NINETY years ago State College had its beginnings. Students crammed, and laughed, and played, "even as you and I." They wore bustles or sideburns, but still they were very young, even as we are young. They wept a little at Graduation, even as you shall feel slight moisture in your eyes. They loved State, too, and it was not so very long ago—

We have tried to bind between these covers a portrait of college life as '34 has lived it. We have tucked in miniatures of those others who, before us, have learned their lessons in wisdom and strength, courage, patience, and kindness in State. And if the pictures are not complete, will you forgive us? Fill them in with sketches of your own memories.

To the Faculty, in Varying Moods

I

Not what you gave in words too soon forgotten,
Nor what we half-accomplished by your will—
These are no dreams for seekers after rainbows
To hold when only hearts are never still.
But once around your misty spirit's corner
We caught a glimpse of something white and high,
And once you pointed out a star to follow,
Far-shining, in the valley of the sky;
For gifts like these are songs whose echoes linger,
Are lamps whose light is never burning low.
In years to come we still shall keep the splendor
Of visions that you gave us long ago.

II

Aw gee, profs,
We want you to know that we really don't mind going to classes
Much
Except when it rains or the sun shines or we've been out kind of late the night before,
But no kidding,
On a dark rainy day when we feel sort of sleepy anyhow
We don't know anything we enjoy better than a good old-fashioned class with our feet parked on the dress of the girl in front;
But, Lord, we wish they'd supply pillows.
Well, to be serious, profs,
We really think you're pretty good eggs—
You've passed us in several courses we know dam' well we deserved to flunk,
And we want you to know how much we appreciate you;
But, O Lord, how we wish you'd supply cushions!

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

Time is as varied as a chameleon; it is infinite or very brief, depending on your point of view. Four years to a Freshman stretches out, a myriad of days and weeks, to a dim, far-distant horizon that has neither form nor goal. To a Senior the time seems but a flashing interlude, now vivid, now fading to a shadowy memory. Four years ago we contemplated the Senior Class and shook our heads in doubting wonder that we were anticipating such dignity. Seniors we would be certainly, in respect to time (though in those first gloomy hours we even wavered in our expectations of clinging on for four years), but as for the serene superiority of the "sages," that could never be ours.

As we look back we recall with amazement our exceeding youth. But were we so young? In age, perhaps, and hope, we were childish, but in patience, endurance, and fortitude we were veritably hoary. We submitted to the Sophomores and triumphed over their tyranny; wearily we "used the side door, please"; meekly, we scuttled home for our "Scarlet Letters," little buttons of purple and gold; patiently, we accepted rebuffs, rebukes, and recriminations; with never-ceasing fervor we redoubled our intellectual energies to remove the curse of Billet-Doux.

And, suddenly, as night passes into day, the barrier parted, and we were looking back, thrilled to have something behind us. Loyalty was our motto then, loyalty to tradition, to our class, and to ourselves. That loyalty we have never lost. The bond that we forged will resist even the acid effects of time and changing circumstance.

And then we looked neither forward nor back, too content to hope or bewail. We were ourselves, enjoying each other and life in general as we never had before. We gleamed and shone; we danced and sang, and then, in a moment, were hushed, hearing new voices. In the silence we had a chance to think, and in thinking we found a deeper significance to our presence here.

The fires burn brightly for us now. They were lit four years ago, but we were too engrossed to notice more than their faint nebulous gleam. Now the flames leap skyward, and in their licking tongues we see our hopes, our loyalties, our graciousness, and, a little brighter than the rest, our minds that we have learned to appreciate. Wisdom is our symbol, not the wisdom of textbooks, and mid-terms (on which we display so little knowledge) but the finer perceptions which four years have brought. True scholars we have become, sensitive to the deeper significance of learning our college has given, the finest gift of all. We see it, an infinite stream, winding through centuries, entwining the hearts of one to another, too broad to span, too deep to fathom. It is within us and around us—the true spirit of State College.

JUNIOR HISTORY

o the life we juniors lead
o the life
exclamation point

we are the social beings of the college it is all very well for other classes to talk of self control loyalty and scholarship but do they know that we acquired those qualities by being friendly question mark

o the functions we have had dash
the sophomore freshman party and the junior freshman party and our soiree
exclamation point
we had it on the day that beer came back but did we need beer to make us friendly
question mark
we did not period

o the good times we have had o the dates
as archy once said quote
it is better to be happy for a moment and be burned up with beauty than to live a long time and be bored all the while unquote but we do not mean to say we are not serious my no
we are very serious
but we believe that a fine mind
even if it gets you a apostrophe s is of no use unless you can get along with people we believe that if we are toujours gai

 we may even get a job some day

we hasten to explain that our gaiety is not of the rah rah sort our gaiety comes from having a keen interest and delight in what we do remember our junior prom and luncheon and tea dance when you are depressed sister classes may we hasten to add that there are times when life lies very heavily upon our shoulders

 o the terrors of our junior teaching but its cheerio my deario that pulled the juniors through but what the h dash double l we say we need more people with our spirit as we said before the juniors are the social beings of the college

 o the life we juniors lead
 o the life
 exclamation point

SALUTATIONS

I

In the halls of learning

Good heavens! but my dear sir, upon seeing you here, I stand bewildered, in awe, at such display of courage:

What! with education lurking dangerously 'round every corner, impatient to strike with the fierceness of a scourge.

II

In the library

Ariosto slumbers peacefully; listening to his nightingales, I would also invite sleep:

To Miss Prim's dainty approach, asleep? No, they're making too damned much noise!

'Sh, gentlemen; can't you see that you're disturbing the educational process with its attendant joys,

And thereby placing us between the inevitable devil and the very blue deep!

III

EENIE, MEENIE, MINIE, MOE,
Touch my hand, now let it go:
Playful students in the throes of sex,
Compromise thus in front of room X.

—Martin Ludwig

OF 1935

SOPHOMORE HISTORY

We came eager, joyous, and gay, our youthful color standing for our youthful spirits. The yellow of springtime we wore in fall, and felt it spring because of our enthusiasm for a dream realized. We have not changed a great deal since those first merry days; yet we feel a change. We belong to State College; we feel deep loyalty to its ways and ideals. A loyalty that has grown out of our first youthfulness claims us all, drawing us toward a finer realization of itself.

We can never forget Soph Rules and the hilarious torments we endured, placards, black stockings, coatless suits, white dresses, and yellow ties. There, our spirit of loyalty began, loyalty to our class as we suffered together for mock sins. At Campus Day, gathering all our talent, we presented the best stunt and gained the advantage in inter-class rivalry. Very proudly we redoubled our efforts to triumph over '35. However, during the rivalry sing, '35 showed us our flaws. Then we found out that enthusiasm by itself could not win, and we began to appreciate the purposeful loyalty that our rivals had cultivated.

Winter with studying, exams, social functions, and sports followed swiftly. Our basketball team spent the season profitably. We tripped through the snow and wind until spring came with Moving-up Day, a misty goal of infinite tradition. Valiantly we entered Mascot Hunt; merrily begrimed we ransacked the college closets, attics, and cellars. '35 was victorious Moving-up evening, but now that it was over, we found it mattered little. We stood in front of our college in the dusk, among the friends who had accepted us so helpfully and felt a strange peace, strength, and desire to give back again all that had been given us.

As Sophomores we've lived the story again, and now we want to be a constructive link in our College chain. We want to help other classes to reach the things we are attaining.

"Where, oh, where are the gay, young sophomores?" We're finding loyalty in State College.

ABILITY

In Poets,
I pass each hour in manner quiet,
Absorbing an ethereal diet:
I know it's
Hard to be classed among the goats,
But my book, not new, is full of notes.
So I question
If quoting notes as thots original
Wouldn't make my stomach sick in all Digestion.
All year I marveled at one girl's ability
To answer questions with great agility;
I thot it fine,
And praised her brain tho not her looks
Until just now I found her book's
Like mine.

FRESHMAN HISTORY

We Frosh were those leaves scattered helter-skelter in that heavy gust of wind which opened State College door one September morn. Did you notice us? This way and that we went, blown among the various colored leaves—yellow, green and, most ideal of all, the blue. As the older leaves might have expected, we red ones were extremely frolicsome and frisked aimlessly about. How was a struggling little red leaf to pursue a straight, well-balanced and controlled course when that mighty blast of wind, college life, continued to blow so fiercely?

Madly we scurried here and there to Play Day, to the Freshman Welcome Party, the Junior-Freshman Party, Inter-sorority Tea. On Activities Day that blast of wind was so compelling that we completely forgot about Time and the plans concerning its use which had been so carefully recommended. Consequently, we sadly forgot our studies; also the yellow, green, and the blue leaves found us everywhere—out for publications, the Y, athletics, Dramatic and Art Association, and debating. (Need it be said how gay, young, and carefree we were!)

The mighty blast of wind continued to blow. It puffed so strenuously that we were entirely at a loss for direction. We didn't know where we were going or why. How were we ever to achieve control over that hurrying, scurrying wind?—

It is only now, later in the year, that we are able to stop and recall what has happened to us. Red leaves! Remember red, that vibrant, glowing color which symbolized '37, and remember how one little red leaf burst through the curtains of Page Hall Auditorium on that impressive Campus Day and thus presented our stunt to the Queen of the blue. Remember yellow, that joyous color of our "Dear Enemy," the sophomore class, and recall the fun we had when the mighty blast of wind blew us into one wild whirl of competitions and rivalry. Remember green, and the much needed aid and guidance the Juniors afforded us. And last, remember blue, the finest of them all, for from them have we learned pace and how to control the mighty blast of wind. Pace—yes, there is a pace for everything, even for brilliant, young red leaves in a modern world of yellow, green, and blue.

MARJORIE'S JOURNAL; THE DIARY OF A STATE FRESHMAN

(With all due apologies to Addison and the Spectator)

Sunday, night: Phoned Henrietta. Found she couldn't do her Algebra, so no need to try mine. Washed my hair.

Monday, 7:00 to 7:30: Attempted to get out of bed. Too cold. Took another nap.

7:30 to 8:30: Dressed. Tried to set my hair.

Mem. Buy more bobby pins.

8:30 to 9:00: Ate breakfast.

Mem. Ask Professor Kirtland what prunes evolved from and why.

Rest of morning: Classes.

Noon: Danced with Mae. Bob didn't cut.

12:30 to 1:30: Played bridge with Bill and two sophomores. Bob looked hurt. I'm glad.

After classes: Helped Betty finish her lunch. Heard a good joke.

Evening: Lay down to rest and slept until nine. Did homework until eleven.

Tuesday, 9:00: Tired from studying so long. Sneaked out of gym after roll call.

10:00 to 11:00: History.

Mem. Dr. Smith looks good in brown.

11:00 to 12:00: Studied in library. Asked to leave for talking to Henrietta.

Afternoon: Cut my 2:25 class to have a Coca Cola with Betty.

Mem. Glad. They had a test.

Evening: Went to show with Betty and Henrietta. Garbo.

Mem. I'd make a good actress.

Wednesday, Morning: Lecture on Russia. Wondered what it will all matter after we're dead.

Afternoon: Studied in Lounge. It bothered the Lounge Committee.

Mem. I'm so sorry.

Evening: Heard Joe Penner on Rudy Vallee's hour. Tried different shades of nail polish. Worked hard on English.

Mem. Wish I had a young man teacher.

Thursday: Busy days ahead. I really have no time to keep a diary.

● Activities

Executive Council, composed of the three administrative officers of the Student Association and the presidents of the four classes, has as its chief function the execution of all student association legislation. Legally, enforcement of the point system, management of assembly programs, and supervision of policy for activities represented on the budget of the Student Association are its most important duties. Then, in cooperation with the Finance Board, Executive Council enforces payment of the student tax by all members of budgeted activities. There are a few minor duties of the Council, such as the nomination of candidates for the position of delegate to the annual National Student Federation of America convention, but these are the chief ones.

Of equal importance are Executive Council's non-authorized activities. In the past, Council has arranged student-faculty meetings for the improvement of their mutual relations, has conducted charity campaigns for the Albany Community Chest, has stimulated an interest in creating new, as well as in preserving old, State College songs, and has suggested important Constitutional reforms to the Student Association. In short, Executive Council aims to extend its activities to any sphere it legally can which will increase the efficiency, the value, and the quality of student government in State College.

FINANCE

The Finance Board was organized in 1920. From its inception, the Board has maintained a close contact with the Student Association, fulfilling the original plan of carrying democracy into the management of extra-curricular affairs supported by the budget.

The Finance Board makes suggestions to the assembly relative to admission or withdrawal of activities supported by the student budget so that there will always be a proper balance in the opportunities afforded to the students. It makes frequent recommendations and requests to the Student Association regarding administrative questions connected with the expenditure of the appropriations in accordance with terms of the budget adopted by the students. The Board holds weekly meetings, prepares the student budget, collects student tax, and coöperates with the Hygiene Department in the payment of Infirmary benefits allowed members of the Student Association.

Throughout its history, the administration of student finance has never in any one year encountered a deficit; that is, the Student Association has lived within its income and paid for its activities as planned at the beginning of the year.

By this form of student control the varied extra-curricular program has been carried out since the formation of the Student Association with the student tax at no time greater than $14.00.

ASSOCIATION

The Dramatics and Fine Arts Association was organized in 1919 for the purpose of promoting interest in Dramatics and Fine Arts. Each student of the college upon the payment of the blanket tax is a member of the association. The executive body of the Association is composed of two students from each class, the head of the Art Department and the Director of Dramatics. The students are selected in their freshman year and are members of the council for their four college years. In 1921 the Association became a charter member of the Intercollegiate Dramatics Association and of the American Federation of Arts. Since the founding of the Association the name of the organization has been changed to the Dramatic and Art Association.

Each year the Association sponsors three one-act plays presented by the Elementary Dramatics Class and a full-length play produced by the Advanced Dramatics Class. It also brings to the college two presentations. In former years the council has presented John Drinkwater, Christopher Morley, Ruth Draper, in her original sketches, Edythe Wynne Matthison, Vachel Lindsay, Edna St. Vincent Millay, who read her own poetry, Daniel Frohman, The Abbey Players who gave "The Playboy of the Western World," "Riders to the Sea," "The White-Headed Boy," and "Cathleen Ni Houlihan," and numerous exhibitions of paintings and etchings.

MUSIC
ASSOCIATION

The present Music Association originated in an English I class of Professor Kirtland in 1916. A music club was formed which met bi-weekly and put on musical programs by its members.

When the music department was instituted at State College, Dr. Candlyn organized in 1921 a Music Association with a council composed of two members from each class. Freshmen are encouraged to try out for the council and at the end of the year, two are chosen on the basis of interest, dependability, and work done.

The Association tries to bring before the student body the best in musical opportunities, thereby increasing the cultural value of our college years.

CHRISTIAN
ASSOCIATION

We subscribe to the national pledge of the Y. W. C. A. of which we are a member. That is, we "unite in the desire to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God." In carrying out this purpose we seek to aid each individual to formulate her highest ideals, and we desire to help her to achieve a realization of them.

Since its organization in 1904, Y. W. C. A. has taken a leading part in the student activities of State College, its membership comprising fully one-fourth of the student body. Y. W. sponsored a lunch counter until the advent of the present college cafeteria. It was also the originator of the Freshman Handbook which, until 1920, it presented to each freshman class. Y House came into existence in 1918, as one of State's first cooperative houses and is yet one of our greatest accomplishments.

And Y is still just as active. Through its vesper services, its unforgettable candle-lighting service, its student-faculty discussions and convention delegations, it helps to meet the spiritual needs of its members. And then there is the social side. We have all enjoyed Y's teas, receptions, its fashion review, card party, song fiesta and other social gatherings.

May Y's purpose be as fully realized in the future as it has been in the past.

At Christmas time in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and twenty-six, the State "Lion" was born. It was a lusty cub christened with the best wishes of John Held, Jr. In 1928 the "Lion" clawed its way into the Student Association budget where it has remained securely ever since, despite strong opposition.

The "Lion" is so restless that, during its six years of age, it has had eleven editors—six girls and five men. But despite its tempestuous career, the "Lion" remains eternally popular with the kiddies on the campus.

The "Echo" is the mother of all State College publications. From the combination literary magazine and college newspaper founded in June, 1892, and christened the "Normal College Echo," grew the "State College News," the "Lion," the "Pedagogue," and the present day "Echo." Henry Emerson Adams, '93, Editor of the "Echo," looked far ahead in State College history when he said, "We predict for it a bright beginning, a future with a steady increasing light, a life of constant growth."

When the "State College News" was founded in 1916, the "Echo" gave up its news department and specialized in stories, essays, plays, and poems. It also had a humor department. In 1918 it was renamed the "Quarterly" but regained its old title in 1920.

With the publication, in 1924, of a separate humor magazine, the "Echo" devoted itself exclusively to literary and artistic effort

THE STATE COLLEGE NEWS

The undergraduate weekly newspaper of State college is the State College News. Founded in May, 1916 as the mirror of undergraduate sentiment at S. C. T. the News has continued as the official reporter of the various activities of the College student body.

Under the efficient leadership of its editorial directors the State College News has progressed in its scope until today it occupies a pre-eminent post in State College student life. With a trained staff of over one hundred, its various departments are consolidated in the editorial board, consisting of the editor-in-chief, the managing editor, the associate managing editors, finance manager, advertising manager, and circulation manager. Determination and direction of editorial policies together with supervision of the activities of the staff constitutes the duties of the News board.

Over a period of eighteen years the News has maintained itself in harmonious relations with student activities and, as a leader in formulating undergraduate sentiment, has justified the intent of its founder, Alfred Dedicke, '17: "In the columns of the News, you will find the pulse beat of the student body."

THE PEDAGOGUE

The "Pedagogue" finds its beginning in the misty days at the turn of the century as the "Neon," an enterprising book containing many pictures and descriptions of the college activities. William Ranney was its first editor and business manager, and the book was dedicated to Dr. Milne, President of the Normal School. In 1911, "Our Book" was published with Helen Bennett as editor. It contained a large amount of literary work and drawings rather than photographs. The 1912 issue was named "The Senior Book" and dedicated to Albert Nathaniel Husted, Professor of Mathematics. In 1913, the first "Pedagogue" was again dedicated to Dr. Milne. "1919" dedicated their "Pedagogue" to Theodore Roosevelt.

The "Pedagogue" has now reached its twentieth year of steady publication. To the Pedagogue boards, executive directors of the succeeding books, should go much credit for the fact that, in spite of war and depression, our year book has stretched out and grown not only in size and volume but in elaborateness and skill of workmanship.

BASKETBALL

Fortune smiled not on State's Purple and Gold quintet this season. It was a year fraught with disaster. Coach Baker started the season with thirteen warriors. The jinx was fashioned and the atmosphere of Hamlet and Macbeth pervaded the entire basketball scenery.

Here is the sad saga of Baker's leather-chasers. They started in calamity with Ingraham's broken arm robbing the team of a brilliant pivot-man. In the first game they romped to an easy field-day victory over Drew. All was quiet before the storm. Came the tall cagy Seth Low aggregation, and the smaller State team could do nothing but fight. St. Michaels added insult to injury, nosing out State. The New York trip was a success in that the boys saw some good shows. The two basketball games which interfered with their good time were lost in succession to Seth Low (the fourth defeat at their hands in two years), and to Pratt Institute.

The team returned to Albany to trim their alumni as usual, but the original thirteen had not survived. Captain Roger Bancroft, star of three seasons, obtained a teaching position and left the school and squad. A fighting leader, his loss was to be felt. Then the squad's fastest man, Bud Kissam, dropped out of Varsity competition. His game-saving baskets were missed.

State showed a surprising reversal of form against Hartwick, and walloped the Oneontians by sixteen points. They continued their good work against Brooklyn Poly the next Friday, winning over the engineers as they pleased.

But that evening's fray tired them so for their battle with Hamilton the next day, that the boys in Purple suffered the worst defeat in years, falling before the Continental attack, and not coming any closer than seventeen points. The Bakermen finished strong, however, lambasting the weak but willing St. Stephens five. They were twenty-five points ahead when the gun ended a mediocre season.

Flip Burnell, at forward, was leading scorer and should be heard from next year. George Bancroft should develop into a dangerous center. The great Lyons will be missed at guard. Cliff Rall had an indifferent season and can do nothing but better as next year's captain. Ossy Brooks was off and on all season. Sonny Huddleston, Harold Stone, Jerry Amyot, Tom Carter, Arlton Bush, and Freddie Byrnes should show a lot next year.

State outscored her opponents 360-304, which proves that the Purple and Gold had scoring power.

George Ketcham, Manager, deserves credit for booking Seth Low (the best team we saw all year), St. Michaels, Pratt, and Hamilton.

BASEBALL

The graduating class of 1933 took with it nearly all of the varsity baseball material. However, the three members who remain, "Ossy" Brooks, Don Benedict, and Ken Drake are ready to carry on with the other members who will be chosen to fill the vacant positions. Among those who are expected to bid for the available infield and outfield posts are last season's substitutes: Paul Bulger, "Jerry" Butler, and Percy Baird.

The Junior College contributed several players to State's lineup last season, and its men coöperated with the State candidates to produce a team of fairly good merit. The continued coöperation of these two groups in the coming season will probably enable State to have a winning team. With six positions to be filled, Coach Baker is willing to consider the bids of the students of both colleges for regular varsity competition.

Four opponents are listed on the 1934 schedule. Familiar to State baseball fans are three of them: Hamilton, St. Stephens, and Hartwick. The fourth is an entirely newcomer to any State College sports' schedule, the Massachusetts State Teachers College at Bridgewater, whose baseball team will come to Albany to oppose State in the first game of the season at Ridgefield Park. A new opponent is always a dangerous one; so the Massachusetts Teachers will bear watching.

Manager Fred Mohrman '35 announces the following schedule:

—HOME—

May 5 (Saturday)—Massachusetts State Teachers College
 " 19 ( " )—St. Stephens College
 " 26 ( " )—Hartwick College

—AWAY—

May 9 (Wednesday)—Hartwick College at Oneonta, N. Y.
 " 12 (Saturday )—Hamilton College at Clinton, N. Y.

TENNIS

An inexperienced tennis team will carry the standard for State on the courts this spring against Middlebury, Vermont, St. Stephens, Hamilton, and R. P. I. Two matches have been arranged with R. P. I., our traditional rival.

The losses to the squad through graduation last year are those of Vincent Meleski, Captain of the team, Gordon Hughes, Grover Hotaling, Anthony Sroka, and Sanford Livingston, playing Manager. This includes the whole backbone of the team, and Captain Wilfred Allard will have to work hard to put his inexperienced players in shape for the first contest against Middlebury to be played in Albany.

Hardmeyer and Decker showed considerable promise last year and will probably see a lot of service this spring. Since most of the team graduated last year, it is probable that considerable reliance will be placed on these boys.

Wilfred Allard, backed with considerable experience playing with State, is Captain of the 1934 team. Maxwell Plotnick, fresh from tennis laurels at Union, will probably bolster up the team. Harry S. Yaffee, Manager, has picked a number of worthy opponents for the bearers of the Purple and Gold.

Last year, State's tennis team won from Seth Low but lost to R. P. I., Springfield, and Manhattan. Both R. P. I. and Manhattan matches were lost by one point. We were rained out with another match with R. P. I. and with St. Stephens.

Three home games against Middlebury, Vermont, and R. P. I. will be played on the Ridgefield Park Courts. All students are welcomed. The 1934 squad is:

HONOR COUNCIL

Honor Council was formed in 1925 for the purpose of distinguishing women of outstanding personality with ability in athletics, scholarship and general leadership. It was felt that such a council would link these women with G. A. A. in after years. Membership in Honor Council is the highest honor G. A. A. can award. Members are announced on Moving-up Day of their Junior year.

G. A. A.'S PROGRAM

In the sports and fun of G. A. A.
We have met in comradeship today.

A log cabin nestling near a clump of pines on a hillside overlooking the broad expanse of the valley—Camp Johnston, G. A. A.'s camp, opening a vista of new things to come, and memories of things gone by. Mellow campfires, songs, hikes, talks, and good fellowship—all of these have come to us through Camp Johnston, G. A. A.'s dream of many years come true.

September brought us once more to school, where our good times with '37 started. Freshman camp, welcoming the newcomers to State and its traditions was sponsored again this year by G. A. at Camp Cogswell. In every way it was a success, with fun, friendship, and inspiration gained to help us conquer together throughout the year. Play Day, our welcome to the entire class of '37, helped to bind them more firmly to our college—State—and to the rollicking good sportsmanship of G. A. A.

The year continued as it began—everyone helping to make it successful in hockey, soccer, swimming, basketball, and baseball. Our operetta was given March 23 and 24 in conjunction with the Troubadours. March 24 brought the Alumnae back and proved again that which we knew—that the spirit of G. A. A. is true and strong.

MYSKANIA

Myskania, organized in 1917, is an honorary body composed of seniors who have led in scholarship, literary effort, debate, dramatics, and in undergraduate affairs generally.

This organization leads in formulating student sentiment in matters relating to student activities. These activities include: induction of freshmen into college customs, organization of the freshman class, guardianship of college traditions, preservation of student morale, direction of Campus Day program, and Moving-up Day.

The members are elected in the spring of their Junior year, and they are made known Moving-up Day, when the outgoing Myskania taps the new Myskania. The members are chosen as follows: the Student Association elects three qualified juniors by a popularity vote, besides the Student Association president, who becomes an ex-officio member. The other eight, nine, or ten members are chosen by the outgoing Myskania at its discretion.

KAPPA

The Chi Chapter of Kappa Phi Kappa, a professional education fraternity, was installed at State College on April 4, 1927. Membership in the fraternity is limited to those men who have completed a minimum amount of work in the education department and who have the character and ideals likely to make them succeed in the teaching profession. Kappa Phi Kappa brings men prominent in education to State College at frequent intervals who speak to the fraternity and lead discussions on educational topics.

Sonnet for a Sorority Sister

We two have turned the world around tonight—
Have changed the ancient order to a new.
Philosophy and life are set aright;
False values we have judged and changed to true.
You gesture with a cigarette and say,
“Repression is the cause of all the woe
And false conception in the world today.
Good butter did not make the timepiece go.”
(We had been reading “Alice” just before)
We drifted into talk of authors’ craft,
Then modeled over men—and clothes—and more.
At last we paused, and finally you laughed.
“Perhaps,” you said, “(now that our song is sung)
The trouble is that we are very young.”

CLUB

Newman Club was founded by command of Pope Pius X. His Encyclical, issued in 1906, contained the command that religious doctrine classes be established in public institutions wherein no mention whatsoever is made of religion.

Cardinal Newman was chosen patron of Catholic students in non-Catholic colleges because of his qualities of head, of heart, and of soul. His motto, "Cor ad cor loquitur"—"Heart speaketh unto heart," is our motto; his shield, our shield.

The object of the club is threefold: religious, intellectual, and social. It supplements the work of the secular institution by spiritual and religious education. This is carried out by means of special lectures and devotions. The annual retreat of the Club is held after the Christmas vacation. Meetings are held monthly at the Club House, Newman Hall, 741 Madison Avenue. Social functions include a reception for the Freshmen, a club dance held at the College, and several informal parties.

Newman Club is a member of the Central New York Province of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs of the United States and Canada. Members of the Club receive the "Newman News," the publication of the Federation. Delegates are sent each year to the Province and Federation conventions. This year, the Federation convention to which the leading colleges of the country send representatives will be held at Jacksonville, Florida.

BIOLOGY CLUB / / / / /

Biology Club was organized under the direction of Dr. Douglas in February, 1925, to satisfy the need felt by students of the department for an out-of-door club. The original club program included an organized hike every two weeks. At first a few enthusiastic members who called themselves the "Evergreens" adopted the burdock as their insignia. Early in 1931 a design for a club pin was submitted representing a majestic old tree.

The first issue of the Biology Club paper, "Leaves," was published in 1930. Some of the other activities of the club have been laboratory parties, moving pictures, lectures by noted Biologists, and hikes to such places as the Helderbergs and Juniper Ledge.

It is quite evident that Biology Club is carrying on the traditions and purposes of the little group of "Evergreens."

/ / / / CHEMISTRY CLUB

Chemistry Club was founded in 1913. Its aim was the fostering of a spirit of chemical research. It was not intended as a social institution and has never become one. The original members chose as an insignia the naphthalene ring surcharged by a retort and silver and garnet as the colors. Pins were secured.

In 1920 Chemistry Club published the first issue of "The Hormone." The paper has as its purpose, "the creation of a new interest in the subject of Chemistry, not merely as a prescribed course, but also to keep abreast the progress of the chemical world." However, the paper is not entirely of a serious nature.

Last year the Club celebrated its twentieth anniversary by presenting "Alchemy," a huge success, with many demonstrations, experiments, movies, and skits. Meetings of the group are held every two weeks, and student papers on research or new discoveries of interest are presented. Trips to local industrial plants, discussion meetings and lectures complete the activities of the Club.

CLASSICAL CLUB / / / /

In February, 1923, a group of State College students, interested in the classics and prompted by a desire to spread that enthusiasm, organized Classical Club. Its object was "To further the interest in and increase the knowledge of the life and literature of the Roman people." Since its organization, Classical Club has grown rapidly and sponsored many noteworthy activities.

In 1926, Classical Club held its first Roman Banquet. So successful was it that since that time Roman Banquet has become an established annual custom, and the one most important social event of the Club's calendar.

Classical Club has likewise distinguished itself in dramatics. Two years ago, it presented scenes from Sophocles' "Antigone," and last year—well, everyone remembers Ida Weiner's excellent portrayal of Electra, the leading rôle in Euripides' play of the same name. Although we have been forced to forego such a presentation this year, we hope that, in the future, Greek Play will become an integral part of Classical Club's annual program.

/ / / / COMMERCE CLUB

Commerce Club was organized in 1924 with a membership of five. Its aim was to advance commercial educational standards and to create a feeling of congeniality among the students in the commercial department.

Meetings are held every two weeks. Discussion of problems of the business world are led by leaders in industry, commerce, and education. This year Roy Smith, Secretary of the Port of Albany, Clinton Reed of the State Commercial Education Department, and the Honorable James J. Wadsworth, Assemblyman, have stimulated active interest in commercial problems.

The social objective has not been ignored. Commerce Club's annual Hallowe'en Masque is one of State's premier social dates. Receptions, card parties, and dances help us to realize that our life is not to be all typewriter ribbons and word signs. Each spring Commerce Club invites you to her annual banquet.

The fact that the little group of five has aggrandized itself thirty times in the last ten years proves Commerce Club has accomplished its purpose and has also become one of the strongest departmental clubs in State.

FRENCH CLUB

The French Club has for its aim fluency in French speech and appreciation of the French people, their art, customs, government, history, and education. It also tends through its monthly meetings and social gatherings to promote friendship among the students of French.

“Every one has two countries, his own and France!” Those who have traveled throughout Europe believe this. There is something great in a country which cherishes so dearly her customs and legends. French Club is studying with keen interest these legends and making them more vivid by dramatization. It also takes pride in widening its knowledge of the art and literature of France, and speaks only the French tongue. Speaking French in itself is nothing until one learns to speak fluently and to express himself quickly and with assurance. This comes only from much practise.

An annual fete is held. Plays are presented for the pleasure of outsiders and for the great benefit which is derived by members of the Club from their very participation in such enjoyable functions.

LIBRARY SCHOOL CLUB ↗ ↘

Social and professional relationships are fostered by an informal organization of the Library School.

When the School was newly organized in 1926, a student president was appointed to care for student activities and make simple connection for administrative purposes between the faculty and the student group. After the School was moved from the State Education Building to the College in 1929 when the classes were larger, the number of officers was increased and all were elected at an annual Library School student meeting.

The vice-president is always a junior and is responsible for calling the meeting for election in the opening weeks of the new College year. The president is always one of the graduating group.

Gatherings of the School are planned irregularly as needed except the Founder's Day tea which celebrates the birthday, February 13, of Dr. James Sullivan under whose initiative as Commissioner of Secondary Education the School was established. An annual Christmas party, a spring picnic, and a faculty tea for the graduates on the afternoon of the first Sunday in June have become regular features of the School program.

/ / / MATHEMATICS CLUB

This organization owes its existence to the earnest desire of some to work with Mathematics outside of the classroom. As far back as 1918, this interest prompted Henry Wood, '19, to seek permission to begin a club.

With Professor Birchenough acting as chairman, twenty-six Juniors and Seniors, who were taking either a major or minor in Mathematics, met on December 6, 1918. A constitution was drafted by a special committee. It stated that the purpose of the club was "to further the interest and broaden the perspective of students in Mathematics." It made the successful completion of one semester of Analytical Geometry a condition of eligibility for membership.

The present emblem of the Club is of geometrical design, and the dimensions are based upon the radius of the earth's orbit and upon two classical problems, namely the quadrature of the circle and the duplication of the cube. The colors of the emblem are gold, black, and blue.

Meetings are held twice a month. The programs consist of papers presented by faculty members and discussions led by student members. Initiation meetings are interesting; and the annual picnic is the chief social event.

SPANISH CLUB / / / / /

In 1915, the first Spanish class was organized in State College. One year later, Spanish Club came into being, at first a voluntary affair, and later with a definite constitution. Its first president was Alfred Edward Dedicke, a young man very much interested in the Spanish language. The purpose of the Club has always been to foster Pan-Americanism by arousing in students, especially in those who would have no other connection with things Spanish, an interest in the art, history, customs, and culture of Spanish speaking countries. This aim is realized through the presentation of speakers versed in Spanish customs. In addition, Spanish Club sponsors several social functions during the year—these functions culminating in the Spanish Carnival, one of the outstanding festivals, which attempts to create for the queen of the carnival a true mardi gras entertainment.

Membership is open to all students of State College who are interested in the Club.

STATE COLLEGE TROUBADOURS

In 1927 a group of State College men gathered in the locker room and originated the Troubadours, a minstrel organization, to fulfill a long-felt need for a men's social organization. The Troubadours stage at least one entertainment a year.

Robert Shillinglaw, '29, was elected the first chairman of the organization. In 1927-28 LaVerne Carr, '29, was musical director of the first stage show which was presented in the Hawley Hall auditorium.

Randolph Sprague, Frederick W. Crumb, John Kennedy, Royal Knox, Robert Rankins, and John Grosvenor were successive presidents of the organization. In 1930 no entertainment was presented as the group was awaiting the opening of the new Page Hall auditorium in June.

In the spring of 1933 the Troubadours combined with the Girls' Athletic association in presenting "Patience" a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta. Grosvenor was a co-director of the operetta.

Thomas Garrett, '34, was director of the annual Troubadour minstrel show in 1933-34.

Some Verse

SHOES

When I buy shoes, the bootman says,
“Now would you like a pair
Of hiking boots for mountain trails,
Or slippers like those—there?”

Or “Shoes for school—some oxfords, ma’am?
Or silver pumps—like these?
Oh, yes! I’ve lots of other styles
If none of these should please.”

The while I tell him what I want,
And look at what he brings,
My giddy soul keeps nudging me
And whispering, “Ask for wings.”

Helen Bromley

We Liked

“GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN”

When I consider, oh, when I consider,
When I consider as I sometimes do,
The many precious and potential hours
I've spent with silly female things like you,—

The many sixty minutèd sweet hours,
Each minute sixty secondèd, forsooth,
Each second rich a staff which should have helped me
Onward and upward in the path of Truth,—

I marvel that a man of such good judgment
Should so,—well,—almost waste his time, I fear,
But then, I think there is justification
I love you, for you rest my mind, my dear!

An old-fashioned girl is what I want,

At State

OF COURSE IT'S TRUE

What mighty tubs were those old ships
Of years gone past,
With miles of ropes from bows to tips
All tight and fast;
Their bulging sails were held at bay
By shrouds and yards,
The hull was hugged by rope and stay
With strong safeguards;
They often had to be overhauled
At a costly fee:
I used to wonder why they called
A ship a "she,"
But NOW I see.

STATE'S NINETY YEARS

Albany—1844—prams and pushcarts and petticoats—broad streets set with stately elms and stately ladies—the tinkle of bells on the car-horses—the sharp clatter of hoofs on the brick pavement—all the slow, comfortable progression of life in the Victorian period. It was the day of gaudy lithographs on the walls of musty “best-rooms,” of crocheted “tidies” on stuffed and stuffy chairs, of cottage-organs and daguerreotypes. No telephone, no radio—housewives still had occasion to send to a neighbor a half-mile for a burning brand to renew the kitchen fire—the use of anaesthetics had just been discovered—there were few sewing-machines, nor even many safety-pins. The excitement over the first telegram, “What hath God wrought?” had not yet died down. It was in this kind of world that the twenty-nine pioneer students of State College began their careers in what was the first teacher-training institution in New York State and the third in the United States.

The “State Normal” at this time consisted of a few “plain but comfortable” rooms in an abandoned depot-building at State Street and Maiden Lane. It was the only time in history that the men students outnumbered the women. Women seem to have been favored at this time, however, since the records show that they received from the State an allowance of a dollar-twenty-five for board, whereas the men received only a dollar. Tuition and books were free to both sexes. Even with aid some students had a difficult time financially, for it is recorded that the regular janitor was dismissed at the end of one term and students paid to take his place. In this first school there were five faculty members over whom David Perkins Page, on the recommendation of Horace Mann, became the first Principal. The school prospered from the first; the twenty-nine students increased to one hundred before the term closed, and four hundred and twenty-one graduates were employed during the first three years.

The death of its eminent Principal marked the end of the first stage in the history of the normal school. David Perkins Page had been a successful leader and a skilled scholar in the pedagogical field, as his Theory and Practice of Teaching, almost the first book of its kind and one in use almost up to the present time, can testify. George R. Perkins, who became the next principal, was the leader in the erection of a new and “permanent” home on a vacant lot at the corner of State and Lodge Streets.

The year 1862 marked the first active participation of the normal students in the Civil War. Here is an account of the enlistment as given by Captain Albert N. Husted, then Professor of Mathematics:

“When, in July, 1862, the Union forces were defeated in the ‘seven-day battle’ before Richmond, and there came up from the capital of the nation a new call for men—soldiers to drive out the rebellious invaders—the young men of the State Normal School felt that it was time for them to shoulder their muskets and do what they could to save the land they loved and preserve the institutions their fathers fought for.

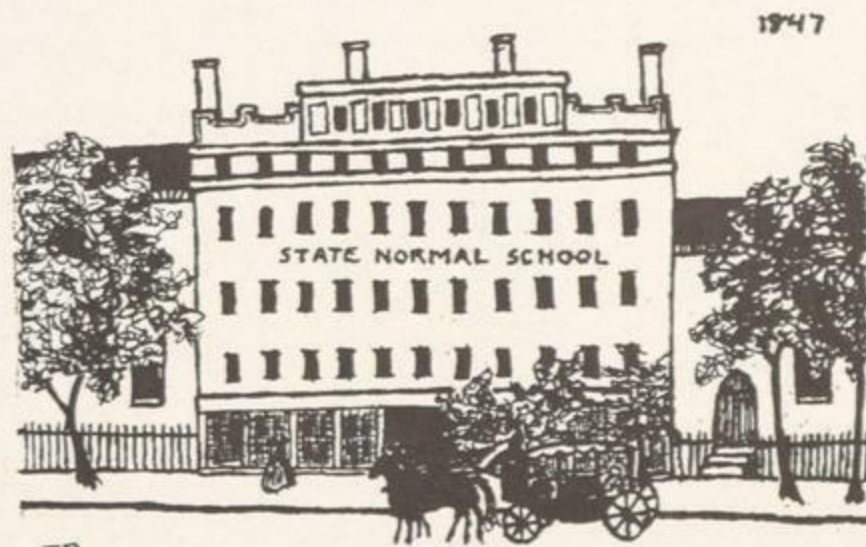

"Professors Kimball and Husted, of the faculty, volunteered to go with and lead them. With the graduates and students of the school as a nucleus they commenced recruiting and, on the 25th of September, their company of one hundred true, brave, and earnest men were 'mustered into the service of the United States, for three years, or the war.' They were at once fully armed and equipped. The faculty of the school presented each of the officers with a valuable revolver, while contributions from graduates and friends purchased a rubber blanket for each Normal member of the company."

The company, after three months of drilling and guard duty at the barracks east of Albany, finally joined the Army of the Potomac. They fought in many important battles, in which four died in action and about twelve others were wounded.

It was under the seventh principal, Edward P. Waterbury, that some of the most important changes in the history of the college were made. In the first place, the buildings which had so optimistically been judged "permanent" were declared unfit and dangerous, and the location of the school was again moved to a "superb site on the top of the hill," on Willett Street, facing Washington Park, as recommended by the committee at the "great reunion" of six hundred graduates which took place that year. Here modern buildings were erected with every convenience for the students at this time. The status of the school was also changed. It had been offering a "regular academic course," a mere continuation of high school, with a very low standard of entrance requirements. In 1890, however, it was decided by the executive committee that the school should be purely professional. The change in the schedule was as follows: a more extended study of the History and Philosophy of Education, the omission of all subjects which did not pertain directly to teaching, and, most important of all, instruction in teaching methods, not only for elementary schools, but for union free schools, academies, and high schools, with the granting of the degrees of Bachelor, Master, and Doctor of Pedagogy. The name was in accordance changed to "New York State Normal College." This was the first school to give such advanced instruction, the change marking the real foundation of our modern college.

It is interesting to compare the schedules of that day with those of today. Two courses, Academic and Classical, were offered. The schedule for the first term of the Academic course consisted of Psychology and Philosophy of Education, daily discussion and essays in educational themes, preparation of devices for teaching, and methods for the following subjects: Number, Arithmetic, Geography, Composition, Vocal Music, Grammar, and Reading. There were no electives. The course for the other three terms was similar, with methods for different subjects each term. The Classical course added methods in language. A model school was conducted within the college buildings with Kindergarten, Primary, Grammar, and High School Departments. It is interesting to note that Miss Anna E. Pierce was Principal of the Primary Department. There were twelve college teachers and seven members of the model school faculty at that time.

By 1894, the semi-centennial date, the school had progressed beyond the most ardent hopes of its founders. In that year a great reunion or "jubilee" was held which brought together eminent educators from all over the United States.

The year 1908 came, and with it the beginnings of the ivy-covered buildings we use and love today. A Southern architect, Albert Randolph Ross, submitted the designs for the original group of buildings,—Draper, Hawley, and Husted halls. Their Grecian simplicity was planned especially to harmonize with and add to the dignified beauty of the century-old elm trees which are still standing and under which we "move-up."

In 1914, the State Normal College became the New York State College for Teachers, with power to grant baccalaureate and graduate degrees in Art, Science, and Pedagogy, and the degree of Master of Arts in Education. In 1915, Dr. A. R. Brubacher came into office upon the death of Dr. William J. Milne.

Through all these years, what was the nature of the student life? Did those former students have the same activities and hopes and desires that we of today possess? We know little about the first seventy years and can only guess that in essence the students were the same as those of today. But in more modern times we can avail ourselves of a cross-section of student-life as taken from the pages of the State College News in 1917, its first year of publication.

The College Song Book was just in the process of publication. Assemblies were being conducted every morning at nine o'clock, with assembly on Friday compulsory. A standard college ring had just been adopted. There were five sororities existing; their activities consisted of an Intersorority Tea in the fall, which that year took the form of a Japanese tea, and one rush party for each sorority about six weeks after the mid-year examinations, freshmen eligible for rushing to be only those who had not obtained more than one D in examinations. A Men's Athletic Association was in active progress, and conducted annual "tag-days" in order to collect money for sports equipment. The basketball team that year played such teams as Union, R. P. I., and West Point, making a good record. Football was being introduced, and a cross-country track team was active. The Dramatics class presented, among other plays, Galsworthy's Silver Box. Neither the Echo nor the Lion were in existence, but the News somewhat took the place of the latter by means of a humorous column, called the Kollitch Komick Kolyum. Clubs included a College Club, Promethean Society, Press Club, and Dancing Class. The first year-book, the Neon, had been published as far back as 1900, and the first Pedagogue, with that name, in 1913. In the world outside the college, by far the most important event of the year was the declaration of war against Germany. A movement for a Permanent Military Company, whose members would obtain college credit, was brought by President Brubacher. Many of the State College girls aided the Red Cross and the News editor, Alfred Dedicke, and six others left to go into a training camp. Many others joined them.

A view of the year 1924 finds the "Pilgrim Class" near graduation. Many new features have entered college life. State College had in the previous year been admitted to membership in the American Association of Colleges and Universities. Milne High School, Richardson Hall, and Page Hall were in the process of construction. The Dormitory Drive had been begun in 1921. The "Echo" had been founded in 1918 as a literary-news magazine, and was now being published under the name of the "Quarterly" as a literary magazine only. Among new clubs then existing were the Political Science Club, the Joseph Henry Society for those interested in physics, the Music Club, the S.N.C. Cocoa Club, and the Tennis, Cycle, and Camera clubs. There were now seven sororities and two fraternities. The Dramatic and Art Association had been founded in 1919. The point system was in the process of revision. Class rivalry rules had been formulated the year before, with activities which included, besides those still being conducted today, baseball, cageball, and a "Get-Wise Party."

Now the State College reaches the conclusion of ninety great years of progress. How well we see passing through our mind the shifting scenes of history! One picture fades into another—hoopskirts, boys in blue, "jubileers" cheering, bicycles, the rising of marble columns, boys in khaki, and finally green ivy and rows of gowned figures under the great elms, voices lifted. We have come a long way.

Years, Alma Mater, are flying,
 Hurrying feet shall pass.
 We in the midst of your others,
 Sand in your hour-glass,
 Striving without cessation,
 Onward and upward shall press
 With never a fear to hold us
 From our goal, success.

DEDICATION

To all the lovely hours with you; to all the dances, davenport, and dates; to all the honor rolls and billet-doux; to B.Z., Chi Sig, K.D. and all the others; to Boulevard and —aw hell, we're breaking our hearts—to State College!

INTRODUCTION

...State College—stop me if you've heard this one before—State College is a unique institution.... Let us point out to youse guys that Hoover had his Roosevelt; Shakespeare his Bacon; and, in spite of the years, Mae West still has hers. ...“To you from failing hands we throw the torch.” (Ann, the reign of Rand will be continued for three years more.) So help us!.....

...On the morning of April twenty-seventh, in the year of grace nineteen hundred and ten, Dean Annie uttered those historic words, “There are three kinds of dancing: graceful, ungraceful, and disgraceful.”...At the Junior-Frosh Party last fall Dean Moreland wore green slippers. And, speaking of footwear, there has been quite a fad of ski shoes of late.... And as Antonio said to Shylock, “You're a man after my own heart.”

AFFAIRS OF STATE—

(This beautifully fragrant outline of great historic accuracy was compiled by Hogarth Wellington, Jr. and Ophelia Necksnap, editors-in-chief of the Lion and Echo—respectively.)

We know very little of the early years of State. We presume they were like all cradle days. The date on the books of the Registrar of Vital Statistics is Dec. 18, 1844, but in those days things were very lax—nothing very accurate.

Annie Pierce became a member of the faculty in 1886, way back in the days when our papas wore short pants and ate green apples. She was young in those days and probably had her moments. There is an oral tradition about her and some unknown Union man. But much hair has fallen from many faculty heads since then, much hair.

Brubie had a mustache in 1919. We've still got a picture of him in it. He shaved it off just before we were Freshmen and he made that trip to Russia. Bill Nelson's growing one now.

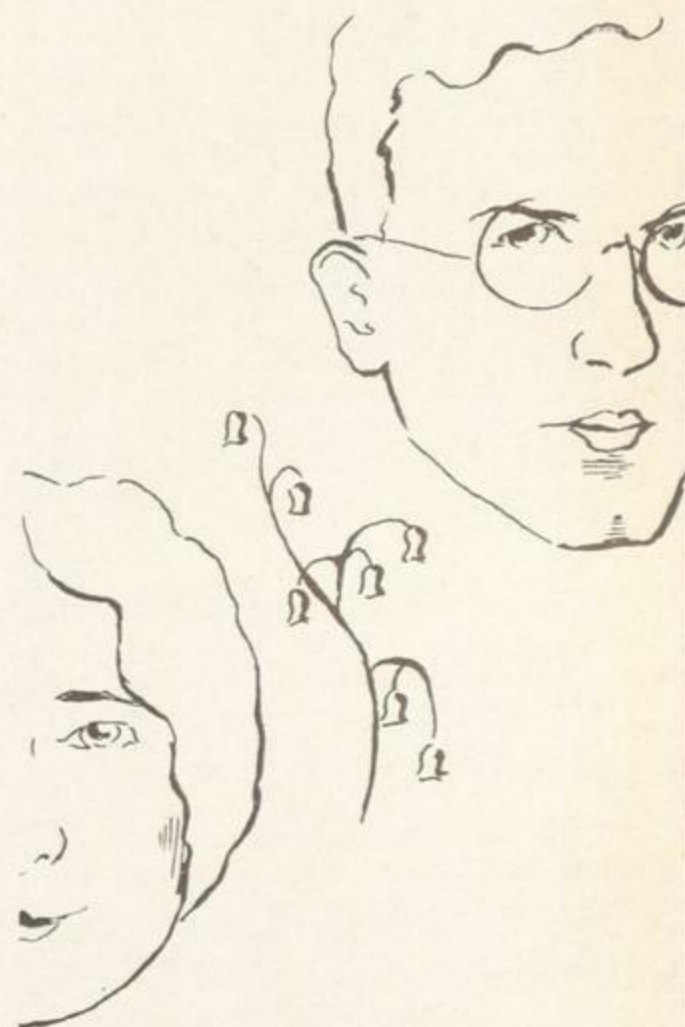

On Christmas Eve 1926—a very dark night—Staius Lionus, a lusty brat, was born. A nervous young doctor was summoned in the wee young hours of the morning. He apologized for dressing so hurriedly and not having time to shave, but he was a good doctor. He gave his name as Earl J. He's become a bit paunchy these days and he isn't nervous any more.

On September 26, 1930 (which happened to be Activities Day) a decorous little Frosh searched from table to table in the gym. The eager light of firm resolution was in his eye. At last, in desperation, he approached a lordly Senior and queried, "Where can I—may I sign up for Myskania?" The Senior looked. The Senior laughed. The little laddie turned away; but ere he turned, he shook his wavy locks. "I'll make it, sir," he cried. And, so help me, he did he did.

In the bonny month of June, 1932, Donald C. Bryant was married to Mary Elizabeth Osborne. Since then, the Bryants have been at home somewhere on Park Avenue. Why don't cha go up en see 'em some time, eh?

When the Humour Editor read this over, he went out and shot himself. A note found in the left back pocket of his trousers read, "I had to do it to save my honor." His parents have been awarded the Carnegie medal for heroism.

PROGRESS

There are few fields where the necessity for progress—the demand for new ideas, is as pronounced as in the production of School Annuals. ✧ Here in Canton we take pride in not only keeping pace, but in setting the pace for innovations and changes in this highly progressive field. ✧ When you work with Canton you are hand in hand with experienced people, constantly on the alert to sense the wants of Annual publishers, and quick to change from the old order, and offer new and unusual ideas to progressive editors.
