68 STUDENTS MAKE YEAR'S HONOR ROLL

LIST IS NOT COMPLETE

Other Students To Be Named When Make-up Tests Are Finished

Four present seniors, six juniors and one sophomore attained high honors for the college year 1927-28, according to a list announced today by Miss Elizabeth Van Denburgh, registrar.

Fifty-seven attained the honor roll, according to the incomplete list announced today. Other names will be added when grades for make-up examinations are filed, it was said.

The honor students are: Evelyn Baxter, Evangeline Calkins, Elenore G. Campbell, G. LaVrue Carr, Emily Curles, Dora Dadmun, Marion Fox, Dorothy Gale, Florence M. Gormley, Alice J. Hills, Lenore Hutchinson, Leona Jewell, seniors.

This list is for the whole year, and not for just the second semester. To attain high honors, an average of 2.5 is required, and for honors the requirement is an average standing of 2, or more, but less than 2.5.

To be eligible, a student must carry at least fifteen hours of work, and must earn credit in every course taken. The averages are determined by dividing the number of honor points by the number of semester hours.

WOLNER WILL CAPTAIN VARSITY DEBATE TEAM

Robert T. Ross, '29; Emanuel Green, '30; Louis J. Wolner, '30, and George P. Rice, '32, were chosen members of the men's varsity debate team at the try-outs conducted by the debate council Friday afternoon. Ross was named alternate and Wolner was elected captain.

Lenore G. S. Hutchinson, '29; Wilhelmina Schneider, '31; Gladys Hungerford, '31; and Audrey O'Rady, '31, were chosen members of the women's varsity.

Stanley F. Heason, head of the history department of the Albany High School, and Ray Cecil Carter, chairman of the English department of the same school, and president of the National Forensic League, were judges. Louis M. Klein, '29, president of the debate council presided as chairman of the try-outs.

Contestants spoke for five minutes on either the affirmative or negative side of the subject, "Resolved, That the United States co-operate with Canada in improving the St. Lawrence river from Lake Ontario to Montreal for navigation and power purposes."

"No definite date has been set for the women's debate with the team from the St. Lawrence University," Klein said. "The time of the contest will be settled at the end of the month," he declared.

Will Read Poetry

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY EXPECT MANY TO HEAR POET THURSDAY NIGHT

A large audience of students and faculty as well as many residents of the Capitol District are expected to attend the reading of poems by Edna St. Vincent Millay, poet, Thursday night.

The reading, which is under the auspices of the Dramatic and Art association, will be at Chancellors hall at 8:30 o'clock.

Among the faculty who are expected to attend are President A. R. Brubacher and Mrs. Brubacher, Dr. Harry W. Hastings and Mrs. Hastings, Miss Helen M. Phillips, Miss Minnie B. Scotland, Miss Hazel Rowley, Miss Ellen Stokes, Miss Katherine E. Wheeling, and others.

Besides being noted for her poetry, Miss Millay is well known as the author of the libretto of "The King's Henchman" which was produced in New York city last two years ago. It was hailed by critics as the leading American opera.

She is a graduate of Vassar College, and is thirty-six years old. Her poetic career began early, for she wrote her first works for St. Nicholas Magazine. She received her first recognition when "The Lyric Year" was published in 1912. At Vassar, Miss Millay won a cup in an intercollegiate poetry contest.

40 ANSWER CALL FOR GIRLS' HOCKEY TEAMS

Forty girls have enrolled for participation in the hockey contest being conducted by representatives of the four classes. The four class teams are expected to play one another.

Among the girls out for practices are: Caroline M. Schlich, Bettina Azzarito, and Evelyn McNickle, seniors; Ethel Grundhofer, Katherine Watkins, Ann Moore, Mildred Appleton, Winifred Van Salisbury, Julaha Dempsey, Eleanor Brown, and Winifred Prinean, juniors; Margaret Gussler, Beatrice Van Steenburgh, Marion Gilbert, Frances A. Peck, Jane Schlick, Catherine R. Norris, Made Line Hayes, Virginia Brunner, Margaret Pennington, Pauline Baker, Jean Minkin, and Martha Norwood, sophomores.

ASSEMBLIES PROGRAM

Judge Daniel J. Dugan will address the first assembly today on citizenship as a part of the program of national education week. He will also speak concerning Armistice day, which will be Sunday.

Dr. Charles H. Johnson, president of the Albany Rotary club, who was last week announced as the speaker for today, cancelled the engagement. He was a guest at a dinner in New York city last night, and would not have been able to reach Albany in time today to address the assembly.

Dean Anna E. Pierce will address the freshmen in the third of a series of lectures.

REVOTE TODAY FOR PEDAGOGUE HONORS

Student Who Has Done Most For College Will Be Elected By Assemblies

THREE REMAIN IN RACE

Miss Gormley, Shillinglaw And French Receive High Votes In First Poll

What senior has done the most for State College during his three years of participation in undergraduate activities here?

A revote will be conducted today in student assemblies to determine whether that senior is Florence M. Gormley, William M. French or Robert J. Shillinglaw.

The vote conducted last week by editors of the Pedagogue, senior year book, resulted in a tie among the three seniors, and a revote will be conducted in both assemblies today under the supervision of Josephine Brown, editor in chief of the annual.

All three nominees are members of Miskania, membership in which is conferred for leadership in undergraduate activities. All three are also editors in chief, Miss Gormley editing the new literary magazine; Shillinglaw, the State Lion, and French, the STATE COLLEGE NEWS.

All three candidates are teaching in the Milne High School. Miss Gormley is teaching fourth year English; Shillinglaw, biology, and French, American history.

Students were last week elected to be honorees of most beautiful, most charming, most popular man, most popular coed. The winners will be announced in a special feature section of the Pedagogue.

TRADITIONS ARE SILLY, MISS BLEECKER AVERS

Traditions at State College are not of the sort to command respect of freshmen, a tradition breaker in that class holds. The tradition breaker is Sue Bleecker, '32, who two weeks ago was made to apologize in student assemblies for continued intransigence of traditions.

"I always thought that traditions of a college were something beautiful, something to be cherished and remembered all one's life," Miss Bleecker said.

"But here the traditions which are most emphasized and called to the attention of freshmen are the silly and childish ones."

"Some of this sort of thing is alright, but sophomores are so overwhelmed by their new authority that they are carrying things to extremes. To them, making freshmen obey their rules is business, rather than fun."

Tepedino Is Awaiting Trial For Slaying Of Wallwork; Murder Follows Political Altercation At Dormitory

Charged with murder of Clinton Wallwork, well known student, in a political altercation, Michael Tepedino is today awaiting his trial before Judge David Hutchinson.

The complaint for Tepedino's arrest was issued this week by John F. Kennedy, prosecuting attorney. Israel Kaplan, who is reputed to be adept in the forensic ability, has been retained by the alleged murderer as chief counsel for the defense.

Wallwork was found in bed, strangled to death by several coils of picture wire, Saturday morning.

It is charged that Tepedino committed the murder to prevent Wallwork's returning to his home in Wappingers Falls to vote Tuesday.

They engaged in a heated argument over the political situation Friday night.

Who Has Done Most?

MISS FLORENCE GORMLEY

SEEK TO RESTRICT UBIQUITOUS VOTING

Amendment Will Be Proposed In Assemblies To Define Voting Places

MEASURE IS ENDORSED

Miss Graves Believes It Will Be Valuable In Preventing More Disputes

To clearly define places where student association elections and voting upon constitutional changes may be conducted, an amendment to the student association constitution will be introduced in both assemblies today.

The proposed amendment will provide that all voting upon changes to the constitution, or election of student association officers must be conducted in regular meetings of the association unless a regular meeting of the association authorizes the president to conduct voting in another designated place.

Evelyn Graves, '29, president of the student association, believes that the adoption of the amendment will remove from questioning any votes to be conducted in other places than the association meetings. She pointed out this week that its adoption will clarify the status of voting in the rotunda, a procedure which was questioned last week in the first assembly.

Florence M. Gormley, '29, regarded last week as one of the staunch defenders of the alleged ratification of the new constitution, has endorsed the new amendment. "It will settle all disputes and will provide for any emergency that may arise," Miss Gormley said this week.

Proposed Amendment

The amendment will be proposed today by William M. French, '29, editor in chief of the STATE COLLEGE NEWS. Under a clause of the new constitution, legalized last week, all amendments to the constitution must be proposed and voted two weeks before a final vote is taken. Students may vote upon the proposed amendment two weeks from today, November 23. A majority vote will be required to make the amendment a part of the constitution.

The proposed amendment, which will be read in both assemblies this week, follows:

"All voting for officers of the student association or upon any proposed change to this constitution shall be in regular meetings of the association and by secret ballot, except as hereinafter provided.

"Action on officers of the association or upon proposed changes to this constitution may be conducted at other places within the college than in regular meetings only with the express authorization of the association."

G. A. A. PLANS FROLIC IN GYM FRIDAY NIGHT

The first gym frolic of the Girls' Athletic association which will take place next Friday night will be a senior-sophomore party. One of the events will be a faculty-student basketball game. All who attend are requested to wear middie and bloomers.

The committee in charge of the frolic is headed by Evelyn McNickle, '29. The rest of the committee includes: Frances A. Peck, '31, arrangements; Alice Bingham, '29, games; Ruth Hughes, '31, stunts; Catherine R. Norris, '31, refreshments; Jane Schlick, '31, decorations, and Ethel Grundhofer, '30, publicity.

TAKE CLASS PICTURES TODAY FOR PEDAGOGUE

Group pictures of all four classes will be taken today in front of Draper Hall, following the two assemblies, Josephine Brown, '29, editor in chief of the Pedagogue, announced today.

Pictures of the senior, junior and sophomore classes will be taken following the first assembly. Pictures of the freshman class will be taken following the second assembly. Miss Brown has asked that all students be prompt in appearing.

THE DANGEROUS PRECEDENT REMAINS

With the decision of the student association in the first assembly last week, the STATE COLLEGE NEWS does not quarrel. The end at which the NEWS was aiming was accomplished, if not by the means advocated by the NEWS.

But the dangerous precedent remains. The prime reason for the NEWS' opposition to the alleged ratification was that this paper believes a dangerous precedent was being established.

The NEWS believes that the vote in assembly last week legitimized the right of the student association officers to conduct votes by personal solicitation.

It may be admitted that the circumstances last spring were unusual, and that no other method was open to the officers. It may be admitted that they did their duty as they saw it.

Nevertheless, the dangerous precedent of voting in other than customary places was set last week. This is a potential danger to student democracy here.

Furthermore, it is unnecessary while there exists regular methods of voting in assemblies. If students were choosing, would they prefer to vote in assemblies for that purpose, or be accosted in the halls?

The purpose of this editorial is not to scold the student association for its action last week. That action is past, and the sooner dropped, the better.

But the NEWS today advocates the adoption of an amendment to the now legal constitution. This amendment would define the method and place of voting.

This suggested amendment is approved by the president of the student association and by other defenders of the alleged ratification. When the two conflicting sides in the battle of last week agree upon this proposed amendment, it warrants careful consideration by the association.

This amendment will safeguard the voting of the association and will at the same time provide legally and constitutionally for such emergencies as were said to exist last spring. And with the adoption of such an amendment, the whole constitutional imbroglio may be said to have terminated. State may then return to normalcy.

ON PEDAGOGUE PICTURES

With a photographic studio in one of the college buildings, there is little or no reason for the delay manifested by certain students who have neglected to have their pictures taken for publication in the Pedagogue.

Sittings may be arranged in three periods, with two taking place every fifteen minutes. The inconvenience of sitting two hours or more to go to a local studio is null. The board of the annual, by setting up a studio in the college, has sought to serve the students.

MISS MILLAY NO "PIG IN BAG"

When the Dramatic and Art association presents Edna St. Vincent Millay in a reading next Thursday night, it will be presenting a known quantity. Miss Millay is well known as a poet, and is acquiring a reputation as a reader of poetry, though she is still not widely experienced in the reading.

The program is expected to be far more acceptable than the one in which the association presented a figurative "pig in a bag" a few weeks ago, in the appearance of a certain Mrs. Scott, representing the Theatre Guild.

By presenting Miss Millay next week, the association is attempting to erase from its record the sponsoring of an unknown quantity. Miss Millay, without a doubt, will prove interesting. Those interested in her particular sort of literature will enjoy the reading.

ARE STRAW VOTES WORTHLESS?

Our distinguished contemporary, the Concordiensis, student publication of Union College, would have us believe that straw votes are worthless. They are "as reliable a prediction of the outcome of an election as is a dope-sheet in figuring a horse race".

The NEWS flatters itself that its straw vote served a purpose. It did not, of course, prove that New York would vote for Hoover; it did not prove that Smith would be swamped in a landslide; it did not prove that all those who voted in the NEWS' straw vote were eligible to vote.

Perhaps the greatest value of straw votes in an institution of this sort is to stimulate civic thinking on the part of potential voters. Granted that many voted without thinking, granted that many voted as their ancestors have voted; we maintain, though, that a straw vote is valuable in stimulating civic thinking.

Then, too, it is but human to attempt prognostication. It may not be extremely worthwhile to forecast the weather as one arises each day. But, our dear Concordiensis, it's done even in the best of societies.

We wonder to just what extent our grapes influenced our contemporary to attack straw votes. With the howling success that the NEWS' vote proved to be, we are a bit tempted to defend the traditional institution.

"BENJAMIN FRANKLIN OF PARIS" IS LIGHT VOLUME OF HIS SOCIAL LIFE

By W.M.F.

Benjamin Franklin of Paris. By Willis Steel, 277 pages, $3.50. New York: Minton, Balch and Company.

It was quite inevitable that sooner or later Benjamin Franklin must be "popularized" by one of the new school of biographers. Phillips Russell did it to a certain extent in his Benjamin Franklin, the First Civilized American.

Franklin is pictured among the intellectuals of France, in whose company it is said that he attained the full maturity of his philosophy and genius. Certainly, the adulations showered upon him by the French would bring out the best in any man of similar make-up.

The Story of Oriental Philosophy. By L. Adams Beck, 492 pages, $5. New York: Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

When Mark Twain wrote his life of Jeanne d'Arc, the world read and reread it to find the humor. It was inconceivable that he should write something serious. But Mark stuck to his guns, and his biographers would have us believe that it was his favorite work.

Would you be a detective for a night? Have you ever felt the urge to solve crimes of great importance? Perhaps you have suppressed your desire under volumes upon volumes of detective stories.

There is a volume of thirty-two detective stories in which the reader plays the part of the detective. All the evidence is included in the stories, but he must put two and two together. Sometimes the reader gets four and sometimes five, the reviewer finds. Of course, if the reader doesn't want to worry out the solution and bring the criminal to justice, he can find the answers sealed in a little envelope in the back of the volume.

The authors have woven many of the tales from incidents that have happened in real life. The "Vanishing Napoleon" is without doubt built upon the loss of Lowenstein, the mysterious financier of Belgium, from his airplane in crossing the English channel.

It is fortunate for the authors that they hit upon the bright scheme of adding novelty to the book. It will boost the sales which might otherwise characterize a just so so book, one without any particular reason for being printed. But with the added element of mystery, the public will bite.

English Students Do Not Have Cafeterias, But May Serve Themselves Beer And Cheese, Miss Keim Finds

Daily afternoon tea, interspersed with smoking and chatting, mark one of the features of the routine of the college life of students in England, according to Miss Anna Randolph Keim, assistant professor of home economics, who has just returned from a year's absence abroad.

Miss Keim noticed that the students in England eat much more meat at their dinners than is the custom in America. This she attributes to colder environmental conditions. "Dinners," she said, "usually consist of meat and potatoes finished up with a tart or 'trifle' as they call it. Fruit is their dessert. They eat less salads than we do, I think."

Cafeterias are very rare in England. The nearest thing to a cafeteria is the afternoon tea which the students serve themselves. If the students want anything like cheese and beer, which is a common little repast, Miss Keim noticed, they go to one part of what is called the bar, where these can be procured. Hot dishes, however, are served by maids. The persons in charge of the dining rooms are known as stewards.

Miss Keim attended lectures on psychology at the University of London and also took several courses on the study of historic costumes and interior decorating.

The school year, she said, is divided up into three terms of from eight to ten weeks each. These terms are made up of quite a marked degree of concentrated studies along specialized lines. Between each term is a vacation of about four weeks, shortly designated as the "Vac." The students supposedly study during these periods also but Miss Keim admitted that she noticed very little studying then. "A variety of athletics form part of the activities of the school terms," said Miss Keim, "and almost every one takes part in some form of athletics. Dramatics also play a large part, reminding me a great deal of our own college."

SHORT NEWS NOTES

70 Expected At Newman Dance

Fifty residents of Newman hall and their guests are expected to attend the annual fall dance of the club house tomorrow night. The gymnasium of the hall will be decorated to represent a corn, carrying out the idea of a harvest dance.

Jane Conboy, vice president of the hall, is general chairman. The committee members are: music and floor, Doris Williams, '30; programs, Winifred Apel, '31; refreshments, Bettina Azzarito, '29; chaperones, Margaret McTime, '29; decorations, Kathryn Webster, '30. The Forrest Willis orchestra will play.

Pedagogue Has 400 Pictures

Four hundred pictures have been taken for the Pedagogue, according to Josephine Brown, '29, editor-in-chief. Miss Brown said, "It is requested that students sign up immediately for sittings because the time allotted for the Pedagogue contract will expire tomorrow."

Diphtheria Quarantine Lifted

With the quarantine on Alden Hall lifted Saturday, the two students who were confined to a room on the first floor of the hall are now attending classes again.

The two girls are Gladys Nickerson, '30, and Irene Dickinson, '31. They have been allowed to return to their rooms after more than a week of segregation from other students living in the hall.

Alice Frederick, '31, who is confined to the Albany Hospital, is reported to be recovering, but will be detained there for at least two more weeks.

Miss Futterer Will Read

Miss Agnes E. Futterer, instructor in English, read Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan" in Hudson Friday night. She is scheduled to give a reading at Saratoga Springs this month.

Jorority Moves To New House

Epsilon Beta Phi is occupying for the first time, a house at 282 Yates street. The society was organized in 1926 and has twenty-two members. The officers of the society are: president, Phyllis Ulmer, '31; vice president, Mary Conner, '31; secretary, Dorothy C. Allen, '31; treasurer, Dorothy Rodda, '30; and reporter, Helen Clinton, '31.

Phi Alpha Tau Has New Member

Phi Alpha Tau welcomes Esther Eckstein, '31, into full membership. Phi Alpha Tau entertained O.E.U. Crossman, '28, and Elizabeth Friend, '28, during the week end.

Fencing Classes To Admit Men

Men will be allowed to attend fencing instruction classes in the gymnasium, according to Natalie French, '30, president of the fencing club.

Russell Lawrence is instructor. At present, approximately thirty girls are receiving instruction.

All applicants must furnish their own tools and masks. These may be obtained at reduced rates through Miss French.

"Philosophers' Club" Disbanded

Discontinuance of the "Philosophers' Club" was announced today by Professor Richmond H. Kirtland, of the education department. This organization was started two years ago, with a group of students who met at his home for Sunday night sessions. The reason given by Professor Kirtland is his removal to his farm near Clarksville, approximately fifteen miles from Albany.

COMMUNICATIONS

Editor, STATE COLLEGE NEWS: I would like to know had a better experience than mine, I had often wondered at the relative value of certain courses offered and required in State College.

In last Friday's assembly the previous question was moved, seconded, and stated, after which inquiry was made by the president to determine if the students understood the motion. A chorus of "no's" greeted the inquiry.

But consider similar occurrences in past assemblies when not only this but other fundamental matters of parliamentary procedure were incomprehended. Consider the confusion and consequent loss of time resulting from this untimely and unbecoming interruption.

Consider the possible influence upon a final vote result of a large number of votes cast in ignorance. Which is better, a trained minority or a well-informed majority leading the action of our assemblies?

Non-considerations may not stop even here. They may predict that time when students will be teachers in situations where the knowledge of which I speak will be a real asset.

But what has this to do with my original question? In the curriculum claim will be found a course in public speaking, in which may be obtained knowledge and practice of rules of order. It is a worthy course, but a student is making out his next year's schedule some English '9. "That's not what I need." "Then, his voice wavered, "I thought, I've got to make a representation of different forms of foreign language. Well, the arguments are all in favor of the curriculum proposals." P. I. W. '29

TECHNIQUE PERFECT,
LISTENER-IN WRITES

By LISTENER-IN
With a supremely artistic interpretation of its program and encores, the Flonzaley quartet played a fitting farewell to its State College audience in Chancellor's hall Friday night. The program was unusually well unified, with but three composers represented.

The first number was the Beethoven "Quartet in A major, Opus 18, No. 5." No words are necessary when one speaks of this work.

The second number was Schubert's "Death and the Maiden", played in honor of this great composer, the hundredth anniversary of whose death falls on the nineteenth of this month. The quartet's playing of this was supremely artistic. Its encore was another Schubert number.

The climax of the evening was Glazunov's "Quartet in D major, Opus 1." This amazing work was written when the great Russian composer was but sixteen years of age. As an encore the quartet played the exquisitely lovely "Interpolium in Mode Antico", the third of Glazunov's "Five Novelties" - a perfect ending to a perfect concert.

The Flonzaley quartet will be remembered for its faultless technique, perfect ensemble, and matchless interpretation. They are among the greatest of the great, and the world of music is losing a possession of which it has been justly proud, in the retirement of the Flonzaley quartet.

The Music association would have great difficulty in presenting a more popular program than that of Friday night.

If Heel Is Lost, Borrow Shoe;
Miss Ubelle Gets Pair To Fit
Practice teachers must "carry on" whether they possess heels for their shoes, or not. This is the code of Helena Ubelle, '29, who wasn't "stumped" this week by the loss of a heel but a few minutes before her time to teach American history to a class of six Milne High School seniors.

Upon losing her heel, Miss Ubelle began looking at the shoes of other students in the corridor. After attempting to wear four pairs proffered by students, Miss Ubelle finally found a pair that fit reasonably well. And with the borrowed pair, Miss Ubelle proceeded to her class, to relieve another practice teacher who had temporarily taken the class. The girl who lent her shoes to Miss Ubelle sat on a bench until her return. Miss Ubelle modestly refuses to divulge the name of the sacrifice to the cause of teaching. Shoes non sua, sed docendi causa.

The accident to Miss Ubelle's heel happened as she was descending the narrow stairway of Draper Hall from the history office. Both she and Martha J. Albright, quiz instructor in history, are reported to have lost their armful of books down the stairs when the heel fell off.

An etching by Miss Eunice A. Perine, instructor in fine arts, will be among the features of the new literary and art magazine to be issued before Thanksgiving, according to Florence M. Gornley, '29, editor-in-chief. An accompanying article has been written by Ethel Grundhofer, '30.

Other features of importance are book reviews, many prose articles, and some unusually good poetry, Miss Gornley said.

Among the contributors for the first issue are Georgianna King, '29; Warren Cochran, Ethel Grundhofer and Eunice Gilbert, juniors; Jean Gillespie, '31; Helen Mead and Ernest Booth, freshmen.

Five issues will be printed during the year at regular intervals.

SOPHOMORES TO PLAN

TO OFFER AMENDMENT TO NEW CONSTITUTION

of the student association. Such authorization shall be by a two-thirds vote of those members of the association present at the regular meeting in which it is proposed.

The proposal of the amendment follows the assertion of Louis J. Wolner, '30, in assembly last week to the effect that the tacit acceptance of the alleged ratification of the new constitution would set a "dangerous precedent" and would be a peril to student democracy. He charged that other precedents have been set by the student association, and are now regarded as a part of its routine.

The association voted to uphold the decision of Miss Graves in declaring the ratification as carried out last spring by personal solicitation, legal. The whole period of the first assembly was taken by debate over the appeal to the association of the chair's decision.

2 FACULTY MEMBERS WILL BE PRESIDENTS

Two faculty members were elected to head sectional meetings of teachers at the recent convention of teachers in Schenectady. Miss Elizabeth F. Shaver, supervisor of practice teaching in history, was elected president of the Capitol District Teachers' association. Dr. Harry W. Hastings, chairman of the English department, is president of a similar association for teachers of English.

DR. THOMPSON WILL GET SIGNAL HONOR

Organists' National Association To Have Dinner Thursday For Composer

Dr. Harold W. Thompson, professor of English, will be the guest at a dinner to be given in his honor by the National Association of Organists in New York city, Thursday. The dinner is being given Dr. Thompson in recognition of his ten years of service as contributing editor of the journal of the association. Preceding the honorary dinner, he will be the principal speaker at a conference. The subject for his address will be "Standards of Church Music and Anthem."

Being tendered a dinner by the association is regarded by organists as a distinct honor. It is usually reserved for only visiting foreign musicians of note.

Following the dinner will be the first New York performance of the cantata "The Four Horsemen" the words of which were written by Dr. Thompson, and the music by Dr. T. Frederick H. Candlyn, instructor in music. This number has been used with success in many of the leading churches in the country. It will be sung in the Fourth Presbyterian Church by a combined choir, composed of the choir of that church and of the choir of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church. After the rendition of the cantata, Dr. Candlyn will play the best movement from his popular organ sonata "Sonata Dramatica." This composition took the first prize in the nationwide contest conducted by the National Association of Organists in 1927.

Dr. Candlyn was also tendered a dinner last year by the association in honor of his prize-winning composition.

In addition to their connections with the National Association of Organists, Dr. Thompson and Dr. Candlyn have both been deans of the Eastern New York chapter of the Guild of American Organists. Dr. Thompson was recently organist of the First Presbyterian Church of this city and Dr. Candlyn is now organist of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Albany.

FRESHMEN WILL BUY BANNER FOR RIVALRY

Sophomore-freshman rivalry will begin as soon as the freshmen have purchased their banner, according to Russell W. Ludlum, sophomore president.

Five points will be awarded to the winner of the rivalry. The men will be in charge of the banner first semester, according to tradition.

Mary Alexander has been appointed chairman of a committee to purchase the freshman banner, Katherine Traver, president of the freshman class, announced. The other members are: Edward Merry and Dorothy McGinniss.

PLAN SUNDAY VESPERS

37 MEN BEGIN STUDY OF HYGIENE TUESDAY

The men's hygiene class began Tuesday under the instruction of Dr. C. Caroline Crossdale, professor of hygiene and college physician. Thirty-seven men compose the class.

The class will use the same textbook that has been in use for the last two years, "Hygiene" by Dr. Florence L. Meredith.

NEWS TAKES PART IN PRESS MEETING

Two Board Members To Attend Session For Journalists Next Week

Two student journalists of State College will take part in a discussion of problems of common interest to editors and business managers of the more than 400 college newspapers in the United States at a conference of leaders in student journalism at Purdue University, next Friday and Saturday.

The STATE COLLEGE NEWS will be represented by William M. French, '29, editor in chief, and Thomas P. Fallon, '29, business manager.

Among the problems to be discussed are the formation of an intercollegiate co-operative news bureau and the policy of student newspapers toward the adoption of rotogravure sections as syndicated by a national corporation.

Both Fallon and French will be the guests of Theta chapter of Kappa Delta Phi, their fraternity whose Gamma chapter is located at State College. They expect to leave Albany Wednesday afternoon, arriving in Cleveland the next morning for a visit to the school of education of Western Reserve University. They will arrive in West Lafayette, Indiana, where Purdue University is located, late Thursday.

The conferences will begin early Friday morning, with special sections for editors and others for business managers. A military ball will be given for the delegates Friday night, following a formal dinner.

The conferences are under the auspices of the National College Press association, of which the STATE COLLEGE NEWS is a member.

GIRLS GET SWIMMING INSTRUCTION TODAY

Swimming classes for girls will begin Tuesday night at Bath 3, Central avenue, and Ontario street.

Four classes will be conducted under the auspices of the Girls' Athletic association. These classes include one for beginners in swimming and diving; a class for advanced swimmers, one for advanced divers and a fourth in life saving.

"Every girl who automatically becomes a member of Girls' Athletic association upon payment of her student tax is eligible to attend," Louise E. Trask, '30, swimming captain said today. Miss Trask will be assisted by Esther Waters, '30, and Irene Hicks, '31.

3 FRESHMEN IN CAST OF PLAY FOR NOV. 20

The next play to be presented by the advanced dramatics class will be Tuesday night, November 20. The cast includes Marjorie Longmuir, '32, Robert Rankins, '32; Charles Kissam, '32, and Katherine Webster, '30.

The play is a story of drab New England life colored by an Irish romance.
