o The Editor

This is a message to you and your new News Board; a bit of collecting and counselling from Editor Number 38 to Editor Number ; some private advice just between you and me and sixteen huned other people. . . .

During the months to come you will be faced with many probns and many decisions. Most of the problems will seem like moners until you attack them, and then they will evaporate like the usions they really are. Most of the decisions will seem impossible make, until you realize that your primary responsibility is to the mmunity you serve and its social values which you respect. You ill be tempted to crusade for changes just for the sake of change, ind to the virtues of what is here and now. Your new position is ne of responsibility and authority; learn not to betray that responsility or abuse that authority.

You will feel many pressures to channel your opinion or control our thinking. Personal gains will have to be foregone in preference a higher goal. Never under-estimate the perception of your audiice or the sincerity of your co-workers.

Back in September when I was confronted (under the most unual of circumstances!) with the job of editing twenty-six issues of ar favorite newspaper, the task seemed to have smothering proporons. With the help of a patient and generous staff, although most nited in number, that task is today completed. I want to thank e News Board for their cooperation and good fellowship, the Hud n Evening Register publishers for their tolerance and reliability, and e Hague Studios for answering many a last-minute call for a picture ost of all, my thanks go to my staff, from whom I have learned so uch, and who have worked so faithfully and unrewardingly to make is past year one of irreplaceable experiences and jealously guarded emories.

We have a motto in the P.O. that is to us one of the laws of naand like the laws of nature it sounds so simple, yet covers an finite number of details: the News always comes out on Friday you, Editor Number 39, and your Board, this phrase already has special significance. Don't let anyone ever tell you it isn't true. Evy Ruben ent of one of the five Arvie Eldred scholarships given annually by the New York State Teachers Association to college students preparing for careers in teaching. Each award consists of $700.00 ($350.00 yearly for a two-year period).

These awards to be used during Junior and Senior college years were established by the Association to encourage outstanding students now preparing for the teaching profession. Thirty-eight New York State colleges and universities having teacher preparatory programs submitted one nomination each based on scholarship, personality, leadership, teaching aptitude and need.

In naming these annual awards the New York State Teachers Association is honoring Arvie Eldred, Troy, New York, retired executive secretary. Dr. Eldred worked for better educational opportunities for youth and for lifting the status of teaching.

The recipients of the Arvie Eldred Scholarships are selected during the second term of the second college year on the basis of scholarship and other factors established as of the end of the first term of the second college year. Chairmen To Choose Guides For Freshmen

Interviews will be held next week in the Student Personnel Office for Junior Guides. Beatrice Engelhardt and Samuel Krchniak, Sophomores, Co-Chairmen of the Guides, will post a schedule for appointments on the Student Personnel board.

Anyone desiring a little brother or sister may sign up on this list for an appointment date in which they can be interviewed.

The work of the Junior Guide is to acquaint the new freshmen with the workings of State College. This constitutes writing to the freshmen during summer vacation and informing them of college life. After their arrival at State the Junior Guides sponsor a reception at which the Junior Guides have the opportunity to have their little brothers and sisters meet College officials.
