Lake George Opera, SPAC Staffs To Aid in Summer Music Courses

The music department, in collaboration with the Lake George Opera Festival and the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, will offer programs in music and opera during a six-week summer period beginning June 26.

Department chairman Nathan Gottschalk sees the program as a "highly desirable" combination of artistic activities and educational programs. He noted that "those enrolled in the opera workshop will have the privilege of receiving training by eminently qualified artists in the field." The workshop, a three-credit course, will be a practicum with intensive training in stage technique for the singing actor, coaching, and analysis of role and diction, resulting in public performance. The program will be held in the Performing Arts Center.

Seminars in make-up and other opera related areas will be offered by staff members of the Lake George Opera Company. Also being offered for three hours of credit are a course in masterpieces of music and a workshop in choral music.

A limited number of qualified students will be considered for professional participation during the Lake George Opera season which will follow the workshop.

Tuition charges per credit are $18.50 for New York resident undergraduates and $27 for graduates. For out-of-staters, the charge is $30 for undergraduates and $33.50, graduates. Dr. Gottschalk, PAC 309, has additional information. Enrollment is limited and early application is advised.

Linguistics Talk

Two specialists in urban dialects and bilingual education will visit the campus this spring. They are sponsored by Foreign Language Education, TESOL, and Bilingual Education in the School of Education. Roger Shuy, director of the sociolinguistics program at Georgetown University and a specialist in social dialects, will be on campus Wednesday. He will conduct an informal discussion on topics in sociolinguistics in HU 354 from 4 to 6 p.m.

On March 21, the guest will be Wallace Lambert, professor of psychology at McGill University and an internationally-known authority on bilingualism and bilingual education.

Survey Study to Analyze University Communications

A diagnostic study of SUNYA organizational communications will begin this month under the sponsorship of the Office of University Affairs. Its purpose will be to identify and deal with any current or potential information transmission problems here.

According to Lewis P. Welch, vice president for university affairs, the study is sparked by the increasing need for effective communications systems within the university in the face of rapid growth, elaboration of the governance structure, formation of collective negotiation units on campus, and the recent administration restructuring.

At the request of the OUA, Phillip Tompkins, chairman of the Department of Rhetoric and Public Address, has developed a proposal to explore such topics as: What problems of internal communication exist? How well does the university present itself to external audiences? What characterizes the communications patterns between and among administrators, faculty, students, and governance bodies? What are the goals of the university as understood by various segments of the university?

The primary data-gathering method of the study will be individual interviews with random samples of faculty members and students and a selected sample of university administrators. All data gathered will be confidential in that no individual will be associated with any response made to a researcher. Conclusions and recommendations of the study will be available to the university community.

Professor Tompkins has directed many such studies in labor unions, business organizations, and universities (including Kent State University). He will be assisted by Elaine Tompkins, Dominic Infante, Kathleen Kendall, and Jeanne Fisher. Some of the student interviews will be conducted by students in courses offered by the Department of Rhetoric and Public Address.

Concerts Feature American Music

American music of the past and present will be featured in two concerts this week in the Performing Arts Center.

The American Music Group will perform this evening at 8:30 in the Recital Hall. On the program is 19th century American music, with works by Grover, Husband, Oliver, Billings, and others. Elliott McBride's famous temperance play, "Don't Marry a Drunkard to Reform Him," will be included in the concert.

The ensemble consists of more than 30 instrumentalists, singers, and actors who are students and faculty members at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana. The American Music Group is headed by Neely Bruce.

Tickets will be available at the door the evening of the concert. They are $1 with student tax, $2 for students and faculty, and $3 for the general public.

On Friday at 8:30 p.m., the Free Music Store will present instrumental music in the Arena Theater of the PAC. Students and faculty of the music department will perform works for solo instruments, ensembles, and voices. The scores, including a graphics piece and one in which the performers move around the stage, are by Hellerman, Rzewski, Sadowski, Feldman, and Sells. There is no admission charge.

ACTION To Visit

Seth Kurn, Ginger Getman, and George Ulbrich, representatives of the new agency, ACTION, which includes Peace Corps and VISTA, will visit SUNYA Wednesday through Friday. A booth will be set up in the Campus Center Lobby from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. all three days. On Wednesday, a film, "Not Enough", will be shown in the CC Assembly Hall at 7:30 p.m.

ACTION representatives are especially interested in talking to math, science, and education majors, and to students with other skill backgrounds, particularly in agriculture.

Persons recruited now for both Peace Corps and VISTA will begin their training in the summer.

New Play To Benefit Theater Conference

A new play, The Awakening, written and directed by Times Union Drama Critic Martin P. Kelly, will be presented on Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the PAC Studio Theater. Two awards will be given, with a grant of $2000 each from non-university funds. As part of the evaluation process, students of the nominees will be polled by the Awards Committee.

Additional information can be obtained from Mr. Bynum.

Senate Hears Parking Report

The perennial parking problem on campus was the subject of a report submitted by the Personnel Policies Council to the University Senate at its regular meeting last Monday. The report was partially composed of data from the Parking Questionnaire which had recently been circulated and also included the council's own recommendations.

The questionnaire, which was completed by over 1,000 faculty members, staff, and students, showed that one-third of the people who returned the form were interested in using direct transportation (such as buses supplied by the university) as a means of commuting from surrounding residential areas to the campus. Some 45% indicated a willingness to pay for better parking facilities.

In making its recommendations, the Parking Committee of the council suggested that a $5.00 monthly fee be levied for the use of on-campus parking. The monies collected could then be devoted to improving existing facilities. The parking study will be used as a reference in future Senate deliberations on the matter.

Other significant business brought to the floor at Monday's meeting concerned the term appointment bill. The proposed act was sent back to the Council on Educational Policy for further consideration.

Old Rivals Meet Saturday As Great Danes Face Siena

If you are planning to attend the Albany-Siena basketball game here Saturday night, don't dawdle. Late arrivers will find themselves literally out in the cold.

The magnitude of interest in what is unquestionably one of the top basketball rivalries in the state is reflected in several related developments surrounding the game. No tickets will be sold to the public, due to the demand for seats by students of both schools. Channel 17, WMHT, will televise the game by delayed tape, beginning at 10 p.m. Saturday. Radio station WABY, 1400 AM, will broadcast it live at 8:30.

A specific number of tickets were sold by Siena on its campus. Albany students and faculty-staff will be admitted, as usual, with a university ID card. The gym undoubtedly will be filled early, however. The JV game is scheduled for 6:30.

Siena still leads the series, 14-13, but Albany has won eight of the last 10. The Indians, although hobbled recently by injuries, have their best team since the mid-fifties. The Great Danes will cope
