

A RayView of Sports

by Ray McClint

In last week's "Rayview," we, of the sports staff, expressed our hope that the weekend's soccer, cross-country, and AMIA action would get the SUNYA Fall sports program off to a good start. Even our most optimistic hopes could not have anticipated the actual success the athletic system enjoyed.

Beginning first with the harriers' unbelievable upset victory over Montclair, on to the soccer team's inspiring and heartbreaking loss to Quinnipiac, and finally, the enthusiasm, turnout, and caliber of play in the AMIA's first three games, all of which points toward a fine fall season.

Cross-country Coach Keith Munsey felt that this year would definitely be a rebuilding year. He said that the loss of eight of his top ten runners from last year would be too much this year's team to overcome in the way of registering a good record. However, it is apparent that Munsey errantly underestimated the potential of his runners as several of them turned in simply outstanding performances in the team's three wins this past week.

We do not expect the cross-country team to continue its winning streak through the end of the season; however, we do feel that this "rebuild" squad will prove to be a credit to the fine tradition State cross-country teams have thus far established.

In all, the soccer games we have seen over the past year, we have never seen a more determined, fired-up, and inspired State team perform so well, for so long, and for so little. For soccer Coach Joe Garcia, the outcome of the game must have seemed an injustice to the performance of his team. The Dane booters held their own against a fast and well-balanced Quinnipiac squad, but the Staters lacked sufficient depth to continually fight off the Indian drives, as the wearied defense finally cracked in the last minutes of the game.

As far as the AMIA is concerned - well, from what we have seen thus far, it should be a dogfight among five teams. Potter Club, Kappa Beta, APA, Trinity, and Waterbury all looked very impressive in the league's opening games, and it isn't too hard to predict a close battle for the championship. The interest among the players and spectators indicates that AMIA football is as popular as ever at State, and combined with the sterner competition in the league this season, one can only conclude that football will someday be "big-time" at Albany State.

Nagy Organizes Weightlifting Club

Mr. George Nagy, head of last year's popular weightlifting club, has recently announced that the club is in a reorganization stage. Here is a statement issued by Mr. Nagy:

"Mr. Hathaway (Athletic Director) has repeatedly expressed his wish that the club should continue last year's successful operation. He is willing to look for appropriate aid and opportunity if there are enough students to participate regularly.

"We propose to get hours once or twice a week at the YMCA; or, we may open a room for the weightlifters and bodybuilders somewhere on campus. We feel that the YMCA would be better because it would provide us with excellent facilities and ideal health and work-out conditions.

"It would also enable me (Nagy) to give instructions regularly and try to set up a comprehensive team. "Everybody who is seriously thinking of participating in the work of the club should leave a message in my student mail box indicating whether he did weightlifting before, his phone number, address, and name. Immediate response is necessary."

Harriers Score Dual Meet Win, Run Victory Skein to 20 Straight

The Great Dane varsity cross-country team had an easy time in registering its 20th consecutive dual meet triumph as the harriers topped Siena, 18-42, and Utica, 16-43, in a home meet last Wednesday. The Munsymen placed five men in the top ten, sweeping the first three spots. The Dane frosh also had an easy win over Siena, whipping the Loudonville men 18-41. The next meet for the varsity is the LeMoyné Invitational at Syracuse tomorrow.

Joe Keating paced the varsity Daves, turning in a fine 25:17.6 clocking over the 4.55 mile, wet Washington Park course. It was his first win this season.

Following Keating to the tape were Paul Durbin and Bob Flick. Durbin in his first attempt at cross-country ran a fine race, and he was named "Runner of the Meet" by Coach Munsey.

Flick, who has been out with a foot injury, returned to place seven seconds behind Durbin, in 26:39. The other Albany runners were Bob Mulvey (fifth in 27:38), Ken Kirik (eighth in 28:33), and Doug Garner (10th in 28:47).

The harriers now sport a 3-0 mark on the year. Munsey was slightly disappointed in the showing of Siena and Utica. He was hoping the competition would be a little keener for his runners, adding that he is afraid his team might get a bit over-confident.

The frosh were paced by Don Beevers, who was only 20 seconds above the course record with a 17:55 timing over the 3.2 mile course.

The next meet for the freshmen will also be the LeMoyné Invitational tomorrow at Syracuse. The frosh now have a 3-0 season mark.

DANE HARRIERS Bob Flick and Paul Durbin ("Runner of the Meet") lead an opponent as they enter one of the many turns in Washington Park.

Potter, KB, APA Win Amia Grid Openers

Potter Club, Kappa Beta, and Alpha Pi Alpha came up with leading victories this week as the AMIA football league opened up its 1965 campaign. Each team showed a good offense with a tight defense in winning its opening game of the intramural league, now in its third decade of play.

On Monday, Potter Club edged Waterbury by the score of 14-6. Wayne Smith and Dave Sully proved too strong for Waterbury, as they combined for all of the winner's points.

Waterbury started the scoring in the first moments of play. The dorm men took the opening kickoff on their own 45 yard line, and after a 15 yard clipping penalty and a pass interference, Conn connected with Kane for a 13 yard touchdown pass. The try for the extra point failed.

But in the second quarter, Potter started to roll. Taking the ball on the Waterbury 42, a roughing the passer penalty advanced the ball to 27. Quarterback Smith ran to the 17, and two plays later he passed to Sully for the score. The same combination clicked for the extra point. In the fourth quarter the margin of victory was provided when Smith hit Sully with a 45 yard touchdown pass. Smith ran for the extra point to make the final score 14 to 6.

Tuesday, strong defense and clutch passing by Dan Thomas led Kappa Beta to a 33-0 victory over SLS. Kib's defensive line led by Joe Daley, Lance Anderson, Jack Kenny, and Andy Mathias harassed his quarterback Bob Breuder, forcing him to make many mistakes.

KB's touchdowns came on a 6 yard run by Thomas (set up by a 35 yard pass from Thomas to Mike Bloom), a 20 yard pass from Thomas to Tom Carey, a 45 yard touchdown run of a recovered fumble by Jim Constantino, a fumble recovery in the end zone by Daley, and a 25 yard intercepted pass by Kirk Ellis. Thomas also passed for 3 extra points.

Don Prockup and Ray Cianfrani led APA to a 36-0 romp over Stuyvesant Tower on Wednesday. Prockup's passing was outstanding, as he threw four touchdown passes, including a 55 yarder to Steve Zahurak and one for 40 yards to Stan Celebucki. Cianfrani scored two touchdowns, one on 69 yard kickoff return, and he was also excellent on defense, intercepting two clutch passes.

Booter Captain Udo Guddat Gives Team Good Example

by Don Oppedisano, Asst. Sports Ed.

Udo George Guddat, the captain of the 1965 Great Dane soccer team, is one of the finest athletes to participate in sports at Albany. The blond-haired, 185 pounder is the team leader this year, and his presence accounts for a great deal of the exuberance and drive the Dane booters have been showing this season.

Udo hails from Hempstead, L.I., and attended Uniondale High School. He participated in track and soccer, earning six letters in the two sports.

He still holds his high school's record for the pole vault.

Udo was born in Insterburg, Germany and moved to his present residence when he was 11 years old. The German major, business minor hopes to teach in Europe after he gets his BA in June.

At Albany, Udo has been on the soccer team for three years, playing center forward his sophomore and junior years and center half-back this season. When he was on the freshman squad in 1962, Udo was elected team captain. He was also the team's leading scorer.

"Very active in other extra-curricular activities at Albany, Udo served three years on the now defunct Senate, topping off his career

MYSKANIA Issues 5-Point Proposal To Revise Policy for '66 Yearbook

Last spring, MYSKANIA made several recommendations concerning the "Torch" and its staff. Since then, some of these recommendations have been revised. These revisions are no less strict than the original recommendations, but there are fewer of them. They are as follows:

- 1) That the constitution of the "Torch" be reviewed immediately.
- 2) That a guiding philosophy, purposes, and procedures, previously agreed upon by Central Council, be added to said constitution.
- 3) That Central Council assume ultimate responsibility for insuring adherence to said philosophy, purposes and procedures.
- 4) That if said philosophy, purposes, and procedures are not followed, Central Council take any action necessary to ensure their adherence.
- 5) That henceforth, all appointments to Student Association salaried positions be approved by Central Council.

These recommendations are unchanged from last spring, however, the recommendations concerning William Colgan's position on the staff, the circulation of the yearbook, and the "Torch" being entered in competition have been completely omitted.

At the first meeting of Central Council, these recommendations had been referred to the Communications Commission. At that time, the government was not organized to any advanced operable degree, and little action had been taken on these ideas.

It is hoped by MYSKANIA that the new government will take action on these matters at once, for it "feels that the scope of this situation affects not only the communication media but also every student matriculating at this University."

The recommendations to President Collins, and the Vice President of Student Affairs have not been changed. The major action in this matter will be on the part of the Student body, since Central Council has been named as the group responsible for ultimate evaluation.

French Education Minister Meets Faculty, Students

This past weekend, the esteemed Dr. Jean Babin, Rector of the Academy of Bordeaux, visited Albany. Dr. Babin is the appointed representative of the French Minister of Education in his post as Supervisor of the Academy of Bordeaux.

Under his supervision are five departments in France and the overseas departments of Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guiana. Dependencies of the Academy of Bordeaux, for administrative purposes, include French education programs in Fort Lamy, Chad, Lome, Togol, Banqui, Central African Republic, Libreville, Gabon, Yaounde, as well as in New York, Mexico, Buenos Aires, London, Edinburgh, and Bonn.

West Point
Dr. Babin came to Albany from West Point where he had been the guests of Superintendent General Shephard and Colonel Walter Tisdale, assistant to the president for

Ad Hoc Committee To Study 'Torch'

An ad hoc committee to recommend to Communications Commission whatever positive action it feels is necessary in regard to the 1966 edition of the "Torch" was established at Communication Commission meeting Saturday.

The committee is designed to include all interested and vitally affected parties in the controversy. It will be composed of one representative from the senior class, the faculty or administration, MYSKANIA, and three representatives from the Commission including Henry Madej, chairman, Douglas Upham, Central Council representative, and a member of the "Torch."

Madej said that he hopes the committee will report back to the Commission in a week or two at which time the Commission will act on the recommendation.

Central Council Recognizes SCOPE Discusses Committee Reports

The regular meeting of Central Council was called to order by President Richard Thompson on Thursday, September 30. Two new members, Mrs. Egelston and Dr. Rosenbach were welcomed, and sworn in by MYSKANIA chairman Al Smith. With a quorum present, the meeting proceeded with committee reports.

Financial matters were discussed by chairman Debbie Friedman. The first problem discussed was that of deciding who will have the authority to sign vouchers.

Some controversy developed within the Council concerning the recognition of SCOPE. Bill Leue presented SCOPE's constitution Recognition on the part of Central Council was deemed necessary, since SCOPE had not been previously placed under any of the present commissions.

At present the organization can operate only on a "limited basis." In a dual purpose motion, Harold Lynn proposed that Central Council give the constitution a temporary approval "contingent upon" approval of the Political Actions Committee.

New Publication
Ray Allen presented a plan for a campus visual arts publication. He stated that its purpose would be to extend recognition to those students and faculty members whose work would not otherwise be made directly known to the campus.

Because this publication would in essence be communicating these works to the University, it was felt that this was a matter within the concern of the Communications Commission. At the Friday, October 1, meeting of this commission, the proposed publication will be discussed, and if approved, work on it can be begun immediately.

Who's Who
Chairman Jack Kenny reported that the activity sheets are ready, and will soon be distributed to Seniors. This will be done through residence mail, and regular mail to student teachers.

The deadline for returning these sheets is October 18. The committee hopes to have a list of nominees ready for approval by October 21.

Grad Students
As was established at the Central Council meeting of September 23, Ed Brovanski and his committee are presently taking a poll among the graduate students in an attempt to bring a report on the graduate student's feelings about extra-curricular affairs on campus, and his relationship to them.

This report, along with some recommendations made by the grad students will be presented on October 6.

Tom Jones, co-chairman of Panhellenic Council, stated that the members of the body had been elected.

DR. THOMAS BARKER speaks with the leader of the German students who visited the University Saturday. The students toured the campus and attended a luncheon in Brubacher Hall. See story on page 3.

Idle Hands

Press Conference

President Collins has again agreed to continue the weekly press conferences which he and the ASP instituted last year. Once a week, he and/or Dr. Thorne, Vice President of Student Affairs will be meeting with reporters from the ASP, WSUA, and any other media or groups who so desire.

In the past Dr. Collins has very graciously answered any and all questions which have been put to him. He has also used these opportunities to release statements and announcements to the campus news media.

These conferences provide an invaluable route of communication between the students and the administration. Questions which might otherwise become lost in the bureaucratic structure of a large university can be asked to and answered by the man who is ultimately responsible for the workings of the university.

It remains for the students to take full advantage of these press conferences. We urge any and all students who have questions about the university or university policies to make these questions known to the ASP. We shall do our best to see that they receive accurate answers.

More of Same ilk

The new recommendation of MYSKANIA regarding the "Torch" fail to settle any of the basic questions involved in this situation.

The one point that is slightly more clear is MYSKANIA's hope that guidelines will be drawn specifically for the "Torch" and not for all publications. This is a relief. We were unable to see much similarity between the "Directory" and the "Torch."

The new recommendations reaffirm their previous stand. The older recommendations included some totally irresponsible suggestions.

The old list included attempting to forbid the staff of the yearbook from entering their book in contests, barring the book from residence hall lounges, and barring the book from Activities Day.

MYSKANIA attempted to recommend the impossible in asking for a review of the "Torch" constitution. At the time of the first list there was no "Torch" constitution.

In re-affirming its earlier suggestions, MYSKANIA virtually insists that a committee be established by Central Council which would have the power to censor any and all material which it deemed was not in accord with the guiding philosophy of the "Torch" and in the best interests of the student body.

This form of fascism should be rejected by all reasonable people. Any fool should realize that no staff is going to work on a publication only to have a series of big brothers approve each word before it is submitted to the printer.

The new recommendation that all salaried persons be approved by Central Council reflects the same lack of intelligence as the censorship proposal.

The attempt to make editorships and WSUA positions political footballs is absurd. The little men and their little minds who fear that someone will point to their errors as well as their points of pride should avoid showing their insecurity.

We hope the Central Council will think for themselves and not be led by the shortsightedness of MYSKANIA.

Review Misses Point

To the Editors: I am not a professional movie critic, nor do I aspire to be, but it seems to me that Doug Rathgeb's review (Sept. 24) of Landau's "The Pawnbroker" has completely missed the boat.

I agree that a film can be a serious commentary on our times, and I feel that that's what "The Pawnbroker" is, but I disagree with Rathgeb when he claims that the essence of the film is the story of a man who survives one hell only to be caught in another of his own making.

For you see, I'm not concerned as much with the situation of the pawnbroker himself as I am with the "derelicts" (as Rathgeb calls them), over whom the pawnbroker reigns. A victim of brutal, humiliating, tyranny in the name of the "Führer," the pawnbroker appears to have gained no insight from his experience, and in turn goes on to humiliate and tyrannize those below him in the name of "Money."

Instead of becoming a force for good, he takes advantage of the existing corrupt social structure to gain the leverage he needs to dominate those about him. What adds to his crime is that he is an educated man, an ex-professor, who would assume should know better.

For actually the pawnbroker is an employee of "Rodriguez" --- the vice lord of Spanish Harlem --- and in turn for letting his shop be used as a "front," the pawnbroker is paid with money earned by prostitutes, which he, in turn, uses to provide his relations with a nice home on Long Island.

Although the pawnbroker claims innocence as far as the knowledge of where the money comes from, the viewer can't help but feel that he must have had some insight in the matter.

Nor can we overlook the manner in which he personally cheats his customers and his dead friend's wife, assuming no responsibility for his actions, and again merely taking advantage of circumstances for his own benefits.

The pawnbroker eventually attempts atonement for his crimes by pushing a spindle through his palm, but that doesn't alter the society around him.

Thus I feel that the essence of the movie lies not in what this individual has personally gone through, for many people shared similar experiences (7 million Jews, 20 million Russians, and 3 million Poles, for example), but I feel that the essence lies in a condemnation of the existing social structure which allows such injustices as prostitution, vice, illiteracy, poverty, and just plain expediency and usury to continue unabated because "that's the way things are."

Actually today's crimes are worse; people escaped from the concentration camps, whereas thousands more are born each day in areas like Spanish Harlem.

Michael Arcuri

Understands Impatience

To the Editors: As a student at State, I was very disturbed to read the Open Letter to Foreign Students that appeared in the ASP, Tuesday, September 28. I sincerely hope that the apparent bitterness of the letter was not intended, and if intended, at least not shared by the bulk of the foreign students on campus.

It is not difficult to understand a visitor's impatience with the caliber of questions that Charles suggests are being asked. On the other hand, I urge him to consider the equally "provocative" and "antique" questions that some of his own countrymen might be tempted to ask a visiting American.

Whether we like it or not, a cultural barrier does exist. This barrier can be most effectively destroyed by the kind of personal interaction that might begin with an assinine question and end with a deeper understanding of a different culture and a different point of view.

It is very true that Americans find it hard to keep pace with the "wind of change" not only in Africa but in the Eastern countries as well, for the world is changing and developing with a rapidity that is almost frightening. For those of us who grew up with Tarzan movies, it is not easy to visualize the urban areas of Nigeria.

As both a State student of three years and a person who has long been acquainted with the problems of students trying to adjust to new and alien surroundings, let me add my own words of advice:

Relax. Try to be more patient with us. Be yourselves and help us to realize that it is precisely by recognizing and accepting our differences as well as our similarities that we will build any lasting friendships.

Don't take offense at the interest that students may take in your own personal affairs, for as visitors and "celebrities" your activities will naturally warrant attention.

Above all else, remember that most of us are very anxious to see you succeed at State. It is the rare professor who won't extend a helping hand if it's sincerely needed and the rare student who won't listen to your questions. Best of luck.

Cynthia Goodman

Pettit's Speech Discusses Plans

SUA's Dramatics Council held its third annual reception for students interested in working with the State University Theatre. The reception was held to acquaint students with the possibilities for work in the dramatic arts and to acquaint them with the drama faculty.

The program began with an introduction by Alex Krakower, try-out coordinator. President William Mayer gave a short history of the organization and explained the types of work involved.

Chairman

Dr. Paul Bruce Pettit, Chairman of Speech and Dramatic Art, delivered the main address.

His speech centered on the changes currently occurring in the department, the strenuous schedule of this year, and the plant available when the new campus is ready for occupancy.

As plans now stand the theatre building will cost 5.5 million dollars. It will contain five theatres seating up to 650.

There will also be a movie theatre, an arena theatre and two laboratory theatres seating approximately one hundred.

There are tentative plans for a theatre which will float on the lake.

Big Schedule

Pettit said that ten major productions in addition to over one hundred smaller ones will be possible with the new facilities. These facilities are scheduled to be ready in 2 1/2 years.

New faculty members, Martin Man and Robert Donnelly, were introduced. Mann will direct "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off," the first faculty directed musical at

German Students Tour University, Learn of Educational Offerings

Government, business and education activities of West Germany were represented in a group of 160 visitors who toured the University's campus Friday. The tour was sponsored by the German government.

The men and women who attend schools for post secondary education arrived by bus from New York. First, they received a tour of the new campus and then attended a luncheon held in Brubacher Hall.

The visitors were addressed in their native language by Dr. Thomas Barker, a Professor of History at the University. Dr. Barker described educational programs of the University with a special emphasis on the offerings of the Albany University center.

Dr. Randolph Gardner, Dean of the School of Education, Dr. Milton Olsen, Dean of the School of Business, and Dr. Albert Mossin, Professor of Business, discussed the fields of business, business administration and educational administration, the primary fields of interests to the group.
