Frosh Beat Juniors

First Inter-Class Game—28 to 23

The Freshman-Junior game, the first interclass basketball game of the season, went to the Freshmen by a score of 28 to 23. It was one of the best games ever played on the State College court. The issue was in doubt right up to the last minute of play, and the Juniors were still fighting hard to overcome the 5-point lead of the Freshmen when the final whistle blew.

Hathorn started the scoring for the Juniors from the foul line. The Freshmen soon went into the lead, however, and remained in the front until the end of the half, when the score stood 16 to 15 in their favor.

The Juniors started out strong again in the second half, but the Freshmen came through with five field goals to the Juniors' three, putting them in the lead at the end of the half.

The playing of Johnson and Stewart, the forwards for the Freshmen, was the main feature of the game. Johnson found the basket six times and Stewart five times.

Stewart's shooting was spectacular. Three of his baskets were made from the middle of the floor. They are a speedy pair and, probably, will be candidates for the Varsity in the places of Barry and Fitzgerald, the star forwards on last year's team.

The Juniors, although they lost the contest, played a fine brand of basketball. They were in the game from start to finish. Cassevan and Hathorn did all the scoring. They each made four field baskets and Hathorn put in six free throws. It was due to the greater accuracy in shooting on the part of the Freshmen and not to lack of team work that the Juniors lost.

The game was on the whole clean and fast. There were quite a few fouls, due to the fact that this is the first game and the men have not gotten over the bad habits acquired in practice scrimmages. But the contest was not won by foul shooting. It was field baskets that counted.

ANNUAL CONVOCATION OF UNIVERSITY

Lansing Defends League of Nations

The joint conference of the University of the State of New York with the State Industrial Commission on Child Welfare was held in connection with the annual convocation of the University at Chancellor's Hall, Thursday, Friday and Saturday morning, October 16-17-18. The legislative program, intending to further the education of children who leave school to go into industrial work, was presented by various speakers on Labor, Child Welfare and the Health Department. The chief feature was Secretary of State Lansing's speech on the League of Nations and the action of the Regents in conferring upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Friday morning was given over to the discussion of the "Child in Industry" from various viewpoints. Regent Abram L. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey, presided at this session. The discussion was carried on by groups of speakers representing the New York State Federation of Labor, the Child Welfare Organization, and the Health Department.

James M. Lynch, of the State Industrial Commission, presided at the Friday afternoon session. The general subject was "Continuation

STUDENT ASSEMBLY

Mrs. Kelly Opens Membership Drive for Consumers' League

Mrs. Florence Kelly, General Secretary of the National Consumers' League, spoke to the student body Friday morning in interest of the drive for membership being conducted by the local chapter, of which Marjorie Edgerton, '20, is President. She sketched briefly the origin of the organization, its purpose, and what it aims to accomplish.

Mrs. Kelly stated that there were 400,000 boys and girls between the ages of fourteen and sixteen working in the State of New York whose education had gone no further than the eighth grade, and that there were, in 1918, 51,000 children below the age of sixteen given working papers. It was to stir the intelligence of people to such facts, and many others equally startling, that the Consumers' League was founded. Their appeal is to the fortunate student who lives off the product of the labor of less fortunate young people without knowing something of that product. Consumers' League would make people realize working conditions—make them realize for instance that coat presses are poisoned by small but continuous doses of carbon dioxide, and that poison by chlorine gas is frequent with those who work in cotton mills. Mrs. Kelly said it was the

This article is entitled "Seniors," but it is meant to appeal to all State College students.

In last week's issue of the "News," and also in this number, are articles concerning credit earned by practice teachers. The general conclusion of Seniors now teaching seems to be that at least one credit should be given for each hour of actual class work, as in all other courses.

The "News" is the medium for the expression of student opinion and we wish more Seniors would give us their ideas in regard to this matter for publication. It is only through concerted action that results are obtained, and it is for the present practice teachers that these results should provide. It is for the benefit of us all to attempt to secure more pay for "our jobs." The laboring world at large these days seems to be waking up to the value of its products. We are laborers—physical, mental, and moral—and we want more pay!

A COMMENT

We heard it in the halls last Friday morning after assembly; the spirit of the girls of 1923, perfectly free and unbounded, implicitly expressive of the new liberty of women in our schools and colleges, this spirit plus that of the new girls of last year compared with the former docility of State College co-eds.

In 1918 was begun a series of afternoon lectures on conduct—thought and action—which were purposed at enlightening the minds of Freshmen to the actuality of the gap between high school enthusiasm and college propriety. We witness the results. Oh, 1940!

DO YOU WANT A COLLEGE ORCHESTRA?

Consider what it will mean to you, as a student of State College. Think how it will add to the impressiveness of the chapel exercises on Moving-Up Day. Surely no one will object to a good live orchestra for the campus dances. After a little time there will be no necessity of having an outside orchestra for concerts, informal dances and plays. You who love good music will appreciate having a number of instruments to play for the dancing after State defeats Colgate.

What is to keep us from having one? Certainly it is not talent. But an orchestra does take money, and here is your chance to help. The Junior Class has arranged a concert to raise funds for a College orchestra. On the evening of November 17 the Fisk Jubilee Singers will give a concert of well known folk-songs at Chancellor's Hall. Watch for the sale of tickets.

CREDITS FOR PRACTICE TEACHING

To the Editor of the "News:"

In last week's issue of the "News" was published an article entitled "Credit and Practice Teaching." It so aptly expressed my conclusions that a repetition of its statistics does not seem necessary. Any Senior who is teaching now is rapidly becoming one of those "hectic shadows" who have heretofore disgraced our profession. And can you wonder at it? Practice teaching is some job! As the victim of last week's article stated, at least eleven hours a week are put in on that one course, Education 13. We always thought we earned the credits given for other College courses, especially in the Science Department, where so much time has to be put in, but if one's time counts for anything this required course of the Senior year should receive at least one hour's credit for each hour spent in actual teaching. Even five hours credit would be little enough in consideration of the work done.

Let's howl, Seniors, altogether! That one credit (or more) that we earn and deserve, and which many of us may require for graduation, may not be so hard to get if we go after it together, and all at once. Another Victim.

"Y" HOUSE

Things have started off with a grand rush at the "Y." Nightly sings, to say nothing of "get-togethers," are the leading fashion at present, while week-end parties and entertainments have begun in earnest.

One big event occurred this week! The "Y" was greatly excited and made happy by a new part necessary to every "dorm"—a telephone which bears the label—West 3353!

On Friday evening Dorothy Bull, '23, took dinner with Mary Allen, '23.

The following girls spent the week-end at their homes: Mary Allen with Dorothy Bull as her guest, Elsa Miller and her guest Ruth Callison, Charlotte Benedict, and Beatrice Haswell.

"Dot" Plenn, '22, spent Saturday at Watervliet with her grandmother.

Among the girls who took some Italian children on a hike to Kenwood on Saturday afternoon were Marion Moore and Charlotte Lynch.

We are sorry to report that Betty Makin, '20, underwent an operation on her foot Saturday morning. We hope to see Betty around again soon.

Frances and Katherine Boland, of the Class of '19, were entertained by Helen Reitz, '20, on Saturday.

The "Y" was delighted to have as its guest on Sunday Miss Alice Hoyt and Miss Gladys Bryson, Y. W. C. A. Student Secretaries in the North Eastern field.

NEWMAN CLUB

The first quarterly communion attended in a body by the Newman Club, Sunday, October 19, followed by breakfast in the cafeteria, was an overwhelming success. The way in which the members turned out, about eighty-five being present, speaks well for the spirit of the society. That the Freshmen, too, have caught the spirit was shown by their attendance. After the pleasant breakfast at the cafeteria, Father Dunne spoke a few words to the club, congratulating it upon the success of this, their first quarterly communion. The president, George Schiavone, extended a cordial welcome to the Freshmen members.

Father Dunne entertained the men of Newman Club last Thursday evening at a smoker. It is to be hoped that this was but the first of a series of similar events. Among those present were Father Dudd of Niagara University, Mr. Deyo, McMahon, '20; Schiavone, '20; O'Brien, '20; Kaag, '23; Sherlock, '21; Stewart, '23, and Castellano, '20.

Don't forget the hike Saturday, October 25. We will start at 1:30. Watch the bulletin board for further announcements.

We Freshmen hope that Myskania and other upperclassmen will not think ill of us for refusing to wear the caps and pins which the Sophs so graciously presented to us. We want to assure you that we are not lacking a bit, when it comes to school spirit; the reason for our rebellion should be laid more to the fact that we are full of "pep." We were not aware of the fact that the wearing of caps and pins was a rule of the College, and not of the Sophs only. Our intentions were to "get one over on the Sophs," and we certainly remain unchanged in those intentions. We're going to keep up our "ginger and pep" and show State College that she should indeed be proud of '23.

SOPHS HAZE FROSH

In last week's "News" '23 informed the Sophs that they were not "peaceful little cherubs with sprouting wings," despite the fact that they were the "Peace Class." The cartoon on the bulletin board, a gift of '22, clearly showed that the Sophs were well aware of that fact. In that same editorial, the Freshmen tell '22 that "pacifists are bloodthirsty ruffians beside you," and following this, boldly send an ultimatum to the Sophs, defying every rule in the Frosh bible. In consequence, the girls attempted to enter chapel Friday morning with wide bows on their hair. Much to their surprise, they found that '22 stood guard at every entrance, and before '23 reached their chapel seats they found themselves minus ribbons, bands, barrets, combs, and hairpins. '22 showed them that just as soon as they were ready to break the rules she was right there to enforce them. There followed cheers for the Sophs and cheers for the Frosh. This little incident afforded much fun for the Seniors and Juniors.

Then after defying every rule the Frosh lost courage when Myskania entered, and stood up with the rest of the College. Later when the rules for Freshmen were explained by Myskania to consist of two parts, those to be enforced by Sophomores and the others College traditions, '23 showed its pep by unanimously rising with the rest of the student body in voicing its approval of the distinction. '22.

SPANISH CLUB

Spanish Club held its second meeting on Wednesday, October 22. After the regular business (which included the adoption of the new constitution), the time was taken up by the playing of Spanish records on the Victrola, and a song, "Sobre las Olas," which was sung by Miss Florence Stubbs, while two of the members, in Spanish costume, danced in time to the accompaniment.

A "brand new" feature of the meeting was a series of charades which had been prepared for the occasion. At first glance these appeared to be the most heterogeneous collection of letters, figures, and pictures that could ever be devised, but, gradually, after much chewing of pencils and racking of brains, light began to dawn on the puzzled company, and out of this queer-looking collection there began to evolve old, familiar Spanish words, which really made sense when you read them correctly!

We are planning to do something of this sort on a bigger scale later on, by making use of tableaux in representing Spanish proverbs.

Oh, we're going to do "lots of things" this year, and we want everyone who is interested to come to our meetings!

Our next meeting will probably be an evening meeting and will be held in the College gym. Watch the bulletin board for the Spanish señorita who will tell you all about it!

reduced to a minimum while conserving efficiency and leaving the main work of drill and field work to the two summer camps proposed."

The revised regulations will effect 265 institutions of all classes affiliated with the War Department in which approximately one hundred thousand students are under military training. They are distributed over every State and territory in the Union except Alaska and including Porto Rico and Hawaii.

Other institutions not having R. O. T. C. units were appealed to by Secretary Baker who said: "I cannot too strongly urge upon the authorities of our universities and colleges and upon our American students the great educational and physical value to our young men of the training thus offered. It will give to them an opportunity to render valuable and patriotic service and to our nation a large body of educated men able and ready to take responsible positions if the need of national defense should arise. It will greatly aid in putting America in a position to preserve peace by rendering evident our power to resist aggression."

Secretary Baker paid tribute to "the glorious part played by the colleges of this country in the recent struggle." He said that "it is to the collegiate institutions of the nation that we must always turn to supply the material from which the commissioned officer personnel for our immense citizen armies must be developed. More than fifty thousand of our Army and Navy officers in this war were drawn from one hundred and fifty institutions of learning. And at the early training camps for officers there was evident one very striking fact,—that the young men who had come from schools and colleges where military training had previously prevailed were the men who most quickly and readily became available for active and efficient service. With the hour of battle only a few weeks distant, the value of the training they had already received while at college was of immense importance. Modern warfare demands of its officers—leaders a complex and scientific professional skill and a careful and thorough grounding in the fundamental principles upon which to build. As our armies will in all probability always be those of citizenry drawn to the colors when the emergency arises, it follows that the bulk of our officers must be also citizens who leave their civil pursuits and take up their arms already trained in the habit of discipline and the principles of leadership. This training and experience it is believed can best be secured through the military instruction which can be imparted in the schools and colleges."

Secretary Baker declared that "it has not been in the past, nor is it now, the idea or intention of the Government in re-instituting a system of military training for students to develop a militaristic spirit in our people. There is a wide gulf between military proficiency as typified by the American citizen trained to arms and confident of his proficiency and that militaristic spirit which the Prussian system developed during the past forty years. It is our idea to develop in the nation a citizenry trained and capable of efficiently bearing arms for the national defense. To train and to lead this citizen army we must draw upon our educated young men for those who are capable of developing as officers. It is one of the axioms of military science that intelligent leadership on the part of officer personnel means the conservation and saving of life of the troops."

"The training of officers demands first of all time,—the time essential to the formation of a habit of discipline which cannot be said to be native in American youth. Discipline has been called the habit of quickness and precision in thought and action, combined with a regard for authority which enables one to play his part in the work of a team. It lies at the bottom of all successful team work."

"American education in the past has been inclined to overlook the necessity of emphasizing that phase of its manifold activities which deals with the subject or preparation for national defense. A college education which has left untouched the fitting of its subject for active service under his country's flag is, and must be, incomplete. In the R. O. T. C. the college finds this vital addition to its curriculum and the student who pursues the training which it offers finds the opportunity for physical and mental development which completes his equipment for the battles of life."

Schools," presented by representatives of labor, employers, education and health.

Friday evening Dr. John H. Finley, President of the University, presented Secretary Lansing with the degree of Doctor of Law. Only four living men now hold this greatest honor in the gift of Regents, Cardinal Mercier, Elihu Root, Thomas Edison and Jules Jusserand. Secretary Lansing pleaded for a trial of the League of Nations Covenant and warned the nation against "class imperialism." "It must be recorded," he said, "that we made the world safe for democracy, but that we failed to make 'America safe for democracy'!"

Dr. Thomas E. Finegan, State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Pennsylvania, and formerly Deputy of State Commission of Education, was welcomed, and his successor as Deputy, Dr. Frank Gilbert, was introduced to the convocation.

Dr. Edwin C. Jones, President of Fukien University, Foo-Chow, China, and the Rev. Howard S. Bliss, President of the Protestant College Beirut, Syria, were speakers at the conference.
