Explanation of proposal:
The Department of Political Science would like majors to formally declare a concentration. The concentrations are: American Politics, Political Theory, Public Law and Global Politics. Requirements for these concentrations are already in effect. Undergraduate Bulletin change - Existing text: “The program requirements of the major in political science are made up of courses at four levels, providing breadth at the introductory level, depth in one of four distinct areas of specialization and, through elective courses, the opportunity to explore different types of political issues.” New text to be added right after existing text: “As soon as possible after declaring a Political Science major, a student should meet with an academic advisor in the department, and declare a concentration.”
