Washington Predicts 2,000,000 Employees Fired at War's End

By CHARLES SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON. — Bureau of Labor Statistics confirms the estimate that approximately 2,000,000 Federal employees will have to be discharged after the war.

That figure has been used several times. And many Government workers have questioned it. However, Labor Statistics has a post-war planning unit—the largest such unit in Government. And this unit thinks 2,000,000 is a correct estimate.

Recently, the Bureau's Dr. Donald Davenport addressed the Council of Personnel Administration here. This is what he said on the matter of Government jobs after the war:

"The Government is going to contract by about 2,000,000 workers. That is, the Federal Government is going to contract. State, county and local governments have not changed in the last two or three years, but the Federal Government has expanded. Two million Government workers probably will be released, perhaps some of us, undoubtedly some of our staff members, for jobs elsewhere.

Trade Expansion

"Fortunately, there is going to be an expansion of trade. We'll see the day when the Fuller brush man will call again at the front door, when it will again be possible to get deliveries from the corner grocery store. We will see the day when it's again possible to get things without standing in line, and trade will expand. It won't take care of all these Government workers, but it will take care of some of them."

Officials engaged on post-war planning projects in Washington advise war service appointees to begin thinking seriously about their careers when the war is over. One of them has advised that a careful examination of prospective post-war developments wouldn't hurt any Federal employee. The time to start thinking and perhaps training for a post-war occupational field is now, this official suggests.

There will be an endeavor to keep war service appointees in their jobs—but as of now, there is every prospect that the chances of holding on to your position—if you've come in under war service regulations—are pretty slim. Some agencies will fold quickly; other will expand, and provide jobs for a little longer period. But don't count on hanging on if you're one of the 2,000,000.

POSTAL Carriers Into Clerks

The recent reduction of mail deliveries, as a war measure, ordered by Washington, has raised many questions in the mind of carriers about their new status.

Some of the carriers in New York City will be transferred to clerical work, and here are the answers to a number of the more important questions they are asking.

The National Association of Letter Carriers reports that First Assistant Postmaster General, K. P. Aldrich, has given carriers the following assurances:

Carriers who transfer to the clerk force will:

1—Retain their seniority, and not have to sign the five year waiver. (Formerly, when a clerk transferred to the carrier forces, or vice versa, he would lose five year's of seniority time—this provision has been dropped for the emergency transfers).

2—Carriers can remain as clerks, although there is the possibility that a return to the present delivery schedule after the war will find many carriers returning to delivery service.

3—Carriers transferring to the clerk force will be eligible for special clerkship on the same basis as clerks.

4—Carriers who transfer will be governed by the same regulations as clerks in regards to schemes and midnight tours in accordance with their seniority.

About Routes

As regards carrier routes, this is what officials of local branches of the NALC have advised their members:

1—All routes will be kept intact. There will be no route changes or consolidations.

2—Employees in the armed forces needn't worry that they will return to find their routes have been done away with.

3—Tours for all carriers: 6 a. m. to 3 p. m.

And here are two reasons why the drop in the number of carriers has been cushioned:

1—Many carriers of advanced age are taking advantage of the transfers to clerical jobs to get away from carrying the heavy loads.

2—Many carriers suffering from occupational ailments are taking advantage of the transfers to safeguard their health and reach their retirement.

Suggestions

A brief covering details of necessary transfers of carriers was submitted by officers of Branch 36, NALC, to local postal officials. These are the suggestions embodied in the group's suggestions:

1—Seniority:—Junior man in the service on a route or group of routes to lose assignment, except where vacancy exists due to carrier changing to clerk.

2—Assignments: Carriers losing their routes to be given choice in accordance with their seniority for routes with vacancies. Carriers losing routes and with no available vacancies should replace junior carriers.

Seniority in service to prevail in choice of vacated routes.

3—Absorbed two-man routes: Remaining man to combine with adjoining route, thus making in effect, a three man route so far as deliveries are concerned.

4—Midnight tours: Volunteers to be called for. If not enough appear, remainder should be picked from the last collectors to come to the station.

5—Transfers: Carriers forced to transfer to other stations to have first choice if they wish to return to their original station. Choice to be given in their turn of arrival on previous occasion.

To Be Solved

On the agenda of the Post Office men are these problems:

1. Change of title status of postal workers.

2. Non-competitive examinations in the Postal Service.

3. Support for the bill, H.R. 2419, now in the Senate, which will rescind the present substitute ruling, and put an end to the subbing system.

Local 1, National Association, Post Office and Railway Mail Service, will serve as hosts to the State Convention of the organization on September 12, at the Hotel Capitol.

In support of the convention's activity, the organization asks all of its members to write their Senators asking their vote to assure passage of the measure.

Post Office Still Seeking Clerks

The men and women serving with the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will receive about 15,000,000 packages during the Christmas season, and the rush to get the gifts delivered overseas by December 25 is already beginning.

Postmaster Albert Goldman is receiving applications from prospective clerks, laborers and chauffeurs who want to earn money and serve a patriotic purpose at the same time. The work will last over the Christmas holidays.

Here are the rates of pay: Clerks, 74 cents an hour for day work, 81 cents a night; laborers, 63 and 68 cents. Chauffeurs get 74 and 81 cents when they are driving, the lower rate when they are doing other work.

The work can be hard, mailbags are heavy and packages must be moved around quickly. And those hired must be available day and night.

Minimum age is 18. Physical condition must allow the applicant to do fairly heavy work.

Here's how to get the job: Apply in person at Room 4500, New York Post Office, Eighth Avenue and 33d Street—use the entrance near Ninth Avenue. And this is what you must bring along:

- 1.—Birth certificate or proof of American citizenship.
- 2.—Two passport-sized photographs.
- 3.—Two letters of recommendation from reputable friends or business associates.

Reduced ODB Staff Foresees More Work

No one is being fired from the Office of Dependency Benefits in Newark. Those employees who no longer work there since the order to cut the staff came down from Washington have been given "leaves without pay." The difference is that they get first chance at jobs if there should be renewed hirings at some future date, or if the number of resignations make it necessary to find replacements.

Here is the official report of the ODB on the layoffs in an exclusive statement to The LEADER:

"The reduction of personnel forces with the Army Service Forces has been completed as directed and the ODB is now operating at its ceiling figure of 8,093 as of September 1, 1943.

"Major Denton H. Reed, officer in charge of the Civilian Personnel Branch, disclosed that the required reduction was carried out in conformity with civil service procedure, and that in view of the number of persons involved, the number of complaints from employees affected was extremely small."

Why Reductions

Commenting on the reasons for the reduction, an ODB spokesman declared: "These reductions in the ODB are being accompanied by the introduction of new and simplified office and clerical procedures and improvements in production methods which will tend to increase the efficiency of operations with a reduced force of personnel.

'Oh Yeah'

But employees of the ODB standing on the sidewalk of the building during their lunch hour expressed views slightly different from those of the ODB's Army officer higher-ups.

"What the hell is this?" was the general reaction.

Employees pointed out that since its inception the ODB has been boasting of the fact that it was using the latest and most efficient office equipment—including many machines which haven't yet been made available to civilian offices. And yet, only a few weeks ago, with a staff of approximately 10,500, the office was desperately looking for 600 more workers.

"If this improvement in production methods means a speed-up," said one employee, "the officials will have to face the problem of getting a lot of new workers. There are plenty of other jobs around Newark, and none of us feel like killing ourselves to fit in with an economy program."

And here's another point brought up: The work of the

Too Many Colonels

WASHINGTON.—War Department has decided to look into the work of its many desk officers here.

It has launched a job survey to find out exactly what they are doing, and whether too many colonels aren't, perhaps, handling work that ought to be done by civilian junior clerks.

The survey problem will be just as welcome to the desk officers as it is to the Army. Most of them dislike Washington, and would honestly like to see active duty.

ODB is due to increase tremendously, and very soon. For one thing, the WACs became part of the Army on September 1, and now they're entitled to benefits from this office. This means more work.

The drafting of fathers, if it should come, will mean that practically every man inducted into the Army will have a dependency allotment, and this will also mean additional work.

Legislation increasing the amount of dependency allowance—which seems probable, means that over 3,000,000 accounts will have to be changed to meet the new requirements.

Employees who are already beginning to wonder how the ODB will manage to get along with its reduced staff under today's conditions are shuddering at the thought of trying to tackle all the new problems which the future will bring to the office.

And, chances are, that if some of the top men in the ODB were able to speak frankly, they'd agree with the employees this time.

Treasury Sets 30 P. C. Quota Of September Pay for Bonds

WASHINGTON.—If you're a Federal Civil Service worker, Uncle Sam wants you to put 30 per cent of your September salary into War Bonds.

Treasury Department's War Bond staff has set that quota for Government workers generally. It will be your contribution to the third War Bond drive, scheduled this month.

If you already are giving 10 per cent of your salary to War Bonds through the payroll deduction plan, your agency will ask you to give enough extra—for one month only—to raise it to 30 per cent.

In fact, no matter what you now are giving—be it more than 10 per cent or less—you'll be asked to contribute 30 per cent in September.

'Voluntary'

Of course, it will be completely voluntary. However, Treasury officials say quite frankly that they want Government workers to set an example for the rest of the country.

The 30 per cent quota will be flexible to this extent: Some employees will be expected to give more to make up for those who have to give less. What Treasury hopes to do, however, is to make sure that 30 per cent of the entire Treasury payroll, one way or another, goes into Bonds during September.

The average Government employee now earns about $165 per month. If he already is giving 10 per cent of his pay, his extra contribution (20 per cent) will amount to about $33.

Merchant Marine Calls For Men

Every ship launched means a need for more crew members—and the War Shipping Administration says that there are plenty of men with valuable maritime experience still holding down jobs "on the beach" while there is a constant call for their services.

The recruiting and Manning Organization of the WSA at 37 Broadway reports that during a single recent month, 826 qualified and skilled men were drawn back into seafaring from shore jobs.

There is still a pressing need for more men with all types of seamen's papers. The WSA office at 45 Broadway, Whitehall 3-8000 will arrange job releases for those now in an essential industry, who can serve the nation's war effort better by taking a sea berth.

Refresher courses can be arranged for men who have been on shore for a long time, and have gotten a bit rusty about their sea training.

Men with no previous experience aren't needed right now; except for cooks, bakers, combination cook-bakers. The WSA is out to see that the American merchant marine is the best fed in the world.

You Didn't Sign 'Under Protest'? City Won't Get You on That Dodge

The City may lose a good "out." Here is the present situation. An employee decides that he is entitled to back pay (perhaps he didn't get an increment to which was coming to him; or possibly he's not earning the prevailing wage in his trade). He goes to the Comptroller's Office and asks for the dough.

The C. O. can say, "Sure, you're entitled to the money, but we don't have to pay you."

Why not? Just because the employee didn't sign his payroll sheet "under protest."

This may sound screwy, but only two weeks ago, a Court solemnly ruled that a sanitation employee wasn't entitled to recover $1,200 because he hadn't made that little notation each time he got a paycheck. And he had written a letter to the department stating his claim.

And a few years ago, even a more peculiar situation came up. Then a group of employees in Welfare brought suit for back pay. They won the case, but that only started the confusion.

The Comptroller's Office paid those who had been signing their payrolls "under protest". The others, who had been in exactly the same situation, but hadn't signed that way, weren't paid.

The Department of Welfare protested that it wasn't quite fair to penalize some employees, but the Comptroller maintained

"That's the law" . . . and was upheld in court.

Action to Change It

After a recent LEADER article brought this situation to the attention of City officials and employees, action was started to amend the administrative code to remove the necessity for protesting on each payroll in order to be able to sue the City at a later date for back salary.

At this week's meeting of the City Council, Brooklyn representative Anthony J. DiGiovanna is scheduled to introduce an amendment which removes from the City code the necessity for City employees to meet this red-tape requirement. American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees, (AFL) is sponsor of the new bill. If the measure passes, an employee who discovers that the City owes him money will be able to collect, even if he wasn't aware of the fact before, and didn't signify his dissent twice monthly.

But in the meanwhile, City employees who think that they are being short-changed on payday had better be mighty careful when they sign for their checks.

What You Should Do

Here's what to do if you think that you may someday find yourself suing the City for back pay:

1. When you sign your payroll sheet, in the same box with your name write "under protest."
2. If you happen to miss a payday, and have to sign a receipt slip, make sure you do the same.
3. If the person above you has signed "under protest", you can't use ditto marks.
4. Even if you think you are getting the full salary to which you are entitled, you can't lose by signing "under protest." Many City employees do this as a form of insurance against the day when they may have to sue for something.
5. A small group of City employees who were formerly working under prevailing rates were given per annum status, and required to sign statements that they wouldn't sign "under protest". They have to obey, or they'll lose their per annum status. Employees of the Board of Education and the Authorities aren't under the "protest" signing provision of the administrative code.

ANTHONY DIGIOVANNA introduced a bill into the City Council for the purpose of doing away with the whacky business of signing payrolls "under protest," and if you don't, you're out of luck when you try to collect what's coming to you.

If you're a New York City employee, you'll be interested in the training courses now being planned for you. It isn't compulsory for you to take any of these courses. ## CLERKS

What Are Chances Of Promotion?

Almost 5,000 clerks in the City employ have filed applications to take the promotional examination to grade 3 and 4. But even if they pass the examination, their chances of seeing themselves in the next higher job very soon aren't any too good.

Here's the situation:

1—The first part of the examinations will be given on November 6 and 13. Then the papers have to be rated. After this, the second part of the test must be given, and that rated before the promotional lists can be drawn up. This work probably won't be completed until some time next year, according to the Civil Service Commission. As promotions are usually made in January and July, the resulting promotion list couldn't be used until July, 1944.

Department Lists First

2—The promotional list drawn up from these examinations can't be used until departmental lists have been exhausted, and there are still long lists in many of the City agencies which will have preference. However, a City promotion list may be used for as long as four years after it is promulgated and those taking the long wait do have a chance for the boost.

3—The City's present policy of making promotions only where they represent the least possible additional cost, means that those clerks who aren't near the top salary of their grade by increments, have even a longer wait before they can come up for promotion.

4—While the list may be used for city-wide promotions, many department heads are prejudiced against the idea of taking a clerk, grade 3 or 4, from another department and then breaking him in to the routine of the office. They prefer to see people who are familiar with their own office setup get the higher positions. Despite the distance of any tangible reward to those taking the examination, 3,336 have filed for the grade 3 test, and 1,458 for the grade 4. Applications for both examinations will be accepted for three weeks, starting about September 14, from those who weren't able to file during the original period of June 6 to 27.

You Paid It In—But Just Try to Get It Out!

Many City employees like to take advantage of their right to borrow back up to 40 percent of the amount they have paid into the City pension fund.

It comes in handy to pay taxes and insurance premiums, and such.

But lately many employees who take their little loans twice yearly have been walking into the pension office with a smile, and then walking out of the office in the old Court building without the smile, and without the money they expected—and have every legal right to get.

Records Still Not Up

They report that the girl at the downstairs office gives them a story about "records not being up to date."

Here's what Ralph L. Van Name, secretary of the pension fund, has to say about the situation:

For a long time the office was operating with about 40 vacancies. The result was that records couldn't be kept up to date. When employees came in for loans, the pension office assumed that their payments were ok and granted the loan.

In June, the Board of Estimate—which regulates the actions of the pension office—ruled that loans could only be made where there were complete records available.

Then, the Board of Estimate gave permission to fill the staff vacancies, but it will still be a long time until the books are brought up-to-date.

Right now, the 1942 postings are just about finished. During the next seven months, the staff expects to do two months' work every month, and by next April, the figures should be up to date.

RALPH LESTER VAN NAME, head of the New York City Retirement System, has had such a tough time climbing out of the morass of work he faced as a result of insufficient staff, that the City employee gets hit as a result—he can't borrow the usual amount on his pension Money.

But in the meantime, the employees who had expected to borrow on their '43 pension payments are just out of luck.

SUBWAYS Here--Or In the Armed Forces?

If you're a subway employee, the Board of Transportation feels you're needed more here than in the armed forces.

Reason: Vacancies just can't be filled. There are now over 3,000 unfilled jobs in the agency, and it's likely to get worse rather than better.

That's why the Board's new Selective Service adviser, Walter Shackleton, isn't making out what is known as a replacement schedule. The replacement schedule is a kind of agreement with Selective Service Headquarters allowing an industry to hold on to its men for a given number of months, thus permitting replacements to take the place of men now on the job who will be called into service.

No Replacements
"But," says Shackleton, "there aren't any replacements available, so there's no point in making up a replacement schedule." Subway civil service lists of all kinds have long been exhausted, and the Board of Transportation has been hiring in the open market. But the manpower situation is such that it's virtually impossible to find new personnel, especially in the skilled and semi-skilled categories. Hence the necessity, in the Board's view, of holding on to its present employees as long as possible.

Take the case of signal maintainers. It requires seven years to train a man so that he is fully competent, according to some officials of the Board. There are now 49 vacancies in this category. It is completely impossible to obtain signal maintainers anywhere. To permit more of the men to leave the subways, would be definitely to create a dangerous situation, in the opinion of Board officials.

Dependency
In requesting deferments, the Board makes no distinction between married and single men. The Board isn't interested in dependency. The only deferments it will request are on occupational grounds. However, any employee may come into the office set up for handling selective service problems, and he will be given general advice on his status as a family man.

Mr. Shackleton doesn't go around to every draft board as soon as a subway employee receives a notice. What he does is to go to the man's file (there is now a regular card file giving the occupational status, training, and background of each employee), and on the basis of it he writes to the local board. He may tell the employee to request a hearing and to ask that he be permitted a representative. In that case, Mr. Shackleton may appear in person.

Thus far, the local boards have shown a disposition to give full cooperation to the Board of Transportation in its manpower problems.

Same Work, Different Pay

Despite all the wage adjustments which have been effected in the Board of Transportation, there are still a few points of difference between the Transit system and the employees.

Here's one matter now being taken up to Transport Workers Union's representatives and Edward C. Maguire, deputy commissioner in charge of personnel relations:

On the BMT System, the railway clerks (people who sit in the change booths) earn a top salary of 70 cents an hour—but only a dozen or so employees get that rate; most get 58 cents. On the IRT, the top rate is 75 cents an hour, and the bulk of the employees there get the top pay. The TWU would like to see employees doing the same work in the different lines get the same pay.

HEALTH Why Provisionals Weren't Placed

There are twenty-five provisional clerks working in the Department of Health. There have been some complaints that these provisionals should be replaced with permanent appointees, from the grade 1 clerk list.

But this time, the Health Department gets a clean bill of health. The department says, and the Civil Service Commission agrees, that all the provisional employees are filling military or other vacancies until the permanent job-holder gets back.

Besides that, the list of eligibles for the clerks jobs was canvassed, and they were offered the temporary positions, but practically all decided to wait for a permanent job to come.

FIRE DEPT. 3-A's, 2-B's, Unclassified Men

Here is a new angle of interest to all Fireman eligibles who have been refused jobs with the Department because of their draft status.

Not only 3-A men, who had that status at the time they came up for appointment and were passed over, will be affected by the coming action of the Court of Appeals, but others in 2-B draft classification, and unclassified men, will be affected as well. The Court is expected to hear arguments in a few weeks between David Savage, attorney for 48 men who feel entitled to their jobs, and Seymour B. Quill, who is defending the City's point of view.

One of the discarded eligibles, Samuel Wechsler, was in 2-B. Another, Patrick J. Burns, hadn't yet been classified by his local board. They are both among the litigants, and outcome of the case will determine the rights of other men in similar circumstances who have been refused appointment because of their draft status.

This is the background of the present case:

1. Fire Chief and Commissioner Patrick Walsh ordered eligibles who were in 3-A to be skipped over when their names came up for appointment on the grounds that they might be reclassified and drafted. This was last September 16th.

2. The suit brought by the 48 men was decided in their favor by the Appellate Division which ruled that the Commissioner had exceeded his authority in refusing these appointments. He had the right, the Court held, to refuse to appoint men in 1-A, or who are members of the military or naval reserve forces. The Court also ordered the men given the fireman appointments with seniority from the date when they should have been made firemen.

3. The City promptly appealed, and this appeal is now before the State's highest Court which had the case scheduled for late this month.

SANITATION Batter Up!

Police and Sanitation baseball "nines" cross bats at the Yankee Stadium on Sunday Afternoon, September 19, at 2:30, and all indications are that the game will be a sellout, as usual.

To keep in trim, the two teams have been playing soldier squads throughout the City, and the Police are out to try and even the series, which now stands at four wins and one loss for Sanitation.

Commissioner Carey (on the right) is seen with Harry Langdon, his Chief Fiscal Officer. Occasion of the photo is the big activity at Sanita last week, when newsreel cameramen showed up to take movies of the Sanitation rest spot. Not so long ago, Sanita was the object of less solicitous attention from a Councilmanic probing committee.

Entire proceeds of the game will go the Welfare Honor Relief Fund of Sanitation, which helps out the Department employees in emergencies and maintains a summer camp at Holmes, N.Y.

Tickets, priced at $1.10, can be obtained at any Police Station, or at 125 Worth Street, Sanitation's Central Office. Soldiers can get free tickets at the USO, 99 Park Avenue.

If the weather proves inclement, the game will be played the following day.

Handling the promotion of the game is Harry Langdon, who has been in charge of the event since it first started in 1937.

Diserio Ill

Ill, for the past two weeks: Trial Commissioner Matthew Diserio, whose health hasn't been up to par for a year now.

Scowmen Up

As of September 1, 36 scowmen in the Sanitation Department have received raises of $180 each—from $1620 to $1,800. Even this is an extremely low figure in terms of the earnings now available for men in this trade. The raise was necessitated by the difficulty of obtaining new men for the job—and holding those now working.

Promotions

Fifty acting assistant foremen in the Department of Sanitation were promoted from the eligible list for that position by Commissioner William F. Carey last week.

During the promotion ceremony, the men were reminded by Assistant to the Commissioner, William J. Powell, that he had risen from the ranks, and that they had the same opportunity to advance.

However, if the promotions had been made only two months earlier, on July 1, the men would have received a cost-of-living bonus of $180 added to their salary of $2,280.

PARKS Cash Problems

Latest developments in the Parks Department center around the employees' paychecks.

1. Councilwoman Doris I. Byrne is introducing a bill at this week's Council meeting to provide four annual increments to gardeners and assistant gardeners.

2. The State, County and Municipal Workers of America, CIO, is circulating petitions among Park employees favoring the 15 percent general increase to City workers, which is the subject of a bill now in the Council hopper.

3. The Union reports that it has received numerous complaints from gardeners and assistant gardeners that the $120 cost-of-living increase to which they are now entitled hasn't yet made its appearance on their paychecks.

QUEENS 15%, Please!

The Queens Borough Civil Service Employees Association is another group working to put over the 15 percent salary increase for City employees.

They've been circulating petitions in favor of the legislation now before the Council, and hope to be able to report favorable action on the bill at their next meeting in October.

Joseph C. Finn is president of the group; John Feely, 1st vice president; Ida Fargue, 2nd Vice president; Peter J. Hauck, treasurer; Frances Donovan, financial secretary; Mary M. Donlon, recording secretary.

Garden

The Victory garden behind the Borough Hall in Kew Gardens, Queens, is the center of attraction these days.

Tomatos are already popping off the vines and onto salad plates, or into jars for the winter, and some of the amateur agriculturists can't resist the temptation of pulling the carrots out of the ground, though they'll get larger if left in for a while.

Queens Legion

W. Arthur Cunningham Post, American Legion, composed of civil service veterans from the Federal, State and City employ meets on the second Thursday of each month at the Flushing Arsenal. Prospective members are invited to attend a meeting of the group.

Re-Employment from Merchant Marine

The U. S. Civil Service Commission says that Federal employees who join the Merchant Marine have a right to the same re-employment and other privileges as employees who enter the Army, Navy or Marine Corps.

This week, the Commission gave Federal agencies formal notice to that effect. Also, it made plain that the employee who wants to enter the merchant marine must be released—his agency can't block him.

The Commission gave War Shipping Administration the right to appeal the case of any employee whose release was refused. The Commission itself will act as final arbiter.

Your Education in the Armed Forces

(This is a continuation of General Bradley's detailed description of educational opportunities in the armed forces.)

What It Takes to Train the Crew of a Battleship

The men it takes to operate the machines on one large battleship represent at least 1,500 aggregate years of training and 2,500 years of experience.

Of the 2,000 enlisted men on an average battleship:

All must have 8 weeks' basic naval training.

About 500 must have an additional 16 weeks of naval technical training beyond their basic training.

Another 500 must have this training and an additional advance training course (a total of 52 weeks or more) before joining the fleet.

Another 500 must have had considerable sea experience, and at least one term in Fleet School or another of the advance training schools.

About 80 percent of the men must complete the equivalent of trade school courses during their naval service.

All of them must continue to study and train as long as they are in active service.

Of the 100 officers:

About 50 are Annapolis graduates; the others have come out of Naval R.O.T.C. courses and Midshipman Reserve Schools, or out of the ranks of Chief Petty or Warrant Officers.

The Captain has probably had 30 years of Naval service.

The executive officer, a Commander, has probably had 20 years.

The heads of departments (gunnery, navigation, engineering, construction, communications, medical, and supply), usually Commanders or Lieutenant Commanders, average 12 to 16 years' service.

Division officers and junior division officers in each department average 5 years' service.

For the complement of 2,100 there are 2,100 assigned jobs, each one specialized yet requiring the highest degree of teamwork with the others.

What It Takes to Train An Infantry Regiment

The training required of an infantry regiment is equally impressive. Of the approximately 3,000 men in the average regiment, each combat soldier must have the equivalent of:

14 weeks' individual training.

12 week's unit training (which prepares the regiment to operate as a unit).

12 weeks' combined training (which prepares the infantry regiment to operate as an efficient combat team with the artillery and other units, so that the division may fight as a unit).

8 to 10 weeks' field maneuvers, under simulated battle conditions.

The service specialists in the regiment (drivers, cooks, clerks, communications experts, mechanics of all kinds, armorers, intelligence and reconnaissance men, ammunition and pioneer details, and medical sections) are detailed somewhere in the process for 8 to 12 weeks' specialized training, then returned for continued training with their units. Some of the approximately 140 officers have probably come out of West Point or another military school, and had as much as 30 years' military experience. All of them, from the commanding colonel to the newest second lieutenant just out of officer candidate school, have had advanced training, many of them in staff schools like the command school at Leavenworth or various service schools. A number of them (like the regimental surgeon, the personnel officer, the chaplains) have had long training as civilian specialists before they began their military training. On conservative figuring, it takes 3,000 man-years of training to put a good infantry regiment into the field.

WELFARE

Clubhouse For Oldsters

Welfare has just taken on a new job . . . to liven the existence of old people who are along in the big City.

An experimental program is being started at Welfare Office 46 in the Bronx, where they have about 4,000 old-ages cases on the books.

They've taken over a building formerly used by the WPA and have turned into a clubhouse for the oldsters.

On Their Own Time

On their own time, staff members have repainted the place, furnished it, chipped in about $100 to buy what equipment they couldn't make, and now the elderly people of the neighborhood have a place where they can get together, gossip, play cards, do handicraft work, etc. There will be where hobbies will be taught, and courses in English and other subjects given.

If the new project proves a success in the Bronx, it will probably be tried in other parts of the City.

City Jobs For Reliefers

Welfare is helping to meet the City's labor shortage by making sure than any relief clients who are capable of doing work are put to work for a City department where they can earn their allotment.

And if the relief recipient refuses to take a City job on either a provisional or a permanent basis, he's open to what is delicately termed "appropriate case action."

'Red-Tapest'

People who work in Welfare maintain that it's the "red tape" department in the whole City. Here's a sample of the little notices which are constantly floating down from the administrative offices to the workers and keep things in constant flux. This one is from the Bureau of Public Assistance.

"Effective immediately, procedure 37-395 entitled 'Endorsement of Relief Orders' is cancelled.

"Whenever a situation arises for AB, ADC, HR, or OAA cases to which this procedure formerly applied, paragraphs II B 2 and II B 3 of Procedural Form Mo-220a will be applicable."

Any Philadelphia lawyers in the house?

Promotion

The Department of Welfare has appointed Anna Kaplum to the position of senior medical social worker. The position was formerly held by Grace E. Allen, who has been given a year's leave of absence.

Miss Kaplum was previously a fourth grade administrator in charge of Welfare Office 17. Unofficial sources close to intra-departmental squabbles report that some upper bracket staff members are upset over the appointment and have suggested an examination of her qualifications for the high position.

HOSPITALS

More Help

The new nurses training program being started in cooperation with the Federal Government at all the City's nurses' training schools calls for extra help in the Hospitals Department.

The Budget Office reports that it has already approved the following additions to hospital staffs, and there should be more coming later

One chief nurse at $1,830, plus maintenance; four resident nurses at $1,530, with maintenance; a part-time physician at $5 a session, a stenographer and clerk at $1,201, and lecturers at $5 a talk are provided for in the additional budgetary allowance.

POLICE

5 Days to 30

Auto mechanics in the Police Department get exactly 5 day's sick leave each year. Other mechanics working alongside of them get 12 days; some get as much as 30.

They've taken this matter up with the Department officials, the State, County and Municipal Workers of America, CIO, says, and they haven't been able to get any satisfaction yet.

First they were told that the matter comes under the jurisdiction of the Budget Office.

B.O. said "It's none of our affair."

Then they tried to get another meeting with a Deputy Police commissioner, but all the department's top men seem to be too busy to discuss the matter.

That's the situation now, and the 80-odd men are peeved.

They Say One Thing, Pay Another

SEEMS TO US indisputable that when you're offered a job at a certain salary, you ought to get that salary—not less. It's a common practice for civil service commissions to announce positions at one salary range—and then for the department hiring the employee to offer him a lower salary.

Take an example: The new series of New York State examinations. In every announcement, this sentence appears—after the official salary range has been stated: "Appointment expected at the minimum but may be made at less. . . ." One examination is open for attorneys in the Department of Taxation and Finance. The official salary range is stated as $4,000 to $5,000. And then, in the same paragraph, you read this: "At present two vacancies exist in the Albany office, one at $3,550 and one at $3,240."

It isn't good business—and in private business it wouldn't happen.

This flexible salary setup is just a way of fooling the employee. Certainly it's out of place in 1943.

The bad practice of paying salaries less than the minimum should cease.

COULD YOU LIVE ON THIS?

TALKING ABOUT salaries: A friend of ours recently appointed to the Police Department came in to say hello. He looked kind of dejected, so we asked him why.

"I've just gotten my check," he told us. It came to $47—for two weeks."

This man has a wife and two children.

"How do you manage," we inquired, "to live on $23.50 a week?"

"Well, I've got friends who are willing to stake me until I can pay them back. Also, I took out a loan. But I keep getting more and more in debt—and I'm scared."

Mr. Mayor, Mr. Police Commissioner, here you have a basic cause for many of your troubles in the P.D. It was a sad day when you, Mr. LaGuardia, forced the entrance salary for members of the department down to $1,320 a year. It meant that every young cop coming on the job was starting his career with a load of indebtedness on his head.

The very least that the people of New York can do, is to make sure that the $450 bonus plan of the police and firemen goes over with a bang.

'SIGNING UNDER PROTEST'

WE'RE GLAD to see that a bill is being introduced in the City Council cutting out the "sign under protest" farce which now accompanies New York City payroll procedure. Today, if you think the City isn't paying what's coming to you, you're out of luck unless you sign the payroll under protest. Because if a court action is brought and the City loses, you'll only get the back pay in the event you put in your objection when the paycheck came through. The new bill provides that it isn't necessary to sign under protest: if at any future date, a court case is brought against the City to collect back pay—and if the court holds that persons in your category are entitled to back pay, you'll get it, whether or not you signed under protest.

That's only common sense. Now let's make sure the Council doesn't bury this bill in committee.

But in the meantime, you'll be wise to continue screwing that "under protest" when you collect your money—if there's any reason to think the City isn't on the up-and-up with you on pay.

Don't Repeat This!

City Hall Buzzings

LaGuardia is due to get a sizzling letter from the American Civil Liberties Union, accusing him of playing hob with the civil rights of City employees. . . . It's said that the new job which Lester Stone, Mayor's secretary is taking with the Institute of Public Relations, was procured for him by Fiorello, and the story underlying this says that Butch isn't going to stay in office as Mayor very much longer, and so is placing some of his close aides in good jobs. . . . Another straw in the wind is pending resignation of David Shivitz, who heads Legal division of Public Works. Shivitz is close to Butch. . . . Two names were buzzing around last week as possible successors to Lester Stone: Larry Bendiner, who runs publicity for OCD, and Dave Thompson, mayoral aide. . . . Ben Alpert, Sanitation, has chosen the Navy. . . . And Joe Strack, who handled publicity for NYC Welfare Department and later for State Welfare, is a captain in AMG. . . . Matthew Napear, whose salary comes from OCD, has been around Sanitation headquarters a good deal since that incident. . . .

Politics, Inc.

There's no love lost between Fiorello LaGuardia and Frank Hogan, Manhattan D.A. . . . And LaGuardia didn't improve things any when he belligerently talked as though to create the public impression that he himself was largely responsible for the Costello expose, the Sunday after Hogan revealed the facts. . . . Moreover, Butch neglected to mention that Aurelio is his own appointee . . . and that Aurelio has a letter from the Mayor testifying as to his "good character" . . . Another revelation on political gangsterism due soon from Hogan's office, what with while on the force—"whenever I could find a spare moment." During the same year, he took a degree from CCNY. His law degree comes from St. Lawrence University.

This Cop Is A Constitutional Lawyer

His education is still far from complete. He's half through a course in public administration, which he's taking at New York University. One day he expects to get a Doctor of Philosophy degree in public administration.

"No particular purpose behind it," he shrugs. "Just interests me."

How about family life when a man's on the job and studying in his spare-time?

"Well, at first my wife didn't mind it," he grins. "Now she's tending to get soured on the idea—since she doesn't see it landing me anywhere."

Idea Man

Fay has plenty of ideas on plenty of subjects, and particularly about police administration. "But now," he says, "isn't the time to pontificate." But he's compiling notes on police work and someday he may write a couple of books on the subject.

The men under Fay like him. He has the reputation among them of being a quiet, simple, independent person—not a harsh disciplinarian, but one "who gets the work out of us," as a patrolman explained it.

At the time he became active in the reapportionment fight, Fay taught law in the Police Academy. He was taken off the detail, however, and now holds forth in the Second Precinct, 156 Greenwich Street, Manhattan.

He's been in the P.D. almost 20 years—since 1924. At one time he was a mounted policeman.

WHEN THE APPELLATE Division of the State Supreme Court considers the involved question of New York State's political boundaries this week, one of the men who will argue the case for upsetting an important law is a cop.

He's Lieutenant David Anthony Fay, New York City Police Department. He's suing to have the reapportionment act declared unconstitutional. In addition to being a member of the Police Department, he's a lawyer. And he knows so much about the subject of reapportionment that he's capable of fighting the issue out personally. As a matter of fact, he has himself written a resolution on alteration of the State's political boundaries—a resolution which he feels is strictly within constitutional limitations, and yet accomplishes the job. He did this while a member of the Queens County Bar Association's committee on reapportionment. He became interested in the subject once when a friend asked him to look up the constitutional provisions on it, and he has since learned so much about it that politicians say he knows as much as anybody on the subject.

letters

The LEADER invites all readers to write in upon any Civil Service subject. Letters receive the careful attention of the editors. Those of general interest are printed. Letters which appear in these columns may be answered by readers with other points of view. All letters should be signed, but names will be kept confidential if requested.

They Did a Job

Sirs: Your recent articles explaining the terrific burden of work tackled by the Central Payroll Division (Comptroller) were appreciated by employees here. It would take many pages to adequately describe how furiously we worked to pay the city's tremendous staff on time and how we still work at great pressure under abnormal war time conditions. But would you kindly print several more facts as illustrations of the kind of service we give and the low salaries we receive?

Nearly all of us are skilled workers. We run machines as well as handle complex payroll reports. Most of us had to learn our duties in record-breaking time because of the constant pressure and the military inductions of the more experienced staff.

We worked overtime every night for weeks without compensation (the city does not pay for overtime). Overtime is a fixture in Central Payroll! At some vague future date we may get some time off for the hours of extra work.

Everybody acknowledges the great work we do, but few point out how terribly low our wages are. Grade 2 Clerk may sound important, but how can one live these days on $1,320 a year? Yet this is what most of us earn. For a great city like New York it is fantastic and inhuman.

Needless to say, we would welcome with cheers steps to revise upwards present salaries, and we hope you will continue your support of such sorely needed measures.

Meanwhile we shall continue to do our best to serve our fellow employees and our city.

A CENTRAL PAYROLL EMPLOYEE.

We certainly think you are doing a swell job, deserve higher pay, overtime.—Editor.

Those U. S. Time-Off Provisions

Sirs: Please accept my thanks for that material you printed on the Federal time-off provisions. As a result, my supervisor—who hadn't known about the new provisions previously—posted the material prominently and we all feel something important has been accomplished.

Miss H.F.G.

The text of the White House statement on new time-off provisions for Federal employees appeared in full in The LEADER for August 10. All departments must obey them.—Editor.

32 Years On Job—

Couldn't Retire

Sirs: The other day a civil service clerk in U. S. Government employ died right at his desk, and had to be carried out from there.

Another Federal civil service employee died, after having served 32 years.

In both above cases, the employees had fully 30 years service, but could not retire on full pension because the present Federal Retirement Law keeps harping on an age-factor—as if it was an old-age pension instead of a service pension. They couldn't retire, much as they'd like to because they weren't old enough; nor could any waiting and deserving war-time service appointee fill their vacancies because they had not retired. A sad commentary, and a challenge for all the newer employees to push for amending the Federal Civil Service Retirement Law to eliminate the age factor, and make the retirement for full pension for 30 years service, regardless of age.

POST-WAR CAREERS

A SPECIAL SECTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE LEADER

IT HAS ALWAYS been a precept of the Civil Service LEADER to go beyond the immediate FACTS of the news. It was with this editorial approach in mind that, before our nation entered the war, this newspaper sought through all possible sources to gauge what that imminent event would mean to the Government employee and the prospective employee. It is in the same mood that we undertake, with this issue, a discussion of post-war careers. What of the returning soldiers? What of the 2,000,000 Federal employees who will be compelled to leave their jobs? What of the workers in war plants? Is it possible for these people to begin preparation now for new careers, or for extension of their ability to perform present occupations more effectively in the post-war world? In most cases, Yes. The material that follows doesn't answer all the questions. It is a beginning, however, and from time to time The LEADER will inform its readers of new and interesting developments in the scope of post-war occupations, and how you can prepare for things to come.

U.S. Offers Many Plans Of Career-Education

The job that you are holding down in time of war is important to the nation and to the war effort, and to make it possible for you to get the training to do your share to win the war—and in most cases to fit yourself for a post-war career, the War Industries Training Program has been set up by the Government.

Your local United States Employment Service office, or the area Manpower Office (in New York City at 500 Fifth Avenue) can help you select the type of training most beneficial to you. Local schools, both public and private, and industries, too, are cooperating with the Government to meet the demands for skilled workers.

Here are some types of training offered through U.S. Government sponsored programs, without cost:

Training on Production Work

This training is provided by the employers in their own plants and shops. Assistance is given by the Apprentice and Training Service. The vocational schools provide production training either in the employers' plants or in schools; the trainees are paid for the time spent in training.

Pre-production Training

Pre-production training is provided to develop the skills of employed workers where the training cannot be accomplished on production work. Vocational schools set up pre-production training programs for employed workers and provide instructors to carry on the training in the employer's plant.

For Skilled Production Specialists

Apprenticeship training is a comprehensive training program to prepare for a skilled occupation requiring 4,000 or more hours of job experience, rounded out by supplementary training. Its objective is the development of all-round skilled workers. The Apprentice Training Service is specially designed to set up training programs and establish proper employer-employee relationships so far as the training is concerned.

For Engineers, Chemists, Physicists and Their Assistants

Through the facilities of about 200 colleges—twelve in the New York area—the Engineering Science and Management War Training Program offers free courses. See page 11 for details.

Pre-employment Training

This training leads to jobs in war industry. The courses vary from a few days to several weeks, or even months, depending on the particular type of job for which the person is being prepared. The United States Employment Service first verifies the need for this training, and then refers trainees to war contractors when they are ready to take a job. At this time men who want to transfer to essential war work from non-essential jobs can take advantage of this part of the project. And persons who want to go into farm work can take advantage of special training to prepare them for dairy, livestock, poultry and other types of farms.

How Shall I Choose a School?

By W. ALBERT LOTZ
Director, YMCA Schools
New York City

The question that thousand of young people are asking themselves each year is this: "Where shall I go to school?" This year Uncle Sam has taken that burden away from majority of the young men, but the others who have a while before induction, or are deferred and the girls realize that the choice of a school can have a vital bearing on their future.

These are the points which should be considered:

1. The quality of instruction: This depends on the faculty, the classroom and laboratory equipment and the library facilities. Inspect the school carefully before you register. Learn the attainments and backgrounds of the instructors.

2. Will the course be recognized when you have completed your studies? Will the fact that you attended this particular school help when you apply for a job?

3. Location: If you are taking evening courses will you spend so much time in travel that it won't allow you sufficient rest, or time for home study.

4. Are you suited for the study you are about to begin? Do you think that you are certain that you have made the best choice of a career? Most schools will give you vocational help when you first come to register.

Fields That Will Expand

ACCOUNTING

"Accounting, formerly considered historical record-keeping by many business men, has emerged as an indispensable tool of management. It is evident that there will continue to be an increasing demand for trained accountants so that business and industry may constantly be provided with the facts for making policy decisions."

E. M. Voorhees, Chairman, Finance Committee
United States Steel Corporation

ADVERTISING

"New products and services to be introduced after the war will require every resource of advertising to inform the public. New advertising techniques increasing the selling power of words, pictures, and sound will further the never-ending effort to reduce the cost of distribution. All this demands more and better-trained advertising men."

Clarence Francis, President
General Foods Corporation

BANKING

"Banks will play a large and indispensable part in the new peace as in the war. Unprecedented developments will present a challenge and an opportunity that can be met only by bankers who are resourceful and adequately trained."

Herbert P. Howell, Chairman of the Board
The Commercial National Bank and Trust Company of New York

RETAILING

"Retailing will have the postwar responsibility of distributing the goods that America has shown it is able to produce and that the increased incomes will demand. To do this will require capable personnel in administration, in executive positions, and in staff, to fill the various positions in the four functions of retailing—merchandising, management, control and publicity. It would appear that so wide a variety of possible positions would intrigue an ever increasing number of young men and women."

Percy S. Straus, Chairman of the Board
R. H. Macy & Company, Inc.

MANAGEMENT

"The ever widening responsibilities of management to the public, to ownership, to labor, and to the government require broad-gauge, dynamic leadership. This leadership must be supported by an organization of competent managers, supervisors, technicians, and specialists for free enterprise to render the full service to humanity of which it is capable."

Lewis H. Brown, President
Johns-Manville Corporation

REAL ESTATE

"For ten years, home building has been at such a low level that it will be necessary to build at least 1,000,000 houses and apartments a year for many years after the war. Rehousing America after our boys come home will require so much imagination, ability, and professional training that it presents a real challenge to the business of real estate."

Joseph P. Day, President
Joseph P. Day, Inc.

TRANSPORTATION

"To win this global war America has had to produce miracles of transportation. When victory is won we have an equally important job—to solidify the peace. For this, transportation is the key. This service to world recovery and social progress will require the best minds, the greatest industry of our people if we are to hold our rightful place of democratic and economic leadership."

J. T. Trippe, President
Pan American Airways System

INSURANCE

"The great majority of our citizens, including those now in the armed forces, will take out life insurance to give their families the protection which they need and desire. The proper placing and servicing of this protection will offer a tremendous and expanding field for career men following the war."

Franklin D'Olier, President
The Prudential Insurance Company of America

Your Post-War Career in Business

It's worth working hard for the day when the last shot will be fired and the last oppressor will be driven from his place of power. But you aren't working nearly as efficiently as you might if over you hovers a cloud of anxiety—anxiety about what the end of the war will mean to you personally and to those who depend on you for support.

That the end of the war will bring dislocations in employment no one seriously questions. How much you will suffer through such dislocations depends to a good extent on yourself. It is the purpose of this article to show you what you can do now to overcome your present uncertainty and to prepare for a more certain future.

'What Will the Future Be Like?'

There will be different goods to make and sell. There will be new materials, new markets, new competition. In some instances the end of the war will bring the opportunity for expansion of facilities and services that had been curtailed; in other instances, the end of the war will bring drastic shrinkages in production and personnel; and in still other instances, employers will search for new channels into which to direct the full energies of their war-born plants.

America is planning ahead. Prefabricated houses, television in color, glass refrigerators and stoves, merchandising by air transport, manufactured weather, helicopters, electronics, week-end round trips to Africa—business makes plans for such innovations, and for others less dramatic; new foods, new fabrics and plastics, new home comforts, new leisure-time activities, new office machines and methods.

And just as in the war industries the demand has been greatest for those with specialized technical training, so in the peace industries will the demand be greatest for those with specialized business training—for those with training in selling, advertising, marketing, industrial relations, personnel management, accounting, corporation finance, production, banking, economics, credit and collections, transportation, journalism, insurance, real estate, government regulation, or other specialized fields of knowledge. And in each of these fields there will be for trained and ambitious men and women a future as unlimited as the future of America itself.

'Where Do I Fit Into the Picture?'

What can you do, you may ask, to ensure a place for yourself in that future? The answer is simple: Prepare! A program of preparation might well follow these lines:

1—Determine what business skills your temperament and past training best fit you for. Do this by studying your personal qualifications in relation to all fields of business activity. If you like to work with figures, it does not necessarily follow that you will like accounting work, but you may discover that you like statistics or marketing research or corporation finance. If you have qualities of leadership, business management offers many outlets for your talent; but management is a broad field, and you may wish to develop your executive abilities in such specific business functions as sales, credit, production, or personnel relations. If you like to write, advertising may suggest itself to you, but there are also many writing jobs in public relations, journalism, and retailing that may appeal to you even more. Naturally, if you are now doing the kind of work you like, you will probably want to prepare yourself for advancement in one of its many specialized phases. Doubts about your aptitude for a particular field of business may be relieved by a talk with your employer or personnel manager, or by consultation with a competent educational adviser such as you will find at private schools or universities in the metropolitan area. There should be no charge for such service.

2—Learn where you can get the training needed to make you proficient in your chosen field. There are several good schools in New York where you may get such training in the evening, without interference with present working hours.

3—Be sure to choose a school whose programs of study are as broad as your own ambitions. Choose one that gives complete specialized training in your field so that you will not have to transfer later to another school for the more advanced courses. Also, while you may not at first intend to work for a university degree, there is always the possibility that you will want to earn one later on. So, if you are academically qualified (generally, a high school diploma is all that you need), be sure to choose a school that will give you full university credit for whatever studies you complete.

Educational Speed-Up

In as little as three or four months their students are scheduled to start on their careers with a knowledge of book-keeping, stenography and typing. That's the boast of the Borough Hall Academy, with offices at 427 Flatbush Avenue Extension, corner Fulton Street, Brooklyn. The fall term opens September 14, and students can still sign up for the accredited high school course, day or evening.

For Civil Service Careers

Learn Now Techniques for Post-war World

Looking for a post-war career? The Government, when it set up its free Engineering, Science, and Management War Training Courses, included a variety that will be extremely useful in the post-war world, when new products, new techniques, better ways of performing old operations, will "pay off."
 Most courses run from twelve to sixteen weeks and are given at local colleges during the evening hours.

Business Machine Operation

"This vocation has received little publicity," says the Interboro Institute, speaking of a business machine operation as a career in which there are many openings. At 152 West 42nd Street, the school has been training machine operators for twenty years, and predicts unlimited post-war opportunities at salaries well above the average scale for office workers.

Now One Big School

The recent merger of two of Brooklyn's largest and best known secretarial schools provides the Borough with a new institution which will continue the traditions of both schools. The Heffley School of 1 Hanson Place, Brooklyn, and Brown's Business College of 7 Lafayette Avenue, have joined hands and formed the Heffley and Browne Secretarial School at the Lafayette Avenue address. Day and evening courses in secretarial and business training will be offered.

THE 3rd WAR LOAN DRIVE STARTS - TO BACK THE INVASION!

3RD WAR LOAN

15 BILLION DOLLARS (NON-BANKING QUOTA)

What you will be asked to do—

MARK well the date—Thursday, September 9th. For on that day, you must answer to your country's call.

On that day, the 3rd War Loan Drive opens. You will be asked to back our fighting forces to the very limit of your resources. You will be asked to go ALL-OUT FOR INVASION by investing in EXTRA War Bonds—more War Bonds than you perhaps think you can possibly afford.

To meet the national quota, every individual in the country who earns a wage or draws an income or has accumulated funds must invest, if he possibly can, in at least one EXTRA $100 War Bond. Those who can, must invest in more bonds—hundreds and thousands of dollars' worth more.

Scrape up the money from every source you can . . . turn in all the loose cash you carry with you . . . dig out what you had tucked away "just in case." Go without pleasures, luxuries, even necessities this September. And give our fighting men the things they need to fight with—and win.

These men are throwing everything they have into this fierce invasion push. They are giving their blood, their lives. No one can put a price on such courage, self-sacrifice, devotion. But you can show you're with them to the limit! You can say it with Bonds . . . EXTRA Bonds this month.

World's Safest Investments

For this 3rd War Loan, you will be offered a choice of various government securities. Choose the one that fits your requirements.

United States War Savings Bonds Series "E"; gives you back $4 for every $3 when the bond matures. Interest: 2.9% a year, compounded semiannually, if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1,000. Redemption: Anytime 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969; readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral. Redeemable at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated September 15, 1943; due December 15, 1969. Denominations: $500, 1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000. Price: par and accrued interest.

Other securities: Series "C" Savings Notes; 7/8% Certificates of Indebtedness; 2% Treasury Bonds of 1951-1953; United States Savings Bonds series "F"; United States Savings Bonds series "G."

POLICE CALLS

Since the article "What Troubles A Cop?" appeared in this column August 24, your scribe has been deluged with letters. We're running a few of them today. In reading these letters just remember that they're the viewpoint of men in the department—not necessarily ours. In fact, we want to hear from other P. D. members with other points of view. Also, how's about some good solid suggestions for improvements?

Doesn't Like Operations Bureau

Sirs: In your recent story, "What Troubles a Cop," you mentioned the Bureau of Operations. Let me tell you that this bureau has about 15 lieutenants, many of whose assignment thereto does not show on the department records.

Why don't you make a check on where they come from, what they do, how many hours they work, how many days off they get, etc. Or better yet, ask the Chief Inspector, and then check up on the horrible waste of manpower caused by this agency and its personnel, which is always asking for the most complicated reports, etc., about commonplace occurrences.

Chosen Children

Sirs: Are plainclothes men and detectives in the Police Department Valentine's chosen children?

Why can they stay in bed while the ordinary patrolman has to take his prisoners to court so they can sleep two more hours? Don't you think the rules should be changed to stop this practice?

FOOT COP.

A Plea for Promotions

Sirs: As one of the patrolmen on duty during the Harlem riot, I must say it's necessary to replace the elderly, inefficient superior officers in the P. D. One of the greatest laughs we all got there was the way the gold braid milled around. Nobody there that I knew of issued an order to disperse the rioters and nobody issued an order to stop the looting. It's about time some of the younger men were promoted and took over the real administration of our department. Even the Army, Navy, etc., don't operate with such old commanding personnel. Of course, the older patrolmen could be retained, as they cover payrolls, etc., and don't really perform police duty.

I WAS THERE.

More Captains?

Sirs: Please print the following. The City administration should be convinced by the Harlem disorder that at least every police division having 5 or less captains should have an extra captain to fill in for vacations, extra night and day duty, reserve, etc. If a division has less than 10 precincts and more than 5, I think two captains should be provided. That would greatly improve morale and efficiency of captains. Busy precincts should have two captains. One cannot keep up with the job.

All superior officers over 63 should be retired and the younger men given the opportunity they worked so hard for. All superior officers wishing to retire should be retired forthwith.

SERGEANT.

We agree that promotions should come faster. But how about the manpower problem, Sergeant? You know how short the department is. Don't you feel that it would be hurting the City to let all the older men go? Even the Army, with retirement age at 64, and plenty of men, retains some of its officers who have passed the retirement age. We're not saying you're wrong on this, Sergeant. But how about giving it a little more thought. Let's hear from you again.—Editor.

More on Harlem

Sirs Let me tell you something you maybe didn't know about the Harlem riot. No patrolmen on duty there is the reason. Sure, there are lots of men assigned to the Harlem precincts, but how many get out on patrol? Not many, I can assure you. You can check this up when any platoon turns out. Most of the men are either at a detail out of the precinct, in raided premises, on payrolls, at the Polo Grounds, sick, on vacation, detailed out of their command for a number of years, or covered in their precinct by a soft spot furnished by the precinct commander.

HARLEM PATROLMAN.

These are heavy charges. We'd like to hear what Harlem's superior officers and Headquarters have to say about the accusations made in the above letter.—Editor.

Promoting Failures

Sirs: Why is it left to the discretion of one individual as to who will be designated to fill the vacancies created by one of the next rank in the P. D.? I know of precincts where there are men on the lists for Sergeant, Lieutenant, and even Captain, but they are not designated to fill the place of a person on leave. Doesn't it seem strange that a man who has tried to pass an examination for a rank and failed should be designated by those higher up to assume the duties and responsibilities of the position, while men who have passed the examination for the promotion for which he failed to qualify are ignored? Why should an Inspector or those higher favor the failure? I always thought the Mayor wanted the best for our City.

Spare-Time Jobs

The story reprinted below appeared in the New York Times recently. We think it's an important and interesting piece of news . . . something for New York City authorities to think about, in view of the fact that an NYC patrolman isn't permitted to do outside work.

SIDE JOBS TO HELP IN WAR ALLOWED TO VILLAGE POLICE

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I.—While other police throughout Nassau County have been ordered to stick strictly to their posts, those here are now allowed to take part-time outside jobs—provided such jobs are directly connected with the war effort.

"Some of the men were anxious to do war work in their spare time," Police Chief Thomas A. Eibler explained. "The village board gave its approval, provided certain restrictions are observed."

Among restrictions in the official order are:

"Any man may work four or five hours daily only, except on his day off, when he may work the entire day.

"All members of this department must answer all alerts or any other emergency that may arise in the Police Department.

"All work must be directly connected with the war effort, and confined to Rockville Centre and the immediate vicinity."

NAVY YARD GAZETTE

This is the thirteenth of a new series of columns for Navy Yard Workers. Suggestions, criticisms, and letters from Navy Yard employees are welcome.

What's Eating The Boys?

Lots of letters have been coming into this column. We're devoting this week's stint to the outpourings of some of the workers. Navy Yard Gazette doesn't vouch for the complaints made—but we do think that the number of complaints is a sign that more ought to be done about raising morale.

Sunday Work

Dear Sirs: I would like to acquaint you with a condition that exists at the Navy Yard re: overtime pay on Sundays. Federal regulations call for the payment of double time and a quarter pay for all work over 8 hours on Sunday. It's seldom that a person works over 8 hours on Sunday because the government does not want to pay out that kind of money if it can be avoided. However, many times an emergency occurs and it is necessary for men to work over the 8-hour period. Often the so-called emergency occurs because a supervisor has made an error in scheduling and does not have a relief crew ready to take over the work at the regular crew's quitting time. When the master of a shop looks over the time put in on a Sunday and finds that a great deal of double time and a quarter is listed, naturally it shows inefficiency on the part of his supervisors for allowing such a thing to take place. Of course, the supervisors don't like to be reprimanded and therefore tell the men that they will put them in for extra time on the following day (Monday) and that they cannot receive double time and a quarter for the extra time they worked on Sunday. The men usually accept this statement meekly, for two reasons: First, they're afraid to argue with the supervisor; second, they don't want to insist on obtaining what they have rightfully earned because they do not want to be marked n. g. in the supervisor's memory book. There is too much favoritism in the issuance of ratings as it is and if they complain too much they are afraid they will never get a re-rating.

I would like to take this opportunity to request all Navy Yard workers who put in over 8 hours on a Sunday to stand up for their rights and not allow supervisors to shove the extra time on the next week's payroll so they are paid regular rates for it. When a supervisor works legitimate overtime on Sunday you can bet he collects his double time and a quarter for it.

INDIGNANT SHIPWORKER.

Some Beefs

Sirs: Why is there so much lack of interest and disgruntledness among Navy Yard employees?

Many of the employees of Shop X-51 are asking for their release, and in so doing are put on the blacklist.

Here is one example of the many, why there is so little cooperation among the different departments. When a supervisor of the repair gang makes a request for material to be made up, from his own department, and if his own supervisors or those in charge of issuing such materials don't like or are jealous of the supervisor of the gang, they just withhold such materials until many requests are made. These facts can be verified by inquiries from various men of the repair gangs.

Another example: The food

Vet Job News

Vets is still taking on help, but most of the new workers will be those who were dropped from other Federal agencies when they got the order to cut their staffs. They have re-employment rights, but this corner wonders how those who have worked in other bureaus are going to take to the "mind what teacher says" attitude of so many of the supervisors here at 346 Broadway.

Did you hear this story?

The other day a woman came into the building and started towards the elevator.

"Beg your pardon, madam," said the guard, "May I be of assistance."

"I want to go upstairs and get a job, said the women.

"Madam," said the guard, "It's quite apparent that you are, shall we say, 'expectant.'"

"That's all right, replied the woman, "I can still work for a while."

"But madam," said the guard firmly, "I can assure you that while Veterans Administration respects the sanctity of motherhood, you cannot be hired at present."

Well, this went on for about an hour and a half:

Finally the women said that her husband was a soldier, and she was going up to sit on the bench until she got some satisfaction.

The guard, seeing visions of himself acting as a midwife, which isn't included in the scope of duties of men assigned to protect Federal property, said "Madam, Please leave!"

At last, by a brilliant touch of intuition, he phoned the Army Emergency Relief at 165 Broadway, and they said to put the women in a cab and they'd take care of everything. This he did, and sighed a big sigh of relief.

From the Mailbag

Miss Dick's section is heard from again:

"Dear Sir:

"This letter is representative of the feelings now prevalent in Miss Dick's section of Vets.

"At the present time, there are over 300 people crowded into a room which should normally hold about 100. Typewriters bang away, people sit almost on top of each other and breath each others germs, it's a pleasure to get into a nice peaceful subway after work.

"As though this isn't enough, Miss Dick has seen fit to raise the quota of all her workers—excluding the chief reviewers. With such impossible working conditions, it would seem more logical to require less rather than more work. The new girls are especially bewildered and say they are sorry they ever took the jobs at Vets.

"Talking in the section is still "verboten." Certain employees make a habit of timing those who leave the room for personal reasons, and a maximum of ten minutes has been set. Any overtime is reprimanded."

From the 2nd Floor

Here we learn that it's no uncommon sight to see a girl in tears rushing out of the room. The story: They say that Mr. Harley opens up on them, and the girls can't take the shouting and the desk-pounding. Sub, is that chivalry?

From the Lower Regions

Edward Sullivan, who gainly takes care of his job of keeping the building neat, is celebrating his 42nd anniversary as superintendent of 346 Broadway. He seems to be doing a good job. Right after the cigarette butts and the candy wrappers stop falling, he has his men out cleaning up the place, and in no time at all the floors are clean again.

Army Looking For Sailors

The Army is looking for sailors. That's right, the Army. The War Department operates fleets of ships ranging in size from 33 foot launches to 170 foot freighters. And they need men who can qualify as deck and engine officers. Applicants don't need marine licenses, nor must they meet the rigid physical requirements for duty in the armed forces.

No formal examination is given, but applicants must satisfy the officials that they'll be able to perform the duties assigned to them. Persons having suitable non-marine experience or educational requirements will be accepted for training before being assigned to a ship.

Diesel engineers, and navigators are particularly in demand. Those accepted will be required to sign one-year contracts which will probably be renewed annually for the duration.

Base pay is $2,200, and pay on duty can go to $6,058. Annual leave, medical treatment and hospitalization, free insurance protection, and return to a home port on completion of the contract time are provided.

For application blanks, and detailed requirements write to Headquarters, New York Port of Embarkation, Office of the Commanding General, 1st Avenue and 58th Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. Ask for application for marine positions in the Transportation Corps.

The employees are loyal, and conscientious, and know their labors will hasten the day when peace will come to this country. But PLEASE stop the hounding and picking on men who are doing their duty.

HOLC IS SELLING OUT

Ten thousand homes owned by HOLC have "For Sale" posted on them this month, in a campaign by the Government agency to liquidate its holdings. Properties taken over during depression years, are now available at pre-war prices and offer many excellent opportunities for hedging against rent increases.

CAMPAIGN MOVING PROPERTIES

The HOLC newspaper advertising campaign now running is producing results not anticipated when it was planned, says Herbert Messer, Vice-President of the active Queens Homes Sales, Inc., with offices at 158-45 Hillside Avenue, Jamaica, L. I.

Developed to dispose of properties held by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, a task which it is performing creditably, according to Mr. Messer, the advertising program also is encouraging other property holders to put their real estate on the market, he says.

"Within recent months, most real estate brokers have had more difficulty getting property to sell than they have had in selling it," Mr. Messer explains. "The Queens Homes Sales organization, together with other brokerage companies, have been selling homes to economy-minded families almost as quickly as the property has been listed for sale. The HOLC advertising in newspapers has expanded the desire for home ownership, as it was planned to do, and thus has brought in a greatly increased number of prospects, resulting in sizeably increased sales."

Response to HOLC advertising in Long Island, Mr. Messer says, has been centered in Queens and close in Nassau County. Many of the prospects who could not find suitable homes among the HOLC properties now will be able to make a satisfactory selection from the additional listings which are an indirect result of the HOLC promotion, he says.

SEWING MACHINES AVAILABLE

In this machine-less age, when every gadget we want is out of production, we find comfort in any source of supply for sewing machines. The demand for these is particularly great among families who want to maintain individual style in new clothes and make old clothes last longer. The place is Beacon Sewing Machine Co., at 297 Mercer Street, where there is a wide selection.

Every console is brand new, very attractive in appearance and will harmonize with the finest of home furnishings. The rebuilt sewing machine head has been completely overhauled and electrified with the finest equipment.

They have several types of Rebuilt Singer Portables, and a wide selection of consoles.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

Magistrate Jenkin R. Hockert and Harold J. Bennett headed the beach committee in the purchase of a large strip of beach-front for the Babylon Beach Estates Association in West Islip on the Great South Bay. The purchase was made from Russell R. Dolan, acting for the Gleason & Dolan Development Corporation of New York. The association intends to improve the site with bathhouses, slides, benches and other beach requisites.

Business Careers

'But You Don't Mean Me, Do You?'

Many of you who will read this article will be women; others will be men with families; many will be beyond military age...

Women are today holding a greater number of responsible positions in business than ever before; they are doing such a good job that there is every indication that they will continue to get and hold such positions...

Qualified men of 18-45, because of their greater experience and mature judgment, generally have little difficulty in getting responsible positions; but they often lose good opportunities because they did not learn the new business techniques...

Young family men have often received preference in many types of executive positions; but they, more easily than others, get into a rut in the belief that their families cannot spare them for the task of learning to meet the responsibilities that those positions involve.

Some expenditure of time and effort is, of course, necessary. But learning the things one wants to learn also has its rewards. Those who go to school—even only one evening a week—find real inspiration in their studies and renewed ambition in carrying on their daily tasks.

Who Said You Can't LEARN TO SWIM!

Are you afraid of the water? Have you just never gotten around to it? Have you been unable to develop an easy motion in the water? Whatever your swimming problem—there's a place in New York City where it can be discovered and cured...

PAY 50c a Day

The Budget office reports that it has been holding meetings with the Comptroller to decide what to do about the earnings of several groups of low-paid employees who are working under prevailing wage rates.

These employees earn less than $2,500 a year but were excluded from the 50 cents a day boost which went to other City employees working on a daily rate.

The State, County and Municipal Workers of America, CIO, has been campaigning to get adjustments for these men and brings forth the following arguments:

1. These workers were cut $1 a day back in 1932, and since then there has been no increase granted them.
2. The small increase of 50 cents daily would do much to improve morale of these employees.
3. There is no logical, or legal reason why they should have been omitted from the general increase to low-bracket City employees.

The Budget Office says that there may be some good news for these men who include in their number; machinists helpers, blacksmiths, painters, and other skilled craftsmen, within the next few weeks.
