INDIANS AND DUTCH APPEAR IN PAGEANT

Polli Sci To Present "America
Triumphant" by Mackaye
This Evening

PART OF MOTHERS' WEEK

"America Triumphant," an historical pageant by Constance D'Arcy Mackaye, will be staged by the Political Science club tonight in the auditorium. Dancing will follow in the gym.

The pageant is in conjunction with Mother's and Daughters' weekend which is annually celebrated by the three religious clubs of the college, Newman, Y. W. C. A. and Menorah.

The pageant, which will be staged especially for the entertainment of the mothers, is to celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence, 1776, and the purchase of Manhattan from the Indians, 1626. Its scenes are laid in New Amsterdam, Mount Vernon, and Philadelphia, and include singing and dancing reviews. Twenty picked members of the women's chorus will form the pageant chorus and have been trained by T. Frederick H. Cudlynn. The dances will be Indian numbers, wooden shoe dances, and the minuet. Miss Isabelle Johnston is in charge of training the dancers, and Miss Agnes Futterer is supervising the directing of the actors.

The cast follows: Lillian Eckler, Betty Wyke, Mildred Graves, Marcella Street, Mary Merchant, Elva Joehumson, Julia Fay, Georgia De Moeker, Helen Tompkins, Marjorie Seeger, Ruth Lemmle, Nettie Gilbert, Ethel DuBois, Mary Rhein, Agnes Holleran, Marjorie Youngs, Olla Gowey, Isabelle Plude, Anne Steidinger, Eudora Lampman, and Marion Cheeseborough.

Committee chairmen are: music, Mary Rhein; dancing, Bertha Zajac; stage director, Marion O'Connor; stage setting, Helen Zimmerman; properties, Sara Barkley; house, Hazel Benjamin; advertising, Thelma Brezee. Louise Gunn is general chairman, and Kenneth MacFarland is secretary-treasurer.

PURCHASER MAY HAVE SILVER NAME PLACED ON PEDAGOGUE COVER

"The 1926 Pedagogue will appear during the week of May 10," Minnie Greenaway, '26, editor-in-chief, said Monday. "The material is at the printer's," Miss Greenaway continued, "and delivery within two weeks is certain. This year's Ped will be the biggest ever, having 260 pages.

The cover of the Pedagogue will be blue, with the name of the book in burnished silver, carrying out as nearly as possible the class colors, blue and white. A special feature of this cover is that by the payment of fifty cents extra the name of the owner may be placed on it in silver. This will be done after the general distribution of Pedagogues.

TO SELL STRAWBERRIES AND CAKE ON MAY DAY

May Day, G. A. A.'s day of the spring season, tomorrow, May 1. At 2:30 a track meet will be held on campus under the general direction of Dorothy Lasher, '28. The events consist of 50-yard dash, hurdling, relay race, basketball throw, standing broad jump, running broad jump, and running high jump.

At 7:30, the gymnasium classes will give an exhibit on the campus. All those taking part must report at 7:00.

Immediately after, a strawberry festival will be held in the gym. Each class will have a booth and tables. The menu will consist of:

Ice cream and cake.....	$.10
Strawberries and cake.....	.10
Strawberries, whipped cream and cake.....	.15

Mildred Loman is general chairman of May Day. Her assistants on the general committee are Anne Raynor, Gertrude Swettman, Dorothy Lasher, Mildred Lansley, and Eleanor Harrison. The other committees are: decorations, Louise Ward, chairman, Florence Potter, Mary Hart; music, Dorothy Rowland, chairman, Barbara Andrews, Louise Mathewson; waitresses, Mildred Melrose, chairman, Margaret Doughty, Molly Neville, Florence Cook; publicity, Kathleen Doughty.

Adoption of Standard College Point System Suggested At Conference Attended by Two State College Delegates

Lorena Shaffer and Georgianna Maar attended, as delegates from the State College Girls' Athletic association, the Eastern Section of the Athletic Conference of American College Women, held at Wellesley college, April 16, 17, 18.

The first meeting was a series of speeches on the past and present Athletic Conferences of American College Women.

At the discussion held Friday afternoon at Shakespeare, the more practical problems were taken up. Miss Appleby, an Englishwoman who originated field hockey in this country, spoke of the responsibility of college women, not only in keeping their own love of games, but in imparting it to others.

The furthering of interest in sports justifies the existence of the Athletic Association, according to Miss Washburn of Randolph Macon, who read a paper on the function and purpose of the college athletic association. She felt that the interests of the largest possible number rather than the few skilled should at all times be considered, and a spirit of sportsmanship engendered as a preparation for life. Various questions were brought up as to how this end should be brought about.

The discussions held Saturday, April 17, officially closed the conference. A paper was read by the Goucher College representative on awards and honors.

Miss Appleby was asked why the English could defeat the Irish Hockey

CAST FOR "MR. PIM" BEGINS REHEARSALS

Rehearsals are underway for the big play of the year. "Mr. Pim Passes By" promises to become a finished and polished production peppered with delightful flashes of wit and made charming by a Barrie-like humor, according to the student committee.

The character of Olivia played by Isabelle Plude is the chief one. It touches the play with a delicacy of humor and a whimsicality of expression. George, played by DeWitt Zeh, offers an interesting contrast to Olivia in his uncompromising conservatism while the dowager-like, conventional Lady Marden (Ethel Bisland), is a foil to the saucy and rebellious Dinah (Marion O'Connor), and the unconventional Brian (Edwin Van Kleeck), who paints "purple cows." The delightful humor of Mr. Pim (Niles Haight), the absent-minded, the shy and retiring, can only be appreciated by those who will see the play, it is said.

SPANISH CARNIVAL TO HAVE FACULTY STUNT

Spanish Carnival, to be held May 14 will, this year, feature a stunt by both the men and women of the faculty, under the direction of Miss Mary Grahm of the English department. The stunts and a play will take place in the auditorium after the annual dinner in the cafeteria. Gertrude Lynch, president of the club, is general chairman of the carnival.

players ten to one, when American teams were not often able to score against them. Miss Appleby replied that she thought our very trouble was in taking athletics too seriously. Sports are social affairs, not fights. For this reason she sees no reason in stirring up class feeling and competition for points. This arouses interest rather than enjoyment, and games are primarily to be enjoyed, not won. She suggested more teams and tournaments rather than keener competition.

An enlightening paper on Outing Clubs was submitted by the Smith College representative. Two different relations between A. A. and Outing Club may exist: Outing Club coming directly under A. A. or being wholly independent.

The findings of the conference are compactly put in the resolutions adopted at the recommendation of the committee on resolutions, of which Virginia Wellington was chairman. The first is that a budget system is most satisfactory, because it insures sufficient funds for college organizations, including women's athletic associations, which have an especially hard time in the co-educational colleges. The conference resolved secondly that each college adopt the slogan, "Fun for all, and all for fun!" suggested by Barnard college, and finally that a standard point system be adopted by all colleges having difficulties over transference, and made optional for all others.

ON TAXATION

The College News has adopted the policy of running from week to week a list of the names of those who have not paid their student tax. While the matter of student tax collection belongs to the Finance Board the News feels the matter of unpaid taxes should be brought to the attention of the student body as a whole. Fortunately the number of unpaid taxes to date is rather small, and yet this number is larger than it should be. The tax here is very small in comparison with many other colleges and it seems that this fact alone should result in a high percentage of tax payment.

It is through the money raised by the Student Tax that the various organizations of the college can carry on their activities. We therefore urge every student to give his hearty cooperation to making possible a 100% payment of the student tax.

Following are the names of students who have neither paid their student tax nor made any explanation of why the tax has not been paid:

1926	1928
Edith Green	Louise Guiney
Walter Morgan	Edna Murden
	Marion Reilly
1927	Daniel Sweeney
Alexander Cooper	Meyer Tobias
Lewis Doyle	1929
J. Louise Kuyf	Evelyn Van Deusen
J. R. Stevenson	Half Tax Unpaid
Frank Sylvester	Edith Altmark
P. Van Benschoten	Gussie Lehrman
	Benjamin Yavner

WRITER QUERIES "ARE STUDENTS YOUNG AS FACULTY MAKE THEM?"

To the Editor:

Are we guilty of the accusations flung at us by our faculty? Are we as young as they make us? Do we ignore the living problems of the day? Do we give most of our time and thoughts to recreation?

One minute spent in the classes discussing evolution, one minute spent in the methods classes, or one minute spent in sociology class or history classes, would erase all of these queries with a negative answer. We invite those who unauthoritatively mark us with such juvenile rating, to join our discussions. We challenge them to answer questions created by that juvenile curiosity.

Evolution for instance, is the topic of interest in almost every corner of our corridors. Is it a law? Is it a theory? Ask us; we shall answer one way or another and justify our answer by sufficient proof and surprising agility of thought. When we ask Father Dummey to discuss the popular problem with us, when we ask that it be a topic of discussion in our logic courses, are we not interested?

If you threaten us by saying evolution interferes with our religion, we shall defy your statement. We shall say, "It does not because we won't let it." We have our conception of our own religion. It is that, that gives us the satisfying motive to make us want to live a bit after we have had trouble. In such times we do not want intellect. It is our religion that makes that existence tolerable, says one of our teachers. Since it is not a theory of existence, our discussions of the subject of evolution, whether as a theory or as a law, is fearless.

This is only one of our problems. Incidentally, it is the most popular of the day. We invite you, accusers, to our discussions. We are confident and anxious for your conversion.

SYDDUM ENTERTAINS FACULTY IN NEW HOME

Syddum Hall gave a tea for the faculty in its new home last Saturday, from 3 to 6. The tables were decorated with daffodils and with roses presented by Mrs. Herbert A. Whittle. Syddum's next door neighbor. Tea was served at 227 Ontario street, where the parlors are located, the kitchen and dining-room being at 225. The consensus of opinion was that the change from 1 Englewood place to 225-227 Ontario street has given the girls a much more modern, light and airy home. There is room in the new houses for 39 or 40 people.

Guests were received by Miss Pierce, Abbie Crawford, and Miss Dunn. Mrs. Adam A. Walker, Miss Ida M. Isdell, Miss Adelaide Gruneshow, Mrs. Lynn J. Arnold, Miss Florence E. Winchell, and Miss Laura Thompson helped to pour.

TRINITY ENTERTAINMENT

The members of the College Girls' Class of Trinity Methodist church were entertained last Tuesday evening at a reception given by Dr. and Mrs. Louis Hacker at their home at 748 Madison avenue. The guests spent a jolly evening entertained by games, stunts, and songs.

Dr. Painter Describes Face of Rameses II, Pharaoh of the Jewish Persecution, Now In Egyptian Museum

The treasures of the tomb are being removed to the National Museum at Cairo. But as yet it has been emptied of hardly more than half its contents. Two rooms particularly remain, filled with objects, and an annex to the ante-chamber and a store chamber which contains more than one hundred sealed chests that have not yet been touched and are thought may contain the greatest treasures of the tomb. Mr. Carter says it will take two years more to finish clearing the tomb. At the Museum in Cairo I observed among the removed treasures the throne chairs, the royal couch, and other furniture and utensils. I was particularly impressed with the exquisite handcraft workmanship. The carvings of his hands for the arms and legs of the chairs, the encrusting of them with solid gold decorations, the extreme nicety of artistic design, are unequalled. Two art treasures particularly caught my fancy, an alabaster vase in the form of a loving cup and an ivory jewel case. It is impossible to describe the perfection of taste and craftsmanship exhibited in them. I doubt if any artist of today could do them nearly so well. Every article seems to be as perfectly preserved after three thousand five hundred years as if it were only completed yesterday.

Near by, in the Museum, however, I chanced upon an object which thrilled me more than anything relating to Tutankhamen, and which for the time being I had forgotten was there. I was looking down upon the face of a divested mummy, and when I read the inscription learned that it was that of Rameses II, the Pharaoh of the Hebrew persecution of which I had read in that story of old from my earliest childhood. Just opposite, on the other side of the aisle, I beheld the mummy of Meeptah, son of Rameses II, Pharaoh at the time of the Hebrew exodus. As I looked upon the faces of these very men, whose portraits had hung in the gallery of my memory from infancy and had been surrounded with all the enchanting glamour of religious fancy, there surged within me unutterable emotions. And as I turned finally from that silent dust, the words of Lincoln's favorite poem emerged to consciousness: "O why should the spirit of mortal be proud." Even kings bring nothing into the world and it is certain they can take nothing out.

The walls of the tomb of Tutankhamen and the others in the Valley of the Kings are decorated with paintings recording the reign and exploits of their several subjects. These paintings are remarkable for the preservation of their colors. But I explored tombs, some three hundred miles further north on the Nile at Sakkara, far more wonderful and interesting to me. These are so ancient they go back nearly 5000 years B. C. Here the walls, instead of being inscribed with paintings, are carved with hieroglyphics in the solid stone. Notable among these tombs is that of Zoser, a king of the Second Dynasty. His tomb is the famous Step Pyramid, believed by archeologists to be the oldest extant work of human hands. The colossal stones are so placed as to form steps, like terraces. These pyramid texts are the oldest manuscripts of Egyptian lore. Here are also the wonderful Tombs of the Bulls. The soul of the god Ptah was supposed to dwell in a bull, Apis. He was reincarnated in each succeeding bull. The dead sacred bulls were entombed with all the splendor of the Pharaohs. The sarcophagi now in these tombs are cut out of solid granite, brought down the Nile from Assuan, over four hundred miles away. Their ponderous weight and size are astounding, and the grandeur of the tombs of deity, in the consummate days, can only be surmised from the reverential sentiments of Egyptian mythology.

At Thebes I wandered among the ruins of the Temple of Ammon, and the Ramesseum whose vast tunnels, which are supposed to have been the granary in which Joseph stored grain during the seven years of plenty remain. On my return to Luxor I explored the Temple of Luxor and the wonderful Temple of Karnak—the most magnificent of them all—begun by Rameses I, and completed by Rameses II, the great builder of Egypt who reigned sixty-seven years. These vast structures are imperial in conception and execution, outreaching the Colosseum or anything that Rome ever did.

Completing my wanderings for a time, I was returning from a trip to the great pyramid of Cheops by moonlight, along the banks of the silent Nile. The moon was full and the silvery light under the Sahara sky transcendently beautiful. The trees like tall sentinels along the bank waved their fringed palms in air, and the lights of Cairo glistened like golden orbs on the waters. It was like a fairy-land, and I was living the poetry of the Orient. But I was wearied and covered with dust. Nothing can be clean in a land where there is never rain. As I entered the hall of my hotel, I heard a youth of Cairo singing what is doubtless a popular and at least very appropriate ditty, apropos of his lady love: "I am washing my face for you tonight." I proceeded to do likewise.

GEORGE S. PAINTER.

NEW YORK PRESIDENT OF H. E. VISITS STATE

Miss Anna M. Cooley, president of the New York State Home Economics association, visited the college home economics department Thursday afternoon and addressed the staff and students in a group meeting. She spoke of life as the great adventure and used as her keynote "See all—nor be afraid." She mentioned the fields open to graduates of home economics and told something of the work of sister clubs throughout the state. After the meeting, the club entertained at a tea at which Miss Laura F. Thomson and Miss Jessie McLenaghan poured.

PROFESSOR SUHRIE OF N. Y. U. SPEAKS HERE

Ambrose L. Suhrie, professor of teacher training in New York university, spoke in chapel last Friday. Professor Suhrie is interested in student activities. After assembly he talked with the different heads of student organizations.

Professor Suhrie is noted as author of several books on educational methods, and as a popular speaker at conventions. Among his books are "Educational Methods" and "New Possibilities in Education."

Later in the day he visited the college News office and conferred with Myskania.

READING "QUALITY STREET" PRAISED

Dramatic Critic of Daily Says "Miss Futterer Has Gift of Genuine Actress"

"Quality Street," Sir James M. Barrie's delightful play, was presented Wednesday evening, April 21, at Chancellor's hall, by Miss Agnes Futterer, director of dramatics, before a large audience.

Reviewing it, William H. Haskell, dramatic critic of the Knickerbocker Press, wrote:

"Miss Futterer can, by herself, stage a play with the combined agencies of her voice, her gestures and your imagination.

"Anyone who recalls Maude Adams' delightful performance in this tender, old-fashioned, humorous bit of sentiment must necessarily expect a great deal of one who would conjure the whole play from a bare platform, two chairs and a table. Miss Futterer realized that Wednesday night. She peopled the platform with Phoebe Throssel, 'Phoebe of the Ringlets'; with Miss Susan Throssel, her older sister; with the bluff and hearty Captain Valentine Brown, and with the inquiring Misses Willoughby. You saw the blue and white room in Quality street, where lived the Misses Throssel, and you felt the gentle trend of quite unrealized mating influence that came to the secluded and Victorian Miss Phoebe as Captain Valentine came back from the wars to be fascinated, apparently, by the mythical 'Libbie,' only to find that she was really the Phoebe he loved.

"Miss Futterer has the gift of the genuine actress, which is characterization. It comes with changing inflections of voice; with the postures and the mental attitude that comprehends each character and lives them all. To anyone who did not know 'Quality Street' as a play, the reading was surely a pleasure; to those who did, it was the welcome remembrance of a delight."

HOME EC DEPARTMENT SEES MEAT CUTTING; LEARN CHEAPER CUTS

The entire home economics department attended a demonstration of meat cutting on Tuesday morning, April 20 by Miss Gudrun Carlson of the Institute of American Meat Packers. Miss Carlson, formerly a teacher of home economics, is connected now with the meat packers. She directed the cutting of fore-quarter and hind-quarter of the beef and the cutting of the pork animal. The beef was provided by Hamel's meat market, 91 Hudson avenue, and the pork by the Albany Packing company. The use of the cheaper cuts of meat was emphasized. The education of the consumer in the use of the cheaper cuts of meat is one of the most important considerations of the meat packers at the present time, according to faculty members, since in many sections of all cities the heavy demand for the best cuts of meat and the difficulty of getting rid of the cheaper cuts make all meats more expensive. The law of supply and demand is very important in any of the industries that have to do with perishable foods, they said. When well prepared the cheaper cuts of meat are even of better flavor than choicer cuts.

State College Students Publish Two Books in Year; "Pedagogue" and Book of Verse Are Attractive

The publication of two student-made books in one year is a creditable performance for any college the size of State. That these two representatives of the college—the Pedagogue and the Book of Student Verse—will appear within two weeks of each other, makes the achievement all the more notable.

Of the 1926 Pedagogue only one thing needs be said—it is better than ever. Since the publication of the first "Ped" this ideal of successive Pedagogue staffs, to make each annual better than the one before, has made a steady advance in the size and quality of the book. As State College has grown, so the Pedagogue has grown, always a fitting representative of the college, always a storehouse of memories for years to come. Minnie Greenaway and Carolyn Coleman, aided by an efficient staff, have added more pages, created new departments, instituted new artistic features, and made this, the 1926 Pedagogue bigger and better than the book of 1925.

In sharp contrast to the Pedagogue, which builds each year on precedents, comes an absolutely new publication—A Book of Student Verse, which may be called a student-made publication because every poem in it is the work of a State College student. Containing the best verse written at State College during the past seventeen years, the book is truly representative of the college; it is a representative of which we may well be proud. Few of even the larger colleges and universities have published collections of student verse; none of them can excel the lyric poetry in this book. The existence of the book is entirely due to R. H. Kirtland, professor of English, who first suggested its publication, and who has personally selected all material for it. Mary Galvin, '27, and Alice Gooding, '26, are responsible for the end leaves and ornamental title page which add so much to the appearance of the book.

CLASSICAL CLUB HAS ITS ANNUAL DINNER

Classical club held its annual dinner Wednesday, April 21, in the cafeteria, which was decorated with pussy willows and cherry blossoms by a committee under the direction of Alma Terpening, '26. She was assisted by Sylvia Estabrook and Edith Ten Broeck. Monica Walsh, '26, first consul, welcomed the guests including about forty-five active members and the faculty members, President A. R. Brubacher, Dr. Leonard W. Richardson, Miss Edith O. Wallace and Miss Lydia A. Johnson. The program arranged by Emily Williams and Margaret Stoutenburgh included an article on "The Classics" by Sidney Bailey read by Miss Edith O. Wallace, and several violin duets by Carolyn Jossion and Margaret Martin, accompanied on the piano by Dorothy Rabie. Helen Viets, '27, was chairman of the committee on arrangements.

FRESHMAN WINS THIRD INTERNATIONAL PRIZE

Louis Klein, '29, has received an international honor awarded by the American School Citizenship League, which conducted a world essay contest recently. The subject of the essay was "World Peace."

The other awards in the contest were as follows:

First prize, Miss Ida Greaves, Malvern Girls' School, Worcestershire, England; second, M. Galloway, Watango, Oklahoma; third, D. G. Maurice, Marlborough College, Wilts, England; first honorable mention, Miss Freda Guilin, Bishop Wordsworth's School, England; second, Miss Mary A. Consoff, Girls Latin School, Boston, Mass.; third, Louis Klein, Albany.

POSTPONE PLANS

Due to the absence from the city of the Rev. Father Joseph A. Dimmey, final arrangements of Newman club plans for Mothers' and Daughters' weekend have not been made. Newcomers are requested to watch the bulletin board in the lower hall for important announcements.

Beta chapter of Omicron Nu initiated Miss Anna M. Cooley as a national honorary member, Thursday evening, April 22. Miss Cooley is professor of household arts education at Teachers college, Columbia university. The honor has been conferred because of her recognition in the Home Economics field.

After the initiation, President Mildred B. Graves, '27, reported on the biennial convalescence at Manhattan, Kansas, which she recently attended. Among those present were alumnae from Saratoga Springs, Slingerlands, Schenectady, and Albany.

PED LAUNCHES FINAL SUBSCRIPTION DRIVE

Something new in a joke department is the "State College Cookie," in memorial to the deceased "State College Pretzel" of 1924. This joke department contains many novel features, as well as the things demanded of every "Ped" joke department, such as the results of chapel votes. A new 15-page athletic department has been added, and snapshots will, for the first time, have a section all their own. Each section is to be introduced by a bi-color wood block, an advance over the single-color section pages of former years. The autograph section has been divided into pages headed "faculty," "sorority sisters," "classmates," and "college friends."

A final drive for Ped payments was started Monday. Money may be paid at any time at the News office, to any member of the Ped board, or to any of the following juniors: Kent Pease, Ruth McNutt, Constance Baumann, Ruth Coe, Hilda Sarr, Mildred Pawell, Alma Terpening, Esther Milnes, Lois Dunn, Jane Green, Evelyn Biddle, Mary Neville, Janet Gow, Thelma Temple, Katherine Tanner, Georgianna Maar, Mary Harris, Helen Tompkins, Margaret Provost, Sara Barkley, Marcia Connolly, Ann Gaynor, Harriet Overbaugh, Winifred Carey, or Thelma Brezee.

ANOTHER BARRIE PLAY CHOSEN FOR READING

"Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire," the play by Sir James M. Barrie, has been selected by Miss Agnes Futterer, director of dramatics, as the drama to be added to her repertoire of full-length plays for next season. This is the third Barrie play among her readings. The others are "The Admirable Crichton" and "Quality Street."

Miss Futterer is an Albanian by birth. Her father was for many years in charge of the musical work of the Albany public schools. In 1916 she was graduated from State College and later did advanced work at Columbia university. She studied after that in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts at New York. She has been a member of the summer session faculty of Middlebury college, Middlebury Vt., and director of dramatics for the Lake Placid Club.

"WEDDING" IS FEATURE OF MENORAH MEETING

A social meeting of Menorah was held Thursday, April 22. Entertainment consisted of a Mendelssohn mock wedding. FRENCH CLUB MARDI
GRAS AND FETE HELD

French club presented its second annual fete and mardi gras Friday evening in the auditorium and gymnasium. The fete consisted of singing and dancing numbers. Various articles of make-up frolicked in the second scene of the playlet which showed a close-up of milady's dressing table. The fete continued with the mardi gras in the gymnasium, which was beautifully decorated in black and white streamers and red roses. Kathleen O'Malley and Regina Perrault were co-chairman of the affair.
