STATE REHEARSES MOVING-UP TODAY

Eight Class Marshals Named
To Assist Miss Webster
During Exercises

State college will move up for the first time in the new Page hall auditorium one week from today, according to Kathryn Webster, '30, grand marshal.

Plans for the moving-up will be announced in assembly today when a rehearsal will be conducted.

The class marshals are: Doris Williams and Robert Barnum, seniors; Raymond Collins and Marion Gilbert, juniors; Marguerite Wilson and Selma Sims, sophomores; and Frances McMahon and Ethel Zottz, freshmen. They will assist Miss Webster.

Formation will begin in the rotunda of Draper hall, Miss Webster said.

Myskana and the senior class will lead the procession to the auditorium.

The juniors will meet at the east door of Husted hall and will form a line facing east.

Sophomores will meet in front of the co-op and will form a line facing west.

Freshmen will assemble under the peristyle which leads to the old gymnasium and will face west.

The line will go out of the main door of Draper hall and proceed along the walk which leads to the main entrance of Page hall.

When the line reaches the auditorium of Page hall the seniors will take the places in the middle section as far back as row O and the juniors will occupy the two rows behind them and the right hand section of the hall. Sophomores will occupy the left hand section and the boxes, and the freshmen, the balcony.

Mrs. Prentiss is a talented artist who has made several appearances in Albany before a guest of the Monday Musical club. Miss Brummer said she has played at the University of Toronto and at many of the larger eastern colleges.

A Plunge In Lake Is Due Hritz r DuRose As Result of Wager

A plunge into the lake of Washington park is in store for either Andrew Hritz, '32, or Thorley Du Rose, '33, in accordance with a wager relative to interclass rivalry made by the two this week.

If the freshmen find the mascot, Hritz will be required to jump fully clothed into the water Monday afternoon.

If the freshmen efforts to find the mascot are unavailing, Du Rose will take the plunge under the same conditions.

As the News went to press indications as to who would do the jumping were not in evidence.

STUDENT OFFICERS WILL BE CHOSEN BY REVOKE TODAY

Votes for secretary of student association and College song leader will be taken in the student assembly this morning at 11:10 o'clock, according to Marion E. Botto, '30, president of student association. Candidates for secretary of student association are Catherine Moore and Jean Watkins, freshmen. The candidates for College song leader are Margaret Hickey, '31, and Eleanor Gage, '32.

At the assembly last Friday, Warren R. Cochrane, '30, proposed the following amendment: "That there shall be a reception to be given to the entering freshman class, for the purpose of acquainting them with the college traditions, and also to enable them to meet the faculty. This reception shall be arranged by the sophomore class, and shall be supervised by Myskana." This amendment shall amend item 4, section 1, article 5, and also item 3, section 1, article 8.

This amendment has been posted, and will come up for discussion after two weeks.

Lawrence Newcomb, '31, also reported on the work of the athletic committee in assembly. The report was in the form of a resolution that there be instituted an active athletic board, consisting of two faculty members, the coach, the captain of the two major sports, and one representative from intra-mural sports.

This board is to have charge of all men's sports in the College, and will meet the first Monday of each month for that purpose. An amendment to this resolution was proposed and seconded that the clause pertaining to the membership of the new board be struck out and that a clause providing for membership as in previous years be inserted.

Newcomb also gave a report on the the extra-curricular activities of the students will dance to music furnished by Weiss Brother's orchestra, Union college. Ice cream and cake will be served to the guests of the club.

The entertainment will be in the form of a vaudeville in which the fashions of the late nineties and modern day fashions will be displayed. Songs to keep with the era depicted will be sung by the members of the club.

Chairman of the committee are Barbara Mulford, '30, general chairman; Helen Bacon, '30, entertainments; Pauline Sebastian, '31, decorations; Josephine Bennett, '31, entertainment; Mildred Cook, '30, music; Rachel Galbraith, '31, arrangement; Helen Burgher, '32, advertising.

VARSITY TO PLAY LONG ISLAND NINE

Purple And Gold Squad Expects Second Victory Tomorrow At Ridgefield Park

Fresh from a victory over Hartwick college, State's baseball team will play Long Island university tomorrow afternoon at Ridgefield park. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The Long Island team has not fared very well thus far against its opposition, having dropped contests to the City college of New York, St. John's of Brooklyn, Cathedral college, and Wagner college. Their lone victory was scored against Montclair Teachers' college of New Jersey.

Yet the visitors have a very capable twirler in Jacobs, who is certain to receive the support of several hard hitting teammates, and State will face much sterner competition in this game, than in its opening contest.

The Purple and Gold squad have had several intensive batting practices during the week in order to improve this part of their offense, which was shown to be rather weak last Saturday. A great improvement was noticeable in this phase of the game after several drills.

Clyde Russell will be umpire.

The probable line up for tomorrow's contest will be:

State	Long Island
Moreland ss	Umanis 2b
Becker s	Sudolowitz ss
Goodrich 1b	Jacobs p
Whiston rr	Steinbrook 1b
Festa 2b	Scheinman cf
Deterlson cf	Marshall 3b
Kinsella lf	Gibb rt
Delanira 3b	Grossman hr
Allan p	Friedheim c

THE NEW AND THE OLD

Handing over the blue pencil and its attendant responsibilities to a new staff with the publication of this issue of the News, the old board discharges its duty to the student association.

Assuming control of the publication under very trying circumstances, the staff and board have done their best to keep the paper up to the standard maintained throughout the year.

In March the paper was notified that it had received second place in the Columbia contest for teacher training publications, an outstanding achievement. This was achieved by Mr. Wolter and his board.

Every member of the new board and staff who has been elected to a position has earned it by valuable and conscientious service. To them the board extends its sincere congratulations for a successful volume next year and its thanks for their loyal support during the past year.

The board knows that the wisdom of its choice will be proven by the achievements of the new staff during the next year.

AN X. S. F. A. OBLIGATION

An opportunity for State college to show what membership in the National Student Federation of America really means to it has been brought to attention by a recent bulletin of the federation.

Member colleges are being asked to give some financial aid to college students in Bulgaria who are living in poverty-stricken conditions. It is a chance for State college to respond and to do something to establish international understanding among young people.

American people have ever been generous. Even though many students here are working their way through college, a small sum could be spared easily. Devoted to aiding the impermeable living conditions of students trying to gain an education, it will return in good will and understanding its value a hundred fold.

The State college committee in touch with the central bureau should initiate some manner for the collection of such a sum. It would be heady to lead the member colleges in this generosity. State can at least follow their lead. Students here can sympathize with those who are working their way through college at some sacrifice.

What is the committee going to do?

THE MODEL MASCOT HUNT

Absence of mutilated statues and disorder has marked the hunt for the mascot thus far. This is due to the vigilance of the My-skana choristers in part and to the freshmen themselves who have shown a commendable spirit in obeying such rules and regulations as have been laid down for them.

Crawling over roofs and scaling through tunnels has been in progress for nearly a week in the college buildings. Pretty much of the student body has overall been in some manner of competition. Even on the simplest of tasks some have succeeded in the most difficult ways.

For the first time, however, the students have seen the no contest section of the hunt. And that does not make the situation any better. The students are still in full competition, but they are not competing with each other.

Perhaps the last section of the hunt will be decided from the high wall of the gymnasium. At this stage of the hunt, and there is still a week to go, the searchers, I hope, at least, have avoided any serious accident in view. And whether or not they succeed in their last endeavor, it will be regarded as another student body.

When the freshmen gather at the dinner to celebrate their feats and to discuss encounters with their sophomore rivals during the year, the seals of honor should be distributed among those hunters who worked without the plaudits of their classmates.

BOOKS: BILL WOULD SACRIFICE MORALS FOR MORALE

Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson. By John Bright New York. Jonathan Cape and Harrison Smith $5.50.

For at least three generations Chicagoans have been regarded by their countrymen as different from other Americans, and in the past eight years there has been a particularly emotional disposition to view the city as too terrible for anything but words—words by the multitude in newspapers, magazines and books describing the reputed chaos of life in the second city of the land.

In other words, "Hizzoner Big Bill Thompson" is a clear snapshot of Thompson, but not of the Chicago which has given him his career. For instance, Mr. Bright, intent upon his successful effort to make Thompson live in his pages, has missed the fact that in and between his campaigns the Mayor has in one way and another identified himself with that inarticulate folk-feeling of Chicago which is willing to sacrifice piety, morals and orthodoxy to the vague but mighty hunger for Chicago's growth. The city is still so imbued with the Western pioneer desire for reckless progress that it loves any one who across the years convinces it that he loves Chicago. And Thompson has done exactly that. "Big Bill the Builder" was his most effective slogan, and armies of voters who disapproved his "machine" and who laughed at his campaign trumperies supported him because he built bridges and boulevards and worked, as well as talked, for the completion of that 100-year-old Chicago dream, the waterway to the Gulf of Mexico. They snickered over his battle cry, "Throw Away Your Hammer and Get a Horn," but they liked it because his administrations, up to two years ago, were, after all, characterized by material progress. Mr. Bright believes that business men supported Thompson because his speeches tickled their Babbitt tastes in oratory. The business men, it is commonly said, had something deeper than that behind their enthusiasm: their pockets.

And, if Thompson won in other years with his campaign to rap King George on the snout, it was not because Chicago voters expected to see the Union Jack sail into the harbor; it was because Chicago has constantly been against foreign entanglements. The same people who voted for Thompson in that election responded to Ruth Hanna McCormick's tirades against the World Court in 1930.

There was once a certain professor who had one of the students of the college to tend the furnace, shovel the walk, rake the leaves, cut the grass or do any other chore about the house that needed doing. In return the student made his home with the professor and his wife. Now the professor was one of the more delicate gentlemen of his profession. He was highly impressed by subtle shades of meaning and fine effects. I once heard him express his complete disgust at the sight of Theodore Dreiser eating spaghetti.

A well known woman novelist visited the college on a lecture tour. It was arranged that she should be entertained at the home of our professor. Before the reception to the novelist (or whatever that conclave of faculty members was called), our student had received his orders. He was to act as butler while the guests were arriving. During the dinner he was to take his violin into a room next the dining room. There he was to render, softly and with feeling, certain selections which the professor believed eating spaghetti.

After dinner our student was expected to retire to his room and study or go to bed. Now our student, undoubtedly, was of a perverse nature. He also had some literary ability of his own. And so when the discussion grew warm, he was round talk, me very earnestly to the novelist. She round him excellent company despite the fact that the room was full of interesting acquaintances.

At last our professor succeeded in breaking up the conversation between the two. He immediately gave our student a stern glance which meant "Get to your room." And turning to our novelist he said: "I am quite surprised that you should be willing to be my servant." But the novelist replied quite seriously, "I think long the most interesting person here."

Asked later how she enjoyed her dinner at the professor's home, she said, "The dinner was all right, but someone kept playing the violin in the next room."

Since the time our student has written, I need not say that I believe he deserves the incident of our novelist like it. And the professor has probably stopped taking in student. He may have started again, but it's hard to tell.

Teaching Practice Will Help Juniors:
"New Group Best," Supervisor Feels

"It is my belief that the English practice teachers who will teach next September in Milne high school will be better fitted for their work than any other group has been because of the experience they have had as junior practice teachers," said Miss Katherine E. Wheeling, supervisor of English practice teaching in Milne high school.

For the first time the juniors in the English methods classes taught for one day during both the first and second semesters. In the majority of the cases the methods students taught both junior and senior high school classes so that a closer and fairer estimate might be made of their ability, according to Miss Wheeling.

"The lapse of time between the teaching of the first semester and that of the second semester was valuable in that it enabled the juniors to think about and 'digest' what they had learned from the first teaching experiment," said Miss Wheeling.

This plan is particularly effective, Miss Wheeling believes because it aids in dispelling many of the "bugaboos" which beset seniors, and also gives the supervisor a good idea of the ability of the students.

"I have already decided that there are some students who are fitted for junior high school teaching only and some who will do better in the senior high school. I will in this way be able to place the practice teachers much more intelligently than before."

Miss Wheeling was especially pleased with the unusual co-operation which the juniors showed during the experiment. Their work and that of the Milne high school students also was exceptional considering the circumstances, according to Miss Wheeling.

There was a marked improvement in the teaching of the juniors the second semester. This alone would seem to indicate that the results of the new experiment will be of real benefit to the students when they begin the real practice teaching.

The juniors are also gradually taking over the supervision of the Milne high school extra curricular activities. They are doing very well, Miss Wheeling says, considering that they are handicapped by lack of practical experience in handling the children, which the seniors get in teaching.

that refreshes

When you suffer from large and undiluted doses of your fellows. When the milk of human kindness seems to sour. Blow the whistle for a minute's "time out" on your own account, to pause and refresh yourself.

In other words, go into a huddle with a glass or bottle of refreshing, delicious Coca-Cola. It will make you captain of your soul again, ready to live—or die—for the dear old alma mater.
