NEW YORK STATE COLLEGE FOR TEACHERS

ESTABLISHED BY THE CLASS OF 1918

VOL. VII No. 13

ALBANY, N. Y., JANUARY 12, 1923

$3.00 per year

Seniors Pledge 100 per cent Dormitory Fund

The Senior Class pledge to the Dormitory Fund amounts in all to $10,500. This means that every one of the 113 Seniors in the class has subscribed to the fund. Moreover, one special student has pledged with '23. Mrs. Gawling, a graduate of the old Normal School, who is now attending State as a special, has promised to add to the '23 record of pledges.

'23 has a number of pledges from people who have not been with her for her whole four years but who have pledged with her most generously. These people include Henrietta Burchfield, John Cassarette, Ora Cleary, Fern Davis, Janet Gilmore, Hazel Hickling, Charissa Huyck, Miss Mackmer, Mrs. Mustaine, Clinton Sears, Estelle Seymour, Mr. Erskine, Mr. Felter, and Mr. Springstead.

Faculty Notices

The Mount Holyoke Alumnae Association will be the guest of State College on Saturday, January 13. President Wooley of Mt. Holyoke will speak at 3 o'clock in the Auditorium.

There will be a meeting of the Faculty Council on Monday, January 15, at 4:45 P. M. The meeting is called for the consideration of necessary catalogue changes.

Letz String Quartet to Give Concert

Presented by Music Association

Perhaps the most important musical event of the college season will be the recital by the Letz String Quartet of New York in Chancellors' Hall, Saturday, January 13 at 8.15 P. M. The recital was to have been given by the London String Quartet, but last Saturday Dr. Thompson received the unwelcome news that the London Quartet were cancelling their concerts on account of the serious illness of the first violin player, Mr. Levey. It was decided to cancel the concert entirely unless a chamber music organization of equal rank could be obtained. Dr. Thompson was fortunate enough to secure the Letz Quartet, which ranks with the London and the Flonzaley Quartets as the three finest in the country. Mr. Letz permitted Dr. Thompson to select two-thirds of the program, the other third being Fritz Kreisler's new Quartet in A minor.

The entire gallery will be reserved for students of the college who have student tax tickets. Students preferring to sit on the orchestra floor may obtain seats there by paying a small additional fee. Tickets for outsiders will cost $1.50. The seat sale is directed by Dr. Thompson, the Music Council, and the Women's Chorus.

The program is made up of three groups. In the first group appears Mozart's Quartet in C major, widely regarded as the most beautiful quartet of the classical school. It is in four movements, the most famous being the second, the Andante Cantabile. The second group is made up of selections from Schubert's Quartet in D minor, the finest quartet of the nineteenth century romantic school, and parts of Debussy's Quartet in G minor, the best known quartet of the modern French school. The third group offers the four movements of Fritz Kreisler's new Quartet in A minor.

The members of the quartet are: Hans Letz, first violin; Edwin Bachmann, second violin; Edward Kreiner, viola; and Horace Britt, cello. The headquarters of the quartet is New York.

New College Song Book in Press

A part of the new College Song Book is now in the press. The book is to be published by the H. W. Gray Company, the American agents for Novello and Company of London.

The hundred pages of contents will include:

1. College Traditional Songs
2. Humorous Songs
3. Latin Songs
4. Folk Songs
5. Songs for Male Voices

Dramatic Class to Present Plays

Finest Productions Ever Staged by Class

Tuesday evening, January 16, at 8.15 o'clock, in the Albany High School Auditorium there will be given three one act plays by the Dramatics Class of College. These three plays have been chosen from a large group of the best and most successfully given modern plays. The casts are splendid and each player is very well suited to her part. Every attention has been given to the perfection of every detail of the plays. They are predestined to be very successful.

The first play, 'Op O' Me Thumb, by Fred Fem and Richard Price, is a typical English play, based on life in an English laundry. The types in the play are crude, very human cockney working girls whose tempers keep them always interestingly antagonistic. Rose, Clem and Celeste make Amanda and her vivid imagination a butt for their curiosity. Her imaginations materialize in a very appealing manner. Margery Bayless plays Amanda; Clara Fahnestock, Rose; Dorothy Bennit, Clem; Florence Dorsey, Celeste; Elinor Buell, Madam; and Edward Vines, 'Orris.

Miss Tassey, by Elizabeth Baker, is a tragedy which keeps one wondering just what will happen next. Rosie is hysterically frivolous, loves good clothes and gaiety; Possie, very matter of fact, has her hands full between Rosie and Tassey who acts most strangely during the play. No synopsis is given of Miss Tassey because if one were given the dramatic effect would be somewhat lessened. Gladys Hayner plays Rosie; Aileen Wallace, Possie; Helena Borsick, Miss Limmerton; Winifred Dunn, Sarah; Kathryn Shipman, Tassey.

'The Maker of Dreams' by Oliphant Downs is a most charming fantasy: Pierrot is fickle and does not see Pierrette's charms until his eyes are opened by the Maker. The plot is very simple. It is the dainty acting of the players, the soft music, the quaint setting and costumes that makes the play one of the most delightful of any that most of us have ever seen. Betty Nagle plays Pierrot; Katherine Driscoll, Pierrette; Edna Shafer, the Maker.

If one misses these plays, one will surely miss one of the finest productions that the Dramatics Class has ever staged.

Tickets are fifty and seventy-five cents to outsiders. Students are admitted on their student tax tickets.

A large proportion of the songs are humorous ones collected from State College and other colleges.

The songbook will probably sell at a maximum price of $1.50. Subscription blanks will be made shortly.

The book is due to appear for Moving-Up Day.

Colgate Five Plays Here Friday Night

First Home Game of the New Year

The Varsity basketball team of State College will play the fifth game of the season with Colgate to-night in the Albany High School gymnasium. Colgate was beaten for the first time this year by Cornell, January 6, which shows that Colgate has a fast team. This year Colgate has one of the best teams in the east, and the game between the Varsity team of that college and the Purple and Gold will be a fight to the finish. State's men are preparing for a hard battle hoping to gain a victory over the opposing team which would put State's team on the basketball map.

For those not having student tax tickets the admission will be 35 cents.

Sophomores Entertain Seniors

The Sophomore Class entertained the Seniors Friday evening, January 5, in the college gym. After a vain search on the part of the Sophomores for a Senior partner the Grand March began, led by the two presidents, Gladys Hayner, '23 and Mildred Hammersley, '25. When the gym had been completely traversed and the red and green decorations thoroughly admired the procession halted while the Sophomore president briefly welcomed the class of '23. Louise Welch then came skipping down the steps and entertained the audience so well by her dancing that she had to be recalled. The startling announcement of a "skit in four flaps" then caused everyone to sit up and take notice. After the audience had been left in darkness for a few moments they were confronted by a sheet suspended in the air over which appeared

Junior Jamboree a Success

"All I Want is Sociability," sang the Juniors Friday evening, January 5. However, such a song was unnecessary for everyone was sociable. The party was small but select. Since dancing was prohibited everyone entered into the games with zest, resolving to get out of them all the fun they put in them—and it was accomplished. Songs, cheers, and games were filled with pep and vim. Childhood parties returned to worn-out memories and thoughts of hardships to come were banished. From the first song to the last glass of lemonade "joy was unconfined." The party in the gym, may have had its attractions but the Jamboree in Room 250 rivaled it in its own special way.

IS OUR EDUCATION BECOMING NARROW

During the past few months there has been much discussion as to what belongs and what does not belong in a college course. Is its purpose to develop the intellect alone? Should it cater only to the social life of the individual? Should it be an institution devoted only to the development of athletics? These points have been brought up before various interested groups at various times. They have been answered in various ways.

The purpose of the colleges in general is to directly prepare young people for the business of life. In grammar school and in high school the development has gone on. But the finishing touches, the final polishing of the individual into a man or woman capable of meeting the world without disadvantage are left to the colleges. Sometimes they fulfill their purpose and sometimes they do not.

The average human is a many sided being. He must meet his fellows on a common plane mentally, socially, and physically. In order to justify its existence the college must turn out such a man or woman. This has not been the case many times. Some times one side is over emphasized and the other neglected. For example, if the mental man alone is trained, the product is the narrow intellectual, the idle dreamer; if the social man is trained without due attention to his other needs, he becomes the social butterfly, the tea hound; if the physical man is developed exclusively, he becomes the professional athlete, or as he is called in modern slang, the "ringer."

The pendulum of opinion has swung first to one side and then to the other. In a professional school like State College the mental man is tending to become over emphasized to the neglect of the social. Social functions under college direction have become the exception rather than the rule.

four black heads. Soon four stentorian voices announced that these were "bandits bold, who want people's gold, and knock them cold." Then, still more amazing, the four heads were replaced by eight feet and the song was repeated. The period of darkness which followed was so short that suddenly the four bandits were revealed and discovered to be four sophomores, Mary O'Hare, Buclah Eckerson, Catharine Woodward, and Elise Bower. These four soon reappeared and showed and told '23 and '25 what a real flapper was. Then "The Moonlight Caprice," danced by Vivien Hart and Rena Relyea, concluded the program. The jazziness of the orchestra soon tempted even the bashful out on the floor. When the dancing was in full swing numbers were passed out and an elimination dance began. The crowd soon thinned out and when the six couples had dwindled down to two, then one, Edith Sanders, '23 and Ruth Lauber, '25 were presented with the prize. Then the crowd once more filled the floor and the dancing continued. Suddenly there was a lull in the music, the seeping of the feet, and the chatter, and a loud whisper of "eats" caused a wild dash for the steps, and an equally wild dash for ice cream and wafers. The refreshments having been entirely consumed the dancing began again and continued till the lights began to go out and the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" filled the gym.

The committee in charge was Mary Bull, chairman, Louise Welch, Elise Bower.

NOTICE

The Mohawk Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution invites the students and faculty of State College to a lecture, which is to be given under their auspices, by Dr. Charles Johnson, Chief of the State Board of Charities. Dr. Johnson's subject is Conditions in Europe. There will be a short musical program before the lecture. No admission fee

IN MEMORIAM

WHEREAS, God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to take from us our beloved sister Blanche Esther Hill, and

WHEREAS, we, the members of the Eta Phi Sorority, wish to express our sorrow at the loss of our sister, be it

RESOLVED, that we extend our sincere sympathy to her family, and be it further

RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, that they be recorded in the minutes of the sorority, and that they be printed in the State College News.

Signed,

Ethel L. Rusk
 For the Sorority.

The students desire the social recreation that they need, yet they are not allowed to get it outside of college. And the college itself looks with disfavor on parties as have been held in the past. One phase of education is being neglected. The social life of the students should take place within the college walls. They should not be forced to seek it outside.

"The way of an Eagle in the air"

CENTURY after century men broke their necks trying to fly. They had not troubled to discover what Solomon called "the way of an eagle in the air."

In 1891 came Samuel Pierpont Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. He wanted facts. His first step was to whirl flat surfaces in the air, to measure the air pressures required to sustain these surfaces in motion and to study the swirls and currents of the air itself. Finally, in 1896, he built a small steam-driven model which flew three-quarters of a mile.

With a Congressional appropriation of $50,000 Langley built a large man-carrying machine. Because it was improperly launched, it dropped into the Potomac River. Years later, Glenn Curtiss flew it at Hammondsport, New York.

Congress regarded Langley's attempt not as a scientific experiment but as a sad fiasco and refused to encourage him further. He died a disappointed man.

Langley's scientific study which ultimately gave us the airplane seemed unimportant in 1896. Whole newspaper pages were given up to the sixteen-to-one ratio of silver to gold.

"Sixteen-to-one" is dead politically. Thousands of airplanes cleave the air—airplanes built with the knowledge that Langley acquired.

In this work the Laboratories of the General Electric Company played their part. They aided in developing the "supercharger," whereby an engine may be supplied with the air that it needs for combustion at altitudes of four miles and more. Getting the facts first, the Langley method, made the achievement possible.

What is expedient or important today may be forgotten tomorrow. The spirit of scientific research and its achievements endure.

freshman class in Elementary Clothing held their Christmas party for the poor children sent up by the Associated Charities. At 4:00 o'clock the children arrived and each freshman dressed "her child" in the rompers or dress which she had made. Then the children were taken into Room 161 where they were served with ice cream and cake which were made by the sophomore class in Foods. The sewing room was prettily decorated with greens. The tables were trimmed with candles and evergreens, while a table at the front contained a gingerbread house. At about 6 o'clock the children were gotten ready for home. They departed gayly, carrying what they couldn't eat at the party.

Miss Anna Ladu '22, teacher of Home-making in Sherburne, N. Y. and Miss Marguerite James, M. A. '15, teacher at Ely School, Greenwich, Conn., visited friends at College on Thursday.

The class in Household Design studied Colonial Furniture at Schuyler Mansion, Friday, December 15.

President Brubacher and Mr. Sayles attended during the vacation, the Academic Association of Principals at Syracuse. Dr. Brubacher gave an address on Friday "On the Teaching Personality."

The State College men attending the Association held a dinner at the Onondaga Hotel under the leadership of Elmer T. Koster of the class of '22 and Neil Quackenbush, '18. Fourteen men were present. It was decided to make the dinner an annual event at the time of the meeting of the Academic Association of Principals. More than forty State College graduates are members of the Association.

Miss Douglas, Miss Scotland, and Miss Soden attended the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Boston during the holidays.
