Twenty Year Old Headlines Reveal Startling Controversies

By MARILYN RAPP
Down with sororities! News board resigns! Did this make you take a second glance? They did when they were printed in the News twenty years ago.

According to the March 7, 1930 issue of the News, a debate was held in the English 31 class on the effect of the new residence hall on State College sororities. The decision reached was that the proposed new residence hall would mark the end of the sororities. Some of the arguments made by the winning side are: "Sororities are injurious in that they seek to control school politics, that they tend to form cliques, and that their form of selection is undemocratic and superficial."

"Sororities are in general bad and tend to suppress individuality... certain sororities affect certain modes of dress, certain forms of dancing, and certain affectations of speech."

It was pointed out that the new hall would remove the housing problem which was the chief excuse for the existence of sororities.

In the March 14, 1930 issue of the News, the main headline shocked its readers with "News Board Hands in Resignation; Awaits Acceptance by Myskania." This eye-bulging headline displayed the action taken by the News following the instructions of Myskania that the News board print the names of students who had not paid the Student Association tax of $14. Feeling that it was unethical journalism and that it would endanger both the News and Myskania to a civil suit for damages and a trial for misdemeanor, the board refused to publish the names. Upon insistence by Myskania, the board resigned, and its resignation was accepted.

Sophs Collect Rural Atmosphere For Big-4 Production

By GORSKIE and GROSSMAN
You don't have to live in the country for real rural livin'! Just visit the halls of Lower Draper to see corn stalks, mail boxes, picket fences and other signs of rural life, all brought to you through the courtesy of Terry Porta and her publicity committee, advertising the Soph Big-4, "Country Style," to be produced March 25.

Between the squeezes of Joyce Leavitt and the hobbling of Jean Seymour, progress has been made on rehearsals. "Country Style" is the tale of the crazy adventures of the confused Kallieut family. The principals include Ma and Pa Kallieut whose monthly daughters, March, April, May and June, are constantly courting their lazy lovers, the Joad boys Clarence, Acts, Luke, and John. Of course there are other characters to lend spice to the narrative, such as the villainous banker, the dumb sheriff, the preachin' parson, the city slicker, and the city siren.

Seniors Approve Palace For Graduation

A current topic of interest among Seniors has been the question of where to hold graduation exercises. Page Hall, used in former years, was deemed too small to accommodate students and guests, so another place was being sought.

CSPA Names Eade To Executive Board

At the Twenty-sixth Annual Convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association held last week in New York City, the State College News received First Place Rating, which is a second rating, in the Teachers' College Division newspaper contest.

Victoria Eade '52, Sophomore Desk Editor, was elected as the representative of Teachers' Colleges of New York State to the Executive Board of the Teachers' College Division of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

The seven members of the News staff who attended the convention toured the New York Times Building, and heard speakers from the New York Times, and from other teacher colleges.

The graduates gave their approval previously to any place the Seniors might decide to hold the ceremony; the faculty already having voted unanimously on the Theatre site. June 16 was set as the date for their Senior Ball, and June 15 for the class banquet.

The production will include two of Jess's original songs, "The Waltz" and "The Perfect Acme."

Behind the scenes, the masters of glue and paint, headed by Bob Donnelly, have been busy constructing sets while Terry Mullane's sewing circle has been preparing the gingham costumes.

Donald O'Hare, Graduate, is Chairman of the affair. Other members of the dance committee are Nancy Foxsen, Audrey Greene, Leland Hickling, Carol La Rowe, Jo Ann Morrill, and Lee Phillips, Graduates. Gerry Vnette's trio will entertain, and there will be additional entertainment. The refreshments will include ice cream, coffee, cookies, and cake.

About B's . . .

Wednesday several members of Myskania met with Dean Nelson to ask for the explanation of an unsatisfactory situation. The explanation was to the effect that:

It has been a policy of the college for some time to consider the record of each individual student. If it is felt that carrying 18 hours will be detrimental to the student who hasn't done B work the previous semester, he will be advised that "he must carry less hours." This is not a blanket ruling. All students not secure with a B average will not be asked to carry less than 18 hours. If any person feels that he is being dealt with unjustly, he should discuss it fully with the Dean of the College.

It is realized that every student who doesn't have a certain average is not being limited to a narrow curriculum. However, each student who is informed that he is in the situation has been enrolled in the course for more than five weeks. He has purchased the necessary books, supplies and equipment for the course and has necessarily spent time preparing assignments for the course.

The wisdom of the administration is not being questioned. It seems a very sound idea that a student shouldn't take courses which will not fulfill his needs, both in quality and quantity. The point is that these students have been confronted with this enforcement of policy at a very awkward time. If this policy has not been enforced during the past few years (due to manpower shortage on the faculty?), why is it being put into effect when the semester has progressed five weeks?

Student's marks have not been available until this time, so this policy could not be enforced until now. Could it be delayed until a time when students are made aware of their academic standing at the beginning of a semester?

Building Program . . .

State College has growing pains! Rude sounds disturb classes, and traffic jams are the order of the day. But just as impressive as the increase in size of State College, physically, is the establishment of a Masters degree for students in Library.

This means that students who come to State for a fifth year of study in Library can try for a Masters degree. They will gain the prestige, salary, and professional standing that go with this degree. Another stage in the enlargement of State College, this will add to our school prestige and respect for it as a professional school.

Another Poll . . .

A Student-Faculty Committee is taking a sample poll of opinion. Students are being asked, "What is wrong?" That is, 360 upperclassmen are getting a chance to criticize the curriculum, the teaching, and the student-faculty relations of the college. For instance, one question reads: "What courses should be added to the college curriculum?"

This is very flattering, to be asked to make criticism, constructive of course, about the working of the college. This committee shall have made a marked step in gaining student sympathy for the faculty. The Faculty Council deserves a nod of respect, but they might gain even more if these questionnaires are considered carefully.

The Knell Of Democracy

By PAUL KIRSCH

The secret agents had done their tasks well. They had smuggled the dreaded H-bombs into Washington, D. C., New York City, and the other gothams and then they faded away. Later, at an appointed hour with an appointed push of a button, the bombs, placed secretly in the Capitol Building, Wall Street, in all such centers, had exploded, carrying with them the lives of the President, all of the members of Congress, and every record ever collected by any agency of a bureaucratic government. In short, what the enemy agents had accomplished was to destroy the centralization of a people's government by completely annihilating nuclear leadership and exterminating all records relevant to that people.

Let us suppose that, somehow, retaliation had occurred and that all people were set apart from one another. So picture the American, isolated, his communications ruined, with no national leader, groping for a return to some order, and having no way to turn. No way to turn? To the contrary. Dr. Rienow says that, "Government is a response to environment," and the American, my example, has a large group to which he can appeal, to take up arms with to ally himself with. These are the other people in his region who are also players on the stage of war. And, as in a play, there will be some character so bold, so daring, so important by his very personality that he automatically becomes heir to the leadership of the group. Once more the group has a chief.

I am emphasizing that these men will spring up simultaneously in several sections of the nation because we must keep in mind that due to the havoc spread by the bomb there is no focus of leadership, and in each area an unopposed "Willie Stark" will rise to protect the people. Soon these leaders will contact each other and decide upon the "rules of the road" that they will follow, and they will conduct themselves, I presume, in much the same way as the medieval nobles did, thus creating a twentieth century form of feudalism.

Feudalism is the term given to the political setup in Europe in the years following 752. Feudalism defines it as a form of political and social organization—a system (1) of land-holding (not land-owning), (2) of personal contractual relationships among nobles, and (3) of government.

It is conceivable that such a system could reappear and manifest itself in the same way, i.e., the ap-

Common-Stater

The Common-Stater is given the widest latitude as author of this column, although his viewpoints do not necessarily reflect those of the STATE COLLEGE NEWS.

HEAR, HEAR . . .
Contrary to public opinion, assembly will be compulsory this week. An added note—Grads will not be excused from 12-30 classes to attend. Question is to whom is this discussion more important—the Seniors and Grads who won't be in assembly, or the "undergrads who won't be out teaching for a while?"

THE AGE OF PROGRESS . . .
They weren't kidding when they said the addition to Draper would be finished by next year—witness the noise, confusion and congestion in the school these days. Three suggestions from this here corner: How about Campus Commission regulating traffic on those narrow stairs to one-way movements—one for UP and one for DOWN. Also, the partitions put up to block the main stairways might be used for bulletin board space unless post-no-bills signs are put up. And finally, pu-leeze try keeping congregations from meeting in front of the girls' locker room. Even if they moved ten feet down the hall, it would help—so how's about it ladies and gents? (Mostly ladies).

ORDERS FROM HEADQUARTERS . . .
Seems as though a little discussion is going on about a certain scholastic requirement here. As far as we can see, it has its merits. We definitely feel every student should carry only as much as they are capable of doing well and individual cases are being considered. BUT we have one gripe—why so late in the semester when a lot of students have already completed a half semester's work. A suggestion we'd make is to have this info about averages stated definitely in some place so students could plan a semester's work ahead of time. Yes?

LIFE GOES TO CAMP . . .
Life magazine has offered a two-week summer course in camp counseling at New Jersey for $35 per head and wants to know if we'd like to send two delegates accompanied by two faculty members. Transportation would be provided by the school station wagon. The idea of some here was that these people who go could give instruction here on their return to prepare others for this counseling work. If you've got $35 to spend—it's good experience. If not—it's good experience—too bad you couldn't have it.

SOPH SIENANGANS . . .
The ticket booth outside the Commons for the Soph Big-4 gives us the only claim to an indoor outhouse. Reserved seats and all. Clever idea from a clever class. Does Country Style mean we can call them the farmers of '52? (All in fun kids).

SSSSSAVINGS . . .
Six Central Avenue merchants have agreed to support our student-discount plan. Details as to which ones, etc., will be published at a later date. The point is, let's all get behind it now and really support the program so it can be worked out into a bigger and better plan.

M. U. D. FORMAL? . . .
At Student Council Wednesday night, the possibility of a Moving-Up Day formal was discussed and pro's and con's presented. Your opinion will be asked for in an assembly period, so think about it now. Do you want a formal on Friday night before M. U. D. when one class parties, whereas, to use the vernacular, are usually held or not?

WE HEARD . . .
Some one ask if the partition put up in lower Draper meant that the Co-op were moving in there. The answer is no. In case you're looking for Miss Hatch and the mimeo cage, it's now located outside the cafeteria.

Pressure was once again applied to New York State's "pink" teachers last week as the Feinberg bill culminated its on-again, off-again existence by being upheld by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

This bill, which gives the Board of Regents power to dismiss any teacher found to be a member of one of the groups it lists as "subversive," became effective April 1, 1949, and was declared illegal the following fall. It only remains for the Court of Appeals to give full support, and the bill will stand.

One Man's Opinion

Last Saturday evening's performance of "Patience" convinced this Gilbert and Sullivan devotee that even comic opera can be overdone. The colorful, tuneful, and continuous burlesque of these well-liked operettas on this occasion seemed to get out of hand. Perhaps such a reaction on the part of the cast is typical of a second-night performance, and after much rehearsal, and the enthusiastic press reception and the previous performance, the cast deserved to really enjoy the final product of its effort.

A distinctly negative feature of the production was the stage set—a gauzy and dizzily regular forest quanted by pastel—and orange-clad maidens. The arrival of the trim and, I happily admit, extremely dashing dragons, while it added to the hedge-podge of color, was definitely a relief. The costumes of the female leads were attractive enough and the poets' berets and velvet knee-breeches were the unfortunately prescribed attire.

Musically the selections in the second act seemed somewhat superior. The duets were well done throughout the performance, especially those of the Misses Thorpe and Whitecraft in "Long Years Ago," and the Thorpe and Bennett "Princess, Pretty Maidens." Joe Crucill's happy combination of vocal and historic performance was not up to par in this performance. I felt, but one or two perfectly thunderous notes were necessarily checked to balance with the other principals. The limited range required by the title role was a disappointment, but Miss Thorpe's arias were charmingly sung. Both Miss Cassler and Joan Whitecraft had good volume and vocal assurance. Miss Cassler's voice, while not true in pitch at times, with sufficient accompaniment can be used to fine advantage, as it was in "Slivered the Raven Hair."

The usual Gilbert and Sullivan tongue-twister was capably handled by "Colonel" Webster, and "Poet" Bennett's rendition of "A Magnet Hung in a Hardware Shop" pleased the audience as well as the adoring maidens. Betty Hendrie's voice was pleasing but too light to be effective in ensemble, while Louise Petfield showed promise for better roles in future productions. The maidens and dragons sacrificed accuracy for enthusiasm at times, and the orchestra performed commendably with the possible exception of the
