

Hail Alma Mater True . . .

THE CLASS OF 1964
THE MILNE SCHOOL
ALBANY, NEW YORK

PRESENTS

THE BRICKS & IVY

An alma mater is not a song to be sung by rote. It should be a means of expressing an appreciation for the wonderful experiences we have encountered at Milne. This year we have tried to depict the many aspects of Milne life through the lines of our alma mater. We hope that this yearbook, as well as the alma mater, will serve as a remembrance of all the things that made this a wonderful year.

Our Thoughts Reach Out to You . . .

Some of us have known you as a teacher, while to others you were a homeroom teacher. All of us have appreciated the help you have given us to assure the success of all our class activities. Each class in Milne should be fortunate enough to have as a friend someone like the person to whom we, the Class of 1964, dedicate our Bricks and Ivy — Mrs. Susan Losee.

Pledges of Love Renewed . . .

The people stood together everywhere, by radios or televisions, peering into space with incredulity. The mention of the death of the President had to be repeated over and over again before the people could realize it. They stood in tight groups. Each wanted, like a little child, to clutch out for a consoling hand and wail. Or to reach ahead and grab some joy, or reach backward into some soothing happiness, to escape. But they couldn't. This moment had been thrust upon them so mercilessly and shockingly, that it would forever leave a sore wound that couldn't be ignored. There was no relief.

The President cannot be measured by eloquent words. His greatness has been seen only by the grief and shock that his distraught nation still bears.

Joseph B. Michelson

Endlessly Revered . . .

I knew him not, yet knew him well,
I knew him 'till the day he fell.
I knew him as a leader great,
Yet knew him not until too late.
With hate and greed and so much wrong,
I could not know what still was strong.
They came from any and everywhere
To show us that the world did care.
I never knew him as a friend,
Yet I respected him to the end.
I knew him only as a story,
Yet his words and deeds told his glory.
I knew him not, yet knew him well.
I knew him till the day he fell.
I knew him as a leader great
Yet knew him not until too late.

Suzanne Hohenstein

SOMEBODY

A little man stood alone,
Apart from the others
Who viewed him small.
Heavily he pondered.
Meticulously he noticed.
Gleefully he exulted.
Acidly he criticized.
People took no heed.
They continued their pettiness,
Occasionally glancing,
Seeing through nearsighted vision
Only a smaller person yet:
Indistinct, blurred, inscrutable.
Perhaps he divorced himself from the world,
Or maybe he was the only one in it.
Joseph B. Michelson

SKI CLUB

TRI-HI-Y

Tri-Hi-Y is primarily a service organization. Projects range from making favors for children in hospitals and being hostesses at parents' night to cleaning the Milne sign. Each year the club sponsors a bill at the statewide Hi-Y mock legislature in Albany, an exciting and rewarding experience. The girls have had their share of fun, too! They have sponsored bowling, trampoline, horseback riding, and swimming parties, and a hayride.

ZETA SIGMA LITERARY SOCIETY

This year Sigma has sought to follow a broad cultural program. The main part of our meetings was spent learning about cultures of other countries. We gained eighteen new members this year, but our supervisor, Mrs. Deuel, left us after the first semester. We worried about our rush, our banquet, and our picnic, but found in the end that everything turned out fine. In fact, we found this whole year's activities to be informative and fun.

The girls in Quin have experienced many good times this year. The opening event of the school year was the annual rush, at which Prinderella and the Cince were the stars. Another highlight of the year was the banquet, where oncoming sophomores presented a delightful series of skits. The Quin girls are a strong group working for the betterment of the Society.

CRIMSON AND WHITE

The school newspaper is the expression of the students. To those who prepare each issue, The Crimson and White is an outlet for creativity and enjoyment. For those who read it, the staff strives to present news, topical articles, and stimulating or amusing poems and stories born of Milne life, thought, or opinion.

THE ALBANY LIBERAL

It is the aim of The Albany Liberal to provide a medium through which Milne students can express their opinions on a wide variety of subjects, ranging from Presidential decisions to report cards. If Milne students have become a little more aware of the world they live in and have done more serious thinking about its problems, then the Liberal has been successful.

JUNIOR STUDENT COUNCIL

Although as a member of the Junior Student Council one does not feel the weight of leading the entire school, the responsibilities of leadership may still become clear. Through action on the Council, a student can also begin to realize the benefit of democratic rule; how, by pooling the ideas of many, a decision representing the best interests of the students can result.

Experimentation has been the theme of this year's Senior Student Council. In Milne's traditional spirit of an active student government, the Council sponsored a foreign student and a foster child, rejuvenated the Career Series, initiated a system of frequent and evenly-spaced dances, and started an intramural program. The Council has tried to expand the student's opportunity to profit from his years spent at Milne.

Reinhard Rack came to Albany from Graz, Austria on August 15, 1963. Milne students worked for several years to raise money from the annual Card Parties. When we had saved enough, we began to work with the American Field Service to establish our foreign exchange program. Reinhard's arrival foretold an exciting and different year.

We welcomed Reinhard with a round of parties. He became part of our classes and we soon became used to seeing him in the Milne halls. He talked to us about his home, and we in Albany learned about Austrian life.

On November 14 we were told that Reinhard would not be coming back to Albany from his visit to New York City. We were disappointed that Milne had lost its foreign exchange student. Bridging an international gap is not so easy.

Let us think of the future and plan to bring a foreign exchange student to Milne again. Our international spirit must continue.

We are seniors.
We are in the darkness,
Searching for whatever evidence of our future we can find.
A beckoning light comes —
Some of us will see it,
Others will not.
Will I see my future?

Toby Lynn Gellman

David Khodamorad Kermani

Once
We were younger
Smaller
Less experienced, more naive
But it was excusable
Because we were younger.
Now we are older
Outwardly more mature
Supposedly wiser
And we must keep going
Progressing, improving.

The question —
Are we ready?
Can we continue?
Our answer —
We will
We must.

We had arrived — we were Seniors. More than a graduating class, we were a group of seventy good friends.

Remember when everybody gave up smoking — together? And the days we went to the Mayflower — together? The card party, yearbook, C & W, Senior Play — we did them together. We made them this year. It was our year — together.

We leave,
But the faces remain in our minds.
Later we say:
I went to school with him.

We have grown while we have been here. Was the growth just stretch and the difference a mask? Have we really changed for the better?

What have we gained?

Looking down
We see the gray of stone.
Looking up
We see the green of trees.
Above the green
Is the blue of the sky.
What would we see
If we could look beyond the sky?

There is a curious paradox
That no one can explain.
Who understands the secret
Of the reaping of the grain;
Who understands why spring is born
Out of winter's laboring pain;
Or why we must all die a bit
Before we grow again?

Bernie — Look, do you know the answer?

I can't hold my head up. — Judy

Diane — You're putting me to sleep.

Suze, should we listen to the teacher today? — Marcia

Harriet — I couldn't care less.

Don't bother me. I'm busy. — Pete

Isn't lunch soon? — Randy

Joan — Veni, vidi, vici Milnum.

Dave — No, I don't think
Calculus is mathematically possible!

Dear Dr. Fossieck,
I wish to use the Senior Room and . . .
Marilyn

All these forms, Miss Murray?
Laurie

Hank: Say something, Bill.

Betty — Hey! I saw that!

Stop saying "smile." — Carol

Here's the answer! — Jeff

Dig that Alexander Hamilton!
Dick

Chuck —
This folder needs salt.

Hey, Dan, watch this trick. — Chuck and Danny

Learning can be fun. — Sue

Mary — Have you heard?

Brian — Aw, you're putting me on.

Hey Sue, look at my muscle! — Sue and Larry

So then the first molecule said . . . Bob(s)

Bill — Did you see that girl out there?

Sid

Gotta crack the books tonight. — Bill

Toby — voy, va, vamos, van.

Karen — The C&W deadline was last week?

Pete: Anybody see my banjo?
Pete and Bill

Mark and Martha

Mark: Quick Sam, take it now.

I never knew that! — Carol

I never know what I'll find in my locker.
Mike

Diane and Sue

I can't decide if it tastes good.

Me, work?
Bill

Who?
Stan

Peek-a-boo Margie.

Who needs study hall?

Buddy, Barry, and Brian

Mary — "All students . . ."

Class meeting today? I haven't studied for my exam yet! —
Sheri, Dede, Grant, and Dave.

I refuse to smile.
Jane

Who's so interesting back there, Nancy?

I'm guarding the sacred entrance.
