Beck Defies Investigation By Senate Racket Committee

By JOHN YAGER

Senator John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) and his investigating committee on union rackets were openly defied this week by Dave Beck, President of the International Teamsters Union.

Beck's Money Problems

The committee sought to determine if Beck had taken $322,448 in teamsters' dues for his own personal use. Beck appeared before the committee in Washington Wednesday and openly defied surrender of his personal records to the Senate probers. Beck went further than most balking witnesses had in the past by invoking the first three articles of the Constitution, the Fourth and Fifth amendments and then questioning the committee's authority.

Beck had the records with him and still refused to turn them over to the probers after he had been served with a subpoena. When one of the Senators pointed out to Beck that he was bound by the AFL-CIO code of ethics which says that union officials who invoke the Fifth Amendment "have no right to continue to hold office," Beck replied "I am only bound by the law of the international union." Beck also added that he intended to seek re-election by the 1,400,000 members of his unions.

Emergency Meeting

While Beck was appearing before the investigating committee, President George Meany of the AFL-CIO called for an emergency meeting to be held today of the labor organization's 26-member Executive Council to consider Beck's case.

There is a great deal of speculation as to what action the Executive Council members may take. They could remove Beck from his jobs as an AFL-CIO vice president and Executive Council member, suspend the Teamsters Union from the AFL-CIO, or hold their own investigation and then suspend the

Memories Come Of This? Hectic Halls Hit Students

By WILLIAM FRANKONIS

"Come next Easter, come next Easter, save your eggs..." Well here it is almost Easter already, and some people have been saving their eggs since last year. Some one please come forward and let them know what they've supposed to do now. Do they give them to the Salvation Army, or the Brubacher Kitchen, or drop them in one of the mailboxes in lower Draper along with everything else that goes in there, or what?

Speaking of mailboxes, we took the new covers, we took the new bulletin boards, but if they think that we're going to let them water their horses down there, the State College has got another guess coming. It's bad enough we have to put up with rabbits.

Continuing along the Draper Peristyle to the one between Husted and Richardson, what's wrong with going to the Dawn Drag in Shortie Pajamas? Is it weren't for shortie

Double back to the cafeteria, what are we running here? A school for junior curdsharks? Hearts anyone? Pinacle? Bridge? What happened to culture and what we represent? Doesn't anyone play the good old-fashioned games any more? Games like War, or Old Maid, or Musical Chairs (which was very popular last year).

Back out in the hall again as our ship sinks slowly in the West, we leave our island paradise to the friendly cannibals. We leave behind memories... gladly. Others leave behind arms and legs. But as we go, one question still remains in our minds. Who the heck it Antigone?

Page Promises . . .

The vacation mood has hit us all. Most of us are marking off the days to that "happy hour" when we will be hopping aboard the train and speeding back to the old home town. However, let's not begin this vacation too early. Let's give some consideration to the very important event which is taking place this morning at 10 a.m. in Page Hall. That's right, it is another convocation. But, how about taking a chance and attending this meeting? You won't lose your Pedagogue if you are not there, but you will lose the opportunity of hearing the campaign speeches of both Student Association Presidential candidates, and the nominees for the position of secretary. In addition, it may well be to your advantage to get a look at the other candidates for SA offices as they are introduced.

We have been witnesses to clever political maneuvers during this campaign, now let's see if the candidates and their parties have as much to offer from the floor. You must make an individual decision as to which way you are going to cast your ballot, and you must know your candidates and their political platforms if this decision is to be an intelligent one. This election rally offers you one means for becoming thoroughly acquainted with each candidate, for questioning them, and for demanding answers, answers which are more than meaningless words; concrete answers which determine the position and qualification of each candidate, and answers which offer both solutions and suggestions. Be there—it will be worth the hour of your time.

As an added reminder, attend the election rally which will be held the Thursday night after vacation in Brubacher. Here is your opportunity to question the candidates for Myskania. This is another first, and you are the only one who can whip it into a useful and enlightening meeting.

THE Profession . . .

We are all aware of the Board of Regents recent decision to increase the requirements for teacher certification. Along with the increase of hours in our major fields, the board has decided that teachers need more professional training. This latter requirement has raised the ire of many liberal arts school graduates who would rather take courses for the Master's degree in their major field than in professional training. A liberal arts college does not offer sufficient teacher training to permit its graduates to step into teaching without further professional work. The program here at State College not only provides a broad liberal arts program, but also a substantial program in teacher training.

It would seem that the liberal arts schools place more emphasis on teaching subject content than on the children their graduates are to teach, when both are of equal importance. A teacher who can rattle off scientific concepts is a failure unless that same teacher can make the children he is teaching understand those concepts. This is where professional training is essential—a teacher must have some idea as to what makes his students "tick," and what methods to employ in teaching.

Our whole program here is geared to provide future teachers with a knowledge of subjects and students. Teaching is a profession, although not yet recognized as such by the State of New York. Medical colleges train doctors, Law colleges train lawyers, and Teachers' colleges train teachers.

Liberal Arts school graduates and their supporters have no right to expect that they are to step out of college and into teaching without an adequate knowledge of the profession itself. We must all remember that we are teachers of children, and not merely human storehouses of subject matter!

Question: If you were suffering from CEPHALALGIA, how would you treat yourself?

Dave Case '60: A hot shower with eye soap, liberal dose of D.D.T., and a penicillin shot to play safe.

Joanne Marro '58: At first I probably wouldn't know what to do, but after due consideration I'd probably try getting rid of it by pills, psychological treatment and ducking my head in water. Maybe some poor soul would buy it from me for his dog. Then I could try shooting myself.

Zacharie J. Clements '59: I would hurry to the local pharmacy and purchase a "do it yourself kit." These things are rather embarrassing to take to a physician. Besides, it might be contagious.

Ann Kinsler '57: I'd treat myself by taking a month's rest in Florida. Don Mansfield '60: I would most certainly cool it by all means. If this didn't work, then I would try a new challis to remedy this boss allergy.

Sandy Berstein '57: The first thing I'd do is call the F.B.I. and tell them to get lost. Then I'd fall down into the Grand Canyon which is the only healing establishment for cephalalgia in the world. Then I'd call Jayne Mansfield down and have a ball.

Joe Purcell '57: I would live and love it. If the disease resulted in excessive fatigue I would take a couple of aspirins and get a good night's sleep.

Gail Roberts '59: If I were suffering from the mentioned condition I would begin to concentrate on my studies in a more serious way. I should want to find out just what my problem was. I think the problem is my ignorance of the subject. My mentioned ignorance prevents me from saying more.

James Gary Holway '59: First of all, if I did recognize the symptoms, I would not treat myself. I would talk it over with my physician and see if he recommended me seeing a specialist. If he were too uncertain, I would see the specialist anyway and see if he recommended that I see my psychiatrist and if my psychiatrist was vague, then I would be obliged to forget about it and leave it up to "HIM."

Don McClain '59: Before I had anything drop off I would rush to a doctor and have him drain off the puss, then take a quick shot of raw whiskey and two chlorals because I really don't know what the heck I have! Personally, if I was suffering from cephalalgia I would nose on down to the nearest drugstore and get me some good old fashioned ASPIRIN, 'cause Brother Webster defines the word as just a plain, ordinary HEADACHE.

LELAND Those of you who are rabid Belafonte fans are in for a treat. Harry Belafonte and Dorothy Dandridge star in Carmen Jones. It is impossible to praise this picture too highly. The second feature is Fixed Bayonets, a Gung Ho war movie of fighting in Korea. PALACE Tattered Dress. A "last moving drama" with Jeff Chandler and Jeanne Crain. The second feature is Kelly and Me. A comedy about "Kelly the pup who kept people in jobs."

STRAND Heavens Knows, Mr. Alyson with Robert Mitchum and Deborah Kerr. The story of a nun and a soldier thrown together in an enemy-held Pacific island during WW II. A pleasant and delicate story. Also showing is Storm Rider with Scott Brady and Mala Powers. A Western by cowboy!

DELAWARE Guild of Naples with Vittorio DeSica, Sophia Loren, Silvana Mangano and Toto, Italy's Charlie Chaplin. It's been drawing good audiences so it'll be held over this weekend. An Italian comedy with English sub-titles.

REIZ The Ten Commandments The super-colossal spectacular on the story of Moses. Seats by reservation only.

Yes. But is it useful?

"A politician is an animal who can sit on a fence and yet keep both ears to the ground."

SLIPPERY SITUATION Fig rally in assembly today! Everybody come and listen; it should be quite short since there won't be any vice presidential candidates to lead your cars. Yawn! Oh well, one has been disqualified and the others have a right to be in or out of office. They'll all be re-nominated again, but don't get your hopes up. Seems to us that some pretty smooth politicking has been going on when people get two tries at the Constitution test. Anybody want to try for three? (after everybody declines, of course, and a new election has been declared.)

LET'S LET LOOSE There's a lot of tryouts going on these days. "Antigone," A.D. plays a lot and now the forthcoming M.U.D. skit. We urge everyone to be at 7:00 p.m. on Sunday for tryouts. You don't have to be recommended, suggested, or pass tests to be in this one. Ability is all that counts.

YAWN! YAWN! Bunny hop! Bunny run! Lots of fun for everyone! We refer, naturally to Student Union Board's annual (yawn) Dawn Dance at 5:00 a.m. on Saturday. Practice getting up early for those 8:00 a.m. classes. We hear the decorations, music, refreshments, and door prize are super dooper special.

DEMANDING DEMAGOGUERY Glad to see Messrs. Tate and Hunk really on the ball with group house campaigning. This is probably the first time they've ever been surrounded by hundreds of females at once. Good consolation prize for the loser. . . . one heck of a fan club following!

EVERYBODY ENJOYS EQUANIMITY All the organizations in this school are not ends in themselves, but they are means to better ways of getting along cooperatively with other people. One thing we like around here is the way most groups leave their meetings in an adult frame of mind after heated discussions. But this is not always the case. It's a pretty bad thing when certain organizations leave their meetings emotionally disturbed. It's not a sign of intelligence or maturity when antagonistic individuals get carried away with themselves and wreck group harmony purposelessly.

ALBANY AREA AUDIENCE APPLAUDS Not many students were present at the excellent production of "The Insect Comedy." State College Theatre is building up quite a following in the Albany area, and Patrice's review proved that once again we had a top notch dramatic production by our excellent staff. Did so many students stay away because the play was free and they felt they have to pay in order to see something worthwhile (remember it all comes from student tax), or were they afraid to see themselves likened to insects? Our opinion is that State College students have so many extra-curricular activities, that as a result, they can't separate the wheat from the chaff.

LOVELY LEVITIS Notice the "dying ported plant" in the Myskania mailbox this week. It was kind of funny but it showed that people are going pretty far to prove their points these days. And by the way, the baby carriage display in Convocation last Friday just showed the mental level to which Convocations have degenerated!

QUESTION OF THE WEEK Has the "savior" forgotten the "old testament"?

The Open Mind

By ART PLOTNIK

Hi kids! It's time for the weekly adventures of Art Plotnik and his magic pen. When we left Art last week, he was in the land of sororities, using his magic powers to bring innocent young maidens under his control. This week's story is entitled, "Art Plotnik gets a dog." It is absolutely a true story, and of course the names have not been changed because Art Plotnik loves to see his name in print.

It seems that Childe Plotnik was sleeping one night when he had a vision, telling him that a dog was to make his dreams come true. In order to accept a young puppy from a girl in school who was anxious to find a home for it, now this was indeed strange, for it is well known that college students are in no position to keep pets. However, Childe Plotnik was determined, and thus he brought the small brown quivering ball of life into his humble abode. Twenty-four hours later the young adventurer put an ad in the paper trying to get rid of the dog. Now what strange series of events led to this unexpected change of Plotnik's heart, which was originally sincerely

Forum Delegates Represents Sweden In Model UN Council

On March 21, 22 and 23, Albany State Teachers College was represented at a conference held by the International Relations Club held at St. Lawrence University. State was represented by Jack Trombly '60 and Malcolm Rogers '57, who voted the outstanding delegate to the conference.

There were representatives from ten colleges and universities at the conference. They set up a Model Security Council with each school representing a member country of the actual Security Council. State represented Sweden.

Questions which were considered at the conference include: reparations for Egypt, aid to the Near East, the question of a permanent United Nations emergency police force, a U.N. commission to investigate internationalism of artificial waterways, the crisis in Hungary, a plebiscite for Kashmir.

An example of the type of decisions made by the members of the conference includes this plan submitted by State in its role of representing Sweden in reference to permanent U.N. emergency police force: "It has been decided to place upon a permanent basis a small United Nations Emergency Force which can be employed by the Security Council in pursuance of its authority under the Charter, and requests the Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council, in pursuance of Article 47 of the Charter, to propose to the Council suitable plans for the recruitment of such a permanent United Nations Emergency Force."

Spotlight On State

By JAN CHAMPAGNE

In about a month, a short, black-haired, swarthy-complected young man will be coming to State to speak at an open English Evening. It will not be his first time here. Perhaps the most noticeable thing about him will be the absence of a Byronic collar or poetic slouch.

College Years Luke Ziles' father was from Central America and after his death, Luke and his brother came to Schenectady to make their home with their grandmother. College beckoned: Albany State was near; and Luke entered as an English major.

Wearing Apparel Miss Beehler states that girls should wear dark sweaters and a single strand of pearls; boys must wear a dark suit jacket, dark tie, and white shirt.

Work Experience Luke has worked at various jobs, sometimes on his brother's farm, but has concentrated mainly on his poetry. At present he is working as a technical writer for a company which manufactures electronic equipment.

Senate Hearings Create Serious Results For Labor Movement

By FRANK SHEPARD

Already the hearings conducted by the Senate Select Committee on Labor and Management in Washington are setting up a chain reaction of reverberations. For the past quarter century the labor movement in the United States has been growing in size and influence without major political restraints. Despite the protests of organized labor over the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act in 1947, the economic and political growth of the labor movement has not been materially arrested. During these past ten years, however, numerous attempts have been made in several states to restrict organized labor by passage of legislation called "right to work laws" by its proponents. However, with the recent exception of Indiana, these laws have not yet been passed in the highly industrialized states. Interested individuals have speculated whether a trend was developing in a serious curb of labor unions.

McCarthy vs. Reuther?

Now apparently the propitious time has arrived. It can readily be seen that the action of the Executive Council of the AFL-CIO was speedily taken in an attempt to minimize the effect of Beck's dismissal, unfortunate performance before the McClellan Committee and the American public. Instead of adopting the more orthodox defensive attitude toward the actions of one of its high-ranking officials, the Union council seized the ball in suspending him in an attempt to dissociate the Beck stigma from the rest of organized labor. Walter Reuther, Vice-President of the AFL-CIO and President of the United Auto Workers was outspoken in his denunciation of Mr. Beck and Beck tactics when confronted recently with this question on a public af-airs radio program. And in the wings, Washington informants say, hovers the spectre of Senator McClellan who is allegedly planning a case against Mr. Reuther himself. The thesis of this case is purported to be charges that Reuther's UAW union has spent a great sum of money to drive a Wisconsin (the censured senator's home state) firm out of business.

Unions In For Trouble

Let us not forget that the official title of the investigation being conducted by Senator McClellan's bipartisan committee contains the words, "Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Fields." Union officials naturally are waiting with baited breath for the management phase of the investigation to begin, but it looks as if there will be enough sensational union affairs to keep the committee occupied for several weeks to come, and the union officials would be well advised to not hold their breath in the meantime.

The Outcome

Some business spokesmen are hinting that a federal "right to work" law is due to receive increasing support in the Congress and may be passed within a year or less. If so, such a law would be far cry from the restrictions imposed by the Taft-Hartley Act. It is probable that it would provide for the return of the open shop, and if such should be the case, organized labor would have suffered its greatest defeat in over a generation. It is almost certain that Congress will enact some system of federal auditing of union pension and welfare funds. In addition, some restrictions are slated to be placed on the support of political campaigns by union funds. How stringent these may be only time will tell.

Forum Collects Books To Aid Asian Education

The Forum of Politics is sponsoring a Books for Asia Campaign, announces Columbine Baran '58, Chairman. This campaign is to collect humanities and social studies textbooks in answer to an appeal made by academic leaders concerned about the lack of adequate textbooks in many Asian universities.

Textbooks may deal with such subjects as anthropology, art, literature, classics, music, economics, education, English, geography, history, law, social welfare, journalism, philosophy, psychology, political science, comparative religion, Asian studies, sociology, science, and technology. The books must have been published after 1945. Works by standard authors including Dickens, Hawthorne, Hemingway, and Plato are also needed.

Anyone having such books is asked to put them in boxes which will be placed in Lower Draper.

Student Council: Council Limits Revue Budget; Hears Report On Songbook

By FRANK VETOSKY

Student Council met promptly at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday night to discuss the various items listed on its agenda.

The question of the Student-Faculty Relations Committee was the first order of business. President Collins has suggested that the students should have a representative on this Council. It was pointed out that this body determines the way in which courses are set up at the college and other important matters pertaining to the student body.

D&A Sponsors State Players

Freida Cohen '58, Vice-President of Dramatics and Arts Council, announces the presentation of "She Stoops to Conquer" by the New Paltz Players of New Paltz State Teachers College. Wednesday, at 8:30 p.m., in Page Hall Auditorium. There will be only one performance of this play. The play is a satire concerning social classes, and was written by Oliver Goldsmith.

"She Stoops to Conquer" is the second Annual College Invitation Production sponsored by Dramatics and Art Council. The purpose of the guest productions is to make available to State College students the excellent performances of the college and university theatres throughout New York State and New England.

Tickets for this performance are free with student tax cards. If anyone desires to receive his ticket in advance, they will be available at the Dramatics and Art Council ticket booth which is located in the lower peristyle between Draper and Husted.

A motion was made and passed by the Council to limit the State College Revue Fund to $1500. Clyde Payne '57 will name members to a committee to decide what should be done with the money left over from this year's Revue. Council suggested that the fund be used to purchase a hand printing press or a bus.

Members of Council do not feel that the National Student Association is worth joining. Furthermore, no representative will be sent to the NSA meeting this year. A recommendation was made that future Student Council members neither join nor send delegates to future NSA meetings.

Payne Attends Meeting

A motion was made to send Payne to the Confederation of the University of the State of New York conference at Harpur College April 27 and 28. The motion was passed by Council.

A committee from Myskania was investigating the practicality of publishing a College Songbook which would be the cost of printing was far too excessive. It would have been necessary to contract a New York City firm to do the work because of the unusual methods needed to print both the notes and the words for the songs.

Hinck, Tate Vie For Student Association Presidency; Student Body Goes To The Polls As Campaigns End

This year, under the prodding of Student Council and through agency of Myskania, the campaigning for the spring elections has been "opened up"; most restrictions have been removed and the candidates and their supporters have been given a wide range of opportunity for electioneering. Up to this point, the campaign has been, to say the least, most interesting. The issues of this election—and I mean real issues, such as ability and experience—have been ignored and the campaign has seemed to settle—at least from one side—on vague generalities.

RICHARD HINCK JACK TATE

An SA Coordinator . . . The office of SA President has somehow—and perhaps deliberately—been reduced to the lowest common denominator. If we are to believe my opponent and his supporters, the SA President is merely a coordinator—a "positive" coordinator is the correct term I believe—and experience and proven ability are of little or no value as qualification of this office.

Or A President?

I must take issue with this idea: the President of Student Association is more than a sounding board for everyone else's opinions and ideas. He is a leader, in every sense of the word, and as such must be able to make his own decisions, and arrive at sound policies. To do this the President must, of course, consider and evaluate the ideas of others, but in the final analysis he must be able to coalesce these opinions into a single idea or policy. And to do this requires a working knowledge of government and its procedures. In short it requires experience—the experience of active participation and actual doing. Mere observation of student government is simply not enough. Experience is the best teacher!

And yet, the duties of SA President are not confined to formulating and implementing policy; the President is also the Chairman of Student Council. He must guide the meetings and insure the effective functioning of Student Council. Now, I contend—and most people in government agree—that it takes at least from 1/2 a semester to a full semester before a new council member is a sure, positive, thoughtful contributor to council. It is inconceivable to me that an individual can be expected to be a responsible positive President of Student Association without any previous experience in student government, without ever having held an elected office, or not having been to more than 4 or 5 Council meetings in 3 years—including two since he was nominated for the SA Presidency.

Gail Housh '59 has been awarded the coveted Eldred Scholarship by the New York State Teachers' Association, announces Oscar E. Lanford, Dean of the College. Miss Housh is the fourth State College student to receive the award since its creation five years ago.

Editor Schedules Special Issue

There will be a special issue of the State College News Saturday, May 4, announces Marsha Lawrence '57, issue editor for Myskania. The issue, containing the Spring election tabulations, will be distributed after the Moving-Up Day ceremonies in Page Hall.

Class Elections

Members of the Junior, Sophomore, and freshman classes will elect their slate of officers for the next school year. Election results will be announced at the morning Moving-Up Day exercise next Saturday.

"I have had the opportunity to talk to many of you before and of necessity, I have had to talk in general terms. There was a need to be ambiguous and vague in order to formulate and incorporate our ideas into a platform that would most effectively represent the needs and desires of the student body. The time for vagueness and generalizations has passed. Let's get down to "brass tacks."

There are three major areas of consideration relating to our mechanical structure of government. These include January to January Elections, Senate-Unicameral Government—and Myskania. Other areas of consideration include student-faculty-Administration relations, larger representation on Social Calendar, and the general consideration of relating issues to the interests and concerns of as many individuals and facets of college as possible in order to maintain and build positiveness, respect, and interest in our Student Government, among many others. Let's consider these areas one by one, analyzing the needs and problems presented.

January-January Elections

We have been discussing January-January elections for several years, we have been promised January-January elections for several years, and yet, nothing has been done. The need for January-January elections is evident as we recognize that there is a great increase in the number of Seniors now being placed off-campus, that seniors are concerned with their future including where they will teach, and what they will do after they graduate. The need for this change is also evident by the fact that a great deal of the work is now being done by the Juniors. What are some of the problems to be overcome? Campaigning before studying for the finals, (which can be carried on between Thanksgiving and Christmas) and the problem of having an impressive installation of officers (which may be taken care of by having an Inaugural Ball, Class Banquets, and Jazz Concert for a large, coordinated, impressive weekend) must be considered.

Senate-Unicameral Government

The need is obvious as we must have an effective nucleus to do the work, and an elimination of compulsory Convocation. The right of referendum, recall, and petition must not be forfeited as the student body must have the final opportunity to voice its opinion. How will this body be represented? Four elected by each class, the President, Vice-President, and Secretary of Student Association, six voted at large, a non-voting faculty member. What should the role of this body be? It should pass legislation, recognize the interests and abilities of Student Association by many effective committee appointments, and provide full publicity of its decisions for our benefit as members of SA. (Publicity officer to act as liaison between Senate and Student Body—Secretary's role important) and have publicized open meetings. Although these are only a few parts of its role, they must be considered.

Myskania

Myskania should consist of 13 members who are elected for their judicial attributes, elected in January. Myskania in this next semester should act as an advisory board to the President, as a judicial body. Its role and participation should be expanded along these lines: Advisory capacity, act as mediators in
