Quadrangular Soccer Scrimmage

The annual quadrangular soccer scrimmage will be held Saturday, September 12 at State University of New York at Albany, beginning at 1 p.m. In addition to the host Great Danes, participating teams will be the University of Connecticut, Williams College and Marist College. The public is invited at no charge.

Six abbreviated games of 40 minutes each will be played, two at a time, using both the game field and practice field. All four teams will meet one another in the round-robin. The purpose of the scrimmage is to give the teams additional game-situation experience before the opening of the regular season. Albany will host Brooklyn College at 2 p.m. in the curtain-raiser September 19.

The scrimmage schedule pits Albany against Marist on the game field (No. 1) and Connecticut against Williams on field No. 2 at 1 p.m. At 1:50 the pairings are Marist-U Conn, field #1, and Albany-Williams, field #2. At 2:40 Albany and U Conn will play on Field #1, while Marist and Williams clash on field #2.

Albany Names Football Assistants

State University at Albany has named seven men to assist head coach Bob Ford in the university's first year of intercollegiate club football. Five staff members are part-time graduate assistants and two are volunteer assistants. The Great Danes open their six-game schedule October 10 against visiting Rochester Tech.

The graduate assistants include 1970 Springfield College alumni Nick Kartalis and Steve Sarnoff; Phil Grady, Norwich '70; Dennis Moran, Bridgeport '69; and Paul Stambach, Hobart '69. The volunteer coaches are Don Dello Stritto, Springfield, '70, and Ray Murphy, Cortland '61. Both have offered their services to help launch the university's football program.

Kartalis, Dello Stritto, and Murphy will be in charge of the receivers, offensive line, and offensive backs, respectively. Kartalis played two years of varsity football at Springfield, where Dello Stritto was captain and offensive guard. Murphy has coached at several schools, most recently as head football coach at Adams (N.Y.) High. This year, he will be substituting in physical education at area schools. Dello Stritto is a physical education teacher in the middle school, Castleton-on-the-Hudson.

The defensive coaches will be Sarnoff (secondary), Grady (cornerbacks), Moran (linebackers), and Stambach (line). Sarnoff was an All-New England selection at defensive halfback and a three-year letterman at Springfield. Grady coached the Norwich freshman football team last fall. Moran, All-New England at guard and line-backer while at Bridgeport, was an assistant coach last year at Wahconah Regional High School, Adams, Mass. Stambach played on the offensive and defensive lines at Hobart.

Kartalis, Moran and Sarnoff will also assist athletic trainer Charles "Spud" Kruzan.

State University of New York at Albany will host the 25th annual Conference of the New York State Community Theatre Association at its Performing Arts Center, Friday - Sunday, September 25-27. James Lommel of Schenectady will serve as conference chairman.

The Tri-Cities Council of Community Theatres will perform Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" on Friday evening. The Tri-Cities Council is a confederation of theater groups in the Capital District under the direction of Albany Times-Union drama critic Martin P. Kelly.

On Saturday, Vinette Carroll, director of the New York City Urban Arts Corps, will conduct morning and afternoon workshops and Jack Suesse of the Syracuse Scenery and State Lighting Co. will lead a workshop on improvisation backstage. Also planned is a mixed media workshop, demonstrating the use of film, projections, and television tapes in combination with live theater.

Following Saturday evening's conference banquet, the Hartford Players of Westchester Community College, directed by Mort Clark, will present "Home Free" by Langford Wilson. The second part of the program will feature the East River Players' production of "El Hajj Malik," a play by N.R. Davidson based on the life of Malcom X. Directing the East River Players will be Mical R. Whitaker.

The Sunday morning program will consist of a workshop on improvisational theater. Conference registrants will be given reduced ticket prices for all productions. Individual tickets may be purchased at the box office before each performance. Persons interested in further information regarding the conference should write to Mr. Lommel, Box 2585, Schenectady 12309.

Pianist R. Findlay Cockrell, State University of New York at Albany, department of music, will perform Beethoven Sonatas 4-7 in three concerts September 18-20 in the Recital Hall of the university's Performing Arts Center. Mr. Cockrell will perform at 8:30 Friday and Saturday evenings and at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The concerts are the first in the Beethoven Festival which the music department is presenting this fall to celebrate the 200th year of the composer's birth. The festival will include all of Beethoven's sonatas for violin and piano, as well as many compositions for chamber ensembles, voice, orchestra, and chorus. Faculty and students of the department will participate. The climax of the festival will be an all-day concert on Beethoven's 200th birthday, December 16.

Among Mr. Cockrell's selections will be Sonata in E flat, Sonata in C minor, Sonata in F, and Sonata in D. The works include Opus 7 and Numbers 1, 2, and 3 of Opus 10.

Walter Goldstein, professor of international relations at State University of New York at Albany, will conduct a study of the role of multinational corporations in the economic and technological growth of Western Europe in a new project sponsored by the Twentieth Century Fund. Most of the multinational corporations are American in origin. Taken together, according to Goldstein, they have a net worth exceeding the gross national product of either France or Great Britain.

Dr. Goldstein also claims that American involvement in European economics is particularly marked in "high technology" industries, where the participation of multinational corporations has increased at an annual rate of 18 percent in the past decade. Today, more than 30 percent of the auto and petroleum industries in Europe are controlled by American firms.

Among the issues Professor Goldstein plans to study are: the extent to which executives, staffs and board members of these enterprises are composed of foreign nationals; whether key executives are exposed to cross-national pressures in formulating and making decisions; the threat to national resources created by these multinational corporations; and whether institutional reforms can correct abuses and dispel national anxieties.

The Albany university faculty member intends to look into the careers of top executives of multinational corporations and to conduct interviews with managers of such firms in an attempt to evaluate their roles, relationships, and attitudes. The study will also deal with institutional reforms. Dr. Goldstein will evaluate current proposals and will make new recommendations based on the data he compiles.

The School of Business, State University of New York at Albany, has adopted several structural and curricular changes for the 1970-71 year in a continuing transition and redirection of its goals. In addition, Dean W. Warren Haynes has announced the appointment of 10 new faculty members to the growing school.

Two years ago, the School of Business accepted a plan to change its program from one which had concentrated on training teachers to one which now is practitioner-oriented in management, preparing students for professional careers in business. Since a primary thrust is toward long-term development, rather than short-term vocational training, a master's program is given high priority. The Master of Business Administration degree program began this fall.

The master's program consists of three components. The first semester, organized on a modular plan, has the objective of providing concepts required by later courses. The second semester stresses decision-making and realistic, complex problem situations faced by management. The second year includes required courses in business policy and behavioral analysis, plus an elective laboratory-type course of major dimensions taught by a faculty team, and several other electives. The program is highly innovative.

The most important structural change in the school is the elimination of the traditional departmental system, which has been replaced by an organization built around programs, rather than departments. In addition to the dean and his immediate staff, there are directors of the following organizational units: undergraduate programs, first semester M.B.A. faculty, second semester M.B.A. faculty, accounting program faculty, and second year M.B.A. program faculty. There also are coordinators for such areas as marketing, quantitative methods, finance, organizational behavior, and business law.

The undergraduate program also has undergone changes, although major emphasis now is on development of the graduate program. This year, a pre-professional program has gone into effect, permitting students to earn both the B.S. and M.B.A. within five years. Beginning next fall, an experimental program with stress on student-directed activities and involvement in the outside community or foreign countries will be initiated for undergraduates.

Dean Haynes and his faculty, in looking to the future, will be guided by several principles in developing the School of Business. General managerial competence will take precedence over specialization in the academic program, although the need for in-depth education in certain specialties will be recognized. The M.B.A. program will receive highest priority in planning and will be developed preceding introduction of a doctoral program. Guidelines for admission to the school now stress acceptance of students who foresee for themselves a career in management and who bring the necessary aptitudes and attitudes for such professional commitment.

The Lincoln Center Repertory Theater and the Barbwire Theater will be guest companies this year in performances in the Performing Arts Center at State University of New York at Albany.

The drama department season gets underway October 14-18 with a production of Tennessee Williams' "Camino Real" on the main stage. Joseph Balfior will direct the play now in rehearsal. James Saunders' "Scent of Flowers," under the direction of Dr. Jarka Burian has been scheduled for November 18-22 in the Laboratory 2 Theater. The third production is Ronald Ribman's "Harry, Noon and Night" to be presented in the Studio Theater December 9-13. It will be directed by Albert Weiner.

Patricia Snyder will direct the musical version of Sir James Barrie's play, "Peter Pan," for production in the Main Theater on March 3-7. Findlay Cockrell will be musical director. The fifth production, still to be chosen, will be presented April 28-May 2 and will have a guest director. The guest company includes the Barbwire Theater production "The Cage" in February. The drama was written, and will be performed, by inmates of San Quentin Prison. The Lincoln Repertory Company is scheduled to do two Harold Pinter plays, "Landscape" and "Silence," in April.

The Experimental Theater again will be in existence this year with a series of student showcases at 7:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. each Friday. The plays will be produced and directed by students. The Children's Theater will be presenting student-produced laboratory productions of "Cinderella" and "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Tours to schools can be arranged by calling Patricia Snyder at 457-7581. The department again will have regular Saturday morning drama workshops for young people.

Lawrence W. Pierce, of Canaan (N. Y.), former chairman of the New York State Narcotic Commission, has been appointed visiting professor in the School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York at Albany, for the 1970-71 academic year. He recently completed service on the President's Task Force on the Rehabilitation of Offenders and has been appointed to the American Bar Association's Commission on Corrections.

Professor Pierce, has serviced with the Special Civilian Committee to the Department of the Army, which has issued a report on "The Army Confinement System in the United States and Abroad." The report makes 61 proposals, including recommending that the Army's Correctional Training Facility and its Disciplinary Barracks programs in Kansas be expanded and that Army stockades in Frankfurt, Germany, and at the Presidio in San Francisco be closed.

The President's Task Force on the Rehabilitation of Offenders called for the collection of basic data and research about offenders, better preparation for jobs while in institutions, development of regional facilities, and development of community-based programs.

Dr. Pierce has a Bachelor of Science in business administration from St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, and a doctorate in law from Fordham University School of Law where he was associate editor of Fordham Law Review. In 1967 he received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters conferred by St. Joseph's. He was admitted to the Bar of the State of New York, federal practice in the Eastern and Southern Districts of New York, and practice before the United States Supreme Court.

John A. Ether, professor of education at State University of New York at Albany, has been selected to appear in the 1970 edition of "Outstanding Educators of America". Nominated earlier in the year, he has been chosen for the awards publication on the basis of his civic and professional achievements.

Each year some 5,000 of the nation's foremost educators are featured in the national volume which highlights the annual program designed to recognize and honor men and women who have distinguished themselves by exceptional service, achievements, and leadership in education. Guidelines include an educator's talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, and civic and professional recognition previously received.

Dr. Ether, whose field is curriculum and instruction, for four years has directed the Adult Basic Education Institute on Curriculum held at the Albany university during the summer. The overall objective of the institute is to prepare experienced ABE personnel who are in positions to implement curriculum development and change in ABE programs currently operating in urban areas of the United States.

Currently Professor Ether is host of the televised series, "Can Do: Education of the Disadvantaged". The five half-hour programs, produced by State University of New York, are being shown by television stations across the state. The series takes a constructive look at the problems facing administrators, supervisors, and teachers who are charged with the responsibility of drawing the disadvantaged child into the educational mainstream today. Featured are segments filmed on location at the Buffalo Public Schools and the Harlem Pre-Employment Preparation Teams in New York City.

Albany Booters Hopeful; Open Saturday

State University at Albany opens its 21st season of varsity soccer Saturday as host to Brooklyn College at 2 p.m. The Great Danes, bolstered by talented newcomers, should have no trouble bettering last fall's 1-7-3 mark and have a good chance to post their first winning season since 1966.

Bill Schieffelin, in his third year as head coach, is optimistic. "We have a good attitude, a winning attitude, going into this season," he said. "Last year, we lost a lot of games we could have won (five defeats were by one or two goals). Now, we have confidence and ability to win those close ones."

Schieffelin plans to start six lettermen Saturday, but the key man is transfer Fred Campbell, a junior college All-American from Hudson Valley. The Watervliet product, who will be at centerforward, scored 26 goals for the Vikings, five more than the entire Albany team managed a year ago. Campbell and senior Joel Volinski (Southold) have been elected co-captains, providing the field leadership Schieffelin believes will make a great difference. Volinski, a fullback, has been outstanding in pre-season scrimmages.

John Thayer (sophomore, Averill Park) will be in the goal. He played well last season before suffering a rib injury in the RPI game. Joining Volinski at fullback will be Dick Conant (sophomore, Orangeburg) and Bruce Ackerman (freshman, Oceanside). The halfbacks will be former area high school players, John Proulx of Colonie and Gavin Lowder of Guilderland, both juniors.

Another Cross-Country Powerhouse

When a coach who has an eight-year record of 67-12, including two unbeaten seasons, says "This could be as good a team as I've ever had," he must have an abundance of talent on hand. That is the situation State University at Albany cross-country coach Bob Munsey contemplates as he prepares for the Great Danes' 1970 opening meet at Clarkson Saturday.

"This team is in the best condition and has the greatest depth of any team in my nine years at Albany," states Munsey, who seldom is at a loss for words. "We have 28 men out, 15 of them freshmen, and five of the frosh could make the varsity."

The top four runners appear to be co-captain Pat Gepfert (senior, Colonie), Dennis Hackett (junior, Hilton), John Comerford (sophomore, Troy), and Nick DeMarco (freshman, Voorheesville). "About seven men are fighting for the number five spot," reports Munsey, "and they're all good."

Munsey is especially enthusiastic about Comerford, who worked hard all summer and is vastly improved. He was the Most Valuable Runner on last fall's JV team. DeMarco also has been impressive and looks like the best of a strong freshman group. Hackett holds the best Albany times on the home course, while Gepfert is a three-year veteran and will co-captain the squad with Bill Meehan (senior, Rochester).

Munsey plans to keep about 13 men on the varsity, eight of whom will make the traveling squad. The remaining candidates will compete with the JV team, coached by Roger Conant, a graduate student at Albany and a 1969 University of Rochester alumnus.

An academic year at the University of Nanyang at Singapore began for 13 State University of New York students, Sunday, September 20. They and their advisors left Kennedy International Airport enroute to San Francisco and Japan. They will have a three-day stopover in Japan and also will spend three days in Hong Kong.

The full academic year program is sponsored by State University of New York at Albany and the State University College at New Paltz. Professor Martha Egelston of Albany's history department is one of the accompanying advisors and Professor Egelston's husband, Lester Egelston, also will accompany the group. Professor Hak Lee of the School of Business also is assisting in advising the group and will serve as an exchange professor to Nanyang University from Albany for the year.

Students will pursue courses in Southeast Asian studies and Chinese language. The area studies program is a diverse program offering drawn from many disciplines. Some students already have studied Chinese language at their home institutions although a knowledge of Chinese is not necessary since Nanyang is a bi-lingual university using both Chinese and English. The cost of the full academic year program including travel, living and study, is not expected to exceed the usual cost for a full year of study on the home campus.

Melvin I. Urofsky, assistant dean of the office of innovative and developmental programs, State University of New York at Albany, is the author of a new Doubleday publication, "Why Teachers Strike". The book consists of a lengthy essay on the New York teachers strike of 1968 written by Dr. Urofsky, and interviews with many of the leading participants in the strike.

In the spring of 1969 several of the principal figures in the school controversy participated in a seminar at the Albany university which was conducted by Dr. Urofsky. They included Albert Shanker, head of the teachers' union; Rhody McCoy, unit administrator of Ocean Hill-Brownsville experimental school district; Bernard Donovan, then superintendent of the New York Schools; and Mario Fantini of the Ford Foundation.

Currently the Albany faculty member ^{is} making plans for a similar course on problems of university governance to be held next spring. At that time class members will /be able to question radical students, faculty members, administrators, legislators, and state officials on problems of running a modern university.

Alumni from all parts of New York and the eastern United States are expected to attend the State University of New York at Albany's Homecoming '70 weekend to take place on the Albany campus October 16, 17, and 18.

Highlighting the three-day affair is the first Homecoming game for Coach Robert Ford's newly-formed SUNYA football team. Currently in its initial season, the squad takes on an eleven from near by Siena College at the Albany gridiron Saturday, October 17 at 2 p. m.

Other Homecoming events include a Saturday night concert by Sergio Mendes and his Brazil '66 and the folk duo of Seals and Croft and an alumni breakfast Sunday morning to be addressed by the university's new president, Louis T. Benezet.

A major theme of the weekend is "alumni-student dialogue." Informal discussions among alumni and students will focus upon controversial campus issues in an effort to reach common understanding and mutual respect.

The weekend begins Friday evening with a wine and cheese reception in the Art Gallery. The affair will be followed by a showing of a film about SUNYA life produced by the school's students and staff.

Saturday morning will be devoted to alumni registration, at which coffee and Danish will be served; class meetings; and tours of the campus. The Homecoming Queen and her court will be honored by a parade preceding the football game.

Reservation for Homecoming events close October 2. Information may be obtained by calling the SUNYA Alumni Office at (518) 457-4631 or by writing to Alumni Office, SUNYA, 1400 Washington Avenue, Albany 12203.

Classes will recess at State University of New York at Albany for the Jewish high holy days beginning at noon on Wednesday, September 30 through Friday evening, October 2, and again at noon on Friday, October 9 through the evening of Saturday, October 10. Action was taken by President Louis T. Benezet "in keeping with the spirit of the resolution passed by the Senate" in its meeting September 21.

In announcing the recess, the the President asked the faculty and students to cooperate in finding ways of completing work originally planned for those days. He urged careful consideration of the larger questions involving religious holy days by the appropriate bodies on the campus in planning future academic calendars.

Morris I. Berger, new chairman of the foundations of education department at State University of New York at Albany, has described the department's purposes as being concerned with studying the application of philosophy analysis to educational theory and with the critical examination of recent philosophical works as they apply to education. In the 10-man department now are historians, sociologists, and philosophers who do work which is fundamentally historically, socially, and philosophically related to educational concepts and problems.

Dr. Berger, professor of philosophy, said that there has been an increased interest shown by students in the kind of work being carried on in the department. He added that there probably are two reasons for the development: more want to take graduate study programs and separate courses in the department and a larger number of students are becoming convinced that an important area of reform should be in education and that what is needed is a reexamination of institutions of schooling as it commonly known.

Within the department are faculty who are philosophically attracted to the kinds of things that particularly interest students; for example, structure of higher education, relation of school to society, and generally the application of the new criticism to schools and to those learning and teaching. A growing number, interested in reform, suggest that it will not take place within institutions in the society "solely by direct confrontation and physical assertion but by the more conventional method of rationally and critically assaulting the ideas that have been proposed for many of our institutions," in the words of Dr. Berger. The new chairman added that what is coming forth is a new breed of intellectual who tries to use the resources of his talent to support his social ideals. Students who get degrees in philosophy of education work extensively with the philosophy department.

"We are developing working arrangements with the department of Afro-American studies and vice versa and also working with Educational Opportunity Program students," added Dr. Berger. "Many from the College of Arts and Sciences and other professional schools are coming to the department for courses. What's happening is that although we are within the School of Education our purpose becomes more universal -- having something to do with the whole university and something to offer many parts of the university. Simultaneously, we also see members of the university who have something to contribute to our department."

Department members and their special interests include Wallace W. Taylor, education of handicapped throughout the world; Donald Van Cleve, sociology of the community and community structure; Hyman Kuritz, education of the poor in America in the 17th Century.

Also, Dr. Berger, radical political theory; Francis X. Femminella, ethnic groups and ethnicity; Charles W. Fox, secularization and philosophy of religion and writings of Paul Tillich; Joseph A. Scimecca, writings of C. Wright Mills; Dennis A. Van Essendelft, violence and the militia in the beginning of the 20th Century. Also with the department is Melvin I. Urofsky, now assistant dean of innovative and developmental programs, interested in government and education.

An outbreak of sore throats occurred at State University at Albany over the weekend. University officials became aware of an unusual number of students, reporting similar symptoms, asking for treatment at the health services building late Saturday.

State and County Health Department officials were consulted. Teams of State Health Department and University health services personnel are testing to verify the nature of the disease and give treatment.

University health services, residence and student affairs staffs have been working all day Sunday locating resident students manifesting the symptoms, bringing them to the infirmary for testing and treatment.

No cause has yet been established for the outbreak in which nearly 400 of the 5100 campus residents have reported some discomfort. Health services personnel are working steadily to treat each case reported. Investigation into the cause is continuing.

Soccer Team Seeks Third Victory

The State University at Albany soccer team, fresh from a 2-0 win at Castleton (Vt.) State, will take its 2-1 record into a home contest against Binghamton 2 p.m. Saturday (October 3). The Great Danes won just one game a year ago, so they already have doubled their victory output.

In the Castleton game, Albany's Demetrios Michael (Kingston) broke a scoreless tie with a penalty kick late in the third period, then scored the only other goal of the day on an assist from Ron Spratt (Amityville) with 20 seconds left in the game. Sophomore goalie John Thayer (Averill Park) turned in what coach Bill Schieffelin called a "magnificent performance" under pressure to post Albany's first shutout in three years. He had 24 saves. Also singled out for strong efforts were center halfback Fred Campbell (Watervliet), and fullbacks Joel Volinski (Southold) and Bruce Ackerman (Oceanside).

The Albany cross country team, 3-0, will be in action at the LeMoyne Invitational Saturday. Coach Bob Munsey's harriers defeated Coast Guard and Montclair, 29-50-53 last week, marking the first time they have beaten Coast Guard. "We were really tickled," said Munsey. "That's the one we wanted."

Munsey is thrilled with his young squad, which currently has three freshmen running in the top six. Yearlings Nick DeMarco (Voorheesville), John Koch (West Islip), and Jerry Montgomery (Colonie) have been keeping the coach smiling. Sophomore John Stanton (Delmar) has been a pleasant surprise, too, while veterans such as Pat Gepfert (Colonie) and Dennis Hackett (Hilton) are running true to form. The Great Danes look tough as their 70-12 nine-year record indicates.

Theatre Council, a State University of New York at Albany student organization funded by Central Council within the department of theatre, will present with the cooperation of the theatre department and SUNYA Children's Theatre two performances by the Everyman Players, a nationally-known repertory company. They will take place Friday and Saturday evenings, October 9 and 10, at Page Hall on the university's downtown campus.

"The Book of Job", a stylized dramatic realization of the Biblical story of the prophet, will be presented Friday evening at 8:30. The script is written in the mode of Elizabethan drama.

The Everyman Players' noted production of "The Tortoise and The Hare" will be offered Saturday evening. It is an adaptation of the well-known children's story. Costumes and makeup realize the animal characters in the play.

Tickets will go on sale soon at the Performing Arts Center box office located on the first floor lobby. For students with tax cards, both shows will be $1. For children under 16, tickets will be 75 cents. Admissions for others is $2.
