ACADEMIC DISCIPLINES SUBJECT OF SUNYA PROGRAM

"Conversations in the Disciplines", a discussion of alternative models for a school of education encompassing studies in history, philosophy, and sociology, will be hosted Oct. 4-5 at State University of New York at Albany by the university's department of foundations of education.

At the opening session the keynote address will be given by Professor Harry S. Broudy of the University of Illinois at 10 a. m. in the Campus Center Assembly Hall. In the afternoon Professor Hyman Kuritz of SUNYA, seminar leader, will chair a session on history. Also participating will be Professor David Potts of Union College.

On Friday, Oct. 3, Professor James E. McClellan, Jr., of SUNYA, will be the seminar leader for commentary and discussion of philosophy. Participating with him will be Professor M. Berger, also of SUNYA. The afternoon session will be devoted to sociology. Professor Gerald Levy, of Columbia University, will be the seminar leader. Other participants will include Professors Francis X. Femminella and Paul Meadows of SUNYA.

Professor Berger will give the summary and appreciation at the conclusion of the two-day program which is funded by SUNY's "Conversations in the Disciplines".

COLUMBIA'S ROTHMAN PINKERTON VISITING PROFESSOR AT SUNYA

David J. Rothman, of the Columbia University faculty, has become the Robert A. Pinkerton Visiting Professor in Criminal Justice for 1973-74 at the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany. He is professor of history at Columbia and also senior research associate at Columbia's Center for Policy Research.

Professor Rothman, who lately has been concerned with a project on "Incarceration and Its Alternatives in Twentieth-Century America", has published widely. More recently his writings have included "Of Prisons, Asylums and Other Decaying Institutions", published in The Public Interest, and "Incarceration: Past and Present", which appeared in The Humanist.

Two years ago Dr. Rothman won the Beveridge Prize of the American Historical Association for "The Discovery of the Asylum", judged the best English language book in American history, 1971.

The Pinkerton professor holds degrees from Columbia College and Harvard University. The position at the School of Criminal Justice is made possible by a three-year grant of $150,000 from the Pinkerton Foundation.

LEHMAN FELLOWS STUDYING AT SUNYA

Four winners of the prestigious 1973-74 Lehman Fellowships and two alternates have begun their studies at the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany. The number of designees indicates that the school was selected by more Lehman Fellows than any other graduate program in a public or private university in the state.

Brenda Miller, winner, attended high school in Danvers, Ill., and received her bachelor's degree in social work from the University of Illinois in June. She plans to seek placement in the probation and corrections field upon completion of her studies.

Another winner, Earl Reynolds, attended Lucy Addison High School in Roanoke, Va., and received his bachelor's degree in sociology from Fayetteville State University in May. He hopes to affiliate himself with an agency or office where he can contribute to finding solutions to growing problems concerning crime and incarceration and to problems related to a weakening judicial system.

Belinda Rodgers, also a winner, attended West Rome High School in Georgia and received her bachelor's degree in sociology from the University of Georgia in June. Her objective is to aid in the advancement of the criminal justice system toward effective rehabilitation.

Winner Susan Teer, who attended Broodfield High School in Connecticut, received her Bachelor of Arts in political science from Fairfield University in June. Upon completion of her studies in criminal justice she seeks a career in a related administration field. She also plans continuing research and the study of innovative programs for crime prevention.

Alternate winners are Theodore Salem and Joseph Sanborn. The former, who attended Christopher Columbus High School in New York and received his B. A. in political science from SUNYA in 1972, will continue his study in law and judicial systems in the criminal justice field upon completion of his studies here. Mr. Sanborn, who attended Devon Preparatory School, Devon, Pa., and received his B. A. in sociology with a certificate in criminology from Villanova in May, desires to enter the correctional field and to pursue teaching on a college level.

The Lehman Fellowships are awarded to students planning to pursue graduate work in areas of public policy. The awards provide generous financial assistance to support study in any university in the state. They are recognized as being among the most important graduate scholarship programs in the United States. This year 30 awards were made to students who plan to matriculate in New York graduate schools. Twenty alternates also were selected.

LAURA ROTH, NOTED SCIENTIST, JOINS SUNYA FACULTY

The noted woman scientist, Laura M. Roth, has joined the faculty of State University of New York at Albany as research professor. Prior to her new position Dr. Roth was Abby Mauze Rockefeller Visiting Professor in the department of physics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She is considered to be one of the world's leading solid state theorists.

Dr. Roth in the past has held positions at a number of universities and research institutes. Among them are Harvard, Tufts, Lincoln Laboratories at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, General Electric Research and Development Center, and the Institute for Theoretical Physics of the University of Colorado.

Dr. Roth was the first woman in the United States to be awarded a coveted Sloan Foundation Fellowship. She also is the recipient of a medal for excellence in sustained research and scholarship presented by the Radcliffe Graduate Alumnae.

The physicist has done classic work on magnetic perturbation of energy bands. Her work in electron effective masses and g-factors and on interband magneto-optic spectroscopy in semiconductors has been recognized internationally and is described as essential to an understanding of experimental results. More recently Dr. Roth has been involved in large scale computer calculations concerning quantum chemical modeling

NATIONAL GRANT TO SUNYA CRIMINAL JUSTICE SCHOOL SUPPORTS MODEL CURRICULA

In the last five years more than a thousand programs in the area of criminal justice have been developed in colleges and universities in the United States. Few efforts have been undertaken on a national basis to develop model curricula for such programs, to explore their inter-relationships with other disciplines, and to deal with problems of accreditation and state wide planning. In order to begin to confront the issues, the National Institute of Corrections and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration have awarded an $80, 000 grant to a team of faculty members at the School of Criminal Justice at State University of New York at Albany to develop such materials for colleges and universities across the United States as well as a national strategy for their dissemination.

The first phase of the project was completed recently when 22 instructors in colleges and universities from across the United States were brought to Albany for a two-week conference, held at the Institute for Man and Science Campus at Rensselaerville, during which a variety of curriculum and organizational issues was reviewed. Among the topics explored were problems of student transfer between two-year and four-year schools; core curriculum for police, courts, and correctional personnel; and the relationship with other academic disciplines such as law and psychology. Among the national authorities presenting materials were Sheldon Messinger, dean of the School of Criminology, University of California at Berkeley; David Fogel, director of the Law Enforcement Planning Commission of the State of Illinois; and David Rothman, historian from Columbia University.

Edward Carr of the New York State Department of Education reviewed the problems of statewide planning with the participants and used New York State as a case illustration of the problems that must be faced in developing programs in criminal justice at the two-year, four-year, and graduate level. Donald Riddle, president of John Jay College, discussed plans for an accreditation program and Norval Jespersion, director of Manpower and Education of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, examined national manpower and higher education needs as well.

In the next phases of the program, material developed in the two-week conference will be studied and a series of publications will be produced. Additionally, a conference will be held in January 1974 in which a nationally selected group of persons will be invited to develop strategies for the improvement of criminal justice education in the United States. The materials will be made available to agencies concerned with higher education in all of the states as well as federal authorities interested in this area.

The program is directed by Vincent O'Leary, acting dean of the School of Criminal Justice, and his associates, Donald Newman and Fred Cohen, also of the School of Criminal Justice faculty.

WALTER PLATE: "AN EXHILARATING AND RECKLESS PAINTER"
(EXHIBITION DATES AT SUNYA ART GALLERY OCT. 14 THROUGH NOV. 18)

An exhibition of paintings, drawings and collages by the late Walter Plate of Woodstock, will open at the University Art Gallery, State University of New York at Albany on Sunday, Oct. 14.

Although it is not intended to be a retrospective exhibition in the usual sense, the show will include some 60 works from the period between 1952 and 1972. The Whitney Museum of American Art, the National Collection of Fine Arts at the Smithsonian Institution, the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, and some 20 private collectors have loaned works to the exhibition.

The School of Architecture at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, where Walter Plate was professor of art from 1965 until his death in 1972, is collaborating with SUNYA in putting on the show.

The earliest works to be shown stem from the time in the 1950's when Walter Plate was one of the promising young painters in that group of American artists who became the focus of world attention. They were known variously as Abstract Expressionists or Action Painters. After 1960 many of the painters became victims of what the critic Lawrence Campbell calls "a cold war in art". Mr. Campbell, who describes Plate as "an exhilarating and reckless painter," has written an introduction to the catalogue for the exhibition in which he says, "Walter Plate is one of those rare people in Art who managed to preserve his own independence. It must not be forgotten that the 1950's, however creative or admirable those years may have been, was also a period of conformity disguised as liberation. Plate really never conformed at any time."

The forthcoming Walter Plate exhibition, "a tribute to his solidity and achievements", tends to show that good painting survives outside the confusions of "movements", labels, and fads. It may also cause the viewing audience to question the obituary notices for Abstract Expressionism so freely published in the 1960's.

A public reception for the Walter Plate exhibition will be held in the University Art Gallery on Sunday, Oct. 14 from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. The exhibit will continue until Nov. 18 during the gallery's regular hours, Monday through Friday, 9 p.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

SUNYA CHILDREN'S TOURING ENSEMBLE TO PERFORM "GERTRUDE STEIN'S FIRST READER"

School just is not what it used to be -- not when the teacher is accompanied by an electric piano and her students dance and sing their way through the classroom.

Such is the scene when the Children's Touring Ensemble of State University of New York at Albany, under the direction of Patricia B. Snyder, presents "Gertrude Stein's First Reader", an original production conceived by Herbert Machiz with music by Ann Sternberg.

Students in the ensemble include Michael Coan, Kathleen Collins, Jody Hiatt, Kathy Mahoney, Stancey Patterson, Thomas Prager, Grant Van Dyck, Lori Zazzaro, and Debbie Zusman.

Lessons in music, reading, and writing are subtly, yet joyously presented, to appeal to both young and sophisticated audiences. Stein's dictum, "Be simple and you will understand me", prevails.

The first performance is a free one on Saturday, Oct. 13, at 1 p.m. at the SUNYA Performing Arts Center Studio Theatre as part of the Community-University Day activities. In the evening at 8 o'clock there will be a paid performance ($2 and $1 for any student from any school) with tickets going on sale beginning at 7 p.m.

CRAIGHEAD TO LECTURE AT SUNYA ON COMMUNITY-UNIVERSITY DAY

Among the many special attractions planned for the second annual Community-University Day on Saturday, Oct. 13, at State University of New York at Albany, to which the public is invited, will be three lectures on "Wilderness and Wild Rivers" by the nationally prominent ecologist Frank C. Craighead who is a senior research associate at the university's Atmospheric Sciences Research Center.

Dr. Craighead has studied and surveyed rivers in the United States for more than 30 years. He also has conducted a variety of environmental studies under the sponsorship of the National Geographic Society, the National Science Foundation, and the Environmental Research Institute, along with other private and government agencies. The lectures are scheduled for 11:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m., and 3:30 p. m. in Lecture Center 25.

On the first open house day for the community held last year the ASRC program proved to be extremely popular with visitors of all ages. This year once again the center will feature some of its many facets of operation. Located on the 22nd and 23rd floors of Mohawk Tower on the Indian Quadrangle, the program will begin at 11 a. m. and continue until 5 p. m. A series of displays, exhibits, experiments, and presentations will be provided throughout the day.

The ASRC will explain its weather investigation with demonstrations of atmospheric electricity and lightning simulation, cold-box experiments concerned with cloud seeding and water conversion from droplets to ice crystals, and microphotographs of cloud droplets and ice crystals.

Of interest to daily life will be displays on the extensive pollution, wind, and temperature instrumentation used to analyze and forecast weather. Ray Falconer, ASRC research associate and WROW weather forecaster, will conduct several live interviews at various times during the day.

Miscellaneous other presentations will include photographs of the recent solar eclipse, slides of ASRC Whiteface Mountain research activities, explanations of ASRC work on bacteria transfer between surface water and the atmosphere, and diagrams of pollutants distribution over New York State. In addition to the two floors of displays in Mohawk Tower, the weather-map room, located in the Earth Science building, room 332, will be open for tours and explanations.

C-U Day events will begin on the campus located between Western and Washington avenues near the western boundary of Albany at 10 a. m. and continue until 5 p. m. The opening ceremony is planned for 10:30 a. m.

On the same day SUNYA will be joining in the celebration of the 25th anniversary of State University of New York which is unique in its organization and the breadth of its educational mission. It is the largest coordinated, centrally managed, multi-level system of public higher education in the nation.

Since its founding in 1948, SUNY has grown from 29 state-supported but unaffiliated campuses into an organized system of higher education comprising 72 institutions which enrolled 234,000 full-time and 127,000 part-time students in the 1972-73 academic year.

SUNYA PROFESSOR BACK ON CAMPUS AFTER RESEARCH IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Joseph F. Zacek, professor of history at State University of New York at Albany, has returned to the campus after eight months of historical research in Czechoslovakia, as part of the official international exchange of scholars between the United States and Czechoslovakia.

The exchange is sponsored by the International Research and Exchange Board, New York, and the Ministries of Education of the Czech and Slovak Republics. During his stay Professor Zacek worked in archives and other repositories in the three major regions of the country, Bohemia, Moravia, and Slovakia. He was attached to the nation's three leading universities, Charles University at Prague, Purkyne University at Brno, and Comenius University at Bratislava.

En route home Dr. Zacek participated in the Seventh International Congress of Slavists in Warsaw, Poland. He read a paper, "Slovakia and the Czech National Revival: Introduction to a Case Study", and represented the committee of the American Historical Association which had arranged for the participation of American historians this year, for the first time, in the Slavists' congress.

MANAGEMENT VITALITY SEMINAR AT SUNYA OCT. 18

A seminar on management vitality, "A Key to Survival and Growth in the 70's", will be conducted by the Center for Executive Development of the College of General Studies, State University of New York at Albany, for area managers from business and industry on Thursday, Oct. 18, in the university's Assembly Hall. It will be conducted by Donald F. Favreau, director of the center and assistant professor on the college faculty.

The program outline includes the management challenge; management's authority to manage; how to motivate people; a management game-workshop; and managerial obsolescence, success, and suicide.

Professor Favreau has been in the field of industrial relations, manpower utilization, and management development and training for the past 20 years. Prior to his SUNYA appointment he was manpower coordinator for the New York State Department of Labor.

Additional information about the seminar is available from Professor Favreau at the Center for Executive Development, 135 Western avenue, Albany. The telephone number is 472-8493.

The program has been planned for executives, middle managers, general foremen, superintendents, office managers, regional sales managers, line or staff department heads, and managers who are managing other supervisors or managers.

JAZZ PIANIST TO GIVE SUNYA CONCERT OCT. 1

Lee Shaw, jazz pianist, will be the first guest performer in the "Keyboard '73" series of programs to be offered by SUNYA Pianists at the Performing Arts Center of State University of New York at Albany during October and November. Ms. Shaw will perform with Stan Shaw, drums, and Mike Flanagan, bass, on Monday evening, Oct. 1, in the Arena Theatre at 7 o'clock and again at 9 o'clock.

The pianist was born and raised in Chicago where she studied classical piano at the American Conservatory. In 1961 when she met her husband, Stan, she switched to jazz. Mr. Shaw has appeared with George Shearing, Bud Powell, and the Raymond Scott Orchestra. Together Lee and Stan Shaw have played the Puerto Rican Jazz Festival and New York City's Birdland, Village Vanguard, and The Embers.

Other upcoming "Keyboard '73" programs are Igor Kipnis, harpsichord, Wednesday, Oct. 17, 8:30 p.m., Recital Hall; Frederick Rzewski, piano, Sunday, Nov. 4, 4 p.m., Main Theatre; and Jane Carlson, piano, Sunday, Nov. 18, 4 p.m., Recital Hall.

Free tickets for each concert are available at the box office two weeks ahead of the concert date and at the door. "Keyboard '73" is supported by contributions and by the proceeds from benefit concerts.

SUNYA CHAMBER BAND CONCERT OCT. 4

The University Chamber Band, conducted by Charles Boito, will perform a program of music for winds Thursday evening, Oct. 4, in the Recital Hall of the Performing Arts Center at State University of New York at Albany. The concert, for which there is no admission charge, will begin at 8:30.

Marjory Fuller, mezzo-soprano, will be the featured soloist. Among the works to be performed are Mahler's "Um Mitternacht", a newly-discovered work for voice and winds, and compositions by Spohr, Rorem, and Mozart.

Ms. Fuller, who teaches voice in the SUNYA department of music, is a former faculty member of DePauw University where she appeared in many operatic roles. Mr. Boito, who was the assistant conductor of the Yale Band before coming to SUNYA, holds degrees from the University of Southern California and Yale University.

The University Chamber Band is a new group, predominantly composed of students from the University Wind Ensemble. Its purpose is to perform works that do not call for the large orchestration of a wind ensemble or concert band.

The concert is sponsored by the university's music department.

Mr. Robert Rice
Community Relations Office
State University of New York
Albany, New York

Dear Mr. Rice:

We are having an open house on the morning of October 13, from 9:00 to noon.

This is to be a rather informal affair for the people in this area to be able to come and have a tour of the campus and meet faculty members who will be present.

As for the media, we have two radio stations in town - WWSC on Dix Avenue and WBZA on Everts Avenue. We also have two daily papers, the POST STAR & TIMES, on Lawrence and Cooper Streets, and THE TRI-COUNTY NEWS, 15 South Street. In addition, we receive a great deal of exposure in the following county papers:

GRANVILLE SENTINEL, Granville, N. Y. 12832
GREENWICH JOURNAL, Greenwich, New York 12834
NORTH CREEK NEWS-ENTERPRISE, North Creek, New York 12853
TICONDEROGA SENTINEL, Ticonderoga, New York 12833
WARRENSBURG-LAKE GEORGE NEWS, Warrensburg, New York 12885
WASHINGTON COUNTY POST, Cambridge, New York 12816
WHITEHALL TIMES, Whitehall, New York 12887
NORTHERN SUN, Lake Luzerne, New York 12846

Sincerely,
