"Living Room of the University," a color-sound film documenting the part a college union often plays in higher education, will be shown to Student Senate and Myskanika at the March 21 Senate meeting. I.F.G. will show the film to the student body with its regular program March 23.

The film was made at the University of Wisconsin and shows the Wisconsin Union as a social, dining, cultural and hospitality center.

The movie camera caught scenes of new students arriving on the campus and attending the Union open house, dancing at informal parties, working in the Union craft shop and installing art exhibitions.

The camera also moves backstage in the Union to show students producing the operetta, "Bittersweet," surveys the kitchens where 6,000 to 8,000 meals are prepared each day, and records the pageantry of the annual Beefeaters dinner for Union committee members.

Crisis Facing School Aid

By KENNETH BRADY

Every day an average of 2,750 children are added to the list of those who must enter America's overcrowded public schools. As a result, next year's school enrollment will be 1,000,000 above this year's record of 37,500,000.

When the public schools opened last September, they were short 127,000 classrooms; thus, nearly 1,700,000 more pupils had to be crammed into schools not built to handle the increase. This overcrowding came despite a record 72,000 classrooms built during the previous twelve months.

States and local communities have attempted to provide enough money to keep abreast of this expanding school age population; but many have not succeeded. Federal aid to education appears to be the only solution.

Kennedy's Program

President Kennedy is urging a comprehensive program of Federal aid to elementary and secondary schools. He has proposed spending $2.1 billion over the next three years for building schools and for raising teachers' salaries.

Last year, the Senate passed a similar bill to provide $2.3 billion for school construction and for wage increases; however, the bill never reached the floor of the House. This was due partially to the bill's omission of Federal aid to parochial schools.

President Kennedy has omitted aid to parochial schools again this year. He told a press conference that he would have to oppose Federal aid to church schools "on Constitutional grounds — unless there is a new judgment by the Supreme Court."

Cardinal Spellman

Francis Cardinal Spellman immediately called Kennedy's program "a dagger threatening our very existence." The Cardinal said: "If the Federal Government should favor the public schools and put an additional tax on us, from which we would receive no benefit, then, my friends, it is the eventual end of our parochial schools."

First Amendment

It is clear that the First Amendment flatly prohibits aid to parochial schools. It should also be obvious that we cannot permit political bickering to prevent urgently needed funds from going to public schools. If we allow narrow minded politicians to make Federal aid to education an "all-or-nothing" proposition, we are inviting a crisis in American education.

State Senator Suggests Banning Controversial SUNY Speakers

The issue of whether or not students of a State supported college have the right to hear controversial speakers has again been raised.

Dr. Linus Pauling, a physicist, in a speech at the College of Medicine at Syracuse University made predictions that millions of future babies will be born deformed because of the fallout produced by nuclear explosions.

State Senator John H. Hughes (Republican from Onondaga) wants to bar controversial speakers from using facilities of the State University. Senator Hughes' statement has been called "asinine" by another state senator.

State University President, Thomas H. Hamilton, replied that he believes in freedom of speech, freedom of thought and freedom of dissent.

Cacoethes Scribendi et Carpendi et Cetera

By BRUCE CLARKE

"Such labored nothing in so strange a style Amaze the unlearned and make the learned smile."

By Pope, Alexander the First.

It would be too presumptuous of me to advise the aspiring young critic on how to go about criticizing. However, from personal experience, I have the dubious distinction of being some sort of authority on how not to criticize. Over a stretch of years I have frequently committed what amounts to academic and social suicide. I have been deceived, as have many others, by the apparent simplicity of the art of criticism. I have succeeded, as have many others, in doing little more than exposing my own profound ignorance.

By way of momentary digression it is to the advantage of the novice critic to know into what he or she is stepping. The cherished image of the public in general has of the critic is a half-erased Carrie Nation character grinding and wielding a verbal ax while delighting in destruction for its own sake. The "unenlightened" critic is "The Enemy of the People" maliciously rocking the boat of complacency. To the intellectually elite the critic is an abnoxious malevolent attempting to carp his way up the ladder. To the artistic element the critic is regarded as the envious

Philistine who forever fails to comprehend. In any case those who embark upon the primrose path of criticism will be eventually offered the distasteful choice of being labeled either a fool or a villain.

If the new critic persists with the attitude "Names will never hurt me," he soon discovers good and ample reasons for the public's unsympathetic stereotype. He will find many of his newly made associates have donned the cloak of the critic merely to discuss their own vain glorious peevishness or to sanctify their particular brand of verbal revenge. It is, sometimes, difficult to discern the difference between this hypocritical element and the sincere but humbling novice.

I pause now at the third paragraph stretch to allow the reader time to rest and contemplate after the inundation of so much "purple prose." Also it allows the tired author time to step down from the soap box and search for his straying topic to regroup his ideas in a lengthy but forceful conclusion.

I long to itemize all the pitfalls awaiting to entrap the unsuspecting novice critic, but, alas, I can not, for "Life is short and Art is long." Probably the first snare to avoid is that of the trite or hackneyed remark. Start fresh with an informative title keeping the theme of your criticism closely centered

The Meatgrinder

By ANNE DUGAN

Let's face it — just about the only topical thing to write about this week is the weather. Everyone seems obsessed with the idea. When I asked every person I know (as I usually do on Tuesday night) what I should write this column about, the only thing anyone said was, "How about Spring???"

To begin, Spring at State means a combination of two things — weekends and term papers. Have you noticed that girls are especially friendly after March 20, and all the butterfly-nets are out for a "suitable" date for the big weekend. A warning to all brandy-sniffer collectors. Don't get hooked for two; you may be in a tight spot the following week.

At this time of year, the library is always out of books. The study bugs are at it again, and he who waits 'til last is sunk.

Have you ever started a paper with marvelous intentions and presented about six or eight book reports to the librarian (you're really going to do a bang-up job, aren't you)? Tough luck, because you lose. The hand-wavers in the front row have already signed out at least four of the books you want, and the ones you do manage to get have about a half-page of absurd information.

Cheer up, because Spring means other things too. Your wool socks itch. Your old sneakers get so muddy that you splurge and get some new ones (never mind this Easter-hat jazz). The Primer decides to publish nature poems. Girls take up tennis and meet some "fascinating men". The cafeteria gets a new soda machine (free Pepsi the first day!). Professors shave off their beards. Everyone wears shades — even in the morning. We walk instead of taking the bus.

Whoopee!!! I think I'll steal a bicycle one of these days and go count the crocuses in Washington Park.

Why Federal Aid?

By JOE GALU

Why should we have federal aid to education? If the taxpayer is footing the bill ultimately, how can there be a difference between federal money to education, state money for education and direct local financing?

In some ways there are no differences. The question can be resolved only if we think of the purposes of aid from different levels of government. The purposes of federal aid are to raise and equalize the level of education throughout America, to loan money at low interest rates for construction, and to raise teachers' salaries.

Church-State issues are not involved in any of these three areas.

First of all Catholic schools are taught by Nuns and Brothers. It would be out of the question for anyone to ask that people who are classified as Catholics be recipients of federal or state money. We are past the time when the federal government hired Protestant clergymen to convert the Indians.

The only purpose of federal aid with regard to salaries is to raise their level. Nuns and Brothers are not people who look at teaching as lucrative employment.

Another form of proposed federal aid to education is that of aiding the construction of new facilities. Some of the bills in Congress favor grants while others suggest loans. Granting money for school construction would involve a Church-State question. Obviously, giving money for parochial schools would ease the financial burden on the building of these schools.

The controversy arises in the field of loaning money. Interest rates right now are such that most districts pay far more than twice

Poetic Drama, To Play Sun.

By JOHN VELIE

This Sunday at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m., the ancient ballroom of the Kenmore Hotel at 76 North Pearl St. will be the scene of some very modern entertainment. An experimental production of Frank O'Hara's TRY TRY will be presented in conjunction with a party, all for the benefit of State's independent weekly, suppression.

TRY TRY, which was first presented at the POET'S THEATRE, Cambridge, Massachusetts and later at the ARTISTS THEATRE in New York City, is not paraphrased "tub-humping" of dead "liberals" whose homilies and proverbs are nailed to the stage by the requirements of "realism." In fact, it does not even have the "safe for production" seal of anti-quey. Don't panic though, for the purposes of cocktail party erudition, and survey-course note taking, TRY TRY may be defined as "a candid examination of pre-war values and their application to contemporary American society." However, as you know you won't be tested on this play, either academically or socially, why don't you stop in at the Kenmore on Sunday? There is no admission charge and free transportation will be leaving from Bru at 2 p.m. for the afternoon performance.

The author, Frank O'Hara expressed a desire to attend the performance Sunday. The cast: John, Richard Marshall; Violet, Norma Kutzer; Jack, Ted Pulaski. The director, John Velie. The assistant to the director, Sandra Velie. Set design, Robert Baker. Lighting, Harold Szenes.

Commission Installs Members, Explains Deeds and Policies

By PAT BENEDETTO

Tuesday at 7:15 p.m., the following students were formally accepted by the Standards of the Campus Commission and the Grand Marshal, Pat Benedetto '62: Andrea Zamorski '64, Harold Thornhill '63, Ru Petrick '63, Anthony DiRocco '64, Evelyn Petrick '64, Barbara Martin '63, Elaine Hauser '62, Jim Conklin '63, Mary Ruth Butler '63, Carol Blackwell '63, Sandi Barolet '63, and Don Allen '63.

Each student promised to foster student responsibility with respect to the care of the non-academic facilities of the campus. Following this, a meeting was held with the Senate Services Committee.

The condition of the Student Lounges has been poor during the past semester, and it is time for the student body to realize that they have no one but themselves to blame for the poor conditions. Only with student cooperation can Campus Commission successfully carry out its duties. Campus Commission and Student Government would like to see more student respect for the college facilities. It is disheartening to see food, papers and cigarette ashes on the floors and tables of the Commons, Draper Lounge and the Cafeteria when there are trash receptacles and ashtrays within a hand's reach.

Campus Commission has tried to make student surroundings a bit brighter by painting, having curtains made, purchasing ash trays,

Touching All Bases

By DAVE JENKS

Hello Spring

Ah yes!! Spring has once again started to spurt and sputter in our beloved State Capitol. Gone are the dull gray snow clouds of winter; replaced by the crisp clear blue sky, wisps of puffy clouds, and the much welcomed radiance of the spring sun. Our steps seem much livelier and full of bounce which is very convenient with all the puddles and ponds we have to jump. But, even in these mirky puddles and the mud and mire which accompany them there is reflected the refreshing growth and pleasantness of spring, and an occasional wet foot or muddy note book cannot dampen the vim and vigor of this time of year.

It is a time when our thoughts are starting to wander and roam as we are caught up in an increasing feeling of interest and adventure. As we sit in the library vainly attempting to write our already overdue term paper, to solve a slightly complicated calculus computation, or to study for one of our three tests we have scheduled for the next day, we can hear the pleasant, melodious chirping of newly arrived birds — even over the everpresent low, echoing, coo of the Hawley pigeons.

Since it is still too cool and wet to get a sunbath on Dorm Field, the gals put back their bikinis and partake of the pleasant art of taking a walk preferably with a member of the opposite type sex. And since there are usually a number of these men tooling around, most of these mechanically minded females have soon cleverly paired off with one and the happy little twosomes can be seen floating along all over the campi.

"Play Ball"

But, the more adventurous and hardy of our male population have felt that annual tug and lure of spring sports. The bats, balls, and gloves are soon brought out of winter storage and the slap-slap of several games of catch can be heard. The whine of a zipping fastball, the resounding crack of wood against horsehide, the stinging smack of a screeching line drive hitting in the glove of a lunging infielder, and the cheers and shouts of approval or encouragement all blend together to form music in an athlete's or avid sports fan's ear.

Man, who could help but be happy at a time like this! But wait, who is that man over there with the long face? You say it's our varsity baseball coach. That's cool, doesn't he know he's supposed to be in a good mood now? Oh I get it, his favorite major league team just lost its tenth game in a row. No that's not it, huh? The athletic department didn't buy any new baseball equipment again this year? No not that either. His son just hit him in the head with a baseball? Wrong again, O.K. I give up, what's the problem? Oh I see, he's trying to field a team, but he hasn't got any players. Whew! for a second I thought it was something serious.

Enough Joking

But listen Statesmen while this is not exactly the case, it is still no joke. There are men out for the team, including several very good ballplayers, but how many? — twelve. That's right, only twelve. Even if these were all excellent ballplayers, it is still a mighty small number to make up any sort of a winning team, and if we are to have a top squad there will have to be more than this handful out there on the diamond. Hold on just a second though before you make that decision to give it a try. If you are the type of guy who prefers taking a mighty swing at an oversized softball on Dorm Field where all the little women of Alden, Pierce, Bru, and Sayles can see your beautiful set of Vic Tanny Muscles, and you think you'll get lots of attention and glory by going out for baseball — forget it!! Only if you like the firm tremor of getting a solid piece of lumber on the ol' apple, only if you get a thrill out of making a good defensive play, and only if you have the desire to win and the hustle to go all out to achieve this, yes only then does State want or need you to represent them on this year's varsity baseball battlefield.

Potter Captures Bowling Title; Sabo Leads With 172 Average

Potter won Frank high triple, 616, and Dave the league championship, never Roegner high single, 247, having relinquished its hold on first place since the opening day. For a while the Commuters and last year's champ, KB, were in hot pursuit of the Club. But Potter successfully turned back any challengers.

The results of the last week of bowling showed the Potter men downing W'bury 1, 3-1, the Commuters trouncing W'bury 11, 4-0, Madison winning four from SLS by forfeit, and KB beating TXO, 4-0. High triples were hit by Dave Roegner, 576; Claude Frank, 548; Don Fear, 521; Ken Schrader, 518; Phil Thomas, 512, and Fred Press, 508. High singles were hit by Frank, 215; Roegner, 203; Bruce Rogers, 195; Gary Penfield, 192; and Don Rogers, 191.

There will be four trophies awarded by the AMIA. The big trophy goes to Potter for winning the team championship. It is a large trophy, standing about a foot high. Smaller trophies go to the men having high average, high

Crow Cops 4-1 Championship But Bows in NAIA Tourney; Hampered by Knee Injury

By DICK ROBELOTTA

Clem Crow, Albany State's fine, undefeated-in-dual-matches wrestler, successfully defended his 4-1 Tournament championship. However, while doing so, he sustained an injury which hampered him the following weekend in the N.A.I.A. Tournament held in Winona, Minnesota. Ray Bouchard and John Woytowich, two other consistent wrestlers for our team, lost in their respective weight classes. Ray drew a bye to the semi-finals of this tournament, but in the semis he met Butler of Western Michigan who turned the trick and defeated Ray. Ray lost his consolation match to Ricks of Ithaca College. John Woytowich wrestled the best match of the season when he defeated Staley Jackson of Howard 8-3 in overtime. John met defeat at the hands of his next opponent Walter Kottmeyer of Millerville, Pa. A knee injury kept John out of the consolation match.

Clem, of course, won both the preliminaries, the semis, and the finals. In his two prelims, he faced Gary Jones of Millersburg and Dan Grey of Toledo, both of whom he defeated. In the semis, Tom Koenig of the University of Illinois fell to Clem's wrestling prowess. In the finals, Clem wrestled better than in any other match this season. Pat McCormach, his opponent, had scouted Clem thoroughly and countered almost every move Clem tried. Forced into overtime, Clem eventually won 3-0, snapping the Washington and Jefferson's boy win string at 45. While beating McCormach, Clem injured his knee and thus hampered any championship attempt in the N.A.I.A.

Crow Hurt Knee

Clem was able to wrestle in this tournament with a brace on his knee. However this was too big an advantage to give to the calibre of wrestlers that participated in this tournament. Consequently Clem lost to Don Taylor of Bloomsburg in the first round of wrestling. Clem was the hard-luck wrestler of the team. First he broke his ankle, next he suffered an injury to the opposite leg, and now this. However, even with these injuries, he was forced to miss only two matches. His perseverance under stress must be respected.

These three wrestlers were not the only wrestlers to go to post-season tournaments. Eugene Monaco went to the annual tourney held at West Point for freshman. He won his first, but lost his second match to Furrer, to whom he lost when he wrestled against Oswego. He has made fine improvement over the season and is the most promising freshman wrestler.

Career Cues:

"The broader your knowledge, the greater your chance of success!"

Edwin J. Ducayot, President
Bell Helicopter Company

"As I look back, graduating from college in the depth of the depression was a blessing in disguise. It was difficult to get a job, and even more difficult to hold it. It proved to me early in life that to succeed in business requires constant struggle.

"I found that the truly successful individual never stops learning, that a formal college education is the foundation on which we continue to build the knowledge and experience required to get ahead.

"Even in today's age of specialization, a man eventually reaches a point where breadth of knowledge is necessary. The engineer must understand accounting and marketing. The marketing man must know his product. The financial man must be sympathetic to engineering development and sales programs. Management must have a working knowledge of all phases of the complex and highly competitive business world.

"Therefore, even though specializing, a student should make his college curriculum as broad as possible, and diversify his outside activities. Authoritative surveys have shown that only a small percentage of individuals end up in the field in which they specialized in college.

"Widen your world. Broaden your interests right now. Since graduation from college I've discovered that those who are really succeeding today are the ones who do more and keep on learning from what they do. The broader your college interests are now — the steadier your ladder of success tomorrow!"
