HOLIDAY SING DEADLINE SET FOR SUNDAY

The annual Holiday Sing competition will be held in the University Gym at 7 p.m., at State University of New York at Albany, Sunday Dec. 10. This year's theme is "Fantasia" and at least 24 groups are expected to perform.

In addition to the traditional awards for first, second, and third place, two "Chairmen's Trophies" will be given to the groups judged best in originality and spirit. The same group may not win both awards.

Following the competition, there will be a reception in the Campus Center Ballroom, beginning at approximately 10:30. The winning groups will give encore performances and Neil Brown's Band will entertain. Refreshments will be served.

About half of the participating groups in the Holiday Sing competition will be representing fraternities and sororities. Among others entered are various dormitory groups, the Jewish Student Coalition, Ukranian students, and Sayles International Students.

Each group will sing one selection, on which it will be judged for interpretation and expression, dynamics, harmony, diction, and stage presence. Five semi-finalists then will be chosen to perform a second number, before the three places are awarded.

Judges for the competition will be Drew Hartzell and Marjory Fuller of the department of music; Sorrell Chesin, university affairs; Lois

SUNYA PROFESSOR HONORED FOR DISTINGUISHED RESEARCH

Leslie T. Wilkins, professor in the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany, has received the Edwin M. Sutherland Award 1972 for distinguished research in criminology from the American Society of Criminology. The citation and award were presented by Charles L. Newman, president, and G. O. W. Mueller, chairman of the awards committee, at the society's annual meeting held in Caracas, Venezuela.

Professor Wilkins is interested in the theory of crime and criminal justice, especially with regard to decision-making processes and projections of the future, also planning functions involving systems theory and research methodology. During 1972 he has continued his research into parole decision-making in cooperation with the National Council on Crime and Delinquency Research Center and the Federal Parole Board. He also is director of the School of Criminal Justice project concerned with projections and planning in the criminal justice field with some reference to "futuristics". The project is funded by the Ford Foundation.

The SUNYA faculty member is editor-in-chief of the Journal of Research in Crime and Delinquency and a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Criminal Law, Criminology and Police Science. He served two periods as chairman of the General Applications Section of the Royal Statistical Society and was at one time a member of the council of that body. He is a member of the board and a Fellow of the Center International de Criminologie Comparee and a trustee of the Community Development Trust of the United Kingdom.

MILNE SCHOOL ENTRY AT NATIONAL MEETING

Three students at The Milne School, State University of New York at Albany, presented a multi-media production to the Instructional Media Committee at the National Council for the Social Studies at its annual meeting in Boston. One of only three student-prepared materials entered from New York State, "Don't Let It Bring You Down" was the result of the combined efforts of Joseph Lapidus, production; Leon Aronowitz, photography; and Gerald Murray, recording.

The theme of the Milne program was the interaction between social and natural degradation in Albany during the current period of rapid building up and tearing down. Also shown is the potential for human and natural beauty and rebirth. The work was produced for Gary Spielman's "Man and His Environment" course at the school.

At the fall meeting of the Niagara-Orleans County Board of Cooperative Educational Services in Niagara Falls the production was shown as an outstanding example of student creativity. It also has been shown in social studies methods courses at SUNYA.
