SUBJECT: Professional Job Opportunities in Northeastern
New York

This letter is to invite you and other members of your staff to a one-day conference exploring professional employment opportunities for Northeastern New York State during the next decade. The meeting will be held at the Campus Center of the State University of New York at Albany on Friday, November 22. The conference will be co-sponsored by the Capital District Regional Planning Commission, the General Electric Research and Development Center, the Hudson-Mohawk Association of Colleges and Universities, and the Office of Higher Education Management Services of the State Education Department. The meeting will begin at 8:45 a.m. with registration and the opening session will start at 9:15 a.m.

The first general session will focus upon the long term economic forecast for the Northeastern region of New York. Following this opening session, a representative from the Capital District Regional Planning Commission will analyze demographic data for the area and describe their approach to forecasting regional economic growth.

The afternoon concurrent panel sessions will examine the anticipated professional job opportunities for teachers; for health care workers; for physicians, lawyers, engineers and scientists; for government employees; and for employees of business and industry. Each panel will be composed of several knowledgeable professionals employed in the career field under discussion.

If this one-day conference is of interest, please return the enclosed reply form to this office on or before November 18.

FRENCH FILM TO BE SHOWN AT SUNYA

The Alliance Francaise d'Albany of State University of New York at Albany will present the film, "Le Bonheur", on Thursday, Dec. 12, at 8 p.m. in the University Art Gallery as part of the "Women in France" festival at SUNYA.

The film, directed by Agnes Varda, is a psychological study of two women forced to share the same man. A brief presentation, in French, will precede the showing, and refreshments and French conversation will follow it.

As part of the festival, the "Women in France" photo exhibit sponsored by Elle magazine and the Cultural Services of the French Embassy may be viewed after the film. Anyone interested is invited to attend without charge.

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE TO PRESENT WILSON PLAY

The Experimental Theatre program of State University of New York at Albany will present Lanford Wilson's "The Great Nebula in Orion" on Friday, Dec. 13, and Saturday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 and 9 p.m. in the Arena Theatre of the SUNYA Performing Arts Center.

The drama focuses on two women who seem, at first glance, to have the best of everything. In a unique theatrical presentation in which the two take the audience into their confidence, the audience learns that the women are not as happy as they first appear. The cast features Joyce Farra as Louise and Deborah Ottaviano as Carrie.

Jerome Hanley, assistant professor of theatre, is director. Mr. Hanley has served as lighting designer for a number of SUNYA productions, most recently "Alice in Wonderland", "Most Happy Fella", "Mary Stuart", "Wizard of Oz", "Comedy of Errors," and "A Flea in Her Ear". His directorial projects at SUNYA include last spring's presentation of Arthur Kopit's "Oh Dad, Poor Dad" and the season's opening show "The Rimers of Eldritch" by Lanford Wilson.

The Experimental Theatre program is sponsored by the SUNYA theatre department. All performances are open to the public, and free tickets are available one hour before each show at the PAC box office (457-8606).

WILDLIFE BIOLOGIST TO SPEAK AT SUNYA

Eric Fried, supervising wildlife biologist for the Department of Environmental Conservation, will give the final lecture in the current natural history series at State University of New York at Albany Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 18. Sponsors are the department and the university's Atmospheric Sciences Research Center.

Mr. Fried's subject will be "Fire--Its Use in Wildlife Management and Environmental Conservation." The biologist, who directs the Wildlife Habitat Management section in the conservation department, will show why fire is deemed by some to be essential for maintaining certain types of unique natural areas such as the Albany Pine Barrens and why fire can hold great potential for managing wildlife habitats for the maximum diversity and quantity of wildlife. Controlled burning is in wide use in some parts of the United States and currently is being investigated as an environmental management tool in New York.

ASRC's Ray Falconer will give an illustrated weather briefing before Mr. Fried's lecture.

SUNYA FACULTY MEMBER TO BE HONORED BY NATIONAL GROUP

Reno S. Knouse, professor of distributive education, department of business education, School of Education, State University of New York at Albany, will receive the American Vocational Association's Distributive Education Professional Development Award at the 68th annual convention in New Orleans on Monday, Dec. 10. It will be the 6th annual award presented since 1970 to outstanding educators for professional development activities that contribute to the entire distributive education field. Professor Knouse is the first teacher educator selected for the honor.

The educator was the first president of the national Council for Distributive Teacher Education formed in 1962. The council honored him with a life membership and elected him as the first member of its Academy for Distributive Teacher Education in 1968. Last year he was recognized as the "nation's outstanding distributive teacher educator" when he was honored as Man of the Year by Epsilon Delta Epsilon, national honorary fraternity in distributive education. He also has been honored by Pi Sigma Epsilon, Distributive Education Clubs of America, and Sales and Marketing Executives, International. In addition, he has received awards from the New York State Vocational and Practical Arts Association, the Distributive Education Clubs of New York, and the New York State Distributive Education Association.

-continued-

JENNIFER MULLER DANCE COMPANY TO PERFORM AT SUNYA

The Jennifer Muller Dance Company will present two performances on Friday, Dec. 13, and Saturday, Dec. 14, at 9:15 p.m. in the Main Theatre of the Performing Arts Center at State University of New York at Albany. Tickets are $1 with a student tax card, $2 with a student identification card, and $3 for the public.

The program will feature the premiere of "Winter Pieces," funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts and "Biography," a dramatic and introspective "resume" first presented at New York's Lincoln Center last spring. Rounding out the program will be the fascinating "Tub," which has created a sensation throughout the United States, Canada, and Europe.

Ms. Muller, formerly associate artistic director of the Louis Falco Dance Company, now is artistic director of her own company. She feels that "Theatre is an experience, and dance IS theatre," and she has chosen "Rediscover dance!" as the slogan for her company.

In addition to the two performances, Ms. Muller has scheduled a master dance class on Saturday, Dec. 14, at 1:30 p.m. at the EBA Shop, 286 Central Avenue, Albany. The class is open to the public, and the fee is $3.50. Those interested in further information are advised to contact Maude Baum at 457-4523.

SUNYA MUSICIAN RECEIVES AWARD

Joel A. Chadabe, associate professor of music at State University of New York at Albany, is the recipient of an American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers Award for 1974-1975 in recognition of his professional excellence in music.

The ASCAP awards are granted by an independent panel and are based upon the unique prestige value of each writer's catalog and the performances of his compositions which are not reflected in the survey of performances.

Chadabe, composer and teacher of composition and related courses, is a graduate of University of North Carolina and the Yale School of Music, where he studied under Elliot Carter. He was a Ford Foundation artist-in-residence in Berlin, Germany, and a free-lance arranger and accompanist in Rome, Italy.

The musician has received grants from the Research Foundation of SUNY and from the Cultural Council Foundation. His compositions have been played throughout the United States and in Europe at concerts and festivals of new music. He is designer and director of the Electronic Music Studio at SUNYA.

SUNYA FACULTY MEMBER NAMED DISTINGUISHED PROFESSOR

William N. Fenton, research professor of anthropology at State University of New York at Albany, has been named distinguished professor of SUNY at a meeting of the SUNY Board of Trustees.

The title was conferred in recognition of Dr. Fenton's achievement and esteem in anthropology as a result of original contributions. Recognition may be gained through publications, lectures, research findings, and the teaching of students.

Dr. Fenton received a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth College and a doctorate from Yale University. He formerly was assistant commissioner of New York State Museum and Science Service and joined the SUNYA faculty in 1969 as research professor of anthropology. An exceptionally productive scholar, he is a leader in the development of research on the Iroquois and in the new field of ethno-history. In particular, Dr. Fenton was one of the first to apply anthropological skills and knowledge to the handling of the Indian wampum collection.

The anthropologist is one of two named distinguished professors of SUNY, the other being Leendert Westerink, professor of classics at SUNY-Buffalo. To date, 27 scholars in the SUNY system have been honored with the title.

MEMORIAL FUND TO AID ANTHROPOLOGY STUDENTS

A Memorial Scholarship Fund has been established by the department of anthropology at State University of New York at Albany in the name of Dee Furst, wife of Professor Peter T. Furst, who was killed in an automobile accident on November 22 in Connecticut.

The scholarship will be awarded annually to an anthropology graduate student working on problems of primitive, pre-Columbian, or non-Western art, on which Mrs. Furst had focused her own interest over the past 15 years.

Recipients will be selected competitively by a committee composed of Professor Furst, another member of the anthropology department, and Julie Jones, curator of the Museum of Primitive Art in New York City.

Contributions, which are tax deductible, should be made out to SUNYA Foundation, Inc., for the Dee Furst Memorial Fund for Primitive Art and mailed to SUNYA Foundation, AD 231, 1400 Washington Avenue, Albany 12222.

LEADERSHIP INSTITUTE AT SUNYA IN JANUARY

The Center for Executive Development and Public Safety Management at State University of New York at Albany and the Albany Metro Alliance of Businessmen are co-sponsoring a day-long Leadership Institute, to be held on Wednesday, Jan. 22, in the Campus Center Ballroom at the university. The theme for the institute is "Meeting the Career Education Challenge of the 70's."

SUNYA President Louis T. Benezet will host the meeting for Capitaland business-industry executives, chief school administrators, and presidents of school boards, as well as other prominent community leaders. Marilyn Van Derbur, who is youth educational consultant to General Motors Corporation, former Miss America, and television personality, will be the keynote speaker. John P. Condon, NAB president, will deliver the luncheon address.

According to George L. Johnson, chairman of NAB, Albany Metro, the institute is a forerunner to a four-month-long NAB-SUNYA Career Guidance Institute for classroom teachers and guidance counselors drawn from the four-county Capitaland area.

SUNYA JUDAIC STUDIES MAJOR APPROVED

The State Education Department has approved a State University of New York at Albany program in Judaic Studies leading to a Bachelor of Arts. Students initiated the major, and Sefton Temkin, department chairman and associate professor of Judaic studies, will supervise the program.

Those seeking the degree will pursue studies in a combined major and second field sequence. Students will be required to take a minimum of 54 credits in Judaic studies, to include 12 in Hebrew language and literature; six in Jewish history; six in the Bible; and 30 in electives within the major, 24 of which are to be at the 300 and 400 level.

The establishment of the program has come about as a result of expanding of Judaic studies in the country which has created an increased need for scholars in the field. In addition, the demand for Hebrew language teachers in many public high schools is growing and the number of qualified Jewish religion school teachers is small.

The SUNYA Judaic studies, the only such department in the SUNY system, has been prepared to offer a B.A. with a major in Judaic studies since 1969. The present enrollment in the courses is 750 and the projection for next year is 825.

In addition to the on-campus studies, State University of New York has established a program with Tel-Aviv University in Israel for undergraduates. Hebrew University, also in Israel, will accept SUNY graduate students for advanced study and research under joint supervision of Hebrew University and SUNY faculty.

Professor Temkin, who joined the faculty at SUNYA in 1970, received his doctorate from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati and a law degree and Master's in modern history from the University of Liverpool, England. Before coming to Albany he was editor of the Encyclopedia of Judaic Studies, New York City.

SUNYA'S O'LEARY APPOINTED TO NATIONAL CORRECTIONS BOARD

Vincent O'Leary, professor at the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany, has been appointed to a three-year term on the Advisory Board of the National Institute of Corrections. O'Leary is one of 10 criminal justice experts who have been selected for the board.

The National Institute of Corrections is a division of the U.S. Department of Justice and was established by a Congressional act which President Ford recently signed into law. The advisory board will supervise the overall policy and operation of NIC.

The function of the institute is to assist federal, state, and local correctional agencies through management training, research and evaluation, clearinghouse and information services, policy formulation and implementation, and technical assistance.

Commenting on his appointment, O'Leary said, "I am looking forward to serving on the board because correctional reform has been too long delayed in the United States.

I am hopeful that the new institute can play a major role in stimulating those efforts. The impediments to reform are formidable but by working closely with state and local leaders, hopefully, the Institute can make a difference."

Prior to joining the School of Criminal Justice at SUNYA in 1968, Professor O'Leary had served as head of the parole systems of the states of Texas and Washington and as an advisor and staff member to several presidential commissions in the area of crime. He also has served as a consultant to a number of agencies in the correctional field and has written extensively on correctional programs, organization, and policy.

SUNYA ANNUAL FUND SURPASSES GOAL

The State University of New York at Albany Alumni Association Annual Fund has reached $200,000, Paul G. Bulger, national chairman of the fund, has announced. The drive thus has surpassed its two-year goal of $175,000.

The figure represents approximately $159,000 in contributions received and $41,000 in pending gifts and pledges from alumni and friends, corporations, foundations, associations, sororities and fraternities, and other groups.

Funds generated from the drive will be used toward the construction of an Alumni House-Conference Center. The building will experiment with solar energy as a source of heat, and the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation and the Atmospheric Sciences Research Center have pledged support for the project. Site preparation will begin next week.

The announcement was part of a report Dr. Bulger recently delivered at an appreciation luncheon co-sponsored by the President's Club and the Anniversary Club.

Other participants in the program were Louis T. Benezet, president of SUNYA; Lloyd L. Kelly, president of the Alumni Association; Francis E. Griffin, chairman of the President's Club; and Henry N. Germond, chairman of the Anniversary Club. Choral selections were performed by the University Chamber Choir, with Stephen Osmond conducting.

ISELIN HEADS UNIVERSITY CENTER FOUNDATION

The Foundation for the University Center, a private foundation incorporated in 1967 to advance the welfare and development of State University of New York at Albany, has announced the election of Alan V. Iselin, chairman of the board of Amadac Industries, Inc., as president.

Mr. Iselin also is president of A. V. Iselin & Co., Inc., a private investment firm and president and chief executive officer of Futurama Entertainment Corporation. Additionally, he is a director of Bankers Trust Company of Albany, N. A.; an affiliate of Bankers Trust New York Corporation; a director of B. T. Capital, Inc.; and a director of Great American Industries, Inc. He is active in many community activities and also is a member of the board of trustees and president, Congregation Beth Emeth, Albany, and a member of the National Board of United Israel Appeal.

Other officers, elected at the foundation's annual meeting, are Marshall S. Hannock, president, Home Savings Bank, vice president; Prentice C. Rodgers, vice chairman, board of directors, National Commercial Bank and Trust Company, treasurer; Alfred E. Farah, M. D., chairman, Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute, secretary; and Thomas M. Whalen, 3rd, judge of the City Court of Albany, counsel.

Mr. Hannock is president of Latham Bowling Center, Bowling Green, and Lake George Bowl corporations. He also is a trustee of Home Savings Bank and Memorial Hospital, Albany; a director and member of the executive committee of United Fund, Capital District Area; and a director of the Colonie and Capital District chambers of commerce.

Mr. Rodgers, in addition to his banking associations, including life membership in the American Institute of Banking, is a trustee and member of the retirement system, Board of Managers, City and County Savings Bank, Albany. He is chairman of the board of Heartland Leasing Corp., Albany, and also an officer and director of Wytex Corp., Albany, and Denver, Colo. He has been chairman of the board of Blue Cross of Northeastern New York since 1971 and a trustee of Albany Medical College since 1960. He is also on the board of trustees of Hartwick College in Oneonta.

Dr. Farah was professor and chairman of the Department of Pharmacology, State University of New York, Upstate Medical Center, Syracuse, before joining Sterling-Winthrop in 1968. He is a member of several professional societies and in 1966 received the Research Achievement Award, American Heart Association. Since 1955 he has edited "Heffters Handbuch der Experimentellent Pharmakologie".

Judge Whalen is a member of the American, New York State, and the Albany County bar associations. Also, he is a director of the Clinton Square Neighborhood Association and Senior Citizens of Albany, Inc.

The Foundation for the University Center was established, as at other major public universities, to stimulate private support in sustaining the commitment to excellence made by the State of New York in establishing the State University. Since its creation the foundation has received and granted private funds to State University at Albany for support of student scholarships, special library collections, research and service projects, and academic program development. Under Mr. Iselin's leadership, the foundation will encourage broader community participation in advancing the university goals of education, discovery, and service.

Other directors are Warren F. Beer, president, Chase Manhattan Bank of Northeastern New York, N.A., Albany; Louis T. Benezet, president, SUNYA; Arthur M. Bueche, vice president, Research & Development Center, General Electric Co., Schenectady; Lloyd L. Kelly, president, New York State

SUNYA SCHOOL OF LIBRARY SCIENCE PUBLISHES CAPITAL DISTRICT DIRECTORY

The School of Library and Information Science at State University of New York at Albany has published "Capital District Information Sources," a referral pointer to social service and information-disseminating organizations in Albany, Rensselaer, Saratoga, and Schenectady counties.

The 118-page booklet lists and describes Capital District organizations which offer information, social services, or community facilities to the public, either directly or through referral to other organizations. The directory is intended to lead those with questions to a place where answers can be found.

The greater part of the book is an alphabetical listing of 339 organizations in the Capital District. Each entry contains the name of the organization; primary mailing address; telephone number; a description of activities, in abstract form, based on information submitted by the organization; the size and scope of library, if any, maintained by the organization; office hours of administrative staff; and the source of funds as reported by the organization.

The directory also contains a list of 145 lobbyists and the interests they support; a list of libraries in the Capital District;

It is indexed according to subject matter.

Names and addresses for the directory were taken from existing directories, public and organizational phone books, bulletin boards, and suggestions made by acquaintances of the compilers. An open-ended questionnaire and cover letter were mailed to about 1200 organizations in the Capital District, and information was culled from the 400 organizations which responded.

Edward M. O'Connor served as chief compiler for the catalogue and was assisted by nine students from SUNYA student chapters of the Special Libraries Association and of the American Society for Information Science.

The project was funded by the Hudson-Mohawk Association of Colleges and Universities, Latham, N.Y.; the Mid-New York Library System, Utica, N.Y.; and the School of Library and Information Science at SUNYA.

The price of the directory is $1, and those interested in obtaining a copy are advised to contact Janice Sacco, School of Library ^{and Information} Science, State University of New York at Albany, 1400 Washington Avenue, Albany, N.Y. 12222. Her university telephone number is 457-8575.
