MANDELA-INSPIRED DRAMATIC WORK TO HIGHLIGHT MUSIC FEST

The Festival of 20th Century Music - 1992 will be held on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 20 & 21, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center.

"Jazz and Classical Music" is the first night's theme in the Main Theatre, and features the premiere performance of Charles Dvorak's Amandla Mandela, inspired by jazz legend John Coltrane's ballad "Alabama" and the speeches of South Africa's Nelson Mandela. A narration will be supplied by University President H. Patrick Swygert.

Also on Thursday's program will be Leonard Bernstein's Clarinet Sonata, Darius Milhaud's "Scaramouche," Bela Bartok's Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion, and faculty member Max Lifchitz's "Pulsations." Players will include Richard Albagli and Daniel Roberts on percussion, Jeff Stein, Findlay Cockrell and Lifchitz on piano, Richard Goldsmith on clarinet, the University's Percussion Ensemble and members of New York City's North/South Consonance Ensemble.

Friday's concert, "Romanticism in the 20th Century," will be in the Recital Hall and feature composer/pianist Richard Nanes performing his Second Concerto for Solo Piano. Other works are Martin Rokeach's Sonata for Violin and Piano, Maurice Wright's "Set Up Music," David Maves' "Homage to Garcia Lorca," Lifchitz's "Transformations No. 3," Thuring Bram's "Pictures of Georgia O'Keefe" and Lauran Perrenoud's Trio -- the last two premiere performances. Violinist Jan Dobrzelewski, percussionist Stuart Marrs, and pianist Lifchitz will be featured.

Each concert is preceded by talks with the composers and performers at 7:15 p.m. General admission is $7, and $5 for students, senior citizens and University staff. For information, call Alton McCloud at 442-3995.

Carson Carr Jr. Named Outstanding Freshman Advocate

Carson Carr Jr., associate dean of academic support services at the University at Albany, has been named one of the nation's Outstanding Freshman Advocates by the National Resource Center for the Freshman Year Experience of the University of South Carolina. He was one of ten selected for the honor from a national pool of 200. Carr, of East Greenbush, will formally receive the award Feb. 23 at the National Freshman Year Experience Conference on the Columbia campus of the University of South Carolina.

At Albany, Carr is responsible for the design and implementation of university-wide programs to assist undergraduate students, particularly freshmen, in their academic and personal adjustment to university life. In short, he seeks to help students succeed and he's adopted a variety of approaches in pursuit of that goal.

Carr and his staff implemented, for example, a new study group program for freshmen to help them develop effective study skills at the very outset of their college experience. He spearheaded an academic "early warning" system to identify early in the first semester freshmen having difficulties, and he put in place a system to provide mentors and tutoring assistance to those students.

In 1989, he wrote a 32-page booklet, Study Skills, outlining basic strategies for succeeding in the university environment. Over 7,000 copies have been distributed. Carr and his staff also developed the University's Pre-college Summer Program for new freshmen EOP students. The highly structured five-and-a-half week program offers academic coursework in reading, writing and mathematics, group counseling, special topic seminars, study hours and cultural/social activities. The subsequent academic performance of EOP students has improved significantly.

"For me personally, these efforts have just been one way of paying back to this community some of the help I received when I was a disadvantaged student myself," said Carr.

In nominating Carr for the Outstanding Freshman Advocate honor, President H. Patrick Swygert noted: "Dr. Carr's advocacy of the need to create learning and living environments that remove barriers and foster success, and his leadership in these efforts at the University at Albany, grow out of his years of experience in education at every level..."

Before arriving at the University at Albany in 1985, Carr had served as a high school principal, a high school and junior high school mathematics teacher, a college faculty member, and a college administrator.

1992 Minority High School Achievers
To be Honored Feb. 22 by University at Albany

Eighty minority students from area schools have been named as the University at Albany's 1992 Minority High School Achievers. The students, who are juniors and seniors in high school, will be honored at noon Saturday, Feb. 22, at a luncheon in the University's Campus Center Ballroom.

In order to be selected, students must have an academic average of at least 80 and be active in school or community activities. The students were selected for their academic performance and leadership abilities.

This is the fourth annual luncheon, which was started by Dr. Carson Carr, Jr., the University's Associate Dean for Academic Support.

The intent of the Minority Student Achievers' Program is to honor the exemplary service demonstrated by minority youths and to encourage their continued leadership participation in college, Carr said.

"We want to encourage the students to feel they have been a good role model for other students. We hope that this rubbing-off effect will generate more student leaders for us in the future, especially among our minority student populations," he said.

He added, "Many of these students attend predominantly white high schools and they are excelling academically and also in terms of their leadership development. That is truly commendable given the fact that some of them are from culturally different backgrounds. They may feel isolated in these communities. We wish to acknowledge their success and hope they maintain that success."

Carr said the luncheon is "one way for us to reach out to the community and let them know we are sensitive to the situation."

A complete list of students is attached.

University at Albany Celebrates Eleventh Annual World Week

The University at Albany will celebrate its 11th Annual World Week from Monday, March 2 through Saturday, March 7. World Week is the University's recognition of the cultural diversity on campus and in the community through exhibits, music, food, entertainment and panel discussions. This year's World Week theme is "Students 1992: Builders of the 21st Century," and the celebration will include a wide variety of events and programs (See enclosed schedule).

The biggest event of the week will be the Opening Celebration and Ethnic Block Party. The Opening Celebration will be highlighted by comments from University President H. Patrick Swygert and Mitchel Livingston, vice president for Student Affairs. This will be followed by the Ethnic Block Party, a dynamic event featuring international foods, and educational and cultural displays of dress, arts, crafts and music. A special feature added to this year's block party will be a student art display presented by students from Arbor Hill Elementary School. Several students will be on hand to speak about their work, which truly reflects the theme of the week.

Steven Thomson, director of International Student Services, and one of the co-chairs of this year's event said, "Our students are garnering the understanding and abilities, through education, which will profoundly influence the character of the new world order."

Many aspects of the festival will address today's events and concerns such as the lecture and discussion on "Jewish and African American Relations" on Thursday, March 5. Another program planned, due to new accessibilities in the global marketplace, will be a program for students and others interested in international job searches, also on Thursday. Most events are free and open to the public.

February 20, 1992

World Week Calendar of Events

Monday, March 2

Ethnic Block Party and Opening Event

Noon to 3 p.m., Campus Center Ballroom

The most universally recognized and traditional event of World Week is the Opening Event and Ethnic Block Party where international foods and cultural displays are set out in an atmosphere of invitation and adventure. Opening remarks by University President H. Patrick Swygert and Vice President for Student Services Mitchel Livingston will kick off this 11th annual World Week. A special feature this year will be a student art display presented by students from Arbor Hill Elementary School. Several students will be speaking about their work which truly reflects the theme of the week. Sponsored by the World Week Opening Event and Ethnic Block Party Committee.

Latin American Film Festival: "Sugar Cane Alley"

3 to 5 p.m., Education 335

This film is set in Martinique in 1931. It paints a rich impasto of native life under French colonial rule, filtered through the coming-of-age of a bright, sweetly opportunistic black boy learning to reconcile the value of his shanty-town roots with the educational opportunities that beckon him to the big city. French with English subtitles. Color-103 minutes.

Experiencing Russian Culture

7 p.m., Indian Quadrangle, Skin Room

Betty Shadrick, assistant dean for Academic Support Services at the University, visited the former Soviet Union during the summer of 1991. She will share her intellectual experience from the viewpoint of an American visitor. Sponsored by the World Week Residential Life Committee.

Tuesday, March 3

Latin American Film Festival: "People of the Caribbean"

3 to 4 p.m., Education 335

This program profiles the heritage of minority groups that trace their origins to the islands of the Caribbean. It focuses on the countries that have sent many black and Spanish-speaking people to the United States, including Puerto Rico, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Barbados, Cuba and Jamaica. In English and repeated in Spanish. 55 minutes.

Ethnic Dance

3:30 p.m. to 5:20 p.m., Physical Education Building, Dance Studio, Third Floor

Taught by Tsehaya Smith Broaddus, professional dancer and assistant professor of dance in the Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation at the University.

International Folk Dance

6 to 7 p.m., Physical Education Building, Dance Studio, Third Floor

Taught by Edward Turner

Around the World in One Semester: The Semester at Sea Program

7 p.m., Colonial Quadrangle Classroom

Woody Freese will discuss this exciting educational alternative and vehicle to see the world. Materials on the program will also be available in the Campus Center Lobby on Wednesday, March 4. Sponsored by the World Week Residential Life Committee.

Dance to Benefit the Fight Against World Hunger

8 to 11 p.m., Campus Center Ballroom

The Programming Office of the Student Association and the Office of Residential Life sponsor this dance with D.J. and refreshments. Proceeds will go to the Capital District Food Pantry. Admission $1 (additional donations gladly accepted).

Wednesday, March 4

Latin American Film Festival: "Puerto Rico: History and Culture"

3 to 4 p.m., Humanities 254

This video will instill a greater appreciation of the rich history and cultural traditions of Puerto Rico. In addition to surveying its history from the 15th century to the present, examples are given of the wide variety of cultural and artistic talent among Puerto Rico's people. In English and repeated in Spanish. 55 minutes.

University-Community Chorale Concert: "Freedom is Coming: Sounds of Protest and Praise From South Africa"

7:15 p.m., Performing Arts Center Main Theater

The South Africa of today is surely a different country than the South Africa of the past. While much remains to be accomplished with regard to human rights, the social movement that has created a new political climate has been one of the major world events of the 20th century. This musical tribute to that social movement and its people suggests hope for the new century. Under the direction of David Janower.

A Biologist Looks at How We View the World: Differences in the Visual Perception of College Students in China and the University at Albany

7:30 p.m., Colonial Quadrangle Classroom

University biology professor Helmut Hirsh, who is also a Faculty in Residence, will lead this comparative discussion of how people see the same things in vastly different ways. Sponsored by the World Week Residential Life Committee.

Tour of Europe

8 p.m., Indian Quadrangle Skin Room

Students will share experiences of study and travel in Europe. Learn how you might be able to enhance your study with an educational experience abroad. Jointly sponsored by the Multicultural Awareness Program of Residential Life and the Office of International Programs.

Thursday, March 5

Preparation for an International Job Search

2:30 to 3:30 p.m., Campus Center Room 375

A practical program providing information on the resources that are available on campus and in the local community to aid students and others who are considering an international job search. The discussion will focus on a variety of published resources which are invaluable when researching opportunities abroad. A display of resources, and handouts and a bibliography will be available. Sponsored by the World Week International Studies and Development Committee, the Career Development Center and the Office of International Programs.

Latin American Film Festival: "The Two Worlds of Angelita"

3 to 5 p.m., Humanities 354

To nine year old Angelita, the transition from life in a small town on Puerto Rico to New York's lower east side is difficult to comprehend. As her family tries to maintain traditions and its cultural identity, it must also confront the many challenges presented to all new comers. A drama about imagination with valuable content. 73 minutes.

Ethnic Dance

3:30 to 5:20 p.m., Dance Studio, Third Floor, Physical Education Building

Taught by Tsehaya Smith-Broaddus, professional dancer and assistant professor of dance, Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation.

Swiss Poster Art from the CIBA-GEIGY Collection

5:30 to 6:30 p.m., Performing Arts Center

Dr. Lukas Gloor, Cultural Attache with the Consulate General of Switzerland in New York City, will host a fascinating presentation of 20th century poster art, a reflection of the foundations upon which the history of the 21st century will be built. A visual experience of interest to all. Presented by the Department of Fine Arts.

International Buffet

4 to 8 p.m., Campus Center Patroon Room

Join us for a delicious dinner featuring international cuisine from around the world. This tremendously popular World Week "all-you-can-eat" buffet costs only $5.95. Call 442-5985 for reservations. Sponsored by University Auxiliary Services.

Jewish, African American Relations

8 p.m., Campus Center Assembly Hall

John Ranz, president of the Holocaust Survivors Association of New York, chairman of the Bronx Human Rights Committee and professor at Brooklyn College, will speak on this timely topic which has been prominent in the news of 1991. Indeed its relevance to the affairs to all is obvious. The audience is encouraged to participate in a question and answer session following Ranz's presentation. Sponsored by Hillel.

Friday, March 6

Latin American Film Festival: "Zoot Suit"

3 to 5 p.m., Humanities 354

Part fact, part fiction, "Zoot Suit" is based on Daniel Valdez's critically-acclaimed play, which deals with the actual Sleepy Lagoon murder case and the zoot suit riots in Los Angeles. Edward James Olmos delivers a dazzling performance as the mythical "El Pachuco" and Valdez plays the leader of a group of Mexican-Americans being sent to San Quentin without substantial evidence for the death of a man in Sleepy Lagoon.

An Evening of Ethnic Dinner, Dance and Dress

6 p.m., Brubacher Cafeteria, Alumni Quadrangle

All are invited to enjoy this second annual "ethnic extravaganza" which will combine the pleasure of delicious food, exciting dance and the beauty of traditional international dress. It promises to be an evening which will truly celebrate our diversity and foster multicultural understanding. Sponsored by the Multicultural Awareness Program, Student Association, University Auxiliary Services, and the World Week Residential Life Activities Committee. Cost: $5 for all you can eat. Please call Residential Life at 442-5875 for reservations and information.

Saturday, March 7

Multicultural Fashion Show: "Open Your Eyes"

7 p.m., Page Hall

Student models will show African, European, Asian and Latino designs as well as traditional (and non-traditional) dress from around the world. This professional show will include music and dance mingled with dazzling lights and color. Advanced tickets will be on sale in the Campus Center. Come early as this promises to be a popular crowning event of World Week. Sponsored by the World Week Multicultural Affairs and the International Students Committees.

French Costume Ball Set for Sat., Feb. 29

There will be a French masked costume ball, Le Bal du Mardi Gras, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 29, at Brubacher Hall Ballroom, on State Street between Ontario Street and O'Leary Boulevard, Albany.

Mardi Gras, celebrated in most Latin Catholic cultures, was the last of three meat days before the start of Lent on Ash Wednesday. This celebration was the high point of Carnival, traditionally a time of revelry before the fasting and abstinence of the Lenten season.

Tickets are $15 for the general public and $8 for students. Advance reservations may be made by contacting Helen Thaler at 237-6802, by Thursday, Feb. 27.

The event, which is co-sponsored by the University at Albany's Department of French Studies and La Federation Franco-Americaine du New York, will feature music by the Jazz Factor with Paul Supple.

La Federation Franco-Americaine du New York seeks to increase awareness of the contribution made by the French to the region's history and culture.

University at Albany Student Wins Award From NYS Political Science Association

Michael Burton, a doctoral student in the Department of Political Science at the University at Albany, has been awarded the New York State Political Science Association's 1991 Award for best graduate student paper. The paper was delivered at the Association's meeting at the New School for Social Research in New York City.

Burton, a native of Wilmington, N.C., is currently on a Congressional Scholarship working with Hon. Paul Kanjorski in Washington, D.C. as a legislative assistant handling health and judiciary affairs. His winning paper, titled, "Betamax and Judge Ferguson's Court: Technical Proliferation as a Problem in Judicial Decision Making," was cited as the best example of scholarly research and writing from among the more than 100 presented at the meeting. In recognition of the accomplishment, Burton also received $100.

Prior to coming to Albany in 1988, Burton received his A.B. summa cum laude and M.A. in political science from Ohio University in Athens. He is now in the process of completing his doctoral dissertation on public law and political theory.

SECOND REGIONAL LATINO COLLEGIATE CONFERENCE AT ALBANY

More than 400 Latino students from up to 100 college and university campuses will join with the University at Albany's Fuerza Latina organization to discuss such topics as U.S. intervention in Latin America, AIDS in the Latino community, political empowerment in the '90s, and assessments of the Columbus Quincentenary, when the conference "Latinos: Past, Present & Future" is held on the Albany campus on Friday, and Saturday, February 28-29.

"The overwhelming success of last year's one-day event, which was the first-ever state-wide Latino conference among Latino student organizations, has led us to this expanded format which will make us more aware of all the critical issues and conflicts that we are presently dealing with on our campuses and in society," says John Olmo, president of Fuerza Latina.

Olmo noted that word of last year's conference -- intended originally for students within New York State -- reached groups from other state campuses, such as Harvard and Seton Hall universities, which sent contingents to Albany, bringing the total participants to more than 350. "This year invitations have gone out to Latino organizations and students on campuses in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont and New Jersey, as well as New York."

This year's agenda begins on Friday evening with registration and a Pre-Conference Social, beginning at 10 p.m. Conference topics, all held at Albany's Campus Center, will occur on Saturday, follow opening remarks from University President H. Patrick Swygert.

In the Opening Assembly, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., the featured talk will be on The Development and Legitimization of Spanglish Poetry, delivered by Tato LaViera and Virginia Moore.

Module I, from 1:15 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., will deal with: Latino Radicalism in the 1960s, with Luis Garden-Acosta as speaker; and AIDS in the Latino Community and in Nuestra Familia, led by Yolanda Cerrano,

Module II, 2:45 - 4 p.m., will discuss The Quincentennial: 500 Years of Mourning or Celebration?, led by Dr. Jorge Klor de Alva of Princeton University's Institute for Advanced Studies, and Modern Day Manifest Destiny -- U.S. Interventionism in Latin America, discussed by Dr. Dagmaris Cabezas. An open forum, moderated by Dr. Manuel S. Alguero, dinner, and social event will conclude the conference.

Pre-registration is strongly recommended. For information call 442-5679.

University at Albany Program on International Job Hunting

The University at Albany will present a program on "Preparation for an International Job Search" on Thursday, March 5 from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. in Room 375 of the Campus Center. The program is part of World Week XI, the University's annual celebration of the cultural diversity on campus and in the community which will be held during the week of March 2 (see enclosed schedule). The program, as well as most World Week events, is free and open to the public.

This program will provide information on the resources and information that are available on campus and in the local community to aid those considering an international job search. Presenters, from the University's Career Development Center, will be Heather Brodie, Career Librarian and Gwen Fuller, assistant director of the Center. The discussion will focus on a variety of published resources which are invaluable when researching career opportunities abroad. Also included in the program will be a display of these resources, handouts, and a bibliography.

The theme for this year's World Week is "Students: Builders of the 21st Century." Steven Thomson, director of International Student Services and one of the organizers of the event said, "The theme reflects the potential for reshaping our collective global destiny in the wake of the collapse of totalitarian regimes and old political boundaries." Recent changes and events worldwide make this presentation interesting to all job seekers.

Donation Made to University at Albany ✓

The Tuition Plan of New England, Inc., Concord, N.H., recently made a donation of $4,925 to the University at Albany.

The check was presented during a luncheon at the Desmond-Americana, Albany-Shaker Road, Colonie.

According to Leo F. Neveu, University controller, the funds will be earmarked for the Emergency Student Loan Program. Students borrow from this fund when they have a pressing need for a small, short-term loan.

More than 500 students borrow from the fund each year, according to Lia Catalano, director of student accounts. The average loan amount is about $200.

University at Albany Presents Latin American Film Festival

The University at Albany will present a Latin American Film Festival from Monday, March 2 through Friday, March 6. The festival is part of the 11th annual World Week, the University's celebration of the cultural diversity on campus and in the community through exhibits, entertainment and discussions. The film festival, as well as most World Week events, is free and open to the public.

Sponsored by the University's Department of Latin American and Caribbean Studies, the festival will feature films which show the variety of culture, history and the human condition in Latin America and the islands of the Caribbean. There will be a different and unique film shown everyday of this special week at the University (see enclosed schedule).

Among the films being shown is "Zoot Suit," a film based on Daniel Valdez's critically acclaimed play. Starring Edward James Olmos, it deals with the actual Sleepy Lagoon murder case and the zoot suit riots in Los Angeles. Since the theme of this year's World Week celebration is "Students: Builders of the 21st Century," many of the other films in the festival center around students and young people.
