CRIME INSTITUTE FORUM OPENS ON JULY 29

ALBANY, July 21 — The Ninth annual Moran Memorial Institute on Delinquency and Crime opens July 29 at St. Lawrence University.

High police officials will speak at the opening session, including State Police Superintendent Francis S. McGarvey, Joseph D. Lohman, sheriff of Cook County, Ill., and Inspector Robert R. J. Gallati, head of the New York City Police Academy.

Some 600 correction personnel representing preventive services, probation, institutional care and parole will attend the institute, which is sponsored by the University in cooperation with State departments of Correction, Mental Hygiene, Social Welfare, Civil Service, Education and the Youth Commission and Parole agencies.

Carey Calls For Career Service In Weights And Measures Inspector Jobs

ELMIRA, July 21 — Daniel J. Carey, State Agriculture and Markets Commissioner, has called for a uniform weights and measures program for the state, administered by career civil service personnel.

Mr. Carey advanced his program at the 51st annual conference of the New York State Weights and Measures Association, held here last week.

In addressing delegates, Mr. Carey vigorously advocated establishment of competitive civil service positions to handle the program. He declared that haphazard, political appointments to weights and measures inspector jobs were denying dedicated workers in the field the job security and dignity they deserved.

He said further:

"As you have seen, our Department already operates — and has been operating for a good many years — programs of a comparable nature; for example, our Milk Control Program. These programs work very effectively, and one reason for their success is that they are not bogged down by the workings of local politics. Practically all of the staff employees carrying out these programs are competitive Civil Service employees. They are hired because they are qualified by experience and examination and not because they know some politician.

"I want to emphasize now that most of our local sealers in the State are doing a fine job, and I am talking about a system which I feel is wholly inadequate and not the people who work under that system. I recognize that you men have devoted a lifetime of service to the public. For that reason alone you are en-

DePorte Leaves Statistics Post With Health Dept.

ALBANY, July 21 — Joseph V. DePorte has retired as director of the State Health Department's Office of Vital Statistics. Dr. DePorte served in the post for more than 33 years.

He is the author of more than 75 papers in the field of vital statistics and was honored by the Government of France in 1950 for distinguished work in the field. He was designated a Commander of the National Order of Public Health.

Dr. DePorte is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma and received his Master's degree at Princeton. He obtained his Ph.D. from Cornell. At one time, he was assistant professor of mathematics at Albany State Teachers College.

Commenting on his retirement, Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, state health commissioner, said Dr. DePorte "has been one of the outstanding men in his field and has made many significant contributions to the field of vital statistics and population studies."

Dr. DePorte's annual Vital Statistics Reports have become classics of their kind. They were the first in the United States to present vital statistics for cities, counties on a resident basis.

It was at his instigation that New York was the first State to provide for new birth certificates for adopted children.

RULING ON RETROACTIVITY

ALBANY, July 21 — Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has ruled that a village had the power to select January 1, 1956 as the effective date for retroactive coverage for Social Security for employees.

The Attorney General issued the opinion to the Board of Trustees of the Village of Ossining in reply to a request for an opinion. Mr. Lefkowitz wrote: "The selection of the January 1, 1956 date was permissible under the Federal Social Security Act. Accordingly, it is my opinion that such date was validly selected in and by the resolution of the Board of Trustees dated Feb. 4, 1958."

He added that he was of the further opinion that the amendment of the law by the 1958 Legislature did not invalidate the resolution.

Need For More Revenue Aides a Taxing Problem

(Special to The Leader)

ALBANY, July 21 — Whether the State Tax Department needs additional employees stirred up a controversy on Capitol Hill recently in which:

A staid State senator charged a State tax official with being "discourteous" and the sometimes vociferous official replied politely he was "amazed" at the charge.

The fuss was over what was said or wasn't said at a meeting last April between Tax Commissioner George M. Bragalini and a group of Syracuse businessmen.

Senator John Hughes of Syracuse charged that Mr. Bragalini had told his visitors: "We don't need upstate legislators coming down to Albany with halos on their heads and hayseeds in their hair, telling us how to run our business."

The senator said the state official had used even stronger language in referring to the Legislature's refusal to grant his department additional personnel.

Amazed

Mr. Bragalini replied: "I am amazed by Mr. Hughes' statement. He, his constituents and all other taxpayers have without exception been accorded courteous treatment by our department."

He said he had spent over an hour with the Syracuse visitors in his office, answering their questions and telling them of some of the Department's operations. He added he informed them of the fact that we have in our files over 400,000 delinquency cases representing $50 to $60 million in tax revenue which we cannot take action on because the Legislature failed to provide the funds for help needed to do this job.

The State Tax Department, under the Harriman administration, repeatedly has sought several hundred additional tax employees but has failed to win the approval of the Legislature.

Senator Hughes declared the "bad manners" shown the Syracuse group resulted from a legislative probe he had sought of Mr. Bragalini's department.

Mr. Bragalini replied: "It is curious that Mr. Hughes waited from April to July to make his unwarranted attack. Maybe he doesn't like the way I part my hair — which is getting mighty thin on top. Or maybe the approaching election has something to do with it. To put his mind at ease, I am not a candidate for any office."

FRIENDS HONOR EDWARD F. GOETZ

A dinner honoring Edward F. Goetz of the Department of State was attended by over 100 friends and associates at the Aurania Club in Albany. Pictured here are, from left, Barnett J. Nova, Executive Deputy Secretary of State; Edward L. Gilchrist, toastmaster; and Mr. and Mrs. Goetz. Mr. Goetz is retiring after 46 years in State service. He is very well known in Capital District sporting circles and at one time was the most outstanding basketball player in the area.

Lefkowitz Rules On Plural Job Deductions Under Social Security

Answering a question put by the New York State Employees' Retirement system, Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has ruled that an employer is required by law to make Social Security deductions from the salary of employees even if the employees work for different employers and are covered by Social Security through each separate job. There is no rule or means of apportionment.

Mr. Lefkowitz gave his opinion in a letter to Joseph M. Katz, counsel to the Retirement system. Under the law, therefore, an employee may be required temporarily to pay more than his allotted share, because of accumulation of multiple deductions. While Mr. Lefkowitz did not go into this, because it was no part of the questions he was asked to decide, should excessive employee contributions be made because of multiple employers, the excess is deductible from one's Federal income tax, or may take the form of a refund, or increased refund. Where a solitary employer imposes excess deductions the excess is not chargeable to income tax credit but must be refunded by the employer on demand by the employee.

Text of Lefkowitz Finding

Mr. Lefkowitz cited, interpreted and construed both Federal and State laws in reaching the following conclusion:

"It follows that your questions should be answered in the affirmative, namely, that each participating employer is now required and, at least since 1945, has been required, to make salary deductions from the compensation of all employees for retirement purposes members of the Retirement System employed by it, and that each employer's payroll of members which is used for distributing costs of the System must reflect the compensation of all members of the Retirement System employed by it.

"The law does not contain any provisions for determining which employer is to make deductions and which employer is to make employer contributions in cases where members are employed by more than one participating employer. This omission is significant and confirms the above construction of the law, which, I understand, is consistent with the practice which the Retirement System has followed without exception."

U.S. Sets Rules for Hiring Gifted College Graduates At Salaries $940 Higher

WASHINGTON, July 21 — The Federal government is determined to get the cream of the college graduate crop, to the fullest extent possible, and therefore is offering higher pay to those graduates abnormally endowed. Instead of making appointments to grade 5, of the outstanding among new graduates, it will appoint to grade 7.

The U.S. Civil Service Commission is far from making grade 7 the entrance grade generally for the college graduates, although civil service experts feel that the elimination of grade 5 for this purpose is only a matter of time, and that the specially gifted finally will get better even than grade 7.

Many Laborers Get More

The hiring of college graduates without experience, at grade 7, is limited to those who have demonstrated superior abilities. The Commission considers the total college record, particularly high academic attainment and demonstration of ability for leadership. The government hopes to get future administrators through college campus and related recruitment, hence leadership, and winning of honors for scholastic, professional and community activities, and contributions to public welfare and service generally, will receive recognition.

The Commission wants to attract more of the nation's promising young men and women into government service, and thus do a better job of competing with private industry for their services.

The new pay for grade 7 is $4,980 a year, which leaders of employee groups say isn't one cent too much, especially as the government pays some laborers more than most of the newly hired college graduates. The idea is not that the laborers are being overpaid but the college graduates underpaid. Grade 5 pay is $4,040. These figures include the recent 10 percent salary increase.

MAUHS IN ADVISORY POST

ALBANY, July 21 — Governor Harriman has appointed State Conservation Commissioner Sharon J. Mauhs of Cobleskill as New York State's representative on the Delaware River Basin Advisory Committee.

He succeeds Dean Thorndike Saville of New York City, who resigned earlier in the year. The committee includes representatives of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and the cities of New York and Philadelphia.

HONOR GRADS UPPED

ALBANY, July 21 — Three "honor graduates" named as law apprentices in the State Law Department in 1956 have been promoted to deputy attorney general posts.

They are: Donald A. Marshall of Syracuse; Richard A. Foster of Albany and Lawrence Wayne of Schenectady.

Correction Reallocation Appeal Denied

An appeal by State correction officers to be reallocated upward from Grade 11 to Grade 14 has been turned down by the State Classification and Compensation Appeals Board.

In a letter to chapter presidents, John F. Powers, president of the Civil Service Employees Association, announced that despite the adverse decision the Association would continue to press its efforts to obtain fair and adequate compensation for correction officers.

School Gaze

Nassau chapter is happy to announce that the Plainedge School District has another first to its credit. Recently a disciplinary action arose regarding an employee of this school district. Gerald Bretton, assisting supervising principal, turned this disciplinary matter over to a committee representing the Plainedge Unit of Nassau chapter for their action and recommendation for punishment. Of course, these recommendations were subject to the approval of Mr. Bretton. This committee heard the evidence and found the employee guilty and recommended punishment of two weeks without pay. This recommendation was submitted to Mr. Bretton and he concurred with the findings and the punishment.

The administration, the Plainedge Non-Teaching Unit and the employee involved were all satisfied with the way this plan worked out. We think that this idea in employer-employee relationship is a credit to Mr. Bretton and to the administration of the Plainedge School District and know that they will never have cause to regret such a progressive step. A tip of our collective hats to these fine administrators and it is our hope that many more school districts will adopt this new concept in employer-employee relationship.

A Workshop, to encompass all non-teaching employees in Nassau County and possibly representatives from other counties, is being contemplated by the non-teaching section of Nassau Chapter for early 1959. As soon as plans are completed the details will be printed in the "School Gaze" column.

Freeport School District Unit of Nassau Chapter announces that the non-teaching employees are going on the 40 hour week in September. Andy Jurginson, President of this unit, says that this 40 hour week was 1 point in their platform and states further that the Administrators and the School Board of this School District have been very cooperative and helpful in their dealings with the Freeport Non-Teaching Unit.

Harry DeGroff, President of the Hicksville Unit of Nassau chapter, announced that plans for a Baseball League among the many Non-Teaching Units in Nassau County, are nearing completion. Harry says that the complete plan for the 1959 season will be announced County Units who want any further information now can get in touch with Mr. DeGroff by mailing him a letter c/o Box 91, Hempstead School Gaze as soon as they are completed. Any of you Nassau stand, N.Y.

A very important meeting of the Non-Teaching Section was held on Saturday, July 12th at the home of Edward Perrott, Chairman of the Non-Teaching Section of Nassau chapter. Among those present were Irving Flaumenbaum, President of Nassau chapter; Andrew Jurginson, President of the Freeport Unit of Nassau chapter, and many other representatives of other non-teaching units.

Discussion covered the Legislative program for non-teaching employees and school districts. As a result of this meeting recommendations were sent to the Legislative Committee of the Civil Service Employees Association. These recommendations included putting all matrons and cleaners in the competitive class and wherever possible putting other non-competitive titles in the competitive class. Another suggestion for the Legislative Committee of C.S.E.A. to work on is to put all school districts in a county under the control of one central Board. The feeling was that non-competitive titles such as plumber, carpenter, etc., should be put in the competitive class and they should all be called Custodians with the descriptive title after the word Custodian. As an example: custodian-carpenter or custodian-plumber.

Teachers' Workshop At Rome School

The Rome State School acted as host to about 150 institution teachers of State Schools in the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene on June 24 and 25.

The agenda includes a two-day workshop featuring prominent speakers, section meetings, book displays and audio-visual presentations. A dinner was held at Trinkhaus Manor on June 24.

The workshop activities centered around the theme, "Institution Teachers Explore Their Problems" and concerned itself with the problems confronting teachers of the mentally retarded in state institutions.

Dr. Charles Greenberg, director of the Rome State School was host to the group and welcomed the teachers. Greetings were delivered by Charles I. McAllister for himself as director of Mental Hygiene Education Services and for Dr. Arthur W. Pense, deputy commissioner of Mental Hygiene.

The program on Tuesday morning, June 24, included an address by Dr. Richard V. Foster, Assistant Commissioner of the Department of Mental Hygiene who spoke on "Probing Personality." Charles D. Becker, Associate in Education, Bureau for Handicapped Children, State Education Department, spoke on the topic, "The New York State Education Department works Co-operatively with the Department of Mental

CSEA Terms Kelly Reply No Answer to 'Basic Question' On His Statutory Duties

ALBANY, July 21 — The Civil Service Employees Association has expressed its disappointment that J. Earl Kelly, State Director of Classification and Compensation, did not answer the "basic question" of whether or not it was the duty of his office to recommend upward reallocations in titles when the titles were found to be underpaid.

Last month, in a letter to Mr. Kelly, the Association said that Mr. Kelly was not doing his statutory duty in recommending an upward reallocation for State clerical and stenographic positions. The Association contended that since Mr. Kelly, in turning down appeals from these positions, admitted these titles were underpaid he was obliged by the duties prescribed for his office to make a recommendation for upward reallocation.

In reply, the Classification and Compensation director said such a wide range recommendation would produce a "ridiculous result" and that his Division annually evaluated the adequacy or inadequacy of state salaries.

The Association, in its most recent letter, replied that the statute charged Mr. Kelly with the responsibility for such corrective action whether or not it was deemed a "fruitless action" or "silly process."

The Association also dismissed two other statements in Mr. Kelly's letter. The CSEA said a full reading of their letter to Mr. Kelly disproved his statement that the Association was interested only in a single group of employees. In reply to Mr. Kelly's charge that the clerical and stenographic appeal was an organized drive, the Association replied that there was nothing reprehensible in an employee organization setting the pattern for filing reallocation appeals. In this particular instance, however, the Association said, the CSEA did not organize such a drive but that it came from the members.

In closing, the Association pointed out that the original letter to Mr. Kelly was intended merely to open the statutory question involved, not to serve as a criticism of his Division.

The CSEA letter said in closing that "We know and understand, perhaps better than anyone else, both the necessity and value of the comprehensive salary surveys annually undertaken by your Division. As recently as 1957 and 1958 we have contended that the case of employees for general salary increases depended in large part on the objective recommendations of your Division, based on the annual salary surveys demonstrating that across-the-board increases were necessary if anything approaching equality with private industry and other public jurisdictions was to be achieved."

Promotion — With Cut in Pay

It is commonly known that a promotion means increased responsibility and a raise in take home pay.

A number of years ago the Governor recommended and it was put into law that an employee be guaranteed a minimum of one increment raise upon promotion.

A short time ago a large group of attendants passed the Staff Attendants examination. Once they passed the examination their primary concern was to acquire an appointment to the position.

After many years of service, passing a competitive examination, getting selected for the position, you are advised that you would have to take a cut in pay to accept this promotion.

Did you ever hear of any person being promoted and taking a loss in pay? It has happened in our Department with the Attendant and Staff Attendant series and other titles involved too.

The Legislature provided for "Guarantee Adjustments" which is what our employees sought and needed so badly. But they did slip up in not providing a Guarantee Adjustment which would not result in a loss of pay upon promotion.

The situation was further aggravated when the Legislature this year failed to approve the small general raise recommended by the Governor.

A private employer interested in the welfare of his company would never allow this to happen. It would surely hurt his company.

I am sure that the members of our Legislature and those of our executive Department are not proud of this example of law-making and will want to correct this situation as soon as possible.

Postal Carrier Exam Opens

An examination for filling jobs as carrier in the New York post office (Manhattan and the Bronx) remains open until Monday, August 4.

There are 800 vacancies expected, 400 of them as substitute City carrier, which is career appointment, and 400 as temporary substitute carrier. Pay in each instance starts at $2 an hour and rises to $2.42 in a 40-hour week.

There are no residence or experience requirements, but residents of New York City who pass the written test will get first call to jobs, in the order of their relative standing on the roster.

The examination for filling substitute clerk jobs at the same post office is closed. Nearly 90,000 applied in that test, and the post office has an ample eligible list. Not nearly as large a response is expected in the carrier test, but the pay increase, that resulted in the $2 rate, is a new incentive, in fact, was one reason why the carrier examination has been opened. The carrier list that the post office expected would last some months longer became nearly exhausted when acceptances of job offers became the rule rather than the exception, following the pay raise.

The post office lists these attractions: Security, Promotional Opportunities, Vacations of 13 to 26 Days, Uniform Allowance, Incentive Awards, Sick Leave, Retirement on Pension, Life Insurance.

Exam Requirements

Applicants for substitute carrier jobs must be citizens of or owe permanent allegiance to the United States and must have reached their seventeenth birthday on the day they file application. This does not apply to persons entitled to veteran preference. Eligibles may not enter on duty until their eighteenth birthday. There is no maximum age limit.

Male applicants must weigh at least 125 pounds. This weight requirement is waived for applicants entitled to veteran preference, and may also be waived for non-veterans who are presently, or have been, employed in a position which will be filled from this examination and who have demonstrated their ability to discharge efficiently the full duties of position. The minimal weight requirement may also be waived for eligibles who can pass a strength test consisting of lifting a sack and contents weighing 100 pounds to their shoulders.

The Post Office department has the legal right to specify the sex of eligibles desired to fill vacancies. (For these positions the postmaster wishes men.)

The substitute carrier register established under Announcement No. 2-4-(57) will be expired on establishment of the register resulting from this examination. Persons whose names appear on previous substitute carrier register should apply under this announcement if they wish to receive further consideration.

The substitute clerk register established under Announcement 2-101-1 (58) will continue in use and eligibility for substitute clerk is not affected by the examination for substitute city carrier under this announcement.

A Call for Some Revision

THE LABOR relations program for New York City employees is not working out as happily as Mayor Robert F. Wagner and the City's Labor Department had hoped.

The main difficulty arises from provisions for sole collective bargaining rights. Any employee group able to attain such an advantage would naturally seek an election. No union ever asks for an election that it knows in advance it must lose. But what may constitute an opportunity in one instance may prove a disadvantage, so that the same union that called for an election in the first instance would find some ground on which to oppose an election in the second.

The Few Against the Many

The rub lies in the requirements. A group must have at least 30 percent of the employees in a bargaining group as members before it can call for an election, and to contest an election must have at least 10 percent. These ratios might work out well, if all groups were small, but a problem arises in large departments. In the Department of Hospitals, the largest, an employee group would need 10,000 members before it could call for a department-wide election. Even so, the regulations, as recently established in an executive order issued by Mayor Wagner, permit the Commissioner of Labor to decide what shall constitute a voting group. Exclusive collective bargaining rights would be attainable by small groups, say, with only scores or even hundreds of members, but not by large ones that don't have a sufficient number of members in the assigned groups to qualify, but do have tens, even hundreds of times as many members in the department as a whole.

Opinion Divided

Employee groups themselves are divided. Some that opposed the exclusive bargaining provisions because of the terms have reversed their stand. Others have supported the program from the beginning. Still others opposed it from the start. A conference is in order, at which some attempt should be made by the Labor Department to reconcile these differences, so far as practicable. So long as the labor relations program remains a battleground it fails of its primary objective of establishing or guaranteeing labor peace in the municipal government.

The regulations, to which pointed objections are made by one union, were promulgated without public hearing. Also, decisions by the Commissioner of Labor on who shall constitute possible bargaining groups are final. There is no right of appeal unless it be the futile one of appealing to the Commissioner to reverse himself.

Principle Versus Its Application

The principle of exclusive collective bargaining is well established in labor relations throughout the land, more recently gaining ground in government.

Some of the provisions of the New York City labor relations order to which strongest objections are made are comparable to standard practice elsewhere. There must be some basis that prompts a labor union to oppose practices based on precedent. The Mayor and his Labor Commissioner rely strongly on that precedent, but the objections raised are aimed at the unapplicability of rules that work elsewhere to the special circumstances in the New York City government.

Mayor's Heart Is In It

All the more reason why an amicable conference should be held, which, even if it does not resolve all the problems, at least could bring a measure of unity among City employee groups, whereby all of them would find a satisfactory working basis.

COVERAGE OF LAW CASES WINS READERS ACCLAIM

Editor, The Leader:

I commend you for the presentation ("Looking Inside", June 17 issue) of the case of Watson vs. U. S. Department of Army, that was decided by the U. S. Supreme Court. Your articles, and the column Law Cases, are a clear indication and example of the excellent standards that are maintained by your publication in keeping the public well-informed about the attitude and trends of public opinion as well as their own personal rights.

Social Security Answers

MY HUSBAND died in 1954 after working only one month under Social Security. I will be 62 in August. Can I draw anything on his account? C. E.

No. Your husband did not work long enough.

MY 17-YEAR-OLD SON and I receive survivors insurance payments based on my husband's Social Security earnings before his death in 1953. I know these payments are supposed to stop when he is 18. He plans to enter college next year. If he does go to college, will his payments continue after he is 18 years old? L. E.

No, unless he is severely disabled.

MY SISTER DIED recently. She had been a widow for four years and has twin girls, age 5. If my husband and I adopt these children, will they lose the payment they have been drawing on their father's social security account since his death? O. W. O.

No. If a child of a deceased worker is legally adopted by his step-parents, grandparents, aunt or uncle, the child may continue to receive monthly survivors payments. If the child is legally adopted by anyone other than these relatives, the payment stops.

MY CLAIM for disability benefits through Social Security has been approved for $84 a month. However, the award notice said no benefits would be payable, because I am getting a larger payment through workmen's compensation. Does that mean I can't even draw benefits when I reach 65? C. L.

You will begin receiving your regular Social Security benefits of $84 a month when you are 65. Only the Social Security disability benefits (between age 50 and 65) are suspended by workmen's compensation payments.

I AM A DISABLED VETERAN, and receiving $66.15 a month from the Veterans Administration for non-service connected disability. Does that bar me from receiving disability benefits through Social Security? T. T.

If your Social Security benefit is larger than $66.15, you will get the difference.

I AM 37 and have a severe disability. I have not worked for a (Continued on Page 15)

LOOKING INSIDE

Competition Paying Dividends

COMPETITION IS THE LIFE OF PUBLIC JOBS. Not only are most employees competitive but so are governments, which compete with one another and with private industry to recruit the highest possible calibre of employees.

The day has long since past when the public's idea of a public employee was that he didn't do much work, and whatever work he did was not too important or responsible. Today nowhere are there more responsible tasks than in government.

The Federal government is the largest employer in the United States, with more than two and a quarter million employees.

The Federal government, in its effort to induce the outstanding college graduates to enter federal employ, is offering them jobs two grades higher than formerly, grade 7 instead of 5. No doubt the trend will continue, so that even higher pay will be offered in the future as minimum for college graduates, with still higher than grade 7 for the specially competent, although a new law would have to be enacted to make that possible.

Better Break for College Graduates

College graduates are faring better in government, in regard to opportunity and rewards for taking public jobs, though that statement is not expressive of a millennium. Government has been chary about paying college graduates what they deserve. If all that is required is a college degree, then about $30 a week seems to be the standard in private industry, and government offers similar pay. If special talents or experience are required, then not only higher pay but also some assurance of promotion opportunities are a fundamental requirement. Government fell down for so many years on its responsibility for affording promotion paths that the annual increment resulted, as obtains in Federal, State and local government, although the increment is no substitute for promotion opportunities, and no salary increase, either, in the accepted sense of the term. An increment is a reward for additional experience gained, and recognition of the employee's increased value. When we speak of a salary increase we mean, generally, a higher salary grade for the same work, done with the same skill.

In the competition by government levels, the Federal employer appears to be in the lead. Not only does the U.S. more promptly offer higher pay when necessary for recruitment, but in certain instances it also pays travel expenses, not only defraying the cost of a prospective employee moving his family from one location to another, but even the cost of transportation and other expenses related to inspection of the job site, to let a prospective employee see the fellow-employees with whom he will have to work, and ascertain also cost of and opportunity for housing facilities. This technique the Federal government frankly borrowed from private industry. In local government the problem is practically non-existent, although some aspects of it do arise in State government, particularly in States of large area.

In Front on Fringe Benefits

The Federal government also is in front regarding some fringe benefits. It affords a contributory life insurance fringe that employees in other levels of government hope that they, too, will enjoy at no too distant date. Despite efforts to afford health insurance, the Federal government has not been able to reach agreement on any plan, though it will probably do so eventually. New York State has its health insurance fringe. New York City employees have been members of the Health Insurance Plan on a contributory basis with the employer since the days of the LaGuardia Administration.

There is no more reason why public employees should not have the benefit of life insurance coverage, with the employer sharing the cost any more than there is any reason why they should not have unemployment insurance (fully paid by the employer) and disability insurance. The security of a public job can no more be cited in contradiction of the one than can workmen's compensation be as a contradiction of the other. Employees in private industry have the dual protection in both instances. Public employees should have no less.

Greater Equality Needed

All public employees, Federal included, should be able to supplement retirement system pensions with Social Security, which provides additional benefits and protections, including lump-sum death payment and, to qualified survivors, monthly allowances. Some Federal employees, those not eligible for U.S. Civil Service Retirement System membership, do have Social Security, so that they and their survivors won't be left out in the cold entirely, but membership in the retirement system should be opened to them so that they, too, can have both.

Splendid Training Program

Less publicized, but important, is the Federal government's leadership in training. It even pays the cost of training U.S. employees in outside industry. As illustrative of calibre, the Hohaus Committee of private citizens, appointed by President Eisenhower, found the training program of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (of which the Social Security Administration is a part) exemplary.

A COMMISSIONER of a New York City department sent word that he wanted to talk to one of his employees, a person whose services he highly prizes. Word came back that the employee had taken the day off (chargeable to annual leave) to celebrate his birthday. So the Commissioner sent the employee a telegram of congratulation, but sent it collect.

Only goes to show the far-reaching effect of the austerity budget.

Presidential Pensions

WHILE it is not protocol for executives to be members of labor unions, Presidents of the United States would have had pensions long since had they been members of organized labor themselves.

Certainly Messrs. Hoover and Truman would accept the office quarters and staff that the measure would provide. Ex-Presidents now have to pay their own way in rendering public service through speeches and the like.

The proposed pension of $25,000 a year would be in addition to any other government pension. Mr. Truman, for instance, is entitled to about $100 a month for his long military service, both active and inactive.

year. My wife told me I should see about Social Security disability benefits. I told her I had to be at least 50 to get any benefits. Who is right? K. J. You are both partly right. Although disability benefits may be paid to severely disabled workers only from age 50 to 65, the disabled worker under 50 should act to protect his wage record by filing an application for the disability freeze. This action will protect your disability payment at age 50, your retirement benefits, or the survivors benefits payable to your family in case of your death.

I HAVE a cleaning woman who comes weekly. In addition to her cash salary I also furnish her lunch and, from time to time, give her clothing and extra food to take home. In figuring her earnings for Social Security purposes, must I determine the value of the food and clothing? E. V. No. In determining the amount to be reported for domestic workers, only cash wages count. Furnishing food and clothing, even though both you and your cleaning woman look upon them as part payment for the service, would not count for Social Security purposes. If you gave her additional cash for carfare, it would be considered as cash wages and would be included.

MY HUSBAND and I received a notice that our Social Security checks will be combined in one check. My husband is out of town a lot and it will delay me getting my money if I must wait for him to get back to town to sign it. Is there any way I can continue getting my check separate from his? C. V. If a combined check would be inconvenient, you can have the separate check method restored.

IF I BECOME eligible to receive Social Security payments as a disabled person, will my wife and minor children get monthly checks too? P. L. The Social Security Law provides that disability insurance benefits may be paid only to the disabled worker between the ages of 50 and 65. When the disabled worker reaches age 65, his dependents may then qualify for monthly checks also.

Craig Colony

Tuesday evening, July 22, Craig Colony employees will hold their annual picnic and outing at Long Point Park. For the past several years this picnic has been one of the largest affairs of its kind in this area. Between six and seven hundred employees and their families have been served and enjoyed themselves at this affair in the past. It has always been an affair that has been looked-forward-to from year to year. This year it is expected to be even bigger than ever due to the increased number of new employees at Craig Colony.
 In addition to being one of the biggest employee affairs of the season in this area, it has been hailed as one of the most efficiently managed under the supervision of A. J. Kawa, Craig Colony's food service manager. Mr. Kawa and his staff have a natural flair for conducting such large operations very smoothly. Many times in the past they have been commended for their work.
 As an added feature to this year's event the Civil Service Employees Association is sponsoring rides for those under 16 who attend the picnic. This is a new venture proposed by George DeLong, chapter president, and it is hoped that it will continue through future administrations.

 All good wishes go with the following employees who have retired recently: Della Castner, Dan McCormack, Matilda Flanagan, Mary Connelly, and William Wallace. Every scale and measuring device should be checked regularly."
