The second lists speakers alphabetically, with an indication of each speaker's topics or subject areas. The last section is a brief description of various additional services and facilities available at the university.

Copies of "Speakers Bureau Directory" are free and may be obtained either by writing to Bette Herzog, Speakers' Bureau, State University of New York at Albany, Albany, 12222 or by calling the Office of University Affairs, at 457-5976.

CREATOR OF "STAR TREK" TO SPEAK AT UNIVERSITY CENTER

Gene Roddenberry, creator and producer of "Star Trek," will speak on "Inside Science Fiction Outside This World" in the Campus Center Ballroom at State University of New York at Albany on Tuesday, Feb. 25, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Roddenberry is perhaps the only producer in television whose name brings instant recognition. His "Star Trek" series has had a fantastic cult following. It has surpassed the normal limitations of television, winning science fiction's coveted Hugo Award, and has become the only series ever to have an episode preserved by the Smithsonian Institution. When the National Broadcasting Company considered cancelling the series, the network was deluged with outraged fan mail. Now in syndication, "Star Trek" continues to grow in popularity.

Writing is Mr. Roddenberry's third "career." His first, as a professional pilot, began during World War II when he flew B-17's in the South Pacific. His second began when he joined the Los Angeles Police Department, first walking a beat and later doing research.

The lecture is being sponsored by the University Concert Board and the University Speakers' Forum. Admission is free with a student tax card and 50 cents without.

SUNYA STUDENTS PLAN TELETHON FOR WILDWOOD SCHOOL

On Friday, Mar. 14, at 8 p.m., opening ceremonies for Telethon '75 will be held in the Campus Center Ballroom at State University of New York at Albany. Co-chairpersons Karen Gliboff and Ernie Sprance have called Telethon, "the only campus tradition" at the university center.

Telethon is a 24-hour marathon of talent and auctions. Proceeds from Telethon will go to the Wildwood School for Developmentally Handicapped Children in Schenectady, a school which works with children who have such disorders as motor coordination, perception, and autism.

The theme for Telethon '75 is "Make Someone Happy." T-shirts sporting the theme will be on sale in the university's Campus Center the week before Telethon.

Two special programs will be held as part of Telethon '75. On Saturday, Mar. 15, at 10 a.m., a special children's hour will begin. The program will feature entertainment selected specially for children, including clowns and a number of games. At a time to be announced, students from Sayles International House will perform.

Other program highlights include Dean Neil Brown and the faculty band; Dr. and Mrs. Bob White, a folk duet; and John Simson and Hector, a folk group. Dance groups, comedians, and pie throwing are just a few of the other activities which will round out Telethon '75.

The Telethon held at SUNYA is the largest student-run telethon in the country and the biggest event on campus. Last year Telethon '74 raised $16,000.

HIRSCHI TO GIVE PINKERTON LECTURE AT SUNYA

The annual Visiting Pinkerton Professor Lecture at State University of New York at Albany will be given this year on Wednesday, Mar. 12, by Travis Hirschi. Sponsoring the program is the university center's School of Criminal Justice.

The event will take place at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the university's Performing Arts Center. A wine and cheese reception will follow.

Mr. Hirschi, Robert A. Pinkerton Visiting Professor, will have as his subject, "Theories of Crime in a Free Society". The educator specialized in juvenile delinquency, with particular interest in the role of systematic research in delinquency theory and policy. His book, "Delinquency Research" (1967) was co-winner of the Society for the Study of Social Problems' C. Wright Mills Award. Another work, "Causes of Delinquency" (1969), employs a large body of original data to challenge currently popular theories, arguing that the delinquent "is a person relatively free of the intimate attachments, the aspirations, and the moral beliefs that bind most people to a life within the law."

Mr. Hirschi is professor of sociology at the University of California, Davis. In recent work he has questioned the tendency of theorists to ignore research outside arbitrary disciplinary and ideological boundaries. His lecture on Mar. 12 will continue that interest, focusing on the place of policy considerations in theorizing about delinquency.

HUNGARIAN FILM TO BE SHOWN TWO NIGHTS

"Red Psalm," a Hungarian film directed by Miklos Jancso, will be presented on Friday and Saturday, Mar. 7 and 8, at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Performing Arts Center at State University of New York at Albany. The film is the sixth in a series of films entitled "Prize International Cinema," sponsored by the Office of University Affairs.

Jancso won the Best Director Prize at the 1972 Cannes Film Festival for "Red Psalm." The setting is Hungary in the 1890's, which saw the emergence of agrarian socialist movements, comprised largely of poor peasants dedicated to removing the last remnants of feudalism. Instead of a realistic historical account, Jancso has created a folk tale, an allegory, a ritualistic portrayal of revolution that takes on a universal feeling and significance.

Tickets are $2 general admission and $1.25 for students and senior citizens with identification.
