

Bricks And Ivy 1971

And cannot pleasures, while they last,
Be actual unless, when past,
They leave us shuddering and aghast,
 With anguish smarting?
And cannot friends be firm and fast,
 And yet bear parting?

Farewell, dear friend, and whenever meet,
In desert waste or crowded street,
Perhaps before this week shall fleet,
 Perhaps tomorrow,
I trust to find your heart the seat
 Of wasting sorrow.

Lewis Carroll

For your unselfish assistance and guidance, we, the class of 1971, would like to dedicate this year's Bricks and Ivy to you . . . Mr. Richard Lewis.

“Through the Looking Glass”

... as appreciated by the Bricks and Ivy staff of 1971 (with sincerest apologies to Lewis Carroll).

Alice was beginning to get very tired of sitting in her Math class, so when the rabbit went by room 126, to her teacher's amazement, she got up and ran after it. "Wait," cried her teacher, "you can't leave this room without a pass!" But Alice, who had not heard her, started off on a merry chase of the long-eared hare (who had, at this point, stopped to check the time on his watch, for the school clocks did not happen to work at the moment). Alice heard him mutter, "Oh dear, how late it's getting!" NOW if you were Alice, and I assure you that you are not, but if you were, what would you do if you heard a rabbit say that, or for that matter anything? You'd take a good, long vacation like any normal person, right? Wrong! You'd take off after that bunny so fast that your track shoes would smoke! After all, there haven't been many talking rabbits on T.V. lately have there? So off ran Alice through the halls of Milne.

Suddenly, Alice found herself in a dark, dingy, dirty room facing a large, blue caterpillar that was lounging on the sofa observing the world. The caterpillar and Alice looked at each other for some time in silence.

He addressed her in a sleepy voice, "Who are you and what are you doing here?"

Alice replied shyly, "At present I hardly know—I knew who I was when I got up this morning, but I think I must have changed several times since then."

"What do you mean by that?" said the caterpillar sternly. If you don't know who you are, don't come to me with your problems. Ask the Hatter. You'll find him over there, sitting at the end of the hall."

I do not know
if you smiled when you were dying
or cursed your friends
for the little attention we paid you of late or how you spent your last full hour alive.
I do know that I was saddened when I heard the news.

Mostly
because you gave yourself to (us) once
without invention or restraint,
for that (we) still remember you and love you.

"Thank you," returned Sweet Little Alice. She set out, and after having proceeded quite cautiously, she discovered herself to be at the end of a very long hall. However, no one was there. (This was not unusual, for it was lunch time.) She was wondering to herself whether the Caterpillar's directions were right, when she was startled to hear a sound come from behind her.

"Must be a lost methods student," she thought. She was surprised to see a Cheshire Cat grinning at her.

"It looked good natured," she thought. Still it had very long claws and a great many teeth, so she felt it ought to be treated with some respect."

"Would you tell me please, which way I ought to go from here?"

"That depends a good deal on where you want to go and whom you want to see," said the Cat.

"The Caterpillar said that I should see the Hatter," said Alice.

"In that case, you would probably want to go to the tea party. He might be there. If I recall correctly, he is usually there at this time of day."

Mrs. Katie Beverly

"Where's the fire?"

Miss Ruth Poffley

"Fire?"

"Which way do I go to this tea party?"

"In that direction," the Cat said, waving its left paw 'round, "Follow the rabbit."

"What rabbit?" Alice inquired.

"Are you blind? That rabbit! The one that just went out into the courtyard."

"Oh," said Alice, for she had already forgotten about the white rabbit. Off she went into the courtyard in search of the mysterious hare.

(The Hatter and his friends were having one of their regular get-togethers but, of course, Alice couldn't have known that.)

Soccer

Bruised shins, ripped shin guards, aching backs and broken rubber bands were some of the results of the fine efforts put forth by this year's soccer team. The girls socked back at their opponents with more strength, skill and effort than ever before. The over-all season record this year was, two wins, one tie, and two losses.

"I'm awfully tired of this running around," complained Alice. "If you can't help me, who can?"

"Her Majesty the Queen. Who else?" replied the Hatter.

Alice set out to find the Queen. She went through a creaky door and down some stairs. At the end of the stairs was another door, which upon opening revealed the Queen's playing field. People were wandering all over the grounds. Some were practicing soccer on the field. Others were making last minute arrangements for the Queen's and her courtier's arrival.

There was great enthusiasm shown for volleyball this year, and as in each year, participation was greater than any other sport. The program included intramurals, playdays, and inter-scholastic games. The girls showed determination and ability, promising a strong team in the future.

The team, which played six games, came up with a final average of two better than Charlie Brown, and almost went batty doing it. Besides becoming proficient in infield and outfield chatter, the girls did advance their softball skills, and had a great time doing it.

The 1970 harriers are pictured above with some accumulated gold from the ten years of cross-country's existence at Milne. Of the ten years, the Red Raiders have capped the N.Y.S.P.H.S.A.A. Section II, Class D-E, Championship for the last 9 years, and the C-D-E title for 5 years. This is a fantastic record, and lets hope that the 1971 team will add to the legacy.

The first event was the half mile run. The runners assembled on the field and bowed to the Queen.

"Let the race commence!" shrieked the Queen. A whistle blew and off they ran. Several runners managed to break loose from the rest of the group. One by one, they began to tire out until one runner was left in front. When he crossed the finish line, the Queen rewarded him with a gold trophy. Races were held all afternoon.

The Varsity basketball team, coached by Doug Phillips, had an erratic season, although finishing with a good 6-6 CHVL record, and an 8-10 overall tally. The Red Raiders had a strong offense all season long, spurting over the century mark three times. The Milnites were only five points down to league powerhouse Catskill at the half at home. A good, solid-shooting, Milne offense was present at nearly all the games, but the defense was sometimes lacking. The Varsity rode the scoring of Eric Schlamowitz, George Khachadourian, and Lou Iselin, and the rebounding of Abe Dorsman into the first round of the sectionals with a hopeful eye.

The JV Basketball team, under the auspices of Fred Ackerman, did surprisingly well considering the sickness and injury that plagued it. Early in the season, starter Steve Sumner was put out of commission due to a back problem. Two other first-stringers, Dave Edwards and Roger DeLong, missed middle and late season games because of severe illnesses.

The consistent late season play of Larry Abrams and Pete Bulger helped the team to a fair finish. The JV'ers ended their 7-11 season with an avenging victory over the Academy Junior Varsity squad.

The court retired to a splendid dinner before getting ready for the basketball game to be held that night. The queen's own team was to play against a formidable team from one of the neighboring kingdoms. At the starting time, the basketball players and their opponents shook hands and got into their positions. The buzzer blew to start the beginning of the first quarter. Both teams played very well and at the end of the first quarter, the queen's team was winning. During the next three quarters, the queen's team increased their lead and went on to win the game. After a victory celebration, the queen's team and the court retired for the evening.

The baseball team, led by seniors Jon Drew and Abe Dorsman, slugged their way to a respectable league finish, and a good overall record. The team overcame such early season technical difficulties as no coach and a small turnout at tryouts to finish strongly.

The next day, the queen, her court and Alice went back to the field to watch the last event, the baseball game. The game started, but no-one seemed to be paying any attention to the game, except for Alice.

"Strange," thought Alice, "There should be more people paying attention to the game. Maybe they're tired from last night's celebration. Anyway, they all play at once, if you can call it playing. They even trip each other with their baseball bats. There appears to be no object of the game unless the object of the game is to confuse the spectators and the opposing team." "What a horrible game this is," remarked Alice outloud.

Student Government Coming Through

This year, Student Council has compiled a long list of important accomplishments. An efficient committee, comprised of students and faculty, vastly improved relations at Milne. A system of "student privileges" was instituted and council handled the fund-raising activity schedule for the entire year. No longer is student council a silent body.

Milne's Answer to President Nixon

Stephen I. Benko

Stephen I. Benko is running for the office of Student Council President. Please consider his candidacy carefully.

Steve Benko has a straight A average. You might say to that a person with extra-ordinary grades does not always make the best leader, but if you can be a president with tremendous leadership ability and also leadership ability, you can take advantage of it. Steve Benko has both. His scholarship and citizenship are evident in the activities and awards he has received while attending Milne. They include: a Junior High math award in ninth grade, a National Society letter, and two bands for outstanding conduct. He participated in the fencing team in eighth grade, was Dramatics treasurer in ninth and tenth grade, was a member of the band in grades seven through eleven, was council treasurer in tenth grade, was a C&W member in grades eight through ten, was assistant editor in eleventh grade, and was also a Student Council representative in tenth and eleventh grade.

I want a well run Student Council, so I wouldn't support anybody. Steve Benko isn't anybody so consider carefully a Steve Benko to the office of Student Council President.

SECRETARY

Lynn Hendler

My candidate for the office of secretary is Lynn Hendler. She does not consider the job of secretary as one where you just take notes. She realizes the challenge in it. Over the past year she has been the Secretary of Student Council. She has been one who has just taken notes. Lynn wants to change this. The secretary has a voice in the running of the school and this voice is finally going to be heard.

Lynn, an active member of the Spirit Club, MGAA, junior fund raising activities and many other Milne functions, has shown through outstanding work that she cares about Milne and its students. There is one important thing to be said about Lynn. At the time she was going to run for secretary, she was of the amount of work she is already involved in. But she has heard that no one was opposing the other candidate, she thought that it was unfair to the school to have no choice. Since then, she has entered the race and has taken on the added responsibilities of campaigning and hopefully winning the race. My only wish is that you realize who cares more about Milne and vote accordingly.

Debbie Stinson

a good secretary is one you need to get the job done. It's more important to look at it, Debbie has the qualification

Debbie realizes that she'll be able to do a good job as well as serving as chairman of the Career Day Series.

Knowing that the office of secretary entails both responsibility and a desire to work for the student body, Debbie has decided to achieve these qualities of an ideal secretary. If YOU want your job done right, elect Debbie Stinson as your next Student Council Secretary.

Standing: L. Kurland, Mr. Lewis, J. Lapidus, F. Perlmutter, S. Benko, D. Peck, Kneeling: D. Freinberg, B. Jupiter, P. Schmidt, S. Boomsliiter, Seated: P. Weiss, A. Schapiro, M. Bachman, J. Soffer, f.

I think that David is fit for the job of Vice President of Student Government because he realizes the responsibility of the job. Everyone takes about it, they care in Perhaps she could sing to the Queen to calm her down. She remembered 110 the old adage, "Music hath charms to calm the savage beast." But, nothing would calm down the Queen right now.

She was in such a state. The Queen had already ordered Alice’s execution. She shouted for her soldiers to cart Alice off to jail. The Queen demanded her royal coach.

One of her chief advisors, the white rabbit, spoke to the Queen, urging her to change her mind.

“Madam, this execution will not do.”

“Why not?” the Queen retorted.

“One cannot go around executing everyone!”

“What is the answer then?”

“Why not pardon her? Start a fad. Besides, a recent poll has shown you to be losing your popularity with the people. This could improve relations.”

“Of course! That’s the answer. Now why didn’t I think of that?” The Queen shouted to the soldiers to release Alice.

FHA

Although FHA had a diminutive membership this year, several members participated in many important and interesting activities. Among them were service projects, the fall rally, and the state meeting. And for the first time since running water was introduced in Milne, an invitation to join was extended to the male population. Next year, an anticipated increase in size would broaden the scope of activities.

In tenth grade, I wouldn't have shown up for any remedials. I was too busy with clubs in school or with some group in the community. I hardly had any time to myself. But I had fun working in the groups. It also gave me a good excuse for not doing my homework. I probably could have made up other excuses for not doing my homework, but saying that my many activities took so much of my time, provided me with a convenient excuse. Besides, it impressed the student teachers.

Milne has meant something different to all of us. To me it's been good friends, good times, hard work, fun and memories I'll never forget. Now that it is almost over, I'm excited but scared when I think of what's ahead. I'm happy but sad to think it's really over, and I'm not quite sure if I'm ready for the world or if the world's ready for me!
