CHANGING THE ALBANY SCENE: In 1962, Governor Rockefeller announced that a 40 block area in downtown Albany was to be razed and cleared to make way for a new South Mall State campus for the capital city. At the end of the fiscal year 584 of the area's 1,150 buildings had either been demolished or vacated and under contract for demolition; and 1,102 of the 3,700 families living on the site had been relocated. Aerial photograph shows progress made in clearing land along eastern end of the South Mall area. Set-ins show demolition of a former executive mansion at Hawk and Lancaster Streets and Governor Rockefeller displaying bricks from a demolished structure to an obviously approving group of site residents.
