

Correction to the Minutes of March 14, 2005

The changes pertain to the UPC report.

The last sentence in the Discussion on the motion currently reads:

The motion was approved; the current policy will be extended for one year, through the 06-07 academic year.

Revised text:

The motion was approved; the suspension of classes in recognition of Muslim Holidays will be extended for one year, through the 05-06 academic year.

Discussion: On May 3, 2004, the Senate approved a motion to accept the suspension of classes in recognition of Muslim Holidays for the 2004-05 academic year, while Senate Bill Number 0304-28 was sent back to ULC. No change in the calendar policy concerning suspension of classes on religious holidays was approved on that day. Consistent with the May 3, 2004, motion, the 05-06 academic calendar (as posted on the UA website), does not include suspension of any classes in recognition of Muslim Holidays. The approved one-year extension therefore requires appropriate changes in the 05-06 academic year calendar, and does not apply to the 06-07 academic year. For purposes of formulating a preliminary calendar for the 06-07 academic year, the policy governing the calendar prior to the 2004-05 academic year remains in force, unless the Senate passes legislation requiring an alternative calendar.
