Will Report Sunday With 28 Women Too Be Examined For $600 Prize

Two State college women remain in the running for the $600 aviation scholarship offered by the Canadian Colonial Airways company and The Albany Times-Union to any Albany Area woman who wishes to become an aviatix.

A group of 25 women and five all-termites were first chosen by chance by Mayor John Boyd Thacher, II with George O. Williams, managing editor of The Times-Union and a representative of the airways company watching.

These 30 women, who included four State college students and one graduate, were notified by mail to come to the Colonial hangar at the Albany Airport for physical and mental examinations last Sunday.

From this number, the nine best qualified women were chosen on a competitive basis. These nine girls were notified this week by mail, and from them will be chosen the winner of the scholarship.

Marguerite Schroeder, '32, of Font Grove, and Blanche E. Throop, '33 of Bainbridge, remain among the chosen nine for the final judgment this week.

The five State college women who were in the contest's upper 30 are Miss Schroeder, Miss Throop, Clara Schroeder, '31; Audrey Flowers, '31; and Dorothy Winch, '29.

QUINTET TO MEET NEW JERSEY MEN TOMORROW NIGHT

BY ALEXANDER SCHORR Staff Reporter

The New Jersey State Teachers five will be the Purple and Gold's opponent in the second game of the season tomorrow night in the gymnasium of Page hall at 8:15 o'clock.

In the opening contest of the season last Saturday night against Maxwell Tramm of Brooklyn, the State quintet showed its mettle in the last six minutes of play by scoring twelve points and making up a two point deficit to obtain a lead of ten points which they maintained to the final whistle, the score ending 33 to 23.

Lark showed that the favorable reports of his ability were not untrue, by scoring 11 points and playing a fine all around game. He reminds us of Anthony Kuczyński both in his style of playing and in his manner of handling himself. Ott, and Captain Whiston also played a wonderful game, starring both on the offense and defense. These three players are going to make it difficult for any of our future opponents who come here with the idea of winning.

The boys will be working together much better tomorrow and although the game will be close, it is sure to be another victory for our team.

Men Will Have Dance In Lounge January 10

Permission has been granted for the first time in the history of the college to the men to conduct a dance in the Lounge of Richardson hall, Friday night, January 10, according to Dean Anna E. Pierce. The affair is under the auspices of no single organization, but is the result of cooperation of all the men. Arthur Jones, '30, chairman said.

The dance will be open to students of State college only, Jones declared. Fifty men have already signed up, and only ten more will be allowed as add their names. Dean Pierce having set sixty couples as the maximum attendance. Dance will be no stage line at this dance, Jones said. "We will have combination tickets and program to eliminate this evil," he declared.

Tickets for the dance may be purchased for $1.00, the committee has announced. Refreshments will be served.

Besides Jones, Russell Ludlum, and Lawrence Newcomb, juniors, are members of the committee.

Announces Rules

Frederick W. Crumb, '30, manager of basketball, who helps draw up regulations for games.

Check Rooms Will Be Off Mezzanine Floor

Only the courtyard entrance to Page hall will be open on nights on which basketball games are scheduled on the home court, one of the three rules to be observed by basketball fans at games provides. They have been drawn up by President A. R. Brubacher and Frederick W. Crumb, '30, manager of the team.

Other regulations include that check rooms will be provided off the mezzanine floor of the gymnasium for the care of the wraps of those attending the games, and that admission to the after-game dancing will be by invitation or by student tax tickets. Invitations must be obtained in advance by college students through Dean Anna E. Pierce, Crumb explained.

Two Groups Arrange Reserved Seat Plan

A student tax ticket will be worth a certain per cent of the price of a reserved seat at every performance, according to a plan drawn up by the Music association and the Dramatic and Art association at a recent meeting of the student board of finance. The following points have been selected as most important in the plan by Warren R. Cochrane, '30, member of the board.

"1. Students must be taken care of first; after that, reserved seats will be sold.

"2. The tax ticket will be worth a certain per cent, for example, $1.00, of the price of the seat.

"3. Everyone of the student, who desires to obtain a ticket to the performances will be able to do so. Refunds will be made to those who submitted their tax tickets and obtained seats, but were not able to go.

"4. This plan applies to all performances at the College.

This method of handling the student attendance at college activities will prevent reoccurrence of dissatisfaction among the students, Cochrane said. "There seemed to be no difficulty in getting seats for the performances of Hamlet and Faust last night, however, but there were not enough seats to accommodate all the students who wished to attend the Percy Gramer concert," he said.

Refreshments Planned For Play Intermission

The elementary dramatics class will present three one act plays Tuesday night, January 14, in the auditorium of Page hall, according to Miss Agnes E. Fitterer, assistant professor of English. The plays consist of a comedy, "The Romanes," by Edmund Rossand; a character play, "Up O' Me Thumb," by Frederick Carr and Richard Price; and a comedy, "The Warthog and the Wolf," by Lady Gregory.

As a form of hospitality, refreshments will be served at the lounge of Richardson hall during the intermission between each play. Miss Fitterer announced recently. A student committee will receive the guests. It is composed of Helen Bannan, and Dorothy Bradow, juniors; Margaret Hilton, Elizabeth Jackson, and Isabel Peard, sophomores.

DR. WILSON SEES REVISION OF PLAN

Predicts Vocational Guidance And Student Counselling In High Schools

"Vocational guidance and student counselling will be inaugurated in the high schools of New York state in the next few years," Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, assistant commissioner of vocational and extension education told Kappa Phi Kappa at an open meeting in the Lounge of Richardson hall Tuesday night.

"Too many boys and girls are blindly wandering from one field to another trying to find the work for which they are best fitted," Dr. Wilson said. "It is the job of the schools to assist high school pupils in finding their life's work."

Dr. Wilson pointed out that the authorities should make pupils understand the necessity of remaining in school until they have completed their course. "Industries today are accepting only the trained apprentice. They are demanding at least a high school education."

DR. BRUCE CURRY TALK IN STUDENT ASSEMBLY TODAY

Dr. A. Bruce Curry will address assembly this morning on "Youth and the Systems," according to Marion E. Botto, '30, president of the student association. Dr. Curry is being presented by the Young Women's and Young Men's Christian associations. The association will meet in the auditorium of Page hall at 11:10 o'clock.

There will also be a revue for the delegate to the National Student Federation of America convention, Miss Botto said. The candidates are Warren R. Cochrane, '30, and Russell W. Ludlum, '31. The rest of the assembly will be devoted to songs and cheers, Miss Botto announced.

An open forum will be conducted in the Lounge of Richardson hall from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Curry will then take up a more detailed discussion of the subject of his address, which is the subject of his address, which is the subject of his address.

Dr. Curry is a member of the National Student Federation of America, and is also a member of the National Student Federation of America, and is also a member of the National Student Federation of America.

Reverend Babe Kaplan Gives Invocation At First Nomination Convention Session

The first session of The Democratic National Convention was called to order in the city of Squedunk, Maine (Page Hall Auditorium) yesterday at 1:30 o'clock by Ruth L. Vinkelstein of Michigan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Singing of the national anthem, The Star Spangled Banner, was followed by the original Democratic convention song, rendered by delegates Meiner to Kentucky, Kentucky of Montana, and Waters, Convention pianist.

The session followed by singing of New York, and Minnesota to Iowa to the side by Sergeant at Arms Col. John A. Mahanna. Official picture of the convention session were taken by the Squedunk Press photographer.

Invocation of the Divine Blessing was given by the Reverend Babe Kaplan, minister of the First Unitarian church of Squedunk, Maine.

"My fellow Democrats— Led through a labyrinth of devious political pathways, lost in the maze of political trickery, following the Pied Piper of Republicanism, the Squedunk convention convened upon the well paved roadways of nationalism," began Chairman Vinkelstein, and the speaker applied. Following the opening speech, the Democratic National committee planned a list of proposed temporary officers for the convention which was read by Secretary Baine of New Jersey.

Mayor of Squedunk, Dr. David Hutchison gave a brief but fervent welcoming address, after which the chairman appointed Senator Meiner of California, Governor Tephaine of

Santa, Alias Adolphe Scholl, Gives Student A Hobby Horse

Santa Claus, in the person of Adolphe Scholl, '30, advanced Christmas two weeks when he presented a hobby horse to Frieda Schadrinsky, '30, at the Christmas party of the German club last night in Richardson hall.

Because she had been a good girl all year, he gave a new rattle box to Klara Schroeder, '31, and presented a brown derby to her sister Margarethe.

Professor Winfred C. Decker, head of the German department, addressed the club.

NARROW DOORWAYS MAY BE REPAIRED DURING CHRISTMAS

The narrow doorways to the stair landings in Richardson hall which have caused the congestion in that building may be fixed during the Christmas vacation, according to President A. R. Brubacher. The contract for the work has been let for some time, he said, and the work should begin soon.

The peristyle between Husted and Richardson halls may not be glassed in during the vacation. The contract will not be awarded before Monday, according to Dr. Brubacher, although requests for bids have already been made. He hopes that the work will be completed before next semester.

Contracts for placing metal guards on the basement windows of Richardson and Milne halls have also been let, according to Dr. Brubacher. Among the other construction work planned for the College is the erection of new partitions for the general science storeroom in Husted hall, and the division of the office of Professor John M. Sayles, principal of Milne High school, into three offices.

Chorus To Sing Three Carols On Wednesday

The women's chorus, under the direction of Dr. L. Frederick H. Carroll, head of the music department, will sing three Christmas carols at the carol sing, Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Page hall.

Dr. Carroll will also direct a carol sing in assembly next Friday. The student body will join in singing these carols.

PLANS TO PROVIDE NEW PLAY SPACE

Site Will Be Western Avenue Campus, Dr. Brubacher's Proposals Indicate

FIELD TO BE PREPARED

Pole Vault, Hurdles, Hammer Throw, and Dash Events Will Be Practiced

Transformation of the Western avenue campus between Albany High school and the approach to Richardson hall into a well equipped play space is part of a program of improvement of the State college campus planned by President A. R. Brubacher. If arrangements materialize, the space will include a baseball diamond, a cinder path for running, a jumping pit for high jumping and running broad jump, and possibly, in season, football goalposts.

The field is level, but since it is newly laid, is full of humps and depressions which prevent its being used. However, two years of rolling and filling in will prepare the field for use, according to Dr. Brubacher.

The baseball diamond will not be large enough for intercollegiate contests because of the short distance from Western avenue to the college buildings. The entire field is 100 yards by 90 yards, but the distance from home plate to the terrace in front of the buildings will be too short for regular contests.

To Screen Windows

However, practices may be conducted there, and intra-mural contests may be played with ground rules which make any ball hit over the terrace good for only two or three bases. The basement windows of the buildings in danger of being struck by the ball will be protected by wire screens.

"The second floor windows will be safe," said Dr. Brubacher, "for even Babe Ruth could not hit the ball from the home plate to the windows."

According to Dr. Brubacher, home plate will be placed in the corner of the campus formed by Western avenue and the Albany High school side. The line from home plate to second base will be across the peristyle between Husted and Richardson halls. Part of the baseball equipment will be a portable backstop to place in back of home plate.

A cinder path 8 feet wide will be constructed around the field. This will be about 350 yards long, with a 100 yard straightaway. On the inside corner of the Albany High school side of the field, a jumping pit will be dug for broad jumping and high jumping.

Fence Will Be Needed

At first, track events requiring a high degree of specialization will not be inaugurated, such as the pole vault, the hurdles, and the hammer throw, but if capabilities are shown along such lines, these may be added. Events such as the 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard run, half mile, high jump, broad jump, and shot put could certainly be contested, Dr. Brubacher believes.

This program of improvement will be impossible, if the campus is not protected by a fence. An inclosure will be necessary in case admission is charged to any contest, or if the field is preserved solely for State college use.

The college will request an appropriation for a fence from the State legislature at the coming session. A fence will make possible not only the construction of the play field, but also many other improvements on the campus now inadvisable because of the lack of privacy of our campus, according to Dr. Brubacher.

MAKING EVERY PENNY COUNT

The work of the student association will perhaps be only half completed when it elects the delegate to the National Student Federation of America this morning. The student, who will be chosen, will naturally want to know what particular interests he should represent. At the convention, he may stand bewildered in the face of a huge discussion program which will center about every problem of student interest.

Shall I attend the discussion on rules for house groups? Shall I go to the assembly on the honor system? Shall I meet with the students who will discuss sorority problems? These and many other questions will trouble him when he attempts to discover what he should do to help State college solve any of its difficulties.

The Federation sets up as a major objective the solution of student problems in the American colleges and universities. This aim will never be fully carried out unless the member colleges direct their delegate to the different discussion groups. By telling him their most stressing problems which may possibly be wholly unknown to him, they can help their representative return with valuable information to meet problems at State college.

Three hundred dollars is a large sum to pay for the expenses of a delegate. The amount equals almost one-half the appropriation given to one of the college publications. It is $100 more than the sum awarded for the management of all minor sports for men. It almost equals the money allotted for the seven contests of the men's and women's debate teams. If the money is to be spent most wisely, the students should suggest to their delegate the pressing problems which he might overlook.

The delegate will undoubtedly enjoy a trip across the continent, especially to find out if the weather is as "grand and wonderful" as Californians claim it is. Perhaps, he will be anxious also to see a real cowboy. The trip may be both enjoyable to the delegate and profitable to the association if the students will suggest to him the problems which they think need solution. The News will gladly open its columns to any advice of the association to its delegate.

We recommend that the advanced dramatics class present sometime the senior class' most versatile man who carried off a prize in a popularity contest for women and then acted as Unitarian church minister at the opening of State college's national democratic convention.

IMPROVING VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

In his address to Kappa Phi Kappa Tuesday night, Dr. Wilson, assistant commissioner of vocational and extension education, forecast a new trend in high school administration which cannot come too soon. "Vocational guidance and student counselling will be magnified in the high schools of New York state in the near future," he believes. The new method will replace the present system of school advisors.

The present method of advising students to a particular member of the faculty for advice in high school work and future occupation is a misnomer. The assumption is that the individual members of the faculty are fully acquainted with every type of business which the student might contemplate entering. Too often the student is sent for advice to a teacher who believes that there are only three fields of human endeavor which the student may enter. He may be a lawyer, or a doctor, or a teacher. He should not be a lawyer, for many lawyers are dishonest. He should not be a doctor, for many doctors are thieves. Therefore, he should turn to teaching. There are too many instructors who put even their meagre knowledge of the world's opportunities in a prejudicial light.

They likewise lack the ability to answer the questions of students definitely. Pupils want to know what a type of work will involve instead of listening to the vague estimate of teachers who try to formulate an answer from their scattered reading.

Dr. Wilson did not point out definitely what method will be substituted in helping students to find their vocation. Undoubtedly, the new plan will provide for a corps of trained teachers who will be able to help the student evaluate certain occupations, who will be able to suggest fields unknown to the student, and who will be able to answer definitely and concretely the questions of pupils.

Accurate information will give a bird's eye view of all the possible fields of human endeavor. The new method will remove the unfortunate subjective element of the teacher in the present system. It will likewise help the teacher who cannot, because of the pressure of his work, find the time to gather every source of information needed to guide the student in a choice of vocation.

DOES MORE THAN TALK

The common opinion used to prevail that the student council was an organization of class presidents who met twice a year, first to arrange programs for the student association and secondly, to talk about the weather. Of course, a little deficiency in an organization is sometimes magnified to distorted shapes, and the council fell a victim to this procedure.

The present student council is performing work which belies what was once the prevalent opinion. It is composed of a group of students who form an active executive department. The assembly programs this year have been varied, and the calendar for next semester will no doubt be entertaining. The council has likewise prepared for the need of a careful selection of candidates for delegate to the convention of the National Student Federation of America, and it has co-operated willingly with a college organization in seeking better traffic facilities at the Western avenue entrance to Draper hall.

Constructive work of this sort will help to restore the value of the council as an executive department in the eyes of the student association. It will make them realize the need of a careful selection of members to the council, and will dispel the notion that the executive branch of the student government can do nothing but discuss the weather.

TOO LARGE AN ORDER

It is a large indictment which Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers brings against the athletic system of secondary schools of the state in the survey just made public by Columbia Teachers' college. College sports are included in the criticisms, but since the shortcomings of the colleges in this respect are a familiar theme, interest is centered in his exposition of the high schools' failings.

He draws a picture of the high schools' "athletic de-bauch," in his wholesale condemnation of the system of which, as director of health education in the state, he is the nominal head, that many will have difficulty in recognizing as their "home team" in action. Athletes who "need never see the school house," who are "paid in jobs or cash," outsiders in control who may be alumni or "pool hall gangs" or bettors determined to protect their wagers—these will come as startling revelations to persons who conceived of the school sports in their community as the normal and wholesome recreation of youth, enlivened by the spirit of competition which is natural in the circumstances.

No doubt this spirit of competition may be overdone; no doubt it often is overdone in the championship contests to which Dr. Rogers so strenuously objects, at the cost of ill feeling between schools and communities, and overtraining of some of the student athletes while other students receive less than their proper share of attention. But to attempt to banish the spirit of competition is rather a larger order than can be filled out of hand. Boys and girls play games to win; that is the way they want to play them, and that is the way they will go on playing them. They cannot be made over in this respect and they cannot be too rigidly circumscribed without vital loss of interest.

The functions of the high school "coaches" are wholly for the division of health education to determine and direct. They are not properly athletic "coaches" at all, but directors of the health education of the whole student body. Their work is stressed in the school programs and special provision for their training is made in the preparation of teachers. If they do not meet these requirements, it is for the state's supervisory department to insist upon the correction of conditions by the local school authorities.

BOOKS: LOVE AND NEEDS OF NEWSPAPER MAN

Young Apollo. By Anthony Collins. 372 pages. New York: Harper and Brothers. $2.50.

This book begins with the promise of one of those typical college youths of today, a youth at Oxford. He is easy going and treats the world with a bit less care than his parents. He is a young Apollo in the sense that he is much given, too much, to lying in the grass, naked, and reading poetry by the side of the river. The name, it that interests you at all, is Christopher Allan Shepherd, and the girl with whom he finds himself in love one day, much to his own disgust, is Jane Anderson.

The young Apollo treats the new emotion of love, and longs for the former frank relationship that has existed between himself and Jane. Allan's dreams ideals and Jane's hard common sense and scientific turn of mind bring out their world wide differences.

Allan gets a job on The Daily Gazette, working on space, and they marry on its premises which at the best are slim. The work doesn't prove any too lucrative, as any newspaper person can imagine, and the small sum which Allan can manage to scrape together is not enough to keep the wolf away from the door.

Late returns to depend on the money they receive from their father and from Allan's aunt, and he takes a job as a copy position at the P. M. Postoffice in Cambridge, leaving a desolate and trackless Allan in London. Allan is led to realize that he can no longer become a newspaper writer, and leave in position returning to his second room, to find there a girl who has always been in love with him.

Allan writes the book that the editor had referred to in encouraging him to discontinue himself from the paper and has it accepted on the very day that Jane presents him with a daughter and dies.

Although too much of the novel is taken up with none too interesting conversation between the principals, this is all right in its place, but that place certainly doesn't belong through the entire length and breadth of something that is supposed to be a very romantic novel.

As the story stands, it is not inclusive enough for a novel and would do better as a short story. The humor of the book comes through a college pad of Allan's, Horner's, and could be developed to a greater extent.

2 Of "Raise Your Eyes To Heaven" Club

Were Present During Tepedino Shooting

Two members of the Ryeth club were present at the Pamela club where Michael Tepedino was shot to death, according to evidence thus far given at the mock trial conducted in the Government 2 class of Dr. David S. Hutchinson, head of the government department. They were Annabelle McConnell, '31, and Ormand Guyer, '33.

According to Miss McConnell, Ryeth is the initials of "Raise your eyes to heaven." The club is a reform organization, and Mr. Guyer and she were a committee appointed to investigate "the way the other half lives."

Some of the testimony given by Miss McConnell follows:

Question (By the district attorney): What is the purpose of the Ryeth club?

Answer (By Miss McConnell): To provide help for the degenerate youth of today.

Q. Where were you on the night of September 27?

A. I was at various places at different times.

Q. Where between the hours of 10:30 and 12:00?

A. I was at the Pamela club.

Q. Isn't it strange that you should be at the Pamela club since you belong to the Ryeth club?

A. Not that I haven't had the opportunity to go before, but my associate, Mr. Ormand Guyer, and myself decided to see how the other half lives, and to see just how night clubs are conducted, and we did.

Q. What time did you come to the night club?

A. About half past ten.

Q. Why so late?

A. We heard that they didn't start until late.

Q. What did you do until half past ten?

A. I spent the day at Mr. Guyer's house.

Q. What did you do there?

A. We slept and we prayed all day, gathering strength for the ordeal before us that night.

Q. And were you very shocked when the tragedy occurred?

A. Well, no. I rather expected something of the sort to happen.

SHORT PASSES

By AL SCHROOR

The last minute rally of the varsity in the opening game against Maxwell last week showed that the boys have plenty of ability and function best when they are against strong opposition. They showed lots of fight, which has always been a characteristic of State teams.

The playing of the frosh was not so good as previous indications had promised. However they were playing a team much more experienced, several of the players being stars of former Capitol District high school teams. Perhaps a little more practice and team work will remedy the situation, as De Laura, Sunderland and Ingraham are good.

The passing game of the Purple and Gold, as we said last week, was not what it should be. The boys have a tendency to hurry their passes and as a result accuracy is lost. However the latter part of the game last week showed a great improvement in this respect.

The return of Collins to the varsity squad is not looked for until after the holidays, as his injured ankle is mending slowly. Carpenter, a member of last year's squad, is expected to report for practice in about two weeks. His broken arm has healed although it is stiff because of a long period of inactivity.

We misunderstood Dr. Knabacher's offer of the team campus for a proposed track team. We understood that it would be our immediate need. However, it is now learned that it will be at least two years before such a practice could be conducted as the ground must be rolled and made perfectly smooth and level during that time. The addition of the proposed under path will prevent the possibility of turned ankles.

Swim Is Open To All But Captains And Aids

The swimming meet Tuesday night will be open to everyone except swimming captains and assistants instead of being limited to those who have attended two-thirds of the practice. Esther Waters, '30, captain of swimming, announced today. However, no awards will be given to those making places in the meet. Members of the faculty will judge, Mrs. Waters and those who sign up for the meet will be divided into two teams, which will be headed by Henrietta Adler, '33, and Martha Caplan, '32. Each team will challenge the other for certain events.

CRITICIZES PLAYGOER

Editor, State College News: After reading the Playgoer article in your issue of December 13, I am sorry to find that you have published a piece of work that is not only untrue but also very unfair to the Playgoer. I am a member of the Playgoer and I can assure you that the article is a gross misrepresentation of the facts. I am sure that you will find the Playgoer to be a very valuable and interesting publication.

Perhaps Playgoer will drop his capricious attitude. After all, we are only amateur players. Even such critics as George Jean Nathan now occasionally find something good in some of the plays they review. Until Playgoer develops his critical faculty to the extent where he can see the good as well as the bad, I must remain, Disgusted.

STUDENTS WRITE PART OF SUNDAY EDITION OF UNION

Kappa chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalistic fraternity, edited part of The Sunday Times-Union. Each member of the fraternity was given a regular reporter's assignment and was responsible for its coverage.

Most members had a real taste of regular commercial reportorial work for the first time.

With Margaret J. Steele, '30, regular reporter on The Times-Union, as managing editor of the collegiate staff, and Alfred D. Basch, '31, as city editor, a staff of 10 worked all day.

Dorothy Leffert, '30, covered the Junior League children's show, and Dorothy Brimmer, '30, interviewed a Travelers Aid representative. Netta Miller, '30, rewrote stories and conducted a symposium on the Women's Christian Temperance union.

Mildred Hawks and Marilla Smith, seniors, did police court work, and Warren R. Cochrane interviewed engineers of the Delaware and Hudson, the Boston and Maine and the New York Central railroads on the unemployment and the snow disposal situations in the vicinity of Albany.

Frederick W. Crumb covered the basketball game between State college and Maxwell Training school for the second and third Sunday editions, and Basch read copy and wrote headlines.

Men Book Interclass Basketball Contests

A men's intra-mural basketball tournament will be conducted at State college, according to John F. Kennedy '30. According to the plans, the teams will represent each of the three upper classes. The freshman team will not be included in the tournament, Kennedy said.

Representatives of each class will meet to arrange a schedule for the tournament. Representatives are: John F. Kennedy '30, Alfred D. Basch, '31, and Andrew Hritz, '32.

Each team will play each of the other two teams, making a total of six games. The games will be refereed by members of the varsity squad who are not representatives of either team playing. No member of the varsity squad will be allowed on any class team.

The proposed tournament has met with the approval of President A. R. Brubacher and Coach Rutherford R. Baker. Neither will have any direct control over the tournament.

TWO NON-PARKING SIGNS ARE PLACED FOR SAFETY FIRST

Two non-parking signs have been placed on the Western avenue side of the College outside the entrance to Draper hall. This measure is not the only one which will be taken for the protection of State college students according to President A. R. Brubacher. Other facilities not yet decided upon, will be installed later.

Dr. Brubacher has not yet received the report of traffic conditions promised him by Mr. James A. Kirwin, assistant commissioner of public safety.

Three devices have been suggested for improvement of Western avenue. They are a safety zone roped off in the middle of the avenue, a non-parking space at the Western avenue approach to the college, which has already been put into effect, and the installation of three synchronized traffic lights at the Western avenue and Robin street crossing.

On the Washington avenue side, there will be a leveling of the park spaces directly opposite the college and the establishment of non-parking areas.

The enforcement of the non-parking regulations is in the hands of the college authorities. Several violations have already been reported.

Art Exhibit Next Week Will Feature Etchings

An exhibition of etchings will be shown on the second floor of Draper hall in front of the art studio Monday. The purpose of this exhibit is to show the four different kinds of etching and the way they are made, according to Miss Eunice A. Perine, instructor in fine arts.

The work will be illustrated with the etchings of Mrs. Caroline Armstrong, a well known etcher who lives in Paris, and whose work is recognized as among the best of this kind, Miss Perine said.

Mrs. Armstrong is a Canadian by birth, and has lived abroad for many years. She is a friend of Dr. Adna W. Risley, head of the history department, and Mrs. Risley and of Miss Perine, who visited her studio in Paris.
