Members of the State University of New York at Albany Concert Band will sponsor a food fast and a benefit concert Friday, December 13, to raise money for needy children in Biafra and in the Albany area.

The fast will occur at the time of the evening meal when band members will be stationed in university dining halls to ask students to forego their meal and permit the Faculty-Student Association to contribute a corresponding amount of money to a fund for starving children in Biafra.

The concert, "For Needy Children Near and Far," will be held in the Albany High School auditorium at 8 p. m. There will be no admission charge, but a collection box will be placed at the entrance and it is hoped those attending will give generously. Half the proceeds will go to Biafra and half to local needy children.

Area churches, social and civic organizations, university fraternities and sororities are cooperating in publicizing and promoting the benefit. Persons not attending the concert, but wishing to aid the cause, may send their contributions to the University Concert Band.

The band, William L. Hudson, conductor, will play "Incantation and Dance" by Chance, several Christmas selections, and will accompany master of ceremonies Sorrell E. Chesin, associate dean of students, in "Ogden Nash Suite for Narrator and Band." The University Percussion Ensemble, Thomas Brown, conductor, also will perform.

R. Findlay Cockrell, pianist, will offer Gershwin preludes, among other selections; Irvin Gilman, flutist, will play "Night Soliloquy" by Kennon; and soprano Marjorie Fuller will sing selections from "Man of LaMancha" and "Sound of Music", accompanied by the band. She also will lead the audience in Christmas carols.

In addition to the fast and concert, groups from the band will visit local orphanages Friday afternoon to give Christmas party concerts for the children.

The University Concert Band's most recent appearance was before a full house and received rave reviews in the area press.

Dr. Mary S. Calderone, executive director of the Sex Information Education Council of the United States, will be heard in a public address Tuesday afternoon, December 10, at 2 o'clock in the Campus Center ballroom at State University of New York at Albany. Her topic will be "Sex Attitudes and Sex Education".

Arrangements for Dr. Calderone's appearing on campus have been made by the Schenectady Committee on Education and Human Sexuality and sponsored by the student faculty committee on drugs, sex, and related health matters and Phi Delta sorority. The address is part of a two-day Capital District conference arranged by the Schenectady committee.

Assisting with plans for Dr. Calderone's address are Miss Judith M. Osdoby and Mrs. Lois Gregg, of the student faculty committee, and Lois Freedman, of Phi Delta. Miss Freedman will introduce Rev. Louis E. Douglass of Catholic Charities, Schenectady, who will present Dr. Calderone.

Mrs. Howard Carpenter, of the Schenectady Committee on Education for Human Sexuality, who arranged for the SUNYA meeting said "Announcements about Dr. Calderone's address have also been sent to other colleges in the area and we hope that a large number of students will be able to attend."

Thirty-six outstanding students at State University of New York at Albany have been chosen to represent their school in the 1968-69 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The 14 coeds and 22 young men will have the distinction of being included in a directory of the nation's campus leaders. Those representing Albany were elected by the student body of the school. They will have the honor of being named in a volume which has been printed annually since 1934.

The students were nominated and chosen on the basis of their academic achievement, service to community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and future potential. All 36 representing the Albany university are seniors.

Varied choral works will be presented by the music department of State University of New York at Albany on Thursday, December 12, at 8:30 p. m. in the Campus Center ballroom. The concert is free to the public.

The 200-voice Mixed Choir will present "A Ceremony of Carols," by the contemporary British composer, Benjamin Britten. Mr. Britten has transferred the medieval quality of a collection of early poems in his "Ceremony." The accompaniment of the work is for harp and Mrs. Martha Creighton will be the guest artist. She will be featured in the interlude for harp solo. Student soloists Wendy Hunt, Janet Ward, Judy Flambeau, and Lucretia Famulari, also will be heard in Mr. Britten's work.

The University Singers, a new organization on the campus, will be making their premier performance in "Jesu, Priceless Treasure." The five-voiced motet is one of Bach's most dramatic and moving choral works. He composed the motet shortly after having taken up his new duties as Cantor of the Thomasschule in Leipzig in 1723.

Another famous British composer, the late R. Vaughn Williams, will be represented by one of his most unusual choral compositions, "Magnificat," for mezzo soprano, chorus of women, flute obligato, and pianoforte. Two faculty members, Mrs. Marjory Fuller and Irvin Gilman, will appear as soloists in the work.

The Statesmen, male chorus, will sing three contemporary settings of Shakespearian love songs by Robert Washburn, a professor of music and teacher of composition at State University at Potsdam. Daniel Nimetz, also a member of the music faculty at SUNYA, will perform as French horn soloist with the Washburn settings.

The festival will close with all members of the ensembles joining in the "Hallelujah" from Handel's "Messiah."

Karl A. B. Peterson, professor of music, will direct all ensembles. Accompanists will be Ellen Kumpf, Dorothy Kaufmann and Dennis Buck.

An estimated 200 persons concerned with higher education will attend a statewide conference Tuesday, December 10, at Brubacher Hall, State University of New York at Albany. The theme of the meeting, planned to develop the 1969 program under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, will be improving human relations in poverty and race.

Making arrangements for the day's program, to be conducted by the Bureau of Special College Programs of the State Education Department, are Frank E. Hobson, Jr., acting state administrator for Title I, FHEA 1965, and Robert E. Williams, assistant in higher education. Mr. Hobson will speak at the opening session at 9:30.

Joseph Colman, former deputy assistant secretary for Health, Education and Welfare, will give the keynote address. Mr. Colman presently is at Columbia University.

From 10:30 to 12:15 there will be three panel discussions for representatives of urban, suburban, and rural institutions. The topic will be "Developing Institutional Commitment to Community Service."

Moderator of the urban panel will be Dr. Seymour Z. Mann, director of the Urban Research Center, Hunter College, City University of New York. Panelists will include Dr. Timothy Costello, deputy city mayor, New York City; Owen Peagler, deputy state director for urban affairs, New York City; and Dr. Alexander Charters, vice president, Syracuse University.

For the suburban panel Dr. Hyman Lichtenstein, dean, University College and Coordination of the Graduate Program, Hofstra University, will be moderator. Panelists will be Joseph Pacitto, Urban Renewal director, Mount Vernon; Saul Parker, field representative for Westchester, Orange, and Rockland counties; and Mrs. Esther Raushenbush, president, Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville.

Moderator for the rural panel will be Richard Elton, director of continuing education, State University College at Brockport. Among the panelists will be Clark Hamlin, New York State County Officers Association, Jefferson County; Mary Alice Flynn, deputy state director for rural affairs, Buffalo; and Robert W. Frederick, Jr., president, Corning Community College.

At the afternoon session there will be small group meetings with institutional representatives grouped by geographic area. The topic will be "Inter-Institutional Cooperation in Community Service Programming -- As It Relates to Title I for 1969." Dean Irving I. Verschoor, College of General Studies, of the host institution, will chair the session.

The concluding session will be devoted to summary statements and an open question period on the 1969 program.

More than 2,000 students at State University of New York at Albany have agreed to forego their evening meal on campus Friday, December 13, enabling the Faculty-Student Association to contribute approximately $2,000 to a fund for starving children in Biafra. The fast and a benefit concert in the Albany High School auditorium at 8 p.m. that evening are being sponsored by the University Concert Band.

William L. Hudson, conductor, expressed sincere gratitude to those students who offered to relinquish their meals for the cause. The number of participants represents more than half the total number of students who regularly eat on campus.

The concert, "For Needy Children Near and Far," is open to the public. There will be no admission charge, but it is hoped those attending will contribute generously by depositing money in a collection box at the entrance. Half the proceeds will go to Biafra and half to local needy children.

Area churches, social and civic organizations, university fraternities and sororities, and many other university personnel are aiding in the preparation for the concert. Persons who don't plan to attend the concert but wish to contribute may do so by mailing their gift to the University Concert Band.

In addition to the fast and concert, band members will visit local orphanages Friday afternoon to give Christmas party concerts for the children.

With only a week and a half left before winter recess, State University of New York at Albany is in full holiday spirit. Decorations around the campus are becoming more and more prevalent everyday. To help increase the number of decorations, the residence quadrangles are holding decorating contests among the various residence halls.

On Sunday, December 15, all eyes and ears will be trained on the new physical education building where the annual Holiday Sing will take place. Considered by most students as the biggest single event of the year on campus, Holiday Sing is a fiercely contested vocal competition among fraternities, sororities, residence halls and independent groups. Last year's winner, Alden Hall, will be striving to make it two in a row and keep the trophy for another year. If any team wins the competition three years in a row, it gains permanent possession of the trophy.

"Winterlude," the dinner dance sponsored by Special Events Board, will take place on Saturday night, December 14, between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Entertainment for this semi-formal affair will be provided by Paul Lee and his Walkers.

On the more serious side SUNYA's students are not forgetting the less fortunate. The class of 1970 is sponsoring "Santa's Sack," which is taking contributions of clothes, food and money to help make Christmas a little nicer for some of Albany's neediest families.

Another worthwhile project is the sale of UNICEF holiday greeting cards. The sale, sponsored by INTERACT, a campus service organization, and Alpha Lambda Chi fraternity, helps to provide money for the United Nations Children Fund which supplies food and medicine to the starving children of the world.

Jean Paris, professor of comparative literature, State University of New York at Albany, has authored "L'espace et le Regard" ("Space and Gance"), a book on art history and theory. The work has been published in France and in Madrid in a Spanish translation.

Professor Paris, who was educated in France, joined the Albany faculty last fall. He teaches in a number of fields at the university, including a course on the Ulysses myth and one on French poetry. He also participates in an inter-art course combining literature, music, and painting.

The educator recently published articles on "Finnegans Wake" and El Greco, and is writing a major work on Rebelais, in addition to an original novel. Professor Paris is one of the editors of the magazine, "Change." His translation of Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh" opened in France last May and forms part of O'Neill's collected works in French.

Robert D. Allen, State University of New York at Albany professor of biological sciences and chairman of that department, is in Poland attending a symposium on biological movement.

Mr. Allen is the guest of the Polish Academy of Sciences, Warsaw, where he lectured December 9. He is attending the symposium at the Nencki Institute, after which he will go to Germany for a week and lecture at the University of Wurzburg. He also plans to visit the Carl Zeiss Research Laboratory in Oberkochen, before returning to the United States before Christmas.

The biologist was a member of the Princeton University faculty for 10 years prior to coming to Albany in 1966. His research has dealt mainly with the mechanisms of cell movement, the development of improved techniques of light microscopy, and the sensitive measurements of certain physical-optical properties of living cells.

Mr. Allen received his education at Brown University and the University of Pennsylvania. In addition to Princeton, he has studied and taught at the Werner-Gren Institute, Stockholm, Sweden; and at the University of Michigan.

Harold Tovish, noted sculptor, will present a lecture and film on "Art and Technology," Thursday evening, December 12, at 8 o'clock at State University of New York at Albany. The presentation, open to the public, will take place in the Art Gallery and is sponsored by the Art Council.

Mr. Tovish has been working with bronze, aluminum, wood, and terracotta for more than 20 years, producing images which reflect his war experiences, the terror of children involved, and the horrors of Nazi concentration camps.

The artist was born in New York and received his training in academic sculpture from Columbia University and the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere, Paris. He has taught at the University of Minnesota and at the School of the Boston Museum. In addition, Mr. Tovish has made several extended journeys to Europe, the most recent in 1966 as a sculptor in residence at the American Embassy in Rome.

More than 2,000 students at State University of New York at Albany have agreed to forego their evening meal on campus Friday, December 13, enabling the Faculty-Student Association to contribute approximately $2,000 to a fund for starving children in Biafra. The fast and a benefit concert in the Albany High School auditorium at 8 p.m. that evening are being sponsored by the University Concert Band.

William L. Hudson, conductor, expressed sincere gratitude to those students who offered to relinquish their meals for the cause. The number of participants represents more than half the total number of students who regularly eat on campus.

The concert, "For Needy Children Near and Far," is open to the public. There will be no admission charge, but it is hoped those attending will contribute generously by depositing money in a collection box at the entrance. Half the proceeds will go to Biafra and half to local needy children.

Among the performers will be soloists R. Findlay Cockrell, piano; Irvin Gilman, flute; and Marjorie Fuller, soprano. In addition, Sorrell Chesin, associate dean of students, will serve as master of ceremonies and join the band for the "Ogden Nash Suite for Narrator and Band." The University Percussion Ensemble, Thomas Brown, conductor, also will perform. The evening's musical selections will range from Christmas carols to the "Sound of Music" to Gershwin preludes.

Area churches, social and civic organizations, university fraternities and sororities, and many other university personnel are aiding in the preparation for the concert. Persons who don't plan to attend the concert but wish to contribute may do so by mailing their gift to the University Concert Band.

In addition to the fast and concert, band members will visit local orphanages Friday afternoon to give Christmas party concerts for the children.

With only a week and a half left before winter recess, State University of New York at Albany is in full holiday spirit. Decorations around the campus are becoming more and more prevalent everyday. To help increase the number of decorations, the residence quadrangles are holding decorating contests among the various residence halls.

On Sunday, December 15, all eyes and ears will be trained on the new physical education building where the annual Holiday Sing will take place. Considered by most students as the biggest single event of the year on campus, Holiday Sing is a fiercely contested vocal competition among fraternities, sororities, residence halls and independent groups. Last year's winner, Alden Hall, will be striving to make it two in a row and keep the trophy for another year. If any team wins the competition three years in a row, it gains permanent possession of the trophy.

"Winterlude," the dinner dance sponsored by Special Events Board, will take place on Saturday night, December 14, between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Entertainment for this semi-formal affair will be provided by Paul Lee and his Walkers.

On the more serious side SUNYA's students are not forgetting the less fortunate. The class of 1970 is sponsoring "Santa's Sack," which is taking contributions of clothes, food and money to help make Christmas a little nicer for some of Albany's neediest families.

Another worthwhile project is the sale of UNICEF holiday greeting cards. The sale, sponsored by INTERACT, a campus service organization, and Alpha Lambda Chi fraternity, helps to provide money for the United Nations Children Fund which supplies food and medicine to the starving children of the world.

Jean Paris, professor of comparative literature, State University of New York at Albany, has authored "L'espace et le Regard" ("Space and Gance"), a book on art history and theory. The work has been published in France and in Madrid in a Spanish translation.

Professor Paris, who was educated in France, joined the Albany faculty last fall. He teaches in a number of fields at the university, including a course on the Ulysses myth and one on French poetry. He also participates in an inter-art course combining literature, music, and painting.

The educator recently published articles on "Finnegans Wake" and El Greco, and is writing a major work on Rebelais, in addition to an original novel. Professor Paris is one of the editors of the magazine, "Change." His translation of Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh" opened in France last May and forms part of O'Neill's collected works in French.

Harold Tovish, noted sculptor, will present a lecture and film on "Art and Technology," Thursday evening, December 12, at 8 o'clock at State University of New York at Albany. The presentation, open to the public, will take place in the Art Gallery and is sponsored by the Art Council.

Mr. Tovish has been working with bronze, aluminum, wood, and terracotta for more than 20 years, producing images which reflect his war experiences, the terror of children involved, and the horrors of Nazi concentration camps.

The artist was born in New York and received his training in academic sculpture from Columbia University and the Academie de la Grande Chaumiere, Paris. He has taught at the University of Minnesota and at the School of the Boston Museum. In addition, Mr. Tovish has made several extended journeys to Europe, the most recent in 1966 as a sculptor in residence at the American Embassy in Rome.

The Council of the State University at Albany approved recommendations yesterday which will alter the athletic program and student living patterns at the 125 year old institution.

Approved was a statement of rationale for intercollegiate athletics and of institutional policy as proposed in the report of the ad hoc university athletics council. The rationale stated that a variety of athletic programs is necessary to meet the interests and needs of the university community; that athletic competition is necessary in a balanced university program; the athletic program should be structured in such a way that risks associated with over-emphasis are negligible; that athletics can serve as an attraction from which greater interest can grow, and that the program should be noteworthy. Policy should then dictate attention to student interest, appropriate competition, and support in terms of facilities, finances, and staff.

The council approved the establishment of a permanent University Athletics Council to develop, recommend and evaluate athletic policy on a continuing basis.

Chaired by the Vice President for Student Affairs it will include four faculty, one of which represents the admissions function and one appointed as representative to NCAA, two persons nominated by executive committee of faculty senate, one alumni, one member of the University Council, six students, selected as Central Council shall establish, and the director of athletics, ex officio.

Recommendations to implement a broader intercollegiate athletic schedule were also approved. This program would include introduction of football as a club sport in addition to the present intramural league schedule in the fall of 1969 if the necessary budgetary provision can be made. This would make possible, but not commit, the university development of future programs in subsequent years, with the possibility of football becoming a varsity sport by 1972.

The Student Association Athletic Advisory Board was retained, at least for 1969-70, as the management body for athletics.

In other action the Council, which is responsible for regulations governing student life on campus, approved proposals submitted by the Student Association Living Area Affairs Commission liberalizing residence hall regulations. The student recommendations have been approved by the Student Affairs Council of the faculty senate and provide for removal of curfew hours and mandatory sign-out systems for any student. Voluntary sign-out systems may be established in resident halls by the hall government.

An added provision allows students to exercise their right to privacy during visitations and open houses by leaving suite and room doors closed and locked if they choose. (This refers to specific scheduled social functions held under the auspices of residence hall governments in conjunction with professional staff!)

University Council

In approving the new liberalizations, the council recognized the responsible fashion in which students have behaved since the removal of curfew for upperclass women in May 1967 and the establishment of the alcohol policy at the same time. When commenting on the question to students recently University president Collins stated, "The way to prepare for responsibility is to practice it."

Victor Looper, chairman of the Living Area Affairs Commission, expressed satisfaction at the action of the council. He told students, "These policies provide a number of additional freedoms and responsibilities that will allow students to decide their own limitations and be responsible for their own actions. We are sure that you will accept these new changes in a mature and responsible fashion."

The provisions regarding lifting of curfew and sign-out procedures will become effective after Christmas recess, thus allowing time for student and parent education.

The closed door provision takes effect immediately.

Reno S. Knouse, professor of distributive education, School of Education, State University of New York at Albany, recently was honored as the nation's outstanding teacher-educator in the field of distribution. He was the first recipient of the Academy Award presented by the Council for Distributive Teacher Education in Dallas, Texas, December 11.

As the first member installed in the Academy of Distributive Teacher Education, Professor Knouse received a certificate for meritorious achievements and outstanding contributions to the profession of distributive teacher education, a scroll, and life membership in the Council for Distributive Teacher Education. The award was presented at the annual Chain Store Luncheon attended by 860 distributive educators from the 50 states and Puerto Rico during the American Vocational Association Convention.

Professor Knouse served as the first president of the Council in 1962, and has been active as Chairman of its Research and Publications Committee since 1963. He is the author or editor of 52 publications including 28 professional articles, 16 research bulletins, 6 miscellaneous bulletins, a research kit, and a college textbook in the field of advertising.

For more than two decades, Professor Knouse has been active in area, state, regional, and national activities. He served on the National Advisory Committee of the Distributive Education Clubs of America and was program chairman for three national conventions. In 1963 he received the organization's Outstanding Service Award.

COUNCIL FOR DISTRIBUTIVE TEACHER EDUCATION AWARD

TESTAMUR

Reno S. Knouse
Professor of Distributive Education
State University of New York at Albany
December 11, 1968

Reno S. Knouse, in consideration of your outstanding, meritorious contributions to the development and advancement of distributive teacher education the Council for Distributive Teacher Education takes great pleasure in presenting you with this award and membership in the Academy of Distributive Teacher Education. The Council expresses the appreciation of thousands of distributive educators and students for your many professional achievements only a few of which will be mentioned here.

You were a pioneer in distributive teacher education. In 1946 you organized the baccalaureate, graduate and in-service teacher education programs for the State University of New York at Albany.

You were the first president of the Council for Distributive Teacher Education. You were the president of your state vocational association. Your service to the Distributive Education Clubs of America has been laudatory.

In the area of marketing and distribution, you organized the marketing courses in your college and served as the chairman of the marketing department. You were recognized by the retail merchants of Albany and by the Governor of New York for your work with business.

You have been active in research, in research coordination, and in the dissemination of research findings. You have served as Chairman of the Council's Research Committee since 1963.

You have helped to improve the theory, methods and practice of distributive occupations teaching; you have contributed to the professional literature; and you have contributed to the development of learning materials in distributive education through your efforts as a master teacher, author, editor and researcher.

Professor Knouse, for these achievements we salute and welcome you to membership in the Academy.
