Carter Calls For Welfare Overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter proposed scrapping the present welfare system. Monday and replacing it with a multi-tiered program to provide jobs for those who can work, cash for those who can't and income tax credits for the working poor. HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., who called welfare reform "the Middle East of domestic politics," told reporters he eventual cost of the plan and many details still have not been worked out The President promised he would complete the legislative proposals to nent the new system by the first week in August after co with legislative leaders in each of the 50 states. He said the initial cost of the revised system he will propose won't cost any more than the present system, which is now budgeted at $23.6 billion for fiscal 1978.

Report Cites Increase in USSR Military Strength

LONDON (AP) In a report critical of Carter administration policies, an authoritative research institute said Friday that the Soviet Union is steadily building and modernizing its military power while the West wavers. The International Institute for Strategic Studies said in its annual survey that President Carter's disarmament policies "smacked of obsolete concepts" and his human rights statements had destroyed the cordiality and trust in East-West relations. The institute's study of the world military balance also said that in contrast to backing and filling in the West, the Soviet arms buildup has gone ahead and "in almost every area seems to outpace the intensity and scope of Western military programs.

Assembly Passes 'Whistle Bill' for the Elderly

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) The state Assembly on Monday passed a package of legislation for senior citizens, highlighted by a bill that would give every senior citizen a three cent whistle. The Senate and Assembly both passed measures to ban credit discrimination against elderly citizens and to make home health care insurance coverage available under Medicare. But the emphasis was on crime against seniors, as the lawmakers approved bills to guarantee senior citizen representation on crime control commissions, and appropriated $30,000 for the plastic whistles. The "whistle bill " as it came to be called during a long debate, was criticized as a meaningless sham, and defended as "worth a shot" because it might save one person from a mugging. "This is the most ridiculous bill," said Assemblyman Fred Field, R-Albany, as he left the chamber in disgust. Field is the top GOP member of the Assembly Aging Committee.

Senate Keeps Pot Bill Alive

ALBANY N.Y. (AP) The Republican majority in the state Senate, which last year killed a measure decriminalizing possession of small amounts of marijuana, decided Monday to keep the measure alive this year. But the bill may undergo more alteration before it actually reaches the floor for a vote. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Douglas Barclay, R-Oswego, would make possession of less than 12 ounces of pot a violation, like a traffic ticket, subject to no more than a $100 fine. It would also relax penalties on possession and sale of larger amounts, but would retain prison terms for those offenses. Barclay's bill leaves the law stricter than would a decriminalization measure currently awaiting action in the Assembly. But it was still too broad for some Republicans, who insisted that Barclay consider amendments to the bill. including stiffer sentences for repeated offenders

Nationally, New York State ranks proportion of female students percentage of available population, in 1975 8.0 per cent of the men and 6.5 per cent of the women were enrolled in a post-secondary institution. For women, this represents re than a 50 per cent increase, as 161,000 more women were enrolled

The increase in female enrollment has been particularly pronounced at the advanced degree level, the report shows. The number of women enrolled as first professional degree students has more than doubled in the past five years, while the number men has actually declined. However, the report points out that women still account for only 23.4

> On the negative side, the report says there are areas "where change women has been minimal." Hiring patterns for college and universithe report finds, and "the proportion creased only slightly."

New York State is some above the national average. In 1974first among the larger states in the 75, 26.2 percent of all full-time instructional faculty posts were held enrolled in higher education. As a by women. This is up from 24.4 per

In addition, the report shows that women faculty, nationally and in New York, continue to earn less than their male colleagues. The difference in national average salaries for men and women for all ranks was about in degree-credit programs than in 21 percent in 1972-73 ($14,360 vs. $11,901). In New York State, the difference in salaries for men and women ranges from three to ten per cent, depending on rank.

There are still only a few women college presidents, and with the exception of women's colleges, relatively few women hold top administrative posts. In New York in 1975-76, out of 238 degreegranting institutions, only 22 had female presidents and all but four of these were non-secular.

The report concludes that more women are needed on faculties, particularly at the upper levels, and women presidents should no longer

Corporal Punishment-Let the Rod Spoil

by Andrew Duffy

The practice of corporal punishment breeds indignity and contempt. Education is in more than one sense compulsory. Corporal punishment has immediate unwanted by-products traceable to the basic practice. Children who commit suicide are often found to have had trouble in school. It is human nature to counterattack those who try to hurt us. Physical attacks on teachers are common resulting from the initial attack on the students. Vandalism is another form of counterattack which is steadily growing more serious. Children learn that the way to achieve goals is through violence. thank you. adleu

After serving as Controller for 12 long months it is finally time for me to yield to my successor. I would never have been able to get through the 40 and 50 hour weeks without th cooperation of the many people I came in contact with through Student Association

Bear with me as I thank publicly all those who have cooperated with me and have given their time in order to make Student Association fuction. My assistant controllers who put in long hours each week without any type of remuneration; the student assistants who work in the Student Association office and in the Contact Office; all the president and treasurers of the funded and recognized groups I dealt with during the course of the year; the members of budget committee who ended the year meeting three times a week including Sunday nights; the administrators I worked with from Student Affairs, who believe it or not, are genuinely concerned with your welfare; Steve DiMeo and Greg Lessne who helped to make office hours and my term in office thoroughly enjoyable by laughing at my jokes; and anyone else I may have omitted due to lack of room, not lack of gratitude

The paragraph above encompasses over 200 people who work behind the scenes for you, and have helped the Assoication carry on from day to day. They alone prove that not all students on this campus are apathetic and that the system is workable. My sincerest thanks to

To the Editor:

There are three things about this campus that really annoy me. They can easily be corrected, yet no one makes an effort to do something.

Firstly, the fountains are still not on. The weather has been warm for four weeks now. They should have been turned on weeks ago.

Secondly, the bells are off again. This is an embarrassment to any conscientious university community member if he considers the large number of visitors that this campus receives in the Spring.

Lastly, I am annoyed by pamphlet-pushing evangelists who insist I won't be saved, and indidates who assert that I will be sorry if I don't listen to what they say. Although they may have a solicitation permit, they have no business annoying us.

We do ourselves a disservice when we do not present ourselves the best way possible. We are observed daily by hundreds of visitors who ought to see this university at its best, not and best.

To the Editor:

The topic of recombinant DNA research, to be conducted on the SUNYA campus, has raised certain questions and fears in recent weeks. The Biology Department has sponsored speakers to present the pros of the research, while Speakers Forum will be conducting an evening with speakers opposed to the research.

The article "DNA Research: the Great Debate", which appeared in the April 15 issue of the ASP dealt with some of the potential risks to the students and the surrounding community. That article presented the possible risks in a very distorted and exaggerated manner. When doing recombinant DNA research with a creature close to man on the evolutionary scale, a crippled strain of the bacterium E coli must be used and the research must be done in a P-4 research facility. These facilities are so costly, none are in existence at this moment.

The facility proposed for SUNYA is a P-2 facility modified with several P-3 specifications. There is a differential pressure system and a special ventilation system. The only research which can be done on this campus is that involving insect or plant DNA, not DNA involving a cancer-causing bacterium or virus.

Another fear is human error on the part of the laboratory worker in the commission of mistakes by mouth pipetting, sloppy mixing machines and the disposal of dangerous microbes down the drain. Even the minimum security facilities must use mechanical pipetting, must decontaminate work areas and equipment, and cannot dispose of microbes before special treatment. In short, the fears expressed in the previously-mentioned article have been met by the strictest scientific safeguards.

While one cannot rule out the possible risks involved in this type of research, one cannot overlook the potential benefits to mankind. Most of these benefits are in the field o medicine. Recombinant DNA research might lead us to a cure for cancer, can produce microbes which yield vast quantities of insulin, human blood-clotting factors antibiotics, and other valuable drugs. Strains of staple crops, such as wheat and corn, can be developed to grow under severe conditions. The possibilities are limitless.

When all is considered, I believe that the very real benefits to mankind outweigh the risks. The recombinant DNA research must go on.

dna madness

On Thursday, April 28, the Biology Department conducted a forum about the ocedures and techniques of recombinant DNA research. While this concession to student demands is to be applauded, it must be made clear that such a forum does not touch relevant social and environmental issues.

Dr. Lerman saw fit to limit participants in the forum to only those whose views he called productive. By doing this, Dr. Lerman suggested that those with scientific expertise should determine social policy because the issue is too technical for the lay community lay community

Students were urged to attend and view a film entitled "The Gene Engineers." Particular attention was given to statements by Harvard biologist Ruth Hubbard and CIT biologist Robert Sinsheimer. It is somewhat interesting that the biology department was able to procure a copy of the film. When students from SUNYA asked to show it at an independent forum, Mr. Churhoff of WGBH IV said it would not be available until June.

Finally, the decision to leave the burden of debate to the national discussion of the issues means the University has shirked responsibility to fully inform the Albany imunity of the potential threats that itresearch would pose. This university needs to sponsor a meaningful torum where information can be exchanged freely. Lawrence A. Perot

basically biased

The biology department is trying to fool the community into believing that they are giving a fair presentation of the recombinant DNA

they are fooling are themselves

The presentation of an educational program, and the avoidance of a balanced public forum to discuss the DNA research at SUNYA, has resulted in the biology department depriving us of a fair examinat of this issue.

research issue. It is generally acknowledged as not being a strictly scientific question. Instead, it is something that may have profound social and environmental impact. The biology department is using all the previous research that has been done on this issue as an excuse for not having a hearing. This is completely wrong. As long as the community questions concerning such research, the answer them. They should be answered fairly. not from a single, biased perspective.

The biology department, in conjunction with the university, has in effect said, that they don't care if the community has reservations or questions about the proposed research. Trying to satisfy the public outery for on, with a one-sided approach to a many faceted question, is quite clearly an insult to the intelligence of the community.

I am not necessarily opposed to recombinant DNA research, I am, however. opposed to the biology department's biased attitude and the poor job they are doing informing the public.

To the Editor:

The ASP is the main source of information for students at SUNYA. It is unfortunate and disgraceful that such power is abused.

In last Monday's special election edition the bounds of journalism and editorialism were violated. Mitch Werner, a presidential candidate, was subject to a brutal and unjustified attack. In their profile of Mitch the ASP lorgot they were writing about an individual, not a poster. It seems that the intent of the ASP was not only to crush Mitch's campaign but to humiliate him personally.

Although this letter had no bearing on the outcome of the election, as the people wh know Mitch best, we truly believe the ASE owes Mitch Werner an apology.

Lam writing in reply to the April 29 letter in the ASP called "Critical Commentaries." Now, as I understand the letter, and please do not edit or quote me out of context on this because I could be wrong; as I understand it, the Coordinator of Fuerza Latina is accusing the ASP of racial discrimination in the case of Doctor Nepaulsingh's contract because the ASP does not hire Puerto Ricans or other Caribbeans; now, I support this wholeheartedly, and in principle, because I was born in the Caribbean of Caribbean parents and I think that the ASP is one of the pest university papers in the world, which is why it is absolutely time that it devoted at least one page totally to Spanish which is a language spoken in many different ways by millions all over the world; and Americans too, Fuerza Latina also demands that the ASP print the words Without Prejucide at the top ol every page, which is a very good idea because I am genetically programmed against prejudice of any sort, especially racial discrimination; my mother is black, my father is East Indian, my brother and sisters are black, brown and pink respectively (well, white: besides, the words Without Prejudice constitute a legal term that makes it hard for people to sue on the basis of a letter's content: which reminds me, by the way, of a wellknown Caribbean story I made up for Luis Cerezo and Ernestine Lao about a man who used to sleep with a loaded revolver nearby in case any thieves came; one night he woke up and shot a thief in the back, and when he turned on the light he found it was his brother who was on the way to the wash room, dead this goes to show that it is not fair to shoot in the dark at the wrong target because it is hard for some people to tell when they are being exploited: besides, you should never call you brother a fool, as the Hible says, or a racist, because he might drop dead; now this is not a poisonous story, but I hope the ASP will publish it exactly as I wrote it, not changing one jot or one title; or else it will come to pass what is written in the Old and repeated in the New; Psalms 140:3 has a great deal to do with Romans 3:13; that is why I support the idea against Nepaulsingh and in favor of a Spanish page. So there.

Please do not let the administration get wind of this letter; because if it ever gets on my curriculum vitae I am sure to get tenure; then you will be stuck with me forever, not just till 1981: then, what will you do? After all, I am entitled to equal space from equal space newspapers, or am 1? I still think you are the best university paper in the world, especially Alice Kohn; I mean, whoever heard of anybody being hurt by Zodiac News; she speaks Spanish, too; beautifully.

Now just wait and see, the real person will stand right up and say, "Professor Nepaulsingh" should be fired, because he makes tun of the ASP and because he supports those people," "he's even one of them," whic is true and not true at all, because I always tell my students, who know what I stand for, that every language has its place and every situation its language; I know; some of my bes friends are good linguists. So there. More to

To the Editor:

We, the Association of Physics Graduate Students, were shocked and grieved by the sudden death of Mr. John Stasiak. Aged sixtytwo, he was a technician in the Physics Department at the university. He was a resident of Iroy. He was a particularly pleasant man, always ready to help, and indispensable to us. His post was to be eliminated this August. He had appealed to the administration to reconsider his case, but it was to no avail. His dismissal was too great a shock for him, and almost certainly led to his

Mr. Stasiak's death highlights the administration's refusal to comply with the basic demands of the lesser privileged employees. It is a matter of regret, that while numerous non-teaching professiona positions have been retrenched, in 1976 a small group of administrators had increases of 5.4 percent in their salaries, and two new administrative posts were created with salaries of about $34,000 and $17,000.

To prevent the recurrence of similar incidents, we urge the administration to work effectively towards a system which would protect the rights and interests of all employees, particularly those in lower income

Apres Moi . . .

For Vanderbilt University, Emmett Fields' return as president may be "kind of a homecoming," but for SUNYA its more of a homewreck-

Fields has had a short and controversial term here at SUNYA. one that is far from over. He took a sprawling university center wounded by budget cuts and hampered by a sixties growth mentality, and firmly set it on the road to developing a tight cohesive curriculum with a geographically coherent emphasis on public policy analysis.

Open to question are the fairness of his methods and the validity of his direction. Students and faculty had little input into the implementation and post-hoc creation of SUNYA's mission statement. Educational decisions were made by bureaucrats who busied themselves firing educators without equitable hearings.

Yet Emmett Fields may have been the shot of adrenalin this university so sorely needed. If nothing else, the shake-up jarred a few students from the usual tough decision between Genesee and Schlitz and prodded them into giving academic concerns some attention.

Fields still has much to do and many loose ends to wrap up before he departs; the realization of Fields' vision of SUNYA rests as heavily on his actions in these last few months as on the method and manner of the new president.

One thing is for certain: Emmett Fields will be a tough act to follow.

. . . Le Deluge

However, the loss of an administrator shouldn't be cause for allowing the entire university to fall into slovenly unconcern. The fountains should be soaring, the Carillon chiming-in daylight savings time-and even the one or two flowers on campus ought to bloom.

The university may not have much influence with Mother Nature, but the fountains and the bells should be no problem. Spring and finals are excellent excuses for reviving the aesthetics and community spirit of SUNYA

The fountains are more than just lures for awestruck freshmen; they're a campus signature, a symbol, a rallying point for students faced with term papers, incompletes and unemployment.

And the bells are a necessity if a smooth transition is to be effected when we usher out the old and ring in the new.

Ms. Gerardi joined with Ms. St. Mary for the Duo for Flute and Oboe, written in 1947 by the Argentine composer, Alberto Ginastera. Although modern in character, the piece has an emotional range which allies it with late Romanticism. The second movement, entitled Pastorale, is especially nostalgic. The performers' ensemble, which thus far presented no problems, was strained by the intricate Fuga concluding the work. However, no harm was done to the irreverent high spirits of the music. The audience responded with genuine delight.

Althought it might be viewed merely as a virtuoso piece, Luciano Berio's 1958 "Sequenza" for flute solo evokes definite. if mixed, emotions, Ms. St. Mary brought us through a spasmodic, flickering landscape, echoing the technical Findlay Cockrell joined Ms. St. Mary as piano accompanist in the Introduction and Variations in E Minor on a Theme ("Ihr Bluemlein alle") from the Song Cycle "Die Schoene Muellerin", by Franz Schubert. Unfortunately, the music proved to be as overlong as its title. The fantastically beautiful opening theme simply could not support the tedious succession of variations which followed To her credit, Ms. St. Mary's performance kept interest alive.

The Albany State varsity tennis team suffered its first shutout ever under the coaching of Robert Lewis by losing 9-0 to the University of Massachusetts last Thursday. The loss was the team's third of the year and lowered its record to 9-3.

The Danes made the trip to Massachusetts without the services of their number three player, Mitch Sandler. "Without Sandler, we had to move everyone up one step and it affected our matchups," Lewis said. "Had Sandler made the trip, I feel the score might have been closer, possibly 7-2 or 5-4," he added.

The surprise of the match was Massachusetts' Adam Rosen who upset Paul Feldman in the number one singles match. Rosen, after los-
