From July 26 to August 12 six candidates for the master's degree in studio art will show their work of the past few years at the Art Gallery at State University of New York at Albany. The exhibition, consisting of prints, drawings, and paintings, will serve as the final requirement leading to the degree.

The master's candidates are Frances Martin, William B. Schade and Richard Steinbach, all of Albany, Thomas Krens of Williamstown, Tim Rodrigo of Scotia, and Peter Jogo of Deposit.

Most of the artists have exhibited before, both locally, and in regional shows in other states. The styles are of a wide variety, ranging from realism to the abstract.

The State University Art Gallery is open Monday through Friday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. and Wednesday evening, 7-9.

Starting with the fall semester the College of General Studies at State University of New York at Albany is offering a daytime course in women's studies which will carry three credit hours. "Women in Modern Literature: The Faces of Eve" will be given on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 12:45 to 2, starting Sept. 7. Joan Schulz, associate professor of English, SUNYA, and Diva Daims, also of the English faculty, will teach the course.

More than 60 colleges and universities throughout the country are offering programs in women's studies, a new academic discipline rising on the nation's campuses. The course will emphasize the treatment given to women in literature, examining the traditional assumptions about the nature of women and stereotypes of behavior as they are revealed in modern writings.

Class discussions will be centered on answering questions as to whether the treatment given women is a reflection of society's philosophical and sociological myths or cultural attitudes. Women will be looked at in their interactions and relationships to other characters in the works on the suggested reading list. The course has been designed for those who desire to do some serious reading and to participate in stimulating class discussions with fellow students.

Since enrollment is limited to 30, it is advisable to register early. All registrations must be completed before August 20. Additional information may be obtained from the College of General Studies (457-4935, 457-4936).

State University of New York at Albany will be host to a three-day National Leadership Institute of 140 leading student personnel administrators beginning August 4. The institute, which is entitled, "The Art of Leadership," is sponsored by the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators (NASPA) and funded by the Humble Companies Foundation. The Humble Companies Foundation has provided grants for two previous conferences sponsored by NASPA: one at Indiana State University during the summer of 1970 and a second at the University of Redlands (Calif.) in June, 1971.

The success of the previous conferences is evidenced by the large number of applicants for the institute at Albany. There have been more than 300 applicants for the 140 conference openings. The participants are vice presidents and deans of students from more than 125 colleges and universities from 29 states, the District of Columbia, and two Canadian provinces.

The participants will meet in large groups for orientation, evaluation, and follow-up sessions and work on specific group tasks in mini-lab situations. The behavior and reactions of the group and individuals within the group provide the basis for later discussion and evaluation. Techniques and insights gained through laboratory projects and evaluation sessions are expected to increase the effectiveness of the participants in the positions of leadership.

C. F. Jones, vice chairman of the Board of Humble and other officers of the Foundation, are scheduled to be present during the program.

The Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs is coordinating the institute, under the direction of Sorrell E. Chessin, assistant vice president.

The Classical Association of the Empire State (CAES) will hold its 1971 Summer Workshop at State University of New York at Albany, August 15 through 20. The department of Latin education, SUNYA, at the request of CAES, is offering a five-day workshop of study, discussion, and demonstration aimed at critical needs of the teachers of Latin. The theme of the program is "The Implementation of the New Latin Syllabus". The four areas of concern are "A New Emphasis on Latin Literature," "Effective Classroom Techniques," "Identification, Examination, and Adaptation of Current Materials," and "The Retooling of the Latin Teacher for His Expanding Role."

Participating in the workshop from SUNYA are Nelson Armlin, Charles F. Graber, Harriet S. Norton, Lois V. Williams, and Mary D. Wilson, and also F. Gordon Stockin, of Houghton College. Formal graduate credit will not be given; however, at the conclusion of the workshop, each participant will be awarded a "Certificate of Attendance." All teachers of Latin are eligible, but if the number of applications exceeds the number of available place, preference will be given to members of CAES.

Teachers interested in attending the workshop can obtain additional information by writing to Harriet S. Norton, CAES Workshop Director, The Milne School, 135 Western Avenue, Albany 12203.

State University of New York at Albany will host a School Business Management Workshop July 18-21. Sponsoring groups are the SUNYA department of educational administration and the Division of Educational Management Services, State Education Department. Some 150 persons are enrolled for the four-day workshop.

State Senator Thomas LaVerne, 50th District, will be the keynote speaker for the July 19 session. He will discuss "Major Changes in Law Affecting School Business Management" in a one-hour address beginning at 9:30 a.m. in Lecture Hall 18. The following day, at the same time and location, the main address will be given by Harold Steinberg, a partner in Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. Mr. Steinberg will speak on "New Dimensions in School Finance and Management".

Several topics will be considered by discussion groups in the afternoon session of July 19. Among the subjects are the roles of the clerk, treasurer, business official, and BOCES business office personnel in an era of change; "The Changing Face of BOCES"; and "Building for the Future".

Topics for discussion the following day include personnel management, accounting, bonding and investment, transportation, budgeting, purchasing, and insurance. At a banquet the evening of July 20, the speaker will be Donald Mulkerne, SUNYA professor of business education.

On the final day of the conference topics to be discussed in problem clinics will be New York State teachers retirement and employees retirement, data processing, employer-employee relations, civil service, and facilities planning.

Conference director is Robert L. Lorette, professor of educational administration at SUNYA.

Vernon A. Buck, of Colonie, who has been an official of Learning Technology, Inc., has been designated as acting director of the Educational Opportunities Program at State University of New York at Albany. Mr. Buck succeeds Harry L. Hamilton, Jr., who recently left that post after serving for three years as EOP director to return to teaching and research in the department of atmospheric science.

Vice president for academic affairs Phillip Sirotkin, who announced the appointment of Mr. Buck, said that he was requesting university president Louis T. Benezet to recommend to the State University chancellor and the board of trustees of SUNY that Mr. Buck be appointed director of the Educational Opportunities Program effective August 26. His appointment as acting director is effective immediately.

Mr. Buck, former director of Carver Junior College and later head of the community college's mathematics department, came to Albany originally to teach mathematics in the Albany public school system. He later joined Learning Technology, Inc., an Albany firm, where he served as instructional analyst and systems designer.

The new EOP director is a graduate of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga., where he majored in business administration. He also holds a Master of Science from New York University. A U. S. Army veteran, he served in World War II and in the Korean conflict when he was recalled to duty. He held the rank of captain.

In commenting on his new post, Mr. Buck said that one of his particular concerns would be evaluation of performance based on empirical data, hence his interest in running a results-oriented program. He added, "I am looking forward to working directly with the EOP faculty and to the support that I know will be forthcoming from the rest of the university."

Educational Opportunities Program,
Acting Director Appointed -2-

In 1968, 162 students began classes under the Educational Opportunities Program at SUNYA. When the new academic year gets underway at the end of August, approximately 600 students will be in the program which provides counseling, academic and financial support. On the EOP staff, in addition to the director, is an associate director, coordinators of student affairs, counselors, instructors, and a coordinator of the tutorial program.

In May Mrs. Sherrie Moore was the first student enrolled under the auspices of the Educational Opportunities Program to be graduated from SUNYA. Mrs. Moore, formerly a student at Albany Business College and at Hudson Valley Community College where she received an Associate of Arts, majored in social studies. She will continue her education at the graduate level in the School of Education at SUNYA.

"Housing the Poor: An Economic Analysis" will be the subject of a seminar at State University of New York at Albany August 6. Sponsoring the conference is the Center for Housing Research, under the auspices of the Municipal Finance Study Group, Graduate School of Public Affairs, SUNYA. Also participating will be the New York State Urban Development Corporation and the Ford Foundation.

The seminar will be divided into morning and afternoon sessions, with experts in the field of housing speaking on various related topics. The morning session, "Program Analysis," is scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock, following breakfast and registration. The first group of speakers include Henry Aarons, senior fellow, The Brookings Institute, Washington D. C., who will give an "Analysis of Low Rent Public Housing"; Professor Eugene Brady and Associate Professor James R. Prescott, department of economics, Iowa State University, "Allocative Efficiency in the Low Rent Public Housing Program"; Paul F. Miller, executive director, Three Rivers Development Foundation, Inc., Corning, N. Y., "To House the Migrant"; and Herrington J. Bryce, Brookings Economic Policy Fellow, Economic Research Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, "Analysis of Rural Housing Programs".

The second hour of the morning session will feature D. David Brandon, director of program development, N. Y. S. Urban Development Corporation, "Analysis of New Innovations in State Housing Programs"; S. William Greene, regional director, U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, "Confronting the Crisis of Metropolitan Housing"; R. Bruce Ricks, Office of Economic Research, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, "Housing Policy and the Roles of Associations"; and Lawrence Smith, associate professor of political economy, University of Toronto, "Demand for Housing by the Poor".

After an open discussion on the morning's topics and a lunch break, the seminar will resume at 2 p. m. with a "New Ideas" session. Speakers and their subjects will include James P. Twomey, executive vice president, Urban America Non-Profit Housing Center, Washington, D. C., "Non-Profit Sponsors: A Third Force in Housing"; F. Mel Crompton, assistant director, Buffalo Area Office, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, "Cost Saving Techniques Through Construction Technology"; Frank Cerabone, from Mr. Crompton's office, "New Ideas for Housing the Poor: A Practitioner's Approach"; and Morton J. Schussheim, chairman, Program for Regional Planning, University of Pennsylvania, "National Goals and Local Practices".

Also, Professor Edward Renshaw, SUNYA, department of economics, "New Sources of Funding"; John Heinberg, senior research staff, The Urban Institute, Washington, D. C., "Conceptual Issues and Benefit Patterns of Housing Allowances"; and David Fand, professor of economics, Wayne State University, "Impediments to the Flow of Funds in the Mortgage Market".

An open discussion, cocktail hour, and dinner will conclude the conference.

The Center for Housing Research is under the direction of Donald Reeb, associate professor of economics, SUNYA, and James Kirk, public information officer, Northeastern Regional Office, N. Y. S. Urban Development Corporation.

The music department of State University of New York at Albany has received a gift of $14,804 from an area resident who desires to remain anonymous. The unsolicited gift is the first of its kind and size the department has received.

Nathan Gottschalk, music department chairman, said the donor has developed a particular interest in the program of the department and is a regular attendant at university concerts. In accordance with the donor's wishes, the money will be used for the department library, visiting artists and scholars, and for the purchase of musical instruments of an historical nature.

SUNYA president Louis T. Benezet, in a letter acknowledging the gift, expressed his "happy surprise". He noted the donation "will make significance differences possible in the development of music" at the university.

Walter B. Miller, of Cambridge, Mass., will become the Robert A. Pinkerton Visiting Professor in Criminal Justice for 1971-72 at State University of New York at Albany in September. Dr. Miller is currently a senior research associate at the Joint Center for Urban Studies of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard University. He holds a master's degree from the University of Chicago and a Ph.D. from Harvard.

As Pinkerton Professor in the School of Criminal Justice, Dr. Miller will teach an advanced seminar and serve as a resource person in seminars taught by other faculty members. The position was made possible by a three-year grant of $150,000 from the Pinkerton Foundation in New York.

In addition to his current position, Dr. Miller serves as director of the Roxbury Delinquency Research Project, Whittier Street Health Unit, in Roxbury, Mass. He is also a research consultant for the Youth Activities Commission of the City of Boston, Mass., and director of research and program consultant for the Program for Public Safety Research at the Joint Center for Urban Studies.

Past positions include research and teaching posts at Boston, Brandeis, and Harvard universities and consultant to the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime. Dr. Miller is the author of more than 30 articles published in his field over the past 15 years.
