Johnpoll, for many years a newspaperman and now associate professor at the Graduate School of Public Affairs, State University of New York at Albany, is the editor of a unique publication, "The Canadian News Index", a computerized listing of significant items from 13 newspapers in 10 Canadian provinces. Publisher of the book is the University of Saskatchewan, Regina.

Assistant editors are Dr. Bernard Zagorin, chairman of the history department at Saskatchewan, and A. Richard Allen, also of the Canadian university, who wrote the foreword. They state, "A cumulative index of major Canadian newspapers has long been the wistful hope of scholars in Canadian history and social science, not to mention among many others, librarians and the newspapers themselves. The task was obviously an awesome one. Ironically, but perhaps characteristically, it took an American political scientist to match a computer to the task and produce a plausible offspring.

At the time Dr. Johnpoll designed the project he was assistant professor at the Regina campus. Computer adviser was Lawrence L. Achtemichuk, of the same institution. Regular production of the new index is expected to begin sometime this year.

The sample index covers 13 newspapers chosen with considerations of province, ownership, and editorial policy in mind. The first full volume of the index proper will include three major French-Canadian newspapers, and shortly thereafter four further papers representing major population centers will be added. Once the current volumes are well underway indexing significant newspapers will be undertaken on a similar basis.

News indexed covers all significant Canadian news events, and is cross-indexed in as many as 12 categories depending on the scope of the item concerned. The entire task entails careful abstracting of between 300 to 500 stories per day, after duplicates have been eliminated. It is intended that the index give headline, source, date, page and column, and be published in bi-weekly volumes throughout the year.

In commenting on the origin of the work, Professor Johnpoll said, "In 1966 I began work on a study of Canadian government and politics. I again discovered that there was the same problem in using newspaper material: there was no index that could direct me to the proper section of the proper newspaper for a significant item of Canadian news."

Professor Johnpoll, an alumnus of Boston University, received his master of arts degree at Rutgers University and his doctoral degree from State University of New York at Albany.

Twenty-five original Ford Times magazine water color paintings, valued at approximately $4,800, will be presented to State University of New York at Albany Friday (May 25) by Ford Motor Company's Capital District Community Relations Committee.

The presentation, to take place at a luncheon program in the Patroon Room at Campus Center, will be made by Edward P. Winke, Ford Committee chairman. Accepting the paintings on behalf of the university will be Mrs. Lois H. Gregg, associate dean of students and chairman of the art coordination committee.

SUNYA is one of 22 educational institutions throughout the country selected this year to receive groups of 25 paintings from the Ford Times Art Library, considered the largest collection of regional art in the world. The paintings are donated for educational use and display purposes at the schools.

Also expected to participate in the presentation program are other members of the art coordination committee; Dr. Kenneth Doran, president of Alumni Association; Charles Bowler, director of alumni affairs; H. David Van Dyck, assistant to the president for public information; several artists living in nearby areas whose paintings are included; and other representatives from Ford Motor Company.

On the art coordination committee are Dr. Peter Benedict, Dr. Violet Larney, and Dr. John Overbeck, of the faculty; John Spross and Elizabeth Mickel, students; Dr. Clifton C. Thorne, vice president for student affairs; Mrs. Helen Relihan, Alumni Association; Walter M. Tisdale, assistant to the president for planning and development; Edward P. Cowley, Jr, chairman of the art department; Mrs. Nancy Liddle, Assistant director of the art gallery; and Miss Sue Rose, art director for the Campus Center.

Among the Ford Motor Company group will be Owen W. Bombard, publications manager on Ford's publications staff at Dearborn, Mich., who was graduated from State University of New York at Albany in 1943 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration.

Mr. Winke has stated that the company believes the Ford Times Art Collection represents one of the most significant contributions made to art education in American Schools." He commented "It is our hope that these original water colors will develop among our youth an even deeper appreciation of art and of the heritage of beauty which our part of the country affords."

The Ford Times Art Donation program was started in 1966 with gifts of 1,000 works of art valued at almost $150,000. Paintings are by artists living in every region of the country, many of them well known with works in major American galleries and museums.

Included in the paintings to be presented to SUNYA are "Ausable Chasm", by Ralph Avery, Rochester; "Grove Street", Greenwich Village", Ben Eisenstat, Morristown, N. J.; "Stern Castle, Irvington," Fred Zimmer, Columbus, O., and "Back Stretch and Stables", Harvey Kidder, Pleasantville.

Since its inception, the SUNYA art coordination committee has placed 41 original pieces of art work on campus. Also, 225 framed or mounted art posters have been placed in student lounge areas. A $1,000 painting was made possible by a gift from an alumna of SUNYA and an anonymous donor presented a painting by Emil Carlson completed in 1870. Additionally, the biology department has collected funds to help in Supported by federal funds, a regional institute for the improvement of skills of those concerned with the education of adult functional illiterates will be held this summer at State University of New York at Albany. More than 100 teachers from New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New York will attend the institute being conducted in conjunction with New Jersey State Teachers College at Montclair.

Approximately $70,000 will be made available through the National University Extension Association, in cooperation with the U. S. Office of Education, Adult Basic Education Branch, for the institute July 24 - August 11 on SUNYA's uptown campus. The institute's program will not offer academic credit but participants will be stipended.

Dr. John Ether, professor of education and director of the project for the education of the disadvantaged, will be administrative director. Daniel Ganeles, associate professor of education and associate director of the special education project, will be program director. Curriculum specialist will be Joseph Magano, assistant state director of adult basic education New York State. Chief evaluator will be Raymond Ast, of the Montclair college faculty and serving as reading specialist will be Joseph Porter, graduate student in the doctoral program in reading at SUNYA.

The newly-formed program provides for the appointment at the Albany university of a staff specialist who will teach courses in the subject area and, additionally, will serve as consultant to state directors, local adult basic education administrators, and teachers in the region. Emphasis will be on methodology, stressing the use of video equipment and technical aids. Main objective of the special preparation of selected teachers will be to enable them to assist adults in overcoming English language limitations.

Applications are now being received at State University of New York at Albany for the fellowship award established at the university by the New York State Teachers Association to honor its former director, Dr. Arvid J. Burke. The $1,000 fellowship will be awarded to an outstanding doctoral student in the field of educational administration at SUNYA.

To qualify for the fellowship, an applicant must be a resident of New York State, a teacher who has taught in the state or is the son or daughter of such a teacher, one planning a career in public education admissable to doctoral study in education administration.

From a list of candidates recommended by the School of Education an award committee will select the fellowship recipient. On the committee are Dr. Howard Goold, executive secretary, New York State Teachers Association; Dr. Ward Edinger, professor of education and director of the department of educational administration in the School of Business, SUNYA; and Dr. Edgar W. Flinton, dean of the School of Graduate Studies at SUNYA.

Interested applicants are advised to apply also for a local fellowship which may be held concurrently with the Burke fellowship. Dr. Randolph S. Gardner, Dean of the School of Education, will accept applications until June 15 for consideration for the 1967-68 academic year.

Dr. Edgar W. Flinton, acting dean of the School of Library Science at State University of New York at Albany, has announced receipt of a grant award of $52,160 for training in librarianship under Title II - B of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

The award, in part, established eight fellowships in library science with a stipend of $ 2,200 and waiver of tuition for the academic year, 1967-68. The number is double the total of fellowships raised last year by the school.

Appropriate allowances for dependents and travel also are available to each qualified recipient of a fellowship. Finally, required continuing study in the summer, 1968, for each holder of a fellowship can be supported in an amount up to $450, plus waiver of tuition and appropriate dependency allowances.

Interested applicants are advised to consult School of Library Science for additional information and necessary forms by June 30.

About 500 persons are expected to attend Alumni Day at State University of New York at Albany on Saturday, June 10, when all events will be held on the uptown campus. Guest speakers will include Dr. Evan R. Collins, president, and Dr. Samuel B. Gould, chancellor of State University of New York.

The program will open with a cafeteria breakfast at the Dutch Quadrangle dining room to be followed by registration and coffee in the ballroom area of Campus Center. President Collins and Chancellor Gould will speak at the business meeting session set for 11 a. m. in the ballroom after which lunch will be served in the cafeteria.

Tours of the campus will be conducted in the afternoon. Additionally, there will be movies in the center's assembly hall and visits to various lounges. Starting at 3:30, the president and faculty reception will take place at the fountain area in front of Campus Center. Social hours and dinners for reunioning classes will begin at 4:30. The traditional torchlight ceremony will take place on the academic podium, in front of Campus Center.

Mrs. Paul Bulger, Class of 1934 and Alumni Day chairman, in her message to alumni, states, "You have the opportunity to make this Alumni Day a historical highlight in the long history of the Alumni Association. For the first time, the complete program will take place on the new campus designed by Edward Durell Stone. The situation is changing and challenging; there is an excitement to be captured only by being here."

Alumni Day vice chairmen are Kenneth Schoomaker '54 and Arthur Soderlind '47. Registration co-chairmen are Genevieve Shorey Moore '34 and Ruth Hilkert Gaffga '35, and Janet Busacker Mathews '41 is luncheon chairman. Association officers are Kenneth Thirty high school junior and seniors, participants in the Action for Cultural Enrichment (ACE) program conducted by State University of New York at Albany, will be guests at a seminar conference on the uptown campus Saturday, May 27, when they will learn about college admission and financial aids procedures.

The students are among nearly 70 from schools in Amsterdam, Mechanicville, and Rensselaer who have been taking part in the ACE program supported by federal funds and by the university. Mrs. Rhoda Ringle, staff member at SUNYA for the project on special education for the disadvantaged, is administrator of the program. Throughout the year 17 SUNYA students have served as tutors in the program and have visited the three participating schools to establish relationships with the younger students.

At Saturday's program, Frank G. Krivo, director of admissions, will address the group meeting at Campus Center. A question period will follow and then Donald Whitlock, director of financial aids, will discuss varieties of financial assistance available to students. His informal talk will be followed also by a question and answer session.

After a conducted tour of the campus, lunch will be in the Campus Center cafeteria. Later Mrs. Ringle will conduct a general meeting with the ACE students who also will meet with their tutors.

Dr. Earl G. Droessler, vice president for research at State University of New York at Albany, has been elected a trustee-at-large of the University Corporation for Atmospheric Research, the board of which serves as the management group for the National Center for Atmospheric Research at Boulder, Colo. His term is for three years.

Supported by the Federal government, mostly through the National Science Foundation, NCAR has a $10.7 million budget for the current fiscal year. It was established in 1960 to conduct and to foster basic research in the atmospheric sciences and to work toward increasing the effectiveness of the atmospheric sciences as a whole.

Requirement for membership within the UCAR is an approved doctoral program in the atmospheric sciences. Each participating university, of which there are now 23, in the corporation names an administrative representative and a scientist to corporate membership. From these, 12 institutional trustees are selected to serve on the board. Others are three trustees-at-large and one trustee ex officio; namely, the director of NCAR. Dr. A. Richard Kassander, Jr., director of the Institute for Atmospheric Physics at the University of Arizona, currently is chairman of the board.

Dr. Droessler, who came to SUNYA last year, formerly was head of the Section on Atmospheric Sciences, National Science Foundation. He has served as a member of the National Academy of Sciences Delegation to International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics Congresses at Oslo, Rome, Montreal, Helsinki, and San Francisco. He is a Fellow of the American Geophysical Union for which he has chaired several committees. Dr. Droessler also has served as chairman of a number of American
