6. HUNTER'S CHORUS—"We roam through the Forest."

Von Weber.

We roam through the forest and over the mountain,
No joys of the court or the banquet like this;
And then sunset glowing by some leafy fountain,
To crown our red goblets with young beauties' kiss.
Then end our bright ev'ning with dance and with singing,
Till night spreads her mantle o'er vale and o'er wood;
Thro' rock and thro' forest, our horns gally ringing,
Farewell to the day-star that sets in the flood.
La, la, la, &c.

Then should icy winter be hailing and snowing,
Or summer look red o'er the yellow-haired corn,
Or breezes be blowing, or night winds be flowing,
Still ring thro' the forest the hunter's gay horn.
Then end our bright ev'ning, &c.

7. ESSAY—"Life's Mission to the Erring."

ESTHER E. ATKINS, Esopus, Ulster.

8. ESSAY—"Nature, an Educator of the Taste."

JARED H. TERRY, Upper Aquebogue, Suffolk.

9. GLEE—"To Fishermen." - - - - - H. R. Bishop.

Tho' oft when stillness calms the sullen deep,
When winds are hushed, and mur'm'ring billows sleep,
Ye rove forlorn upon the silent shore,
Or ply in dull despair the lab'ring oar:
Ye all live so happy together,
In spite of the chances of weather,
With your messmates, your sweethearts, your children and wives,
That no lives are so happy as Fisherman's lives.

10. DIPLOMAS CONFERRED.

11. TEACHER'S SONG.

Words by Prof. F. S. JEWELL.

The plowman drives his shining share,
Athwart the mellow lea;
And turns the furrows broad and fair,
As waves upon the sea:
But in the mind and heart and will,
'Tis our's a nobler soil to till,—
Ho! ho!
A nobler soil to till!

The sower with a lavish hand,
Flings forth the gleaming grain;
And all along the eager land,
It falls like streaming rain:
But truths that gleam and thoughts that glow,
A brighter seed we sow,—we sow,—
Ho! ho!
A brighter seed we sow!

The reaper thrusts his beaming blade,
Into the bending corn;
And fair the yellow sheaves are laid,
Like golden clouds at morn:
But we in joy, and praise, and love,
A richer harvest, reap above,—
Ho! ho!
A richer, reap above.

12. ADDRESS BY REV. S. T. SEELYE.

13. MOTET—"Go not far from me." - - - - - Zingarelli.
