Order of Exercises.

1. OPENING CHORUS—"School-Time Days." - - - C. Muller.

BY PROF. F. S. JEWELL.

Youthful eyes, with glowing glances,
Life behold with gladness crowned,—
All a scene of summer dances,
Lightsome trod in ceaseless round:
Yet of all its seasons golden,
One still bears the palm of praise,
For by youthful eyes beholden,
Brightest beam the school-time days.

Youthful hands in hands entwining,
Feel life's pulses warmer beat,
'Neath the summer noontide shining
O'er the hours when loved ones meet:
But the hours, when friendships brighten
All the toils of learning's ways,
Purer, warmer rays enlighten,—
Dearest still, the school-time days.

Youthful hearts, as age advances,
Roused by memory's magic spell,
Backward turn with tearful glances,
And on long lost pleasures dwell:
But, of all life's olden splendor,—
Hope's, or friendship's summer blaze,
Still, in recollection tender,
Sweetest shine the school-time days.

14. PARTING CHORUS—"Normal Graduate's Song,"

Queen Hortense.

BY PROF. F. S. JEWELL.

Hail, hail, ye dear old Normal halls!

We gather for the last,

And round us many a shadow falls

As dies the sun-lit past:

Our hearts could weep, but that we hold

Our course with courage true;

The future claims the spirit bold,

Then, fond, weak tears, adieu!

Adieu, adieu, we pause no more,

To nurse a vain regret;

The braver path leads on before,

And better days are yet;

And, as their trumpet call awakes,

Our hearts give answer high,—

The future strife the hero makes,

Forward to do or die!

O! round your memories of old,

A halo splendor streams,

Such as a sun-set touched with gold,

Sheds over twilight's dreams:

Its fading glow our hearts could weep;

But manhood cries, away!

Tis glory crowns the future's steep,—

The grave shrouds yesterday.

Away, away! to deathless strife

With ignorance and wrong,

The noblest labor of our life,

We pledge with purpose strong:

Should victory her prize withhold,

And conflict beat us down,

Then time shall bring the battle bold,—

Eternity the crown.
