Appointment of two vice presidents at the State University of New York at Albany was announced today by Evan R. Collins, president, following approval by the State University Board of Trustees.

Dr. Webb S. Fiser, recently a professor of political science at the University's Graduate School of Public Affairs, has been appointed vice president for academic affairs. Dr. Clifton C. Thorne, who was appointed dean of students on July 1, was elevated to vice president for student affairs. In his new position, Dr. Fiser will coordinate all academic matters at the growing University Center. Dr. Thorne will be responsible for all student living affairs.

A native of Greene, Ohio, Dr. Fiser grew up in Detroit where his mother still lives at 8701 Beechdale Avenue. He did all of his degree work at the University of Chicago where he earned his AB, MA, and Ph. D. in Political Science.

Prior to joining the staff at the Graduate School of Public Affairs, Dr. Fiser taught at Syracuse University and at the University of Detroit. In 1959, he was the principal planner for the East Side Urban Renewal Project in the City of Syracuse.

He is a member of the American Political Science Association and is currently vice chairman of the State University Faculty Senate. He has published a book on urban problems, Mastery of the Metropolis.

He lives at 501 Huron Road, Delmar with his wife and two daughters.

Dr. Thorne is a native of Germantown, New York and a graduate of Germantown Central School. After serving in the Navy in World War II, Dr. Thorne earned his BS, and MS degrees at State University. He taught in Red Hook Central School and then returned to State University in 1952. He earned a Ed. D. degree from Columbia University.

He has served the University, teaching on its business faculty, as director of graduate studies, dean of men, dean of the University College, and since July 1, as dean of students. He has written articles on automation and education, educational television and teaching methods.

Dr. Thorne, his wife, the former Vivian Hillier of Johnstown, and their three children live at 210 Kenwood Avenue, Delmar.

Founded in 1844 as a normal school, the Albany institution is now a modern university center with several schools and a wide variety of special services. Next year its location will be changed from 135 Western Avenue to a 22-building complex designed by Edward Durell Stone and located on a 350-acre site located between Washington and Western avenues at Fuller Road. The current student enrollment over 5,000 is expected to increase to 10,000 by 1970.

As the new academic year opened today (September 9) at State University of New York at Albany, Dr. Evan R. Collins, president, welcomed 114 new faculty at a general faculty meeting held in Page Hall. The body now totals about 500, the largest faculty in the university's history.

Dr. Collins, in his charge to the faculty which will serve a student body of over 5,000, also the largest in the annals of the institution, referred to special programs and concerns for both disadvantaged and advantaged students but cautioned the faculty "not to lose sight of the great middle group which constitutes the university's chief concern." He said that in the aim for distinction the effort should be not for distinction alone but to be distinguished "the better to constitute ourselves to do the job that faces us and that job begins in the classroom. The new plant, extension of programs, qualities of outstanding students and faculty -- they all exist for the act of teaching to conduce the act of learning."

On the new faculty are 39 doctors of philosophy and three doctors of education. Dr. Collins welcomed back ten members after a year of research, writing, and lecturing at home and abroad. He also announced that 11 faculty are engaged in similar activities off campus this year and two are on continuing leave. (Ed.: See list "A" attached).

Director of admissions, Dr. L. Walter Schultze reported that the 1,323 freshmen were selected from 6,670 who applied starting a year ago. There are 419 transfer students new on campus this year.

Dr. Collins announced the promotions of 17 faculty members; five from associate professor to full professor, eight from assistant professor to associate; and four from instructor to assistant. (Ed.: See list B attached).

The first all-university activity to be held on the university's new campus on Western avenue near Fuller road will be held next Tuesday (Sept. 14) evening when the annual all-university convocation will be held at the Dutch Quadrangle. The convocation and the induction of freshmen will be conducted in a single ceremony, beginning at 8:15 o'clock, with Dr. Samuel B. Gould, president of State University of New York, as the principal speaker. Dr. Collins will be convocation chairman.

There will be a formal academic procession at the convocation which will be followed by the induction of the university's largest freshmen class in the traditional candlelight and beany ceremony.

The program for non-registered students begins Sunday (Sept. 12) with residence orientation and instruction for registration. On Monday there will be academic advisement for transfer students with 56 or more hours of credit and orientation to University College for new freshmen and transfer students with less than 56 hours of credit. Advisement and registration will continue through Tuesday.

Registration for evening and Saturday classes will be held Saturday, Sept. 11, and from 3 to 6 p. m. on Wednesday, Sept. 15. Residence halls for upper classmen will open at 2 p. m. Sunday, September 12.

Events scheduled for freshmen, transfer students, and returning students include a number of innovations this year. There will be voluntary tours of academic facilities on Wednesday, Sept. 15, leaving every 20 minutes beginning at 9 a. m. and conducted by "big brothers" and "big sisters." In the afternoon there will be a freshman class meeting and campus-wide programs, followed by an evening all-university bonfire to be held at College Field. An informal social hour with dancing will conclude the day's activities.

On Thursday, September 16, when classes begin, library tours will continue to be held throughout the day. In the evening there will be discussions for all students based upon John Hersey's "The Child Buyer," assigned to the freshmen for summer reading. Library tours continue on Friday. That evening the President's Reception for freshmen living on Alumni Quad will be held from 8 to 9:30 in the lower lounge of Brubacher. Concurrently a concert by The Statesmen, male singing group, will be held in the Flag Room for freshmen living on the Dutch Quadrangle.

Saturday morning there will be a Sabbath service, library tours, reports on campus organizations, the President's Reception in the Flag Room of the Dutch Quad and a concert by The Statesmen for residents at the Alumni Quad.

Sunday services will be followed later in the morning by a "follow up" program "The Responsible Self - Morally, Socially, Politically", conducted by resident assistants.

Tours and classes continue during the next week with another social program Friday evening, September 24; a pop concert in Page Hall Saturday evening, September 25; open house at residence halls Sunday afternoon. On Saturday, October 2, an all-university sports day will be held at College Field.

An orientation program for 35 new foreign students at State University of New York at Albany, including 12 from the Republic of China, will get underway Monday (Sept. 13) and continue through Sunday (Sept. 19). The students, 18 women and 17 men, will be joining 35 other students from abroad already enrolled at the University.

Helen N. Mayo, foreign student advisor at SUA, has arranged a number of special programs for the week-long program. On Monday, following an English test for all new foreign students, including graduate, undergraduates, and summer school registrants, the group will tour both the present academic complex and the new campus. The group will be welcomed at a luncheon at the new Dutch Quadrangle by Dr. Evan R. Collins, president, and will hear an address, "The Meaning of Freedom", by Dr. DeWitt Ellinwood, professor of history. At 4 o'clock there will be a tea for the group, their guides, and faculty guests at Brubacher Hall.

Tuesday's activities will include a morning bus tour of downtown Albany, with stops at the State Office Building, State Education Building, and the State Capitol where the group will lunch in the cafeteria. Registration and advisement will follow at Draper and in the evening the group will attend the all-university convocation at the Dutch Quadrangle.

The program continues the next day with introduction to university student services, a library tour, and lunch on an individual basis in area restaurants popular with the students. In the afternoon foreign students continuing their studies at SUA will meet to give helpful advice to the newcomers. A question period with advisers will follow. Elsie Hart, instructor in educational psychology will lecture on American classroom procedure, after which the group will visit Schuyler Mansion, the Cherry Hill restoration, and the Albany Institute of History and Art. Concluding the day's program will be a picnic and lecture on rock formation of the Helderbergs in Thacher Park.

On Thursday and Friday, both class days, the students will have the assistance of guides and group conferences will be held. After a day free from scheduled events on Saturday, the orientation program will be concluded with a supper program in Channing Hall, Unitarian Church, sponsored by Campus Ministry. There will be a panel discussion on "Religion in America" with campus religious personnel and invited representatives participating.

New foreign students are Wayne Gatehouse, Canada; Hailu Abbe, Mengistu Girma, Alemayehu Malaku, and Dina Mazengia, Ethiopia; Marie A Beysang, Madeleine Bourset, Françoise Cabaret, and Annie Mariage, France; Josephine Yu Chen, Ming-Mei Chen, Janie J. Chien, Young Sook Cho, Carol Hsiau, Da-Tung Hsu, Tell-Right Jeme, Donna Y. Shen, Feng Y. Sun, Joseph Tseng, Pang Ling-Ting, and Kuang Hsin Tsai, Free China; Hella Ulferts, Germany; Tejinder Sing, India; George Moore, Jamaica; Yoko Murajama, Japan; U. Jin Jhun, Youngsoak Cho, Hyoung Seung Yu, and Soo In Lee, Korea; Festus Akindeji, Nigeria; Janet Uy and J. Cuerpo-Vallacorta, Philippines; Rashed Muraished, Saudi Arabia; Owen K. Pigott, West Indies; and Yutulu M. Sililo, Zambia.

Other students continuing their studies at Albany State are from British Guiana, Ecuador, Egypt, Greece, Indonesia, Iran, Hungary, Jordan, Kenya, Morocco, Southern Rhodesia, and Uganda.

Members of the new faculty at State University of New York at Albany come to the institution with a wide variety of backgrounds and experiences. Additions to the faculty total 114, increasing the university total to 500.

Dr. Stephan Temesvary, who received his degree from the University of Heidelberg, joins the department of astronomy and space science. Last year he was at the Institute for Advanced Studies, Princeton. New to the earth and atmospheric sciences is Dr. Winthrop D. Means who formerly was at the Australian National University.

Among additions to the department of Germanic and Slavic languages is Philip Fossa, formerly of Holt, Rinehart, Winston, publishers. He has a doctorate in lettres from the University of Genoa.

Mrs. Dona Strauss, with a Ph. D. from the University of Cambridge, is an associate professor in mathematics. Last year she was on the faculty of Birkbeck College in London. Joel Chadbe, who joins the music department, lived in Rome prior to coming to Albany.

Among those new to the romance languages department are Esther Azzario, formerly of Caracas, Alfredo Lueje-Marcos, and Andre Michaux. Mrs. Azzario spent last year in Caracas and Mr. Lueje-Marcos, served as a translator in Madrid at that time. Mr. Michaux was in Ajaccio, France.

Joining the department of social sciences is Romolo Toigo, formerly of the Bureau of Social Science Research.

Unable to be present at the first faculty meeting of the academic year was Donald Homes, associate professor of management in the School of Business. Formerly employed by the General Electric Company, Mr. Holmes was in Vienna reading a paper before the International Management Conference. Other additions to the school faculty include Dr. Irving Sabghir, professor of business management, who was employed last year by the Ford Motor Company.

To the School of Education faculty has been added, among other, Dr. Ernest Ranucci, formerly associated with the Association of Bi-National Schools in South America. Col. William S. Rooney, who joins the School of Social Welfare as a full professor, formerly was with the Department of Army.

Several technical specialists are now members of the teaching body at SUA. Among them is Paul S. Andrews who last year was with the WRGB/WGY Broadcasting Company. John Kowalchyk was formerly at RPI and Hugh MacGregor and William Spence were with Honeywell, Inc., and the U. S. Army Security Agency, respectively.

To the general administration staff has been added Edwin Reilly as director of the computing center and associate professor of science. He previously was associated with the General Electric Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory.

Now the expanded educational television department are David Kenney, formerly with Schenectady's WRGB; Statton Rice, on a part-time basis, who was with the Albany Public School System; and George Wiesner, formerly of the New York State Education Department. Mr. Kenney and Mr. Rice are listed as television producers and directors and Mr. Wiesner, television art director. Mr. Rice is working on a U. S. Office of Education sponsored project concerned with the design and production of instructional materials for equipment for teaching arithmetics to the mentally handicapped who are educable.

Dr. Evan R. Collins, president of Albany University and chairman of the convocation, emphasized in his address that the community of the university is not isolated. It is in and of other communities. He pointed out that the students are not only citizens of Albany during their residence but that they are obligated to be responsible citizens of that community. Excerpts from the address, "The Student and the University" scheduled to be given by Dr. Samuel B. Gould, president of the State University of New York, at the 122nd annual All-University Convocation at State University of New York at Albany, Tuesday evening, September 14.

"We cannot emphasize too often these days the necessity for complete and absolute academic freedom for the scholar and a similar sense of freedom for the lay citizen. We live in a time when the clash of ideologies has shaken the foundations of our constitutional beliefs insisted upon and defended so fiercely by Jefferson and his contemporaries as well as by many statesmen of modern times. Every decade has brought forth crises that challenge these beliefs, that tempt us, perhaps in the interests of temporary peace of mind, to relinquish a small portion of our freedom to believe or to discuss or to explore. Ultra-liberals and arch-reactionaries alike, representing opposite poles of political and social philosophy, steadily test our willingness to adhere to the fundamental principles of the Bill of Rights. It does not matter that some aspects of the philosophies of these people may be repugnant to us as individuals. Under such circumstances we cannot afford to forget that the denial of this freedom to any person ultimately threatens the freedom of all of us. If we believe in excellence, we cannot and must not permit any corrosion of the spirit of inquiry as a value in the free world and most particularly in America."

"In its purposes and programs a university is a combination of the timeless and timely. The timeless elements, deeply rooted in the liberal arts and humanities, achieve fruition through a dynamic perpetuation of the classical tradition and through the firm retention of those aspects of learning that are linked to the identification and strengthening of humane values. The timely elements reflect the impacts of contemporary society and the necessity for preparing youth to meet the urgencies of human need, both present and future, whether philosophical, social, scientific, or technological. They reflect also the constant and ever-pressing demand that man's knowledge be increased, and, as I said a moment ago, that freedom in the search for truth be zealously guarded."

"The philosophy the university adopts in its relationship with individual students has great effect upon whether or not they will accept and champion such an attitude. When the university feels keenly the need to consider the student as an individual no matter how many times he is multiplied, then the latter feels that same concern for those around him and elsewhere. When the university uses rules and regulations inflexibly and without regard for the human equation, then the student to forget that the denial of this freedom to any person ultimately threatens the freedom of all of us. If we believe in excellence, we cannot and must not permit any corrosion of the spirit of inquiry as a value in the free world and most particularly in America."

"In its purposes and programs a university is a combination of the timeless and timely. The timeless elements, deeply rooted in the liberal arts and humanities, achieve fruition through a dynamic perpetuation of the classical tradition and through the firm retention of those aspects of learning that are linked to the identification and strengthening of humane values. The timely elements reflect the impacts of contemporary society and the necessity for preparing youth to meet the urgencies of human need, both present and future, whether philosophical, social, scientific, or technological. They reflect also the constant and ever-pressing demand that man's knowledge be increased, and, as I said a moment ago, that freedom in the search for truth be zealously guarded."

"The philosophy the university adopts in its relationship with individual students has great effect upon whether or not they will accept and champion such an attitude. When the university feels keenly the need to consider the student as an individual no matter how many times he is multiplied, then the latter feels that same concern for those around him and elsewhere. When the university uses rules and regulations inflexibly and without regard for the human equation, then the student even with his occasional rebellions against such edicts will learn the selfsame habits of inflexibility. He will tend to think in terms of groups or conglomerations or associations that can be classified and categorized rather than of persons, each with his individual prerogatives and responsibilities, and, most of all, each with a dignity of self that calls for preservation and nurture. This is an important lesson for the maturing student and the maturing university to learn together."

"In the process of making available to you the elements of maturity for yourselves, the intellectual maturity of the campus has been developing simultaneously. For, as I have already hinted several times, many of the same elements I have just described apply to the university as well as to the individual. The mature university has an awareness of responsibility; it has a zeal to discover, to be curious, to search for the truth; it has a commitment to freedom that transcends any expediency or compromise; it must be able to explain itself articulately and it must pass on to the world whatever it learns or discovers; it is a part of life, not aloof from it; it has deep concern for the dignity and worth of the individual whether on the campus or anywhere in the world. And just as the University measures you in your development, you as students have the right to measure the University as to the degree of maturity it makes evident by its atmosphere and its actions.

I think the greatest hope I could have for each of you tonight is that you swiftly become conscious of your possibilities. Then you will be wholly awakened

NOTE: Please observe release time and date, noting that in the event of inclement weather, the Convocation will take place on Wednesday, September 15.

At the first all-university activity held last evening (September 14) on the new campus of State University of New York at Albany. Dr. Samuel B. Gould president of State University of New York and principal convocation speaker, called for the students to consider the intellectual life of the campus community and the attributes of maturity.

The convocation and induction of over 1,300 freshmen, the largest class in the university's history, was conducted in a single ceremony held outside at the Dutch Quadrangle. An estimated 4,000 or more students, faculty and guests witnessed the ceremony highlighted by a formal academic procession.

Dr. Gould said, "It seems impossible to convince some people (all too many people) that one can love his country deeply, be proud of its history and achievements, be ready to give his life for it, and still be critical when it falls short of its ideals or promise. . . . Yet in our hearts we know that we must give our very life blood, if necessary, to protect the completeness of the freedom by which a university flourishes and achieves excellence. And we know, also, that we must think carefully about the elements of freedom and how we use those elements. lest we find ourselves guilty of equating freedom with irresponsibility and thus indulging ourselves and encouraging others in license."

He listed the elements of maturity as awareness of responsibility, unending curiosity leading to serious scholarship, awareness of values of privacy, a pervading sense of humility, passion and participation in the significant events of life, and recognition of individual worth.

Dr. Evan R. Collins, president of Albany University and chairman of the convocation, emphasized in his address that the community of the university is not isolated. It is in and of other communities. He pointed out that the students are not only citizens of Albany during their residence but that they are obligated to be responsible citizens of that community. "Indeed," said President Collins. "you students bear a special responsibility because you are. In a sense, privileged. There is less justification for and less patience with hoodlumism or any other interference with the rights of others.

President Collins stated that the community of the university is a singularly broad one in that it is concerned with many facets of human activity. He spoke then of the numerous and various special programs of the university which reflect the contributions and services of a state university to the general citizenry.

In the colorful ceremony the procession of members of the Presidential party, faculty in academic garb, and freshmen was led by Dr. Ralph A. Beaver, chairman of the mathematics department and grand marshal, who carried the University Torch.

Candles held by participating faculty, selected upperclassmen, and freshmen were from the torch in successive steps. Students sang the Senior Torch Song as the processional.

Others seated on the platform, in addition to Dr. Gould and Dr. Collins, were Dr. Webb S. Fiser and Dr. Clifton C. Thorne, newly appointed vice presidents of SUNYA, Dr. L. Walter Schultze, director of admissions, Richard Thompson president of Student Association, Allan Smith, chairman of Myskania, Student Association honorary, members of the University Council, Rev. William D. Small and Rev. Paul Smith.

At the convocation, commencing the 122nd year of SUNYA the invocation was given by the Rev. Mr. Small after which the Class of 1969 was presented by Dr. Schultze to President Collins, who inducted the freshmen into membership in the University Community.

At the conclusion of President Collins's message to the students, Richard Thompson welcomed the freshmen as full members of the Student Association and charged them with responsibilities concomitant with the membership. Allan Smith explained the significance of the "beanie", traditional freshman cap.

The program was concluded with the singing of the Alma Mater and a benediction given by the Rev. Father Smith.

Faculty marshals assisting Dr. Beaver were Dr. Walter E. Knotts, Dr. C. Luther Andrews, Dr. Paul C. Lemon, and Dr. Harry S. Price.

Excerpts from the address, "The Student and the University" scheduled to be given by Dr. Samuel B. Gould, president of the State University of New York, at the 122nd annual All-University Convocation at State University of New York at Albany, Tuesday evening, September 14.

"We cannot emphasize too often these days the necessity for complete and absolute academic freedom for the scholar and a similar sense of freedom for the lay citizen. We live in a time when the clash of ideologies has shaken the foundations of our constitutional beliefs insisted upon and defended so fiercely by Jefferson and his contemporaries as well as by many statesmen of modern times. Every decade has brought forth crises that challenge these beliefs, that tempt us, perhaps in the interests of temporary peace of mind, to relinquish a small portion of our freedom to believe or to discuss or to explore. Ultra-liberals and arch-reactionaries alike, representing opposite poles of political and social philosophy, steadily test our willingness to adhere to the fundamental principles of the Bill of Rights. It does not matter that some aspects of the philosophies of these people may be repugnant to us as individuals. Under such circumstances we cannot afford

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

(Sept. 22)

Principal Charles W. Bowler announced today that two seniors from The Milne School have been named semi-finalists in the 1965-66 Merit Scholarship competition.

The students cited for their achievement are Thomas Oliphant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winford Oliphant, 315 Shaker Road, Loudonville, and Paul Schrodt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Schrodt, 29 Lawnridge Avenue, Albany.

They are among the highest scoring students in the state of New York on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test administered last March in 17,600 schools in the U.S.A.

To become Finalists, the students must substantiate their qualifying test performance on a second examination, submit recommendations by their schools, and fulfill other routine requirements.

Thomas has been very active in extra-curricular activities at Milne having been a member of the chess and ski club for five years (7-11), the varsity baseball and basketball manager last year, and a varsity cross-country and track team member. As a senior he is editor-in-chief of the Crimson and White, the school newspaper, and is again a member of the cross-country and track teams.

Paul also has contributed greatly to the activities of Milne. He has been a member of the chess club for three years, treasurer and president of the Milne Boys' Athletic Association, Crimson and White Page Editor in his junior year, and president of his class for two years. He participated in cross-country and basketball during his freshman year. This year he begins his fourth year on the student council, is President of the Milne Chapter of the National Honor Society, and is business manager of Bricks and Ivy, the school annual.

A newly created position dealing with the expanding scientific relationships of the rapidly growing State University at Albany, with its surrounding region was announced today.

Dr. David G. Barry, professor of biological sciences, who has also been director of the Atmospheric Science Research Center, is leaving the latter post to serve as special assistant for regional scientific development, in addition to his instructional position. In this new position, Dr. Barry will have responsibility for conducting staff studies of the needs and potential of the Capital District for scientific and industrial research, and for formulating plans for the University's participation in this field.

In announcing the appointment Dr. Evan R. Collins, president of the Albany University Center, stated that Dr. Barry's work as director of the Atmospheric Sciences Research Center has included identification and encouragement of the new and developing scientific relationships between the University at Albany and the surrounding academic and industrial organizations of the region. "No university today can afford to neglect these critical links with its community. We are confident that, in the long run, these activities will increase this region's competitive position in space age scientific activities," Dr. Collins said.

Dr. Barry, holds his Ph. D degree in Biology from the University of Iowa and has had wide experience which includes the position consultant for science programs to the office of the president of State University of New York. He held a Science Faculty Fellowship at Harvard University in 1958 where he pursued special study and analysis of the development of the new University and industrial inter-relationships in science that have made the space-age possible.

Dr. Barry is a member of the Council of the All Souls Unitarian Church of Schenectady. He resides with his wife Eunice, and their four children in Delmar.

Dr. Albert C. Mossin, chairman of the management department, School of Business, State University of New York at Albany, has been honored by the Japanese Society for the Advancement of Management. At a luncheon given in Tokyo last month at the conclusion of a world trip, Dr. Mossin was presented with a scroll in recognition of his "contributions to the Japanese Business Community's understanding of the import of recent changes in Soviet industrial organization and management policies." He is vice president of the Hudson Valley Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management.

The presentation was made by Hideo Tonomura, board chairman for ESSO of Japan and president of Japan's S. A. M. at the termination of a three-week lecture tour during which Dr. Mossin addressed Chambers of Commerce, S. A. M. members, and university faculties in Tokyo, Nagoya, Kyoto, Osaka, Nobe, Kobe and Nara. The subject of his lectures was "The Decline of Authoritarian Organization and Management in the Soviet Union."

Dr. Mossin discussed recent changes in Soviet organization and management policies which, he believes, have tilted the Russian economy towards the Free World. He pointed to the gradual transition of managerial powers from the all-powerful bureaucratic ministries under Stalin to local enterprise directors under subsequent regimes and to significant implementation of the profit principle both as incentive and as acid test of enterprise efficiency.

Among those attending the honor scroll ceremony were Noboru Yamaguchi, Controller, Toshiba Electric Company and Vice President of Japanese S. A. M.; Takeshi Kayano, General Manager, Matsushita Electric Industrial Company and Vice President of S. A. M.;

One official at the State University of New York at Albany succeeded another as president of the board of directors of the Albany School for Practical Nursing last week. Jack M. Deeringer, Dean for Academic Affairs at SUNY at Albany has been elected president of the Board of Directors of the Albany School for Practical Nursing. He succeeds Professor Harry W. Hastings, formerly chairman of the English Department at SUNY at Albany. Professor Hastings resigned after 18 years as president of the board.

The Albany School for Practical Nursing provides a one year course which qualifies its graduates to take the Board of Examiners examination and be certified as Practical Nurses in New York State. During Professor Hastings' presidency of the board voted to move the school from its old quarters on Lark street to a new site at 470 Myrtle Avenue. on which a modern building was built.

Another SUNY at Albany official, Professor Ralph Beaver, chairman of the Department of Mathematics, continues to serve as treasurer of the board of the Nursing School.

In addition to Dean Deeringer, Professor Hastings and Professor Beaver, the board of directors includes Charles A. Brind, Elmer J. Bellinger, Dr. Thomas Hale, Addison J. Keim, Sherman A. Murphy, Jr., Mrs. Leo Olmstead, Miss Hazel Reed, Ellis J. Staley, Jr., Dr. Clarence Traver, Dr. Albert Vander Veer, Dr. Frances Vosburgh, and Miss Atossa Welles.

Mrs. Louine L. Peck, R.N., is director of the school.

LOCAL VALUE

News Editor:

Attached is a list of seniors at State University of New York at Albany who are student teaching off-campus for the first quarter, first semester. Names of residents in your readership area are included as well as cooperating teachers at high schools and junior high schools which may be located in your area.

During the present quarter, known as the first professional quarter, Albany University students, who are in the teaching program are taking part in the off-campus assignment. The student spends the entire day for a period of eight weeks in the school to which he is assigned and participates in all the activities which normally constitute a teacher's day. In addition to the cooperating teacher, an experienced member of the University staff, who visits the classroom weekly, supervises the student teacher.

About fifty students are undergoing the same experience at the Mines Campus School under the supervision of the staff there.

Government, business and education activities of West Germany were represented in a group of 160 visitors to the campus of State University of New York at Albany today. The group is on a tour sponsored by the German Government. Arrangements for their visit in Albany were made at the request of the State Department through the Albany International Center, the State Education Department and the host university.

Led by Dr. Heinz Seraphim, the men and women, all attending schools for post secondary education, arrived by bus from New York. They had a tour of SUNYA's new campus prior to a luncheon program at Brubacher Hall.

After introductory remarks by Dr. Seraphim, the German visitors were addressed in their language by Dr. Thomas M. Barker, professor of history. Dr. Barker, who this past summer was a director of Albany University's Central European Area Studies Program at Wuerzburg described educational programs of the State University of New York, with a detailed description of the offerings at Albany University center.

The fields of primary interest to the group were those of business, business administration, and educational administration. These were described by Dr. Randolph S. Gardner, Dean of the School of Education; Dr. Milton C. Olson, Dean of the School of Business; and Dr. Albert C. Mossin, professor of business, through a translator.

Among the students, some of whom attend courses at night, were exporters, accountants, teachers, and holders of government posts. They are affiliated with the Academy for Public, Business, and Educational Administration. Most hold administrative positions in Germany.

background*

DATE: September 30, 1965

TO: Bruce Williamson, WTEN

FROM: Nathalie Lampman
News Director

SUBJECT: CONCERNING THE GERMAN GROUP

They are from schools for post secondary education throughout the West German Republic.

The official name: Verwaltungs - Und - Wirtschaftsokademien
(Academic Public, Business, Educational Administration)

The tour is sponsored by the chairman government (Dr. Seraphim is the leader). They will be employed in the administrative position in Germany.

There are 160 in the group - they have come here directly on bus (four). Following lunch they will tour the new campus - they are interested in three academic areas: business, business administration, educational administration. Attempts are being made to provide them with German speaking undergraduates as tour guides, now here, and it is hoped that the talks at the luncheon in the three fields of primary interest will be given in German by faculty members.

They are here at the request of the State Department, and arrangements for their visit made through the International Center, Albany, by the State Education Department and SUNYA.

FACTEUR D'ACADEMIE

This title has no equivalent in the United States. Both terms have to be defined separately.

1) Académie

French public education at all levels is centralized under the Ministry of National Education. (Private education is independent but does not play an important role.) The Ministry carries on its work in the country through 22 geographic areas known as académies. These académies group several départements (basic territorial units). Some similarity is to be found in the division of the United States into Naval Districts. The Académie de Bordeaux includes the départements of Gironde, Dordogne, Lot-et-Garonne, Landes, Basses-Pyrénées, and the overseas départements of Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guiana. For administrative purposes, French schools and examination centers located in several foreign countries are dependencies of the Académie of Bordeaux: Port Lamy (Chad), Lomé (Togo), Bangui (Central African Republic), Libreville (Gabon), Yaoundé (Cameroun), Brazzaville (Congo), New York, Mexico, Buenos Aires, London, Elmhorst, Bonn (West Germany).

2) Recteur

A recteur is the appointed representative of the Minister of Education in supervising an académie. Since he is not only in charge of the supervision of secondary and primary education but is the head of the university as well, he is traditionally a university professor.

Jean-Louis Auclair
Counselor for French Programs
September 29, 1965

Rank: Inspector General of Administrative Services, assigned to the Director General of Higher Education.

Position: Assistant Director of Higher Education, Ministry of National Education, Paris.

Activities: 1) General and fiscal administration of Universities and other institutions of higher education.

2) Organization of institutions of higher education.

Mr. Henri Bufflé

Secretary General of the Académie and University of Bordeaux.

Appropriate curriculum in America: Vice-President for administrative affairs.
