SEA Slates Student Panel For Monday

What was your most outstanding problem?

What was your relationship to your co-operating teacher and other members of the faculty?

To what extent did you participate in extra-curricular activities?

These and other questions will be discussed by a student panel of returning students seated at the Student Education Association meeting on November 21 in Draper 211 at 8 p.m. The panelists will represent the six major fields of study and all off-campus programs.

Mr. Robert Anderson, director of the off-campus program, will moderate the discussion. It will be an informal meeting, and all those who will be attending student teaching in the near future are invited.

The Manhattan men were organized five years ago under the leadership of Joe Oppedisano, a 1961 graduate of Albany State, who makes the accordion his specialty in sound.

The group features the saxophone blending of the farossi twins, Vance and Frank, 1956 graduates of St. Michael's College in Vermont, and former directors of the St. Michael's dance orchestra.

The rhythm section consists of Herbie George on bass, and Paul Buehler on drums. Herb has played with many name jazz groups including Mose Allison and Rex Stewart. Paul is also no stranger to name groups, having previously worked with Cozy Cole.

Dance Casual Dress for the dance is casual, and, with or without a date, all are welcome. There is no set admission charge, but donations to Campus Chest will be accepted at the door. Women may purchase half-hour late permission in the dormitories and group houses.

Trustees Appoint Tisdale To Assist College Planning

Colonel Walter M. Tisdale, commanding officer at the Watervliet Arsenal since August, 1958, has been appointed Assistant to the President for Planning and Development at State University College at Albany. His appointment, announced by Dr. Evan R. Collins, President of the College, becomes effective January 31, 1962.

Present plans call for a complete relocation of State University College from its present site on Western Avenue to the 220-acre Albany Country Club site. Grading and site clearance is expected to start next year with an 800-student dormitory slated for completion by 1964. Increased facilities will permit the college to expand its enrollment from the current 2,900 to 7,000 by 1970.

Multi-Purpose Institution The facilities will also permit the college to reach its full potential as a multi-purpose institution. A full liberal arts curriculum and expanded graduate program will be added to the teacher education program.

Assistance In Development Colonel Tisdale will assist in the development of the site for the college, "both as a physical plant and as a reflection of a complex educational program," said Dr. Collins in making the announcement.

Praised By Army Chief Colonel Tisdale's accomplishments at Watervliet were praised recently by the Chief of U. S. Army Ordnance when Lt. General John H. Hinrichs said Colonel Tisdale's expansion of scientific personnel and facilities was largely responsible for the arsenal's present preeminence as a weapons research and engineering center.

Served In Germany Before his Watervliet assignment Col. Tisdale served three years in Germany as Ordnance Officer, 7th Army, and as Deputy Ordnance Officer, U. S. Army in Europe. In 1957, he earned a graduate degree in geo-politics at the University of Heidelberg. From 1952 to 1955, he commanded the Philadelphia Ordnance District, directing 3500 employees in the administration of a three-billion dollar annual weapons procurement program.

Native New Yorker During World War II, Colonel Tisdale, a native New Yorker and a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, served with the Air Force in Hawaii, Australia, New Guinea, Bialk, the Philippines and Japan. From 1945 to 1947, he was Ordnance Officer for the Far East Air Force. He also has served as Chief of the Arms and Ammunition Division, Aberdeen Proving Ground and with the Industrial Division, Office, Chief of Ordnance, Washington, D. C.

Colonel and Mrs. Tisdale, with their two daughters, Joyce and Victoria, will live in Puschaven, Guilford.

Miss Nura D. Turner, Associate Professor of Mathematics, announces that the Upper New York State Section of the Mathematical Association of America Mathematics Contest will take place March 8. The deadline for registration for the contest is December 9.

Last year approximately 160,000 students took the examination and 2,519 students from the upstate New York section participated. This year 18 colleges are providing attractive scholarships to top ranking students on the examination.

The scholarships available are based on both need and ability. Eight hundred dollar cash awards are being offered and five United States Savings Bonds will be awarded to the highest ranking students in each respective area.

The Mathematics Club of the college of St. Rose is cooperating for the fourth year of the contest by providing cash awards of $10 and $5 respectively to the girls in the Albany schools obtaining the highest ranking scores.

Miss Turner has served as the contest chairman in the upper New York section of the association since the fall of 1957. As contest chairman, she administers the testing program for the group.

Articles Published

Miss Turner has written several articles as a result of her work with the program, and one article appeared in both the October issue of Science Education and the November issue of the Mathematics Teacher.

Information regarding eligibility and entrance procedure for the mathematics contest may be obtained from Miss Turner.

Notice

Students are advised to check lists posted in Draper regarding pre-registration, which starts next week. Those whose last names are at the end of the alphabet will register first.

Corps Needs Young People From Varying Backgrounds

BARBARA GLADYSIEWICZ

Gladysiewicz Joins Corps

State University, College of Education, is proud to include on the roll call of outstanding alumni, Miss Barbara Gladysiewicz, its first Peace Corps volunteer. Barbara, having completed a major in history and a minor in English, graduated this June. As an undergraduate, Barbara was a senator for three years, co-chairman of Campus Chest in her junior year, a member of Kappa Delta Sorority, a Myskania member and she was listed in the "Who's Who of American Colleges."

Barbara began preparation for her master's degree in history while waiting to teach history in Middletown when notified that she was selected as a Peace Corps candidate.

Training

After completing her training period at Pennsylvania State University for the Philippines project to which she was assigned, Barbara visited Dr. Elbow, Professor of History. She said that her training consisted of ten hours of courses every day, six days a week and exams on Sunday. She received intensive courses in American political, social and economic institutions, the history, geography and culture of southeastern Asia and the Philippines and in Tagalog and the Philippine dialect.

Survival Course

During a survival course she and other volunteers were purposefully lost in the woods and had to find their way out with a compass. They learned how to use a machete to cut vines and drank the juices from them. Physical conditions were similar to those which they would encounter in the Philippines.

Barbara told Dr. Elbow, "If I had not been accepted for the Peace Corps, the training was exciting and valuable." Barbara left October tenth with other volunteers from Los Angeles to serve as teacher's aides in the Philippines for two years.

Dr. Elbow Comments

After talking with Barbara, and doing extensive reading, Dr. Elbow commented: "The Peace Corps is one of the most creative, exciting developments in many years. It is of great value to young people to broaden their horizons and to understand other peoples and cultures. Americans tend to be ethnocentric, judging other cultures by our own yardstick. This is a good way for young people to learn about other cultures through actual experience. No better way is there to develop mutual trust and understanding and to build a bridge of friendship between countries than through personal contact, if the right people are selected."

Student Poll

Question: What is your opinion on the Peace Corps Program?
Dick Kelly '63: "I think it's a very good program if the people are trained properly."
Anne Dugan '63: "I think it's a very good program, but I might have reservations about joining it. I don't think I could be self-sufficient enough."
Carol Colway '63: "I think it's great! However, I know a lot of the kids who took the test just for the experience with no intention of joining the Peace Corps."
Doris Mulich '63: "I think it's the type of program which will give a big boost to world affairs or could just as easily be harmful in its purpose - in the true sense of the word."

Clifford Rugg '65: "After its developed more, the Peace Corps will become much more effective. The Peace Corps is the best example of the change that has taken place in the relations between Western and African nations. There has been an exchange of ideas and culture - on the same level. This is all we can expect for the present however, when fully developed, the Peace Corps will become an important medium for cultural exchanges."

Corps Grants Good Benefits

The Peace Corps program provides many benefits to its volunteers.

Allowance
Since volunteers live in accordance with the standard of living of their native counterparts in the host country, they receive an allowance for food, clothing, housing, when necessary and medical care in the local currencies. Transportation is provided to and from assignments and for transfers from one post to another.

Insurance
Volunteers are under the Health Service during their training and assignment period. They receive disability benefits and life insurance during their period of service.

Readjustment Pay
Each volunteer receives an adjustment allowance for the first month for volunteers and $75 per month for volunteers who can be obtained upon completion of satisfactory service. Each day leave of absence after one year of satisfactory service is paid out the area in which he is assigned.

Other Benefits
The Peace Corps also contributes to Social Security on the basis of each volunteer's "payment" allowance. A volunteer receives Civil Service status for the period of his service and is preferred, although not exempt, from military service during that time. At any time a volunteer is called into active military service, he may leave the Peace Corps at any time and is not committed by the application, examination or training.

Selection
Selection is designed to identify people with ability, background, technical skill, motivation and "sense of mission" required for effective performance in the Peace Corps assignment overseas. Emphasis is placed on maturity of the individuals selected. Selection begins with recruitment and is continuous throughout the training period. Volunteers are continuously checked even after they are assigned to a project.

A volunteer must have a minimal level of intelligence, high enough to meet the demands of the project and to cope with unforeseen challenges. He must have sufficient knowledge in United States history, institutions and values to profit from instruction and to be prepared to answer questions intelligently. He must have top physical condition, stamina and emotional stability with which to sustain the normal stresses of the program. He must have those personal qualities for establishing effective relationships with fellow workers such as warmth, friendliness, patience and respect for and acceptance of other people regardless of race, religion, social class or ethnic origin. He must have competence in his job and an aptitude for language. Finally, he must have had successful experiences for living abroad such as prior intensive area study experiences in family or geographical environment in the United States, apprenticeship or experiences relevant to the job to be done or successful experiences in group activities involving close relationships with persons of diversified background.

Association to Create Understanding Peace Corps Calls Youth to Serve; What You Can Do For Your Country

The various projects of the Peace Corps are conducted through contracts and grants to private agencies engaged in Peace Corps - type projects; through contracts or grants with colleges, universities or other educational institutions; through programs of other United States government agencies; through programs of the United Nations; and through programs administered directly by the Peace Corps.

Volunteers are assigned to a project according to the type of skill and area of knowledge that is needed. Projects have been established and are planned for areas in Africa, Asia, the Far East and Latin America.

The following is a resume of projects that are in progress up to date.

Latin America
Forty-five Peace Corps volunteers, men and women, college graduates, will participate in the Chile project. Volunteers will assist in programs of community development and rural education as members of development teams of Chile's Instituto de Educacion Rural, a non-governmental, private foundation. In addition to working with Chilean counterparts in the villages, volunteers will help promote interest in educational radio programs at the community level, and teach young campesinos to carry on community development work. The majority of the volunteers will be assigned to areas where damage and suffering were the greatest as a result of the 1960 earthquakes, tidal waves, and floods. Training will be conducted for two months at the University of Notre Dame and two months in La Vazquez, Chile at the Instituto. Five weeks of intensive training will follow, conducted at various training centers throughout Chile. The project is administered by the Indiana Conference on Higher Education with the University of Notre Dame acting as the administering agent.

Increasing farm productivity, improving village health and education, raising rural living standards and helping Colombia achieve economic and social stability in its rural areas are the goals of the Colombia Project. Sixty-one volunteers and leaders with experience and practical skills in farming, animal husbandry, carpentry, masonry, and surveying will work with Colombian counterparts in rural towns and villages. They are under the supervision of CARE and the Peace Corps, in cooperation with the Colombian government. Nine weeks of training at Rutgers University were followed by 5 weeks at Tibaitata Institute near Bogota, Colombia.

The agricultural and rural community development project on the island of St. Lucia is designed to serve as pilot project for other islands in the West Indies Federation which have similar economic and social conditions.

Sixteen volunteers, some college graduates with teaching experience, others with agricultural college or rural backgrounds, are helping to increase livestock and vegetable production, establish modern irrigation systems, introduce modern soil conservation practices, develop a farm youth organization and improve the island's teacher training and public health systems. Under the supervision of a voluntary U. S. organization, Inter-Inc., in conjunction with the St. Lucia government, volunteers studied at Iowa State University's agricultural college for one month and or five weeks at the University College of the West Indies, St. Augustine, Trinidad.

Asia
Volunteers who are graduates of agricultural colleges with practical

Working together.

Grueling Training Program Prepares Eligible Candidates

Since the training program is the final phase of selection for a Peace Corps candidate, volunteers are at all times tested with the standard selection criteria in mind. Volunteers are trained by experts in the language and culture of the host country, in technical fields which a project will require and in the institutions and government of the United States. The training period usually lasts from 2-6 months, the length varying with the requirements of the project.

Volunteers take a refresher course in his field of special skill or techniques of the job ahead of him. They learn how to do their job, how to teach it and how to prepare a timetable of insured success for their host country.

They study the host country's language, customs, history, traditions, economy, and politics. They Eighty-one volunteers, University graduates with high academic achievement are now teaching in the secondary schools of Ghana. They receive an annual allowance of $1000 a salary equivalent to the income of their Ghanaian counterparts from the government.

Training consisted of two months at the University of California at Berkeley and one month at the University of Ghana at Legon. The project is administered by the Peace Corps and is under the supervision of the Ghana Ministry of Education.

Two projects are scheduled for Nigeria. One will provide teachers to assist in improving the secondary school system, the other will aid in expanding the University of Nigeria at Nsukka.

The Secondary School Teachers project is directly administered by the Peace Corps. One group of volunteers were trained for two months at Harvard University and will complete four months at the University College, Ibadan, Nigeria. Another group completed three months at the University of California, Los Angeles and will

The Peace Corps, since its beginning, has received compliments and criticism. However, before the existence of such a program can be regarded as "good" or "bad," it must have time to prove itself.

The spirit of the program seems to revolve around the statement made by President Kennedy in his inaugural address: "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country." It purposes to make available a pool of trained manpower to help other countries meet urgent needs, while achieving the goal "... understanding and trust that arise from common effort."

Although the goals set forth by the Peace Corps program may seem too ideal to insure any success, its originators, leaders and workers felt otherwise. As one volunteer stated, "... We are not dewey-eyed, young zealots, as some people have called us, out to save the world. . . . We want to be more than ambassadors of good will. We want to do the job they (the host countries) are asking us to do and as a by-product of doing that job, we want to create an image of America.

Peace Corps is Permanent
A "pilot" program originally established by executive order from President Kennedy in March, 1961, was finally made permanent by legislation on Sept. 21, 1961.

The Bill authorized appointments subject to Senate confirmation of a Peace Corps director at an annual salary of $20,000 and a deputy director at $19,500 per year. It put the Corps under the policy direction of supervision of the State Secretary and authorized a "termination" pay of $125 per month for volunteer leaders and $75 per month for volunteers. It also provided that volunteers swear that they do not advocate the overthrow of the government, nor knowingly belong to any organization which does.

370 Volunteers Serve
The director, Robert Sargent Shriver estimates that at the present time 370 Peace Corps volunteers are serving abroad and 375 more are in training. Two-thirds are serving in the capacity of teachers, one-sixth are serving on agricultural and community development and one-sixth on health and engineering. It is expected that by June, 1962, there will be 1,000 volunteers abroad.

The Peace Corps will serve wherever a nation seeks it, and it will not extend a project into any country where it has not been specifically invited.

The Corps and the Government
The Corps is now a semi-autonomous agency within the Department of State. Operations are subject to coordination and supervision of the chiefs of the United States diplomatic missions in each area or country.

Volunteers are accorded the same privileges by the host country as are accorded to private citizens of the United States resident there. The chief of the USA mission in that country has the responsibility to raise with the host country any problem concerning Peace Corps volunteers arising from action by the host country. The chiefs of the mission will have the authority to recall any volunteer or volunteer leader if in his judgment the interests of the United States so require.

Peace Corps Is Example
It is hoped by supporters of the program that the Peace Corps will set an example for other nations who will then make their own efforts to increase the welfare of all men and to improve understanding among all nations.

AMIA Basketball Begins; APA, Goobers, Lake Win

The 1961-62 edition of AMIA basketball got under way last Tuesday with four teams seeing action in league one. The Goobers were successful in their initial outing as they crushed the Cronos' squad 47-34. Jim Olson racked up 15 points to lead the Goobers' attack while teammate Larry Green contributed 12. Olson scored 10 of his 15 points in the second half.

The Cronos got off to a slow start and even with a 26 point second half were unable to overcome the 22-8 half-time deficit. Milgate was high man as he dropped in 14 points. Ireton was second in the scoring column with 8.

The Madison-Lake team rolled over Waterbury 1, 39-31, in the second contest of the evening. Dick Kimbell was the stand-out as he cut the cords for 16 points, ten of them coming in the first half. Dick Oderizzi backed him up with 7 markers. The Madison-Lake quintet pulled away to a 21-12 half-time lead and were never seriously threatened for the rest of the game. Joe Fowler's 7 points was tops for Men's while Sherwin Bowen and Tod Brown came through with 6 apiece.

In a practice game APA trampled KB, 69-41. Herb Dieck piled up 18 points to lead the barrage for APA. Harold Popp chalked up 13 points for KB.

In the first, second league contest the Apaches dumped the Infinites, 50-42.

HATS OFF TO JOE

Although the snow is starting to fall and indoor sports are getting the call, (who said that sports writers would never make good poets?) we would like to boot you off soccerball around a little more before we deflate it and set it back on the equipment room shelf. Most of us know that we really had one heck of a soccer season this year. It was a tremendous team effort and we believe that much credit is due to the man who molded our forces into such a well-coordinated unit. Whether he was hammering it up at the Homecoming bonfire rally, on TV, or along the sidelines, or just giving one of his patented pre-game pep talks, he bubbled with the type of energy, spirit, and enthusiasm that can set a team on fire. This is a statistic that cannot be put in the books, yet how many times might it have been that little spark that measured the difference between victory and defeat? We had excellent players, but even the best teams need that something of someone to get them ready psychologically to win. We had that someone who may have made the difference between a good and an excellent record. So here's a word of thanks to Joe Garcia for a tremendous soccer season.

SPEAKING OF BASKETBALL

As we weren't . . . How's this for a scoop? On December 2, 1955 the then recently acquired basketball coach Dick Sauers, directed his first State basketball gym against a squad from New Paltz. Now, six years, 93 more wins and a Doctorate degree later, he may coach his 10th victory. The date?—this Saturday, December 2. The team?—you guessed it, New Paltz!!!

JENKS' JUNK

Bad news — Clem Crow, star of last year's wrestling squad, celebrated Thanksgiving by busting his ankle. We are not sure how bad the injury is, but it can't be too bad since rumor has it that he has been spending his night dancing in the Bru game room. . . . Our soccer team placed three men on the Conference All-Star teams: Karl Hen Gerstenberger and Franz Zwicklebauer made the first team; Erwin Seimon, the second. . . . We understand that the frosh men have been enjoying their gym classes. Nothing like a good brisk walk to the bulletin board every day.

Strong Elected WAA Prexy Vollyball Hit With 2 Forfeits

By Nancy Schogoleff

VOLLEYBALL:

The results from Tuesday night's league are as follows:

Gamma Kappa Phi and Alden Hall forfeited out of the league.

Just a word about those forfeits. There have been quite a few complaints about this rule. If one lateness or game missed and a team forfeits out of the league was set up some time ago by vollyball managers. Let's see your teams comply with the rule rather than complain about it.

BOWLING:

There will be a bowling captains election on the Student Union on Monday, Dec. 4. Bowling will be a two game average. A compulsory bring your own handicap.

W. A. A. ELECTIONS:

In the election, Pat McDermott won the position of Vice-president while Pat McDermott was made Vice-president. The position of Treasurer was decided.

Prospects Good For Albany State Basketball Season As Sauersmen Open At New Paltz Tomorrow Nite

By GARY SMITH

The 1961-1962 version of Albany State basketball will launch its season tomorrow night at the New Paltz High School gym. Last year, the hoopers, under the direction of Coach Dick Sauers, compiled a fine 21-7 overall record. The team, greatly hurt by the loss of co-captains Don Cohen and Sherwin Bowen, will be looking to five returning lettermen and a fine crop of Sophomores to plug the gap.

State for the first time will play all but one of its home games on the spacious Washington Avenue Armory court. This will provide much more comfort for the spectators but will also cause the team to change its style of play. The Peds will have to run more in the Armory and as Sauers said, "We are learning to get the ball into play quicker and we will utilize the fast break more than before."

Returning from last year's varsity squad are seniors Jim Greene and co-captains John Wallace and Roger Casey. Juniors Jim Oppedisano and Bill Carmello are the two other returnees. Up from the freshman team which compiled an 8-14 record are Ray Weeks, Bill Vomaska and Don Grud. Rounding out the squad are Juniors Andy Cibulsky and Tom Lyon and Soph Don Deluca. Both Deluca and Lyon are transfer students. Paul Sheridan, a St. Bonaventure transfer, is another hooper.

Coach Sauers stated that his probable starting lineup against New Paltz would consist of Carmello, Deluca, Oppedisano, Wallace and Weeks whom he stated, "work better together than any other unit I have." Sauers also stated that Roger Casey, who reported late suffering from a shoulder injury, would see plenty of action.

Carmello, whom Sauers described as "my best probable floor leader" will be in the backcourt. Bill has improved upon his already deadly set shot and should be something to reckon with this year.

Deluca, whom Sauers describes as "potentially my best player," will also be a starter. Sauers feels that Don should improve throughout the season and will be a real standout.

Jim Oppedisano, who scored 438 points last year and was second high rebounder to Cohen, is expected to be one of the Purple and Gold stalwarts this year. The "Opp" was described by Sauers as "a good rebounder, but more sporadic than Cohen as far as sustained rebounding is concerned."

Co-captain John Wallace, a "steady, good man in the clutch," should contribute highly this year. His hustle and desire could be a big factor.

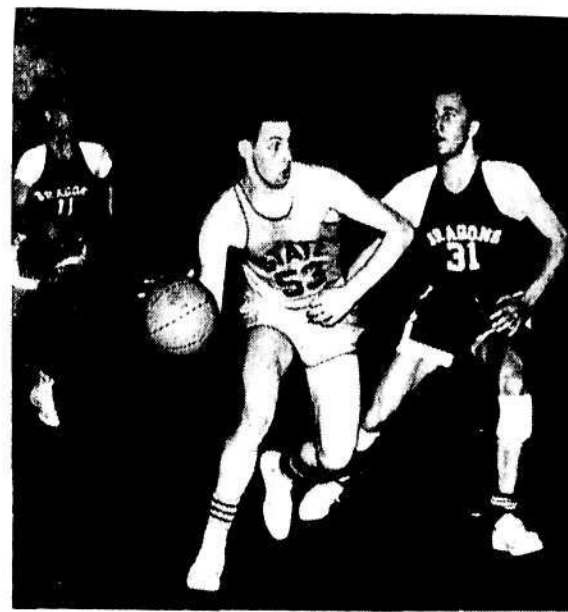

Ray Weeks, last year's freshman ace who set a scoring record of 436 points, is Sauers' fifth starter. Much is expected of Weeks who the coach said, "is a hard worker whose defense has improved."

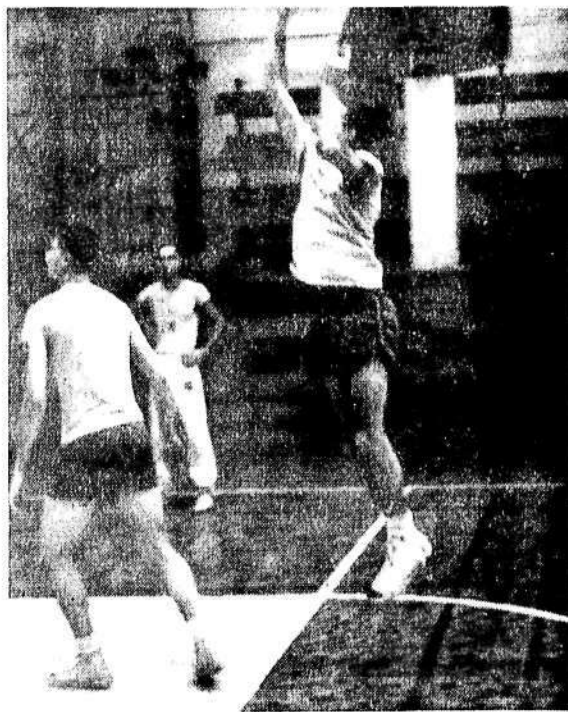

"Awright you guys! How many times have I told you to get BACK on defense. Loaf once more and it's 10 stairs."

Jim Oppedisano hits on a jumper for 2 of the 18 points he chalked up last year.

Returning letterman, Jim Greene, drives against Laddy Decker in '60-'61 Oneonta tilt.

Pre-season practice session sees Ray Weeks shooting and Bill Vomaska rebounding under watchful eyes of "Doc" Sauers.

"Get up there John!" Wallace hits for 2 against Suffolk U.
